If there were a heavier duty on foreign cigar leaf coming into Canada, there would undoubtedly be a big demand for our domestic leaf, but until this comes to pass the market cannot be other than limited. If a crop had been grown this year it would have sold readily since the leaf has tested exceedingly well and is pronounced by eastern manufacturers to have produced a good working leaf and to have been of first-class quality. The only difficulty so far has arisen because farmers have not taken sufficient pains in curing and handling the leaf. They in turn protest that they have never been able to realize a reasonable price for cigar leaf. It is thought among those conversant with the situation that if they were given say 15c per pound for such leaf there would be a choice lot grown, handled, sorted and packed with due care.

Taking Canadian leaf all round this year the quality is below the average and manufacturers are expecting a larger proportion than usual of inferior leaf.

Giant Tobacco Firm.

The American Tobacco Co., with head offices at Jersey City, has been incorporated. The company is capitalized at $180,000,000 and the officers are as follows: President, J. B. Duke; Vice-Presidents, J. B. Cobb, C. C. Duke, C. E. Halliwell, W. R. Harris, and P. S. Hill; Secretary, W. H. McAllister; Treasurer, J. M. W. Hicks.

Tobacco Notes.

The 1904 crop of tobacco in Mexico is estimated at 28,000,000 to 30,000,000 pounds.

A bill has been introduced to the House of Representatives, New Zealand, known as the "Trade Monopolies Prevention Bill," which takes cognizance of the tobacco, cigar and cigarette trades.

GOOD THING FOR ST. JOHN, N.B.

As the season nears its close, considerable interest is being taken in the Maritime Province ports, more especially St. John, N.B., to which port the C.P.R. Steamship Co. intends to transfer its business from Montreal about November 15, the first steamer sailing on November 22. This company has made considerable addition to its accommodation in that port, and has increased its staff. A number of C.P.R. employes who work in Montreal during the Summer, will leave shortly for St. John. One feature that interests the grocery and other trades, is that boats equipped with refrigerating plants have been instructed to purchase all their supplies, such as lumber, ship-chandlery, groceries, fruit, and meat in St. John, and these steamers will lay in sufficient stores for the return voyage. It is expected that as much as $150,000 will be expended during the season, as there will be 35 sailings, each averaging $5,000.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

A GOVERNMENT blue book containing official figures relating to the life insurance business in Canada has recently been issued. The report affords reliable evidence of the growth of prosperity and the systematic thrift and carefulness of our population. In 1883 the total amount of life insurance effected in Canada was only $21,572,960 and the total in force totalled $124,196,875; the return just issued shows that $91,567,805 of new policies were effected last year and that the record amount of $548,443,000 was in force.

In 1875 American companies held over one-half of the total life insurance in force in Canada, British companies nearly twenty millions and Canadian companies only $21,957,296. For the year 1903, this situation shows a remarkable change. Canadian companies held $335,638,940; American companies, $170,676,800, and British companies, $42,127,260.

Satisfactory evidences of the stability of the Canadian companies are afforded by the blue book. To-day several of them are finding a remunerative field for their operations outside Canada.

AT the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Molsons Bank, which took place on October 17, the directors had the pleasure to announce another prosperous year. A notable feature of the annual statement was the addition of $150,000 to the reserve fund, which brings that account up to a level with the paid-up capital, or $3,000,000. That is a very strong position. The net profits amounted to $457,290, or about fifteen and a quarter per cent. Two half-yearly dividends have been paid at the rate of nine per cent. per annum, and another year it is extremely probable that the bank will be in the ten per cent. dividend class. A few years ago the directors were asked to increase the dividend to ten per cent., but they preferred instead to increase the reserve fund until such time as it equalled the capital, and they were wise. The reserve of three million dollars having now been obtained, and the whole of it invested so as to be promptly realizable and available to meet any demands, the prospects for a ten per cent. dividend next year are very bright indeed, especially now that the assured good harvest and high prices promise another year of expansion.

FAILURES in Canada for the nine months ending September 30th, were 910. Liabilities aggregated $8,988,140, compared with 721 last year for $5,332,611. It must be remembered, however, that 1903 was a phenomenally prosperous year in Canada. Manufacturing failures were 225 in number and $3,642,161 in amount, against 167 for $2,090,744 in 1903; trading insolvencies numbered 665, and involved $5,060,986, which compare with 538 failures and $3,090,986 liabilities a year ago; other failures were unimportant in both years, except for a few large banks in 1903. Losses in Ontario were slightly larger than in Quebec, while British Columbia and Nova Scotia were unusually close together in this respect.

For the quarter ending 30th September a slight increase in both number and liabilities of manufacturing insolvencies was reported by the Dominion of Canada. But five branches of business showed a decrease, and in three cases there were no liabilities recorded in either year, while in six classes there was a large balance in favor of last year. The striking changes were in the wood and miscellaneous branches, due to heavy suspensions this year of saw and pulp mills. As to trading failures, the statement is much less satisfactory than that of 1903, which was an unusually good year. Only four occupations reported smaller losses, one was unchanged, and nine showed more or less increase. General stores suspended with almost double last year's liabilities, and there was a still more striking increase in the amount involved by failures in dry goods defaults. This was due to a few large failures, as the total number was not exceptional.

NOTES.

At the sixth annual banquet of the Toronto Insurance Institute on October 11, about 150 guests were present.

An office of the Crown Bank of Canada has been opened at Woodstock, Ontario, under the management of Mr. S. B. Fuller.

Last month the Quebec Fire Assurance Company formally opened their reconstructed building on St. Peter street, Quebec.

Mr. W. K. McNaught, president of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, has been elected a director of the Sovereign Bank of Canada.

Mr. R. S. Schell, manager of the Royal Loan & Savings Company, and one of the best known business men of Brantford, died on October 4.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce have added another branch to their already long list in Canada. The latest branch to be opened is at Nanton, Alta.

The aggregate of the bank clearings in Toront for the week ending October 20 is $19,329,254, as against $19,790,488 on October 13 and $20,816,890 on October 6. The present situation is particularly satisfactory.

La Banque Nationale has opened two new branches in the Province of Quebec, one at Amqui, under the management of Mr. Ernest Bilodeau, and the other at Deschaillons (formerly St. Jean Deschaillons), under the management of Mr. A. A. Dionne. This bank now has 28 branches, all but one of which are in the Province of Quebec, the branch being the exception being at Ottawa.

The Manchester Assurance Company of Manchester, England, have ceased to carry on business in Canada and have insured all their outstanding risks in Canada with the Atlas Insurance Company, Limited. Application has been made for the release on January 17th, 1905, of the securities, and the Canadian policyholders opposing such release are required to file their opposition with the Minister of Finance on or before that date.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

SOME improvement has been noted in the freight business generally, but charters are not numerous. In the port of Montreal within a month of the closing of navigation only an occasional ship has been chartered for new business. The majority of steamers are being sent to the River Plate with lumber and the tonnage is considered unusually small and uninteresting.

Grain freights from all parts of the Dominion have increased and just now the movement by the Great Lake as well as by all the railways is very heavy.

For export, rates have fluctuated considerably with the result that slight advances have been quoted on grain, flour and other foodstuffs. Nearly all the available space on outgoing steamers has been booked ahead. In fact, freight managers of big steamship lines are taxed to their utmost to handle the excessive offers now awaiting them.

A tabulated statement of the daily movement of grain on the C.P.R. for the years 1903-04 has been published and is of considerable interest, showing the difference in the two shipping seasons in regard to hauling, marketing and date of greatest movement. In September, 1903, 3,154,000 bushels were marketed, against 2,614,000 in September, 1904.

Of the total number of cars loaded during September, 1903, 1,967 were from elevators and 191 direct. In September, 1904, 1,320 were loaded from elevators and 264 direct. This means that while little over one-eleventh of the total number were loaded direct in 1903. one-sixth were loaded direct in 1904. For 24 days in October, 1904, 6,118,000 bushels were marketed against 5,837,000 bushels in 1903. Up to October 24, 1903, cars loaded from elevators numbered 3,399, while those loaded direct numbered 328.

During the corresponding period of this year cars loaded from elevators numbered 4,280, while those loaded direct numbered 445.

Flour freights have been readjusted and from coast to coast excellent facilities are now available for shipping this vital food product. The export of apples is most important and immense shipments are continually going forward. An advance in freight rates has been mooted but so far it has not been put into force.

Vessels are now announcing sailing dates for St. John, N.B., and Halifax as well as Portland, and within a fortnight shippers will be using the eastern Winter port.

What is one of the most conveniently arranged country stores in the Eastern Townships has just been completed for Merrill & Dixon, Beebe Plain.

BATGER'S

Whole Fruit Strawberry Jam

By reason of a small crop of Strawberries in Canada this season, and a very large and good crop in England, we are having a big demand for Batger's Strawberry Jam.
"There's nothing better."

Don't Have to Confess

when a customer asks for

Paterson's Camp Coffee Essence

that you "are just out of it, but we will have some in a day or so." It's bad business. How is your stock of Paterson's ? Is it low ?

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

that quality---blue blood, so to speak---will assert itself soon or late. Those grocers who have worked late and early to build up a sound business, have ever been on the watch for a better quality than that they were handling.

This Spring, we offered to the Canadian grocery trade a new brand of Canned Vegetables and Fruits, to which was given the happy name of Old Homestead.

Quality was superfine, labels the smartest and richest we could have prepared.

We have been concerned to have the grocery trade test these goods to ascertain just how good they are. Tests are better than taking our word for it.

AN OFFICIAL CHEMICAL ANALYSIS.

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.
Guelph, Canada, Aug. 24th, 1904.

THE ONTARIO SUGAR CO.,
BERLIN, ONT.

GENTLEMEN,—

We have analysed the ten (10) samples of your granulated sugar, also ten (10) samples of granulated sugar from the Eastern Refineries which you forwarded to us. The following are the average results:

	MOISTURE. %	CANE SUGAR. %
Average of 20 samples	.0737	99.697
" 10 " Ontario Sugar Co.	.0727	99.698
Average of 10 samples, Eastern Refineries	.0747	99.697

These figures show, judging from the results obtained from the analysis of the sugars submitted to us, that the sugar manufactured by your company from sugar beets contains practically the same amount of moisture and cane sugar as that refined in the Eastern Refineries. What little advantage there is in both items is in favor of your sugar. Your sugar was crystallized smaller, but is fully equal in value to the so-called pure cane sugar made in the Eastern Refineries.

INSPECTORS FOR CANADIAN FOOD PRODUCTS

IN this week's issue of The Grocer is reproduced a series of interviews with Toronto manufacturers on the subject of "Adulteration of food products" and the suggestion which appeared in a recent issue of The Grocer to the effect that the present problem might be solved by the appointment of factory inspectors in the different manufactories.

Mr. R. Greig, of the Robert Greig Co.

The plan adopted by the Dominion Government in its "pure food" campaign cannot be said to be exactly satisfactory to all parties concerned, the manufacturers in particular. A Government appointed agent now goes to the grocery trade indiscriminately and selects samples. The retailer is asked the name of the house from which the article in question was purchased and the result of the chemical analysis thus associated with a certain manufacturer. On one or two occasions it has actually been proven that an article identified in this way came from another source altogether, to the injury of the firm singled out.

There is no question but the manufacturers are as much interested in the "pure food" campaign as anyone else. No one will for a moment excuse a manufacturer who brands his product as "pure" when as a matter of fact it contains foreign constituents. It is another matter, however, for a manufacturer of food products to supply a cheaper but at the same time perfectly wholesome food to a certain class of trade. In regard to the suggestion in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer that representatives from the manufacturers and the Government get together and formulate a standard for such food products it would be very difficult to arrive at such a standard owing to the fact that there is a good deal of diversity in regard to the quality of the article required by consumers in different sections of the country.

Even if such a standard could be arrived at its effective enforcement would scarcely be practicable. Neither would an inspector appointed by the Government answer the purpose; there is about one chance in a hundred that such an agent would be competent to pass judgment on a food product, since the man of requisite technical equipment for such work is still a scarce article in Canada.

Mr. W. A. Mitchell, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co.

On the whole the efforts of the Dominion Government to bring about an effective enforcement of the "Food Adulteration Act" may be said to have sanction of manufacturers of food products as well as of the retail trade throughout Canada.

We are face to face with the lamentable fact that food products are being offered on the Canadian market to-day as "pure" when in reality they are more or less mixed with foreign material—in other words they are adulterated. No one will contend for a minute that the sale of compound goods is not perfectly legitimate, when the regulations of the Act are complied with. In many cases, mustard for instance, a good compound meets the taste and other requirements of the consumer better than almost any ordinary pure mustard would. At the same time it is necessary to protect the public to a certain degree, and it is manifestly unjust that a loop-hole should be left for the manufacturer to mix and compound goods to his heart's content, especially when it is borne in mind that harmful ingredients have been detected in more than one instance. In justice to the manufacturer it must be said that the bulk of the grocery trade buy and get pure spices of the best quality. Any dealer who is desirous of getting strictly pure spices and is satisfied to pay their fair market value need experience no difficulty in getting them in any part of Canada.

Twelve or fifteen years ago, when the "Food Adulteration Act" first came into force, a manufacturer would have considered the branding of "compound" spices as "pure" a suicidal act. Present conditions are vastly different in so far as these things are now more or less connived at. The big question is how the Food Adulteration Act is to be effectively enforced? The suggestion to have factory inspectors is impracticable in the first place, and would probably fail to accomplish the purpose intended. After all, a firm's trade-mark ought to be sufficient guarantee as to the quality of all such products. If the machinery of the Government, which in principle is all right but has become incapacitated through lack of use, could publicly expose some of the offenders—and it need not necessarily be a difficult matter if the thing were followed up systematically—the abnormal conditions would speedily become righted. In short, it is merely a question of the Government spending a sufficient amount of money and energy if the problem of pure food products is to be solved in Canada

Canadian Canners, Limited.

Referring to "Pure Food Products," we think the Canadian Packers' Association is now united on the advisability of packing the purest kind of fruit products of all lines, and if the wholesale and retail trade would give it the support it deserves there would be no need of any pure food law to enforce pure food products. Unfortunately the competition in trade is so keen that the merchant is continually looking for the cheapest thing he can find to meet the demand from the trade, which leads to the adulterating of nearly all lines in commerce. There is no doubt that some law regulating this would be beneficial if it could be properly enforced without abuse.

The writer, who has been paying some attention to the pure food laws of the United States, finds that the manufacturing of food products is entirely in the hands of Government inspectors, and that blackmailing is levied on all alike. We would not care to introduce that sort of thing in Canada inasmuch as the Dominion and Ontario Governments have sufficient hangers on now.

In regard to the adoption of a standard can, we presume you refer to cans in use for canned goods. The matter has been frequently before the Government in years gone by. Let me say that the cans in use at present, known as 2 and 3 lb. cans, are standard sizes while not uniform in weight, from the fact that the different fruits and vegetables differ in weight when put in uniform sized cans.

If we manufacturers were obliged to sell uniform weight it would be necessary to make probably 50 or more different sizes of tins to contain the same weight of different kind of vegetables. This in turn would require 50 or more different sized presses necessary to make various sized cans, which are very expensive pieces of machinery and cost from $200 to $500 each. This would enhance the cost of the canned article and be a great disturber of trade without benefitting anyone. We would therefore say that whatever you have to say about fruit product, leave the size of canned goods as they are.

Mr. Dalton, of Dalton Bros.

The problem of "pure food products" is one of the most involved that has come before the Canadian trade for a long time. It will, however, be a very difficult matter to effect the reform proposed, which would undoubtedly be in the best interests of all parties concerned.

In the first place the field is a wide one, which it would be difficult to cover satisfactorily on account of the trade in different sections demanding entirely different qualities of goods. A certain class of consumers want compound goods, the cheapest to be had. Others want pure goods, and have no difficulty in obtaining the same when they are willing to pay the price.

For years an attempt was made to enforce the Food Adulteration Act, which failed for the reasons mentioned above —something like the Scott Act. Outside of Ontario the trade openly demanded compound goods, and a general Dominion regulation became largely a thing of the letter.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

FOLLOWING are the inquiries concerning Canadian trade having been received by the High Commissioner for Canada in London, Eng.:

157. A firm of high-class china manufacturers are desirous of appointing a reliable agent to represent them in Canada.

159. A London firm has asked to be placed in communication with first-class shippers in Canada of canned and evaporated fruit and canned fish.

The following inquiries concerning Canadian trade have been received from Leeds and Hull, Eng.:

63. Large firm of apple importers having excellent facilities for northern district and for transhipment trade, and with New York agent, desires communication with Canadian exporters of XXX and XX Canadian apples.

65. Sales agent in Hull desires agency for Yorkshire, Canadian salmon and canned lobsters.

66. Large firm of fruit merchants with good northern connection desires communication with Canadian exporters; preference given to boxes with 50 pounds net weight of fruit.

67. Large firm of produce merchants and brokers desire communication with Canadian exporters of apples in barrels, especially heavy-weight barrels from 168 to 196 pounds.

No. 71. Large firm Hull produce merchants desire to deal direct with Canadian exporters or shippers of eggs in large quantities. Terms, 80 per cent. ten days after sight, with bills of lading, balance with account sales. References, the Union of London and Smith's Bank, Limited.

The following inquiries concerning Canadian trade have been received by the curator, Canadian Section, Imperial Institute, London, Eng.:

95. A London firm shipping herrings, sardines and preserved fish of all kinds wishes to open up trade in Canada.

98. A London firm is open to represent a reliable Canadian packer of gallon apples.

The following inquiries concerning Canadian trade have been received from Birmingham, Eng.:

93. A firm in Birmingham wishes to get in communication with firms who can ship large quantities of apples.

94. A large firm in the Midlands wishes to take at once about 3,000 barrels of cider.

95. A Midland firm would like to get in touch at once with firms in Canada now prepared to ship apples.

The following inquiries concerning Canadian trade have been received from Bristol, Eng.:

1. A local firm, importing cheese, butter and bacon, wishes to hear from Canadian exporters of these products.

2. A firm having an established connection in Canadian flour desires to handle Canadian apples on consignment.

3. A local broker handling tinned meats and tinned apples (gallons and 3's) is desirous of securing agencies for Canadian goods of these lines in West of England.

The following inquiries for Canadian trade have been received by the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa:

33. Wanted, names of bean shippers desirous of exporting to France.

34. Scotch peas wanted by a grain importer of Marseilles, France.

35. Wanted by a firm in France, names of shippers of cod roes used as sardine bait.

42. A French firm desires to be put in communication with Canadian exporters of wooden packing cases. The firm in question could place a yearly order in Canada for 500,000 to 1,000,000 such cases.

The names and addresses of the firms making their inquiries may be had by application to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Parties making inquiries will be careful to mention the office under which said inquiry appears and the number.

A firm in Amsterdam, Holland, wishes to secure the Canadian representation for a Dutch firm of cocoa and chocolate manufacturers, who put up milk chocolate among numerous other lines. The name and address of the firm in question may be had by application to The Canadian Grocer.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

An Attractive Fish Display.

"COULD there be anything beautiful in a display of fish?" asked a fair Canadienne the other day in conversation with a representative of The Canadian Grocer. The question was speedily answered by taking her to see one of Toronto's most up-to-date retail groceries, where the fish department is now receiving more attention than at any other season of the year.

The majority of the fair sex shrink at the mere mention of the finny tribe, preferring to see them properly baked, garnished, and ready for the table, and it is this very fact that many enterprising grocers have seized upon and turned to their own account in the prepared fish trade, netting many hundreds of dollars.

The window display of fish in question was one of the most effective the writer has seen for a long time. The background and floor of the window were lined with white glazed tile, immaculately clean. In the rear was a floral screen of crimson and yellow chrysanthemums, while the fish display proper was attractively arranged on slanting platters in dozens and half-dozens of the varieties of fresh and salt water fish in season at the present time. The aim of the grocer was evidently to attract even the most fastidious consumer, as the display comprised fresh water fish with the scales on, arranged on lettuce leaves and looking as if they had just come out of an angler's hamper; other platters held fillets and steaks of fish ready for the table. It goes without saying that the fair Canadienne immediately changed her opinion as to the possible attractiveness of a fish display.

Although The Canadian Grocer has urged a more vigorous prosecution of the fresh fish trade on the part of the retail grocery trade throughout Canada, as well as the necessity of display for rejuvenating trade and attracting new customers, it would not advocate such elaborate fish displays as the one mentioned except in towns and cities where there is sufficient fancy trade. The difficulty where the retail grocery trade has experimented with fish departments in one or two instances, is that an amount of work and money has been expended which has not been warranted by the financial returns from such a department. In other words, the grocer hasn't counted the cost, and in fish, above all other lines, the possibility of trade in his particular district must first be thoroughly studied out. When a grocer begins to import sea and fresh water fish, advertises fresh supplies daily and makes a specialty of cleaning and filleting, he must have a fair percentage of trade to draw from that will pay the requisite price without murmuring.

The ways and means employed by enterprising grocers for working into the good graces of patrons of their fish departments are varied. One little thing which could not fail to win general approbation is the manner of wrapping fish to-day. Formerly any coarse brown paper was considered good enough; now fine parchment paper is in general use. The leading impression one gets in visiting the fish department of a modern grocery store is that no pains are spared in keeping it scrupulously clean and giving it as far as practicable an air of plain and quiet elegance.

The Dog-Fish as an Article of Commerce.

A FEW more years may show us that we have been extremely slow in recognizing a good thing in the dog-fish, says the Maritime Merchant, and since he is so plentiful and we have such incentives to destroy him, an industry may arise in this province because of him that will add to the importance, value and more successful conduct of our fishing industry. The other day a firm in Halifax had an inquiry for 250 quintals of dried dog-fish. "Never mind what I am going to do with them," said the inquirer; "I can sell them at a price." So dried dog-fish may be a staple article in ten years, "dog oil" may be as important an article of commerce as cod oil, and people may even be putting up emulsions of "dog liver oil" for coughs and colds. And why not? The dog-fish is a cleaner living fish than many of those we are accustomed to eat every day, his meat cooked fresh is said to taste like a nice quality of halibut, and the oil he renders is good enough to deceive experts as to its origin. Wherever our prejudice against the dog-fish arose, we unquestionably have it, and it may be hard to shake; but it can be done and likely will, and then the beast we have cursed with many curses will have equal honor with the cod which has yielded us so much wealth. It may be that the prevailing high price of dried cod will be the beginning of the end of our prejudice, for quite likely the inquiry for dried dog-fish has originated with some one who found the prevailing price of cod too high for some export market, and realizing the unmistakable firmness of the situation, saw the advisability of obtaining a substitute if possible. What more natural than to experiment with dog-fish, which open out large and make up into a nice looking article. Of course, even if it should be accepted in foreign markets (as we have no doubt it would) we could not assume that it would also become popular at home. But it is not necessary that it should. If we can export dried dog-fish and thereby increase our trade, what more could we want? Nevertheless, we believe that if our fishermen get into the habit of catching and curing it, the idea that it is edible will gradually work into the minds of the more particular people and in another generation the prejudice against the much maligned "dog" may vanish entirely. Is it too much then to hope that the present day "scourge" may be a profit bringing blessing in the future?

To Develop B. C. Herring Fisheries.

A DEVELOPMENT of the herring fishing industry on the British Columbia coast will likely follow the visit of Mr. John M. Cowie, the expert from Scotland, who has just arrived in Vancouver from Ottawa. It is well known what success attended the experiments conducted by Mr. Cowie and his fifteen Scotch lassies in Nova Scotia, where it was shown that Canadian herrings could be cured the same as those caught on the Scottish coast, and how the price rose very materially. The herring resources of waters close to Vancouver are very extensive. Especially at Nanaimo, great schools of them are often cast upon the beach, being chased by whales or by large waves. The only use to which they are now put is for halibut bait, the smaller ones being secured for this purpose. Occasionally fresh herrings are offered for sale, but the demand is far greater than the suuply. During the recent visit of Hon. Raymond Prefontaine he hinted at development of the herring fisheries, and there is no reason why they should not be, except lack of enterprise. The market in the countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean and east of the Rockies in the vast Territories, is large, but as yet no one has taken an interest in the matter. Possibly with the visit of Mr. Cowie, and experiments in the curing, an enterprise may be started.

The success attending the Western Canadian Fish Co., a local concern, should be an incentive. They have more orders than they can really supply, and this week received an order for a carload from Montreal, and a telegraph order from London, Ont., for another carload. The method of curing adopted by this company makes the fish very palatable.

Hatching Lobsters.

IN the current number of the Scientific American appears a very interesting description of the lobster hatchery, which, under the supervision of the United States Fishery Commission, has, after three years' experiments, solved the problem of artificially rearing lobsters with complete success. In the propagation of the lobster from the egg there are four critical stages of development which have to be passed, and the measure of success which has attended the experiments may be gauged from the fact that the best result reached produced twelve thousand seven hundred and fifty lobsterlings in the fourth stage of maturity—that is to say, in the stage in which they are able to look after themselves—out of about double the number of eggs. In one experiment on a smaller scale as many as fifty-four per cent. of the fry survived. The first step in the artificial propagation is that of obtaining eggs from the female lobsters. These are bought from the Newport fishermen in July and August, and the number of eggs obtained from them varies from three thousand to ninety thousand to a lobster. The eggs are combed from the female into bags, the water in which is continually agitated by propellers, and remain there from two to three weeks. Many dangers threaten the youthful lobster in these weeks, for he may die from starvation or suffocation, he may be eaten by parasites or by his brother. The constantly moving water is the device which prevents most of these evils, and which, in addition, keeps food for the lobster—the soft part of clams—within reach of his enterprising but hungry mouth. The first stage of hatching takes three days; the second stage, at which the lobster moults for the second time, four days; the third, another moult, six days; and when the lobster reaches the fourth stage he is liberated in battalions of one thousand to five thousand.

Fish Notes.

Black Bros & Co., Halifax, who have conducted a wholesale hardware and ship chandlery business since 1816, are about to retire from that department of trade and will devote their attention entirely to the fish business.

In response to a suggestion from the fishing interests on Vancouver Island, the Dominion Government has arranged to ship a quarter of a million salmon fry from the east to replenish the inland streams.

B. C. cannerymen will be interested in the announcement that in all probability a fish hatchery will shortly be established by the authorities of Washington State, on the south fork of the Nooksack River.

W. B. Stringer & Co., fruit brokers, Toronto, have secured the agency of the Stewart Fruit Co., of California, for deciduous and citrous fruits in Toronto and Western Ontario, as far west as London.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

TO CATCH THE BRITISH DAIRY AND PROVISION TRADE.

THE London, Eng., correspondent of The Grocer was recently privileged to meet Mr. James Brodie and Mr. W. H. Hay, of the Exhibition Branch of the Department of Agriculture of the Dominion of Canada, at a little farewell gathering of newspaper men and others who have been very closely interested in the success that has attended the Canadian display at the "Grocers' Fair" and the "Dairy Show" at Agricultural Hall, Islington, London. The exhibition at the former fair has already been described, but a visit to the hall during the week of the Dairy Show provided an opportunity for still further observing the very highly satisfactory results that have attended both exhibitions.

The Department of Agriculture is to be congratulated on having placed this branch of the work in the hands of such capable men, whose untiring energy has done so much to open the eyes of British buyers to the resources of Canadian producers. Not only have these gentlemen been the means of enlightening British merchants in regard to matters hitherto unknown, but they have also acquired valuable information in regard to the requirements of the British market through having been so closely in touch with the largest and best merchants in the United Kingdom. There can be no doubt that Canada has profited enormously and will continue to do so through these practical demonstrations, especially if the recommendations of such representatives as Messrs. Brodie and Hay are but closely followed up and carefully acted upon.

Speaking of the value of sentiment in business, Mr. Brodie stated that he was a firm believer in it, although it was too much to expect that sentiment would overcome a difference in price. He was thoroughly convinced that where two similar articles were offered to the British buyer of same quality and of equal price, one Canadian and the other foreign, the order would be given to Canada nine times out of ten. Things being equal, sentiment would invariably bring down the scale on the Canadian side, but here an important fact must be emphasized, namely, that Great Britain, with its open ports for generations, is accustomed to have brought to its shores the very best that the world produces, and unless Canadians are willing to send their very best produce to the Mother Land success can never be expected.

Canadian butter must compete with the home product, as well as Irish, Danish and even Siberian butter, and no amount of sentiment will induce buyers to stock the Canadian article if it is of inferior quality to that offered by competitors, which unfortunately has frequently been the case of late. The same applies to cheese and other commodities.

Then, again, there is the question of absolute uniformity of quality. Your Britisher is well-known as a very conservative customer, and having made one purchase of any line he insists that the repeat order must be of exactly the same standard. It has been proved again and again, however, that Canadian shippers do not realize the importance of this point, and considerable trouble has arisen from time to time through the indifference of packers and shippers. It is not enough to reason that an article that is good enough for Canadians is good enough for Great Britain. That may, or may not, be true, but when the Britisher parts with his own money for any article it is for him to say of what quality that article must be. It is for him also to say how that article will be packed and shipped to the British market. If the British buyer demands that his butter must be put up in a certain form, no other form is going to satisfy him, even though he should be assured that this was the form that is giving satisfaction in Canada. If John Bull wishes his butter packed in the shape of a diamond, let us say, instead of a roll, he is going to have it that way, and if not from Canada then from some other country. It has long been said of the British merchant who looks for trade in the Colonies, that he refuses to adapt himself to the requirements of the country for whose trade he is catering, but it must be said that Canadians are themselves just as open to this charge, and perhaps more so, than the merchants in the Mother Country.

No doubt upon Mr. Brodie's return to Canada his report to the Minister of Agriculture will be made public, and many practical suggestions and criticisms will thus be brought before Canadian manufacturers and producers. Already the effects of the exhibitions have begun to show on the London market. In many of the restaurants and hotels "Canadian Cheddar" is to be found on the menus, and in one of the best West End shops one whole window is at present given up to a magnificent display of Canadian butter and cheese. Mr. Brodie and his colleague have done magnificent work on behalf of the Department of Agriculture during their few weeks sojourn in England, and it is to be regretted that these gentlemen are not stationed in London or Liverpool permanently, so that they might continue to stimulate the interest of Britishers in Canadian produce, and to give expert advice on matters that are of unlimited consequence to producers in Canada.

Decline of British Dairying.

ONE plausible explanation of the manifest decline in dairying in England, says F. W. Makin, of Nottingham, Eng., is that it is more profitable to sell the milk, the drinking of which is increasing, than to convert it into butter. Consequently the average British farmer is making no butter to sell, but is even buying what he needs for his own use. Furthermore, it is asserted that some English dairies buy foreign butter and sell it as their own product—the domestic article, though inferior in the judgment of many consumers, commanding a higher price than the foreign.

New System of Handling Eggs.

A NEW idea in the handling of eggs has been introduced which promises to take the place more or less of the ordinary egg crates with pasteboard fillers. It is known as the Zinket system, and takes its name from the fact that the carrier which forms the basis of the system is made of sheet metal coated with zinc.

These metal carriers are shaped entirely by machinery and are formed from metal sheets into a tray-like device with two sides turned partially over, so that one of these devices will fit into another and several of them will form a single unit. Twelve holes

The carriers are placed vertically instead of horizontally, and as a result the eggs carry with less breakages, the boxes in which the carriers are placed are much smaller than a corresponding package of the same capacity, of the kind now in general use, and facilities are afforded for convenient examination of the eggs.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS IN BIRMINGHAM.

By H. B.

BIRMINGHAM is the home of many British industries, and during times of general trade depression it seldom happens that work is short in all of them. At the present time, however, trade is very quiet all round. Manufacturers of light articles, such as jewelry, light brass goods and the thousand and one knick-knacks which the central great city of England supplies, are feeling the benefit of the customary demands for the Autumn season and the Christmas trade, but on the whole business may be regarded as flat, stale and unprofitable. The depression consequent upon lavish national expenditure in a great war with ever increasing foreign competition, seems for the moment to have practically paralyzed the home industries and Birmingham is suffering throughout her commercial system, as a natural consequence.

In countries whose business limitations are fairly defined, trade ebbs and flows in great waves of certain volume, but the steady decline in the output of some of our local industries and the sharp and ever sharper foreign competition which this country experiences as a result of her "unprotected" condition, is bringing Mr. Chamberlain's great scheme of tariff reform more and more within the range of practical statesmanship. We are suffering not merely from the depression which is to be generally looked for after years of plenty terminating in a big war, but also from the excessive dumping of the surplus stocks of other countries, who, when Birmingham was regarded as the "toy shop of the world," used to look to her as a source of supply, but have now become her fiercest rivals. This change in the relationship of the hardware city towards those who were once her customers, combined with the pinch she is experiencing in the home trade, is causing her to turn more and more to "protection" for relief, and when the time comes for Mr. Chamberlain to make his appeal to the country upon the question of fiscal reform, Birmingham will be found practically solid at his back.

concerned, has been rescinded, or at least modified, in view of the coming Winter and its privations. Otherwise the gun trade would have been in a sorry state. Sporting guns have been in poor demand considering this is the season for them, but orders for cartridges have been sufficiently large to prove that to economy rather than to any decline in the sporting instinct, must be credited the unsatisfactory condition of this important Birmingham industry. On all sides the cry is the same—"Money is scarce." Luxuries must therefore be curtailed. So the man that is ordering a new motor car dispenses with a new gun.

Large orders for finely appointed rolling stock for South American railroads and steel wagons for the same lines have enabled railway carriage builders to face the situation with greater equanimity than otherwise they might have done, but bridge builders and producers of structural materials, girders, joists, and ties and angles and channels throughout the Midland district, though partially occupied, cannot be said to be busy. There is a fair demand for heavy iron founders work in some quarters, but signs of a general revival throughout local iron industries are not yet apparent.

Heavy sales of War Office stores have had a depressing effect upon the saddlery trade in the neighboring town of Walsall, and though some cycle companies have been able to submit good balance sheets rumors of cheapening the make of cycles for the Spring season point to special efforts being made to suit buyers who have been affected by bad trade.

The button trade was once peculiar to Birmingham, and probably the active output is greater to-day than ever it was in certain lines. In this connection it is satisfactory to observe that Plant, Green & Martin, Limited, at the recent annual meeting of the company, were able to report a most satisfactory year's trading and to declare a dividend at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum on their ordinary shares, after making liberal provision for all contingencies. There is hope also in last month's official trade returns. While the exports of the country show an increase upon last year's returns for the same period and imports have diminished, Birmingham has benefitted by an increase in her output.

We are indebted here to Mr. P. W. Ball, the Canadian Government commercial agent stationed in Birmingham, for much public information regarding Canada. Mr. Ball has recently given a very clear exposition of the effect of the regulations recently issued by the Canadian Customs Department to give effect to the "anti-dumping clause" of the tariff act. In effect Mr. Ball explains that the new regulations have been framed in the hope of assisting British manufacturers and effectually crushing the dumping so extensively carried on by American producers in the past. The friendly attitude Canada is adopting in her commercial relations with the Mother Country is gradually being understood and appreciated by our too conservative hardware community, and, as the reports of the many special agents who have recently been dispatched to inquire on the spot into Canadian possibilities of trade, are thoroughly digested, there is little doubt closer relations and much personal friendship will result. In promoting these objects Mr. Ball is a very important factor in our midst.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Nov. 5, 1904.

THE stir of the elections has now subsided and business generally is resuming a more even tenor. For the past week the most pleasant weather has prevailed and trade throughout the Northwest is now showing up to good advantage. All markets continue fairly firm with the exception of the sugar market which has now advanced 15 cents, making two moves on the upward turn.

Sugar.

The market has been very active for the past week. Since our last quotations on the sugar situation, the market has declined once 5c and advanced twice 5c and 10c, and Montreal granulated is now quoted in barrels at $5.40 and sacks at $5.30, and yellows, $4.80. Wallaceburg is also quoted in advance of last week's price list, listing Wallaceburg in barrels at $5.30 and sacks at $5.20.

Evaporated and Dried Fruit.

The market is now holding all lines, fairly firm. As only half a crop of raisins and prunes were realized this year owing to the wet wather, the market has advanced, quoting prunes 90-100 at 4 1-2c, 80-90 at 4 3-4c, 70-80 at 5 1-2, 60-70 at 5 3-4c, 50-60 at 6 1-2c, and 40-50 at 7 1-4c. Valencia raisins, Trenor's brand, are quoted at $2.10 per case.

Evaporated apples are now available; the market quotes 50 lb. cases at 6 1-4c to 6 1-2c, and 25 lb. cases at 6 3-4c. New currants are now on the market, uncleaned Filiatra loose pack at 5 1-4c per lb.; dry cleaned at 5 1-2c per lb., and wet cleaned at 6 1-4c per lb. One pound package dry cleaned the market quotes at 6 1-2c per lb.

Canned Fruits.

The market continues very active and quite firm, quoting strawberries at $3.25 per case, raspberries at $3 per case of 2 dozen; peaches (1904 crop) the market quotes 2-lb. yellow $3.75 per case and 3 lb yellow at $5.75 per case. Pears are still holding the price strong at 2 lb. F.B. at $3.25 per case and 3 lb. F.B. at $4.25 per case.

Rolled Oats.

The market continues bright and very strong, quoting 80-lb. sacks at $2.25, 40-lb. sacks at $2.30, and 20-lb. sacks at $2.35.

Canned Vegetables.

Activity prevails in the market, quoting canned beans still at $1.80 to $1.90 per case and canned peas at $1.90 per case. Tomatoes are now in advance of last week's quotation and are listed at $2.90 to $3 per case.

Cornmeal.

The market for the past week has been active but firm, quoting cornmeal per sack at $1.75 and per half sack at 90c.

Flour.

The market continues very bright and firm, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.90, No. 2 at $2.70, No. 3 at $2.20, and No. 4 at $1.55.

Syrups.

The market continues quite firm and bright, quoting Imperial brand half gallons, 12 in a case at $6, and Edwardsburgh, 2 lb. tins at $2.40 per case, 5 lb. tins at $2.70, 10 lb. tins at $5.50 per case and 20 lb. tins $2.40 per case.

Green Fruit.

The market continues active and quotes bright Valencia oranges at $5 to $5.50 per case; Florida oranges at $5.50 to $6 per case; California lemons at $6.50 per case; Washington plums at $1.10 per case; Washington pears (Winter Nellies) $2.25 per case; Ontario Fall apples at $3 per barrel; Ontario snow apples, $4 per barrel; Quebec snow apples (Famous) $4.50 per barrel, fancy XXX Kings $3.25 per barrel, fancy XXX Greenings $3 per barrel; Ontario basket pears 65c per basket; Malaga keg grapes $7; Ontario basket grapes (blue and green) 25c; Ontario basket red grapes 30c; cranberries (Cape Cod) per barrel $10; celery, per dozen bunches 50c; green tomatoes 3c per lb.; Jersey sweet potatoes, $5.50 per barrel; (Bell brand) Spanish onions, $1.50 per barrel; and oysters (per express only) $2.50 per gallon.

Provisions.

Cured Meats—The firmness of the market is now quite general in all lines of cured meats and the market now quotes the same as in last week's price list:

Hams, per lb	0 14
Breakfast bellies, per lb	0 13½
Breakfast backs, per lb	0 10
Shoulders	0 08½

STOCK FOODS, A BOON TO THE FARMER.

NOW that the season for outside pasturage is practically at an end the scientific farmer is beginning to look around for his usual supply of "stock food." During the long Winter months his herd of cattle and horses will be pent up in stables and will require something besides hay, bran and oats if they are to be kept in good condition. As a proof of the increasing popularity of stock foods among the stock-raisers of Canada may be cited the fact that more stock foods have been sold this year than ever before.

It is no secret that a reliable stock food is a wonderful aid to digestion; it acts also as a disease preventative, and since it helps an animal to assimilate its food it means a considerable saving in feed bills for the Winter season. The writer has in mind one case in which a steer was fattened to weigh the requisite 1,000 to 1,200 pounds in a period of from one to two years when stock foods were used, whereas under ordinary circumstances from three to four years are required. Another valuable property of a modern first-class stock food is that it does not cause any reaction. Formerly stock foods contained as a rule constituents serving as a powerful tonic and stimulants which were in the long run injurious to stock. These "fake" foods were common in the Canadian market as far back as fifteen years ago. When first introduced they took remarkably well, but soon caused disappointment on account of their many injurious constituents, and fell into general disrepute. It is only within the last few years that really scientific stock foods have appeared on the market and they have found it more or less of a problem to overcome the existing prejudice. Now, however, that the agricultural colleges and leading stock raisers throughout the country have taken them up stock foods are coming more and more into general use again. That they have been placed on a scientific basis is seen from the fact that no less than 53 prizes have been awarded for representative stock foods at the World's Fair, St. Louis, this year.

Stock foods are to be heartily recommended as a line for grocers and general merchants to carry. Not only are they coming to be looked upon as a commodity in many sections of the country, but their virtues are so manifold that nothing but a little advertising is necessary even where they are not known to ensure their ready sale to the farming community. All a grocer has to do is to recommend a stock food to his country customer, and give him a package to take home on trial, the rest is assured since all reliable stock foods nowadays are guaranteed. Another consideration is that stock foods are non-perishable and can be easily handled. There is, moreover, a large profit, namely 50 per cent, which compares favorably with that to be made on any other commodity in the grocery store. For the information of intending purchasers it may be said that the season for stock foods extends from November to April.

One thing that must be impressed upon the grocer is that stock foods as well as any other staples must be placed where they can be seen occasionally in a store if they are to find a ready sale. Not long since the writer in making a tour of a certain grocery in Eastern Canada, stumbled upon several packages of stock foods in a rear store-room. But what is worse, he had the pleasure of listening to a long tale of woe from the grocer because stock foods had proved a losing game. It need hardly be stated that the grocer was recommended to remove the packages to the front of his store, to talk stock food to his customers and to use the local paper as an advertising medium. According to latest reports this grocer's store has become the stock food headquarters for the entire farming neighborhood.

Most manufacturers of stock foods manufacture medicinal preparations for horses, cattle, etc., which ought also to be carried by grocers and general merchants in outlying districts where there are no efficient veterinaries at hand. In any event such remedies as healing oil and colic cure ought to find a ready sale among farmers throughout the country since they represent the latest accomplishments in veterinary science and can be safely administered by any farmer.

ACCIDENT TO MR. DELORME.

Mr. A. G. Delorme, secretary-treasurer of the Laporte, Martin Co., Montreal, met with a distressing accident Saturday afternoon, November 5. He missed his footing while attempting to get off a big Lachine car and his left leg was run over by the wheels. So serious was the accident that when the patient was removed to the Notre Dame Hospital amputation was found necessary. Mr. Delorme endured the serious operation with great fortitude and those who know him best will strongly sympathize with his misfortune. Mayor Laporte, head of the firm, was greatly concerned over the accident to one of his prominent officials. Personally Mr. Delorme is beloved by all who knew him and the accident has been generally deplored in the trade.

DOMINION WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

A meeting of the executive of the Ontario and Quebec Guilds was held in the committee room of the Board of Trade, Montreal, on Wednesday of this week. The meeting as far as can be learned was called with a view of conserving the various interests of the Provincial Guilds with those of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and satisfactory affiliating arrangements were concluded. Among those present were Wm. Ince, Jr., Toronto; H. A. Bate, president of the Ottawa Guild; H. C. Beckett, Hamilton; T. B. Escott, London, and the committee of the local Montreal Guild.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. William Godfrey, manager of the Bank of British North America, Cancouver, B.C., is the latest to be captured by the charms of the Similwameen and Nicola districts. He has just returned from a trip made through the whole section, and predicts a busy future once transportation facilities are afforded. He advocates the Vancouver Board of Trade taking the railway matter up, for the building of the Great Northern will divert the trade to Spokane. The mineral resources of the districts are great, and the fruit raising and agricultural possibilities unlimited.

Mr. C. Fairall Fisher, representing J. W. Windsor, Montreal, who returned last week via New York on the SS. Baltic, from a two months' trip to customers in England, France, Germany, and other continental countries, reports business as rather depressed in England at the moment, with a scarcity of money. On the Continent, on the contrary, a better tone generally prevails. An exception as regards trade on the Continent is applicable to Germany and Denmark, where, owing to the falling off in the trade from Russia (largely supplied from these countries) a slight depression exists. Mr. Fisher reports that the canned goods trade, in which his firm is largely interested in foreign countries, is quite satisfactory. Windsor's brand of lobsters, and other Canadian canned products, have secured for themselves due recognition abroad.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

Pottery and the Fiscal Question.

IN this week's issue The Grocer has pleasure in publishing the opinion of a prominent English pottery manufacturer on Mr. Chamberlain's proposed fiscal policy.

"It is quite time that something was done to enable us to maintain our national industries. Sixty years ago Mr. Cobden's free trade policy was the right and best thing for the country; but in this world of progress and change many things may happen in sixty years. Mr. Cobden evidently expected other European countries to follow our lead and become free traders. Instead of this being the case we have seen the Continental countries grow in power and extend their commercial arrangements under a protective policy.

"On the whole our national industries may be said to have prospered under free trade. For some time past, however, the volume of our manufactures has shown a great falling off. This can be traced directly to the competition of foreign manufacturers, both in our own markets and in the markets abroad supplied by ourselves. This being so it is time we did something to check foreign competition.

"Duties on foreign pottery imported into this country are not sufficient, however, to restore our pottery industries to their once flourishing condition. Tariffs may help by reducing competition in our home market, they will not assist us in foreign markets in which we are beaten by competitors whose goods have to pay the same duties ours have. A part of our export trade in cheap china has gone to the Germans. In order to recover this we must adopt more economical means and methods of production, and then, if the suggestion that our colonies give our goods preferential duties as against similar productions from foreign countries is carried out, our pottery industries will flourish again."

The Best Buyers of Crockery and Glass.

THE proportion of expensive goods in pressed and blown glass or made of semi-porcelain is very slight.

A few decades ago the wants of the day laborer were satisfied with a tin wash-bowl and a few coarse plates and cups. Larger wages, the spread of education and refinement have enlarged the demand for better things, yet it is still true that the chief buyers of glass and queensware are women, representing the great salaried class which has grown greatly under modern business conditions.

The average salaried man and those in the professions and in small businesses earn from $15 to $40 a week, and find the cost of living to have increased from 20 to 25 per cent. during the past ten years. The family man, after paying rent, food and clothing, has little left for dishes, and the broken set will have to be made to do a little longer. This is especially true of the man in the big city, where rents have steadily increased and where street car fares, luncheons etc., make the expense of existence more noticeable and the tempting display of luxuries is an added reason why most urban residents generally live up to or beyond their means.

Conditions are different in small cities, towns and villages. Not only is the cost of living less, but these places are filling up with retired farmers, who have leased their farms and are free buyers of such cheap luxuries as good table and toilet ware. In consequence of the prevalence of more ready money per capita in the smaller cities and reduced cost of living for all, it follows that for a time the smaller places will be bigger consumers of the average output of potteries and glass factories.

Thus it would seem that the plants which supply only the largest jobbers—growing less in numbers yearly—and large department stores in great cities would feel a general dullness sooner than those potteries catering to trade in towns or lesser cities, or else devoted more especially to novelties bought by the wealthy or special classes. To create new trade rather than to supply an uncertain demand is one of the ways by which manufacturers in other lines have maintained their prestige. A few potters are working on these lines.

Hints for Crockery Display.

CROCKERY needs to be properly displayed in order to induce sales. Some merchants object to handling it because of the room required for proper display, but where space is limited a capital plan is to have a small dining table, or something of that character, nicely covered with a clean white cloth on which one dinner set only is displayed. This should be changed at least once a week whether the set is sold or not, and in this way a constant succession of new goods is brought prominently before visitors to the store. The experience of those who have tried it has been that a set shown in this way invariably sells just because of its attractive layout, and the idea is well worth trying. If desired, a nice lamp can be placed in the centre and articles of glassware added as the taste of the person who has this work in charge may dictate.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. T. B. Greening, Hamilton and Toronto, is a caller upon the jobbing trade of Montreal this week.

Mr. Fred B. Mason, representative of J. D. Bradshaw & Co., Toronto, is a caller upon the Montreal trade this week. While in the city he favored The Grocer with a call.

Mr. Albert Irving, who has represented the Salada Tea Co. in Toronto for the past six years, has resigned his position and will now go to Philadelphia in the interests of this firm.

The late Mr. J. M. Douglas, who died September 15 last, left a legacy of $5,000 to the Montreal General Hospital for its endowment fund and $10,000 to establish a poor fund at Port William, Scotland, his native place.

Mr. F. D. Cockburn, eastern representative of Comfort Soap, is now a citizen of Westmount, having removed bag and baggage from Toronto to Montreal's classic suburb. This removal will place Mr. Cockburn in the centre of his district and in closer touch with his company's premium office in Montreal, of which Mr. Cockburn has charge.

Mr. R. S. McIndoe, one of Toronto's best known and popular brokers and commission merchants, was met by The Grocer at the Windsor, Montreal, on Monday. Mr. McIndoe, who represents Wm. Clark, Montreal, Bovril Limited, and Chinese Starch, is on a business trip to his principals. Speaking of trade in the west he referred to the serious setback sustained through the fire in the Spring in which so many firms suffered, but expected now that building operations were in full swing that trade would in a short time resume its former aspect, in fact he thought an improvement was bound to result. Before leaving for the west Mr. McIndoe honored The Grocers' office with a call.

It's good business to follow the line of least resistance. Goods that are well known and appreciated by your customers have a steady volume of sale that is never equalled by the "have to be pushed" article. Sales are accomplished with the least loss of time and are made with the assurance that the goods will be entirely satisfactory. Our goods have been known for sixty years.

We show here a cut of a five-gal. pail Mixed Pickles that will win and hold trade. We have them in 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 10-gal. sizes.

OUR TRADE WITH BELGIUM.

THAT a lively interest in Canada and things Canadian exists among the people of Belgium has been evidenced in a striking manner by one of the Belgian newspapers, which has recently sent a permanent correspondent to this country. The interest is in the main commercial, though the Belgians evince a desire to become better acquainted with our constitution, our social system and our people in general.

From a trade standpoint, our relations with Belgium are worth cultivating. Among the nations who sell to us she stands fifth, with a total sale of $2,649,490 worth of products during the last fiscal year. In the list of our customers, Belgium also ranks fifth, being exceeded in her purchases only by Great Britain, the United States, Australia and Newfoundland. During the last fiscal year she bought goods to the value of $2,150,550, of which $1,658,163 were home produce.

In still further analyzing our trade with Belgium we find that the following goods comprise the bulk of Canadian purchases: Cement, $261,618; drugs, etc., $94,235; glass, $584,584; metals, and manufactures of, $764,282; precious stones, $82,677; sugar and molasses, $430,763. The importation of cement has continued of steady proportions for several years, averaging about $200,000 per annum. The importation of drugs, dyes, etc., has grown very considerably latterly. In 1899 we only imported a little over $6,000. The importation of glass has shown substantial growth since 1899, when it stood at $349,910. The importation of metals and their manufactures has grown by leaps and bounds, advancing from $78,000 in 1899, to $100,000 in 1900, to $173,000 in 1901, to $288,000 in 1902, and to $764,282 in 1903. This expansion has been mainly in steel rails. The importation of precious stones has likewise grown remarkably, being only $202 in 1899. On the other hand sugar and molasses have fallen off very considerably from $2,854,524 in 1901 to $430,763 in 1903.

Our exports to Belgium are composed principally of: Breadstuffs, $1,309,296; fish products, $42,062; metals and their manufactures, $150,649; seeds, $129,339; wood and its manufactures, $257,312. In all of these departments there has been a substantial growth of late years. Breadstuffs totalled $569,800 in 1899; fish, $13,140; metals, $54,985; seeds, $93,508, and wood only $77,924. Contrast these with the importations of the past fiscal year and the advance is most apparent.

Judging then from the extent of our commercial transactions with Belgium, it would seem quite the thing that the people of that country, and especially its merchants, should desire to know more of this country. On the other hand, we should not allow ourselves to be outdone in the securing of useful information. It is time to investigate the resources, industries and commercial methods of Belgium.

INDIGNANT BRITISH MERCHANTS

Republished by Special Request.

MUCH harm is being done in business circles in the Old Country, particularly amongst Birmingham exporters, by the representative of a Canadian publication, who claims to have been delegated by the Canadian Government to interview manufacturers and exporters with a view to securing their advertisements in the trade paper with which he is connected, and which, he claims, is a Government subsidized trade organ.

A number of advertisers have had their eyes opened to the misrepresentation recently, and a short time ago a meeting was held in Birmingham, when 75 firms decided unanimously that their advertising contracts would be immediately cancelled. These 75 men represent only a portion of the total number who have been induced to place orders in this paper, and no doubt the remaining advertisers will soon follow in their wake. It seems almost incredible, but a large number of these firms jumped at the offer of a list of "the best Canadian buyers," personally prepared by the gentleman in question.

It is to be regretted that firms who placed their orders in the paper referred to did not make close and careful inquiry regarding the standing of the publication before entering into contract with it. We understand, however, that many allowed themselves to be rushed into signing the contract on the representation of the canvasser that his affairs would not permit him to call upon them again.

THE CANADIAN EGG.

THERE seems to be a jealous busybody in the Motherland at the present time who is trying to injure Canadian trade in dairy produce and provisions. A complaint was recently registered there in regard to Canadian cheese which has since been creditably refuted. Following on the heels of this complaint comes a circular denouncing the Canadian pickled egg, but producing no evidence to substantiate the charge. The largest export merchants of Montreal when interviewed on the subject were unanimous in their opinion as to its falsity. In fact the feeling was so strong that immediate action was taken by a leading provision merchant who happened to be travelling in the Old Land at the time the canard was circulated. This gentleman substantiated his denial of the charge by proving conclusively that no such eggs as those described in the circular as "unfit" had been shipped from Canada. Several of the largest and most influential English importers of eggs and other Canadian products have gladly assisted, moreover, in placing the blame where it belongs. While the matter was in doubt the English press went so far in several instances as to remark that they expected something more than "Yankee cuteness from their own kith and kin." It is only fair to add that the "cuteness" or whatever it was that prompted the shipment of poor eggs to England under the caption of Canadian shippers did not originate in the Dominion.

After all it must be remembered that Canadian agriculturists have captured a lion's share of the prizes at the St. Louis Exposition. Additional credit is due to them in view of the international bickering before the show commenced over certain unjust customs restrictions with which Canadian exhibitors had to contend and which so annoyed them that they went so far as to petition the Canadian Government to withdraw the appropriation it had made towards a display at St. Louis. Canada carried off the grand prize for the whole agricultural exhibit. In the cheese contest the winner was a native of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, and a French-Canadian. The gold medal for Spring and Fall wheat was also included in the prize; further, J. F. Clark, of Ottawa, with his herd of 16 Ayrshire cattle won prizes aggregating over $2,000. This hardly agrees with the reports of the enemy in England whose aim is undoubtedly to place Canada in a false position.

Her agricultural record proves her to be second to no other agricultural country in the world; in skill, energy and enterprise also Canadian producers and exporters have achieved an enviable reputation. Canada has nothing to fear from truthful reports concerning her and it is only a question of Europe becoming sufficiently conversant as to the facts when the Dominion will be known everywhere abroad as she deserves.

TO CURB THE GIVING OF PREMIUMS.

OWING to the unprecedented growth of the premium-giving idea all over the United States the various mercantile associations there have found it necessary in the interests of trade to join hands in an attempt to stamp out what they consider an evil of the worst kind. It is stated on reliable authority that scarcely a single one of the necessities of life is sold in the United States to-day without carrying, either through its wrapper, trade-mark, label, box-front or other token, some sort of premium value. The great objection thus far to any of these individual premium plans is that the average consumer does not purchase enough of any one commodity to entitle her to a premium of any considerable value, and that in consequence the public has been deluged with cheap and trashy premiums.

The latest development, however, which has aroused the animosity of American grocers and general merchants is a plan devised by the leading manufacturers of the United States whereby the purchaser of soap, cereals, condensed milk, canned goods, tea, coffee, cocoa, soups, extracts, baked beans, figs, shoe polish, catsup, salad dressing, olive oil, smoking tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and over three hundred different brands of consumable commodities, may secure, instead of the inferior clap-trap premiums something handsome and substantial.

The strong sentiment prevailing throughout a large section of the American trade against what is conceded to be a phase of the trading stamp system will be appreciated in Canada and especially in Ontario where the same evil has been cropping up of late. The Canadian and American trades are of the opinion that an educational campaign reaching the consumer is what is needed to put a stop to this foolish premium business. As soon as the housewife becomes "wise" to the fact that she is being "gulled" and "humbugged" she will make her displeasure so manifest that the premium-giving practice will stop in short order. Some of the more conservative business men are in favor of giving the system a loose rein, in the hope that it will soon die out of its own accord. The difficulty here is that much harm is being wrought in the meantime.

There are grave economic abuses in connection with the trading stamp and premium giving business which call for the united opposition of business men. The harmful effects are universally recognized by merchants as a deadly parasite upon trade whose abolition is earnestly sought, not only by those who have not adopted the system, but by those who have been deluded into believing it a benefit and have made use of it accordingly. Its primary effect, as we have often pointed out, is to delude the public into believing it is getting something for nothing, when in fact the public is paying for more than it receives. This glittering inducement has so much attractive power for the moment that it diverts a considerable volume of trade from the merchant who does not offer trading stamps to the one who does; the benefit to the latter, however, is only momentary, for the reason that as soon as the facts of this diversion of trade are fully known other merchants are in self-defence compelled to arrange for trading stamps with other companies and to make still more glittering offers to hold the trade or to attract back that which has been lost. The result is extremely detrimental to all. A few leading stores having adopted trading stamps from motives of policy, most of their principal competitors are likewise compelled to adopt trading stamps, while hundreds of smaller concerns being unable to get the trading stamps under the exclusive contracts which are made by the companies suffer in their business with the result that trade generally becomes demoralized. This has been the experience wherever trading stamps have been used. The fundamental basis on which the whole business rests is the delusion of the public. The incidental effect is the demoralization of business, the ruin of small dealers where the practice is gerenal and the enrichment of the trading stamp companies.

large general store in that town; he is also interested in a fruit canning industry located there. He has shown himself a level-headed business man and has conducted both mercantile ventures with considerable success.

Mr. Loggie has also taken a prominent part in the deliberations and practical work of the Maritime Board of Trade, being an ex-president of that organization. His political career began some years ago when he entered the municipal arena and served his town well as occupant of the mayoral chair. Then he contested his county in the Liberal interests in the last provincial elections, defeating his opponent by a sale majority. He resigned his seat in the New Brunswick Legislature a few weeks ago in order to enter federal politics, and was equally successful in the election of November 3.

Personally Mr. Loggie is a quiet, unassuming man, averse to all self-advertising. He is, however, very popular among a wide circle of friends, and is held in great esteem among the business men of the provinces. He has been always a good church and Sunday school worker in his home town, and makes all-round a first-rate citizen.

JUDGMENT IN CASE OF TRADING STAMPS.

MR. JUSTICE DOHERTY has rendered judgment in Montreal in the important case of Wilder vs. the city, better known as the trading stamp case.

This will be remembered as an injunction taken out to prevent the enforcement of the city by-law prohibiting the use of trading stamps. Among other grounds raised by the petitioner were the following: That the city council had adopted the by-law without the required notice; that the Act of the Legislature authorizing the city to pass such a by-law was unconstitutional, and that the by-law itself was ultra vires of the Legislature and hence of the powers of the council.

The city, on the other hand, claimed that the special statute under which the by-law was passed required no notice, as the power was conferred by special statute, and also defended the constitutionality of the Act of the Legislature.

By the judgment rendered the court maintained the city's pretentions in every respect and quashed the injunction. One of the chief points raised by the petitioner was that the council's proceedings to pass the by-law were irregular and illegal, but the court held the contrary.

Mr. Wilder, owner of the Trading Stamp Co., has made an appeal and declares that he will continue his trading stamp business until the Privy Council shall have decided against him.

Mr. G. A. Cook, of G. A. Cook & Co., wholesale and retail grocers, Halifax, is in Toronto this week on business, and paid a visit to the offices of The Grocer.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

In answer to an inquiry from a valued subscriber, The Grocer is publishing in this week's issue plans and specifications for a combined store and dwelling in a country village of 200 inhabitants. In order to answer the requirements of its many friends and patrons throughout the country The Grocer has dicided to inaugurate this week a series of house and store plans which we believe will be appreciated by our readers.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, Nov. 10, 1904.

THE wholesale trade reports that orders billed for the close of navigation will be practically completed within the next fortnight or so. To get an idea what this trade means it may be stated that one of the leading wholesale grocery firms in Toronto has had an average of two cars a day for the last two weeks and is now shipping at the rate of three cars a day. The filling of orders in Mediterranean dried fruits for the Christmas trade also constitutes a big item in the week's trade. Canned tomatoes and corn are very firm, particularly the latter, and a scarcity is anticipated. In addition to the phenomenal advance of 20c in the price of Canadian refined sugar last week there has been a further rise of 10c. Tea and coffee are without special features for the week, as are spices and rice and tapioca. There has been an advance in California dried peaches and apricots as well as a hardening tendency in currants. New Fard dates are due this week; other varieties, the week after via New York. Salmon trout has appeared on the market for the first time this season:

CANNED GOODS.

Wholesale grocers have been kept busy this week supplying the requirements of the retail trade in canned tomatoes and corn contracted for earlier in the season. Orders from now on may be expected to be mostly for futures and the general impression prevails that an increase in the demand would serve to put prices up immediately. Several lots of tomatoes are reported to have changed hands during the week at $1.24 (at factory) or $1.25 (Toronto). The situation is bound to harden further as the season advances. There are no special features in canned fruits or fish, except that a steady demand for salmon continues at firm prices. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The demand for syrups and molasses begins to show considerable improvement. Small shipments of West Indian molasses are being received on this market and are going readily into consumption. COFFEES.

The coffee situation continues practically unchanged although there is more of a tendency to buy than last week. Any drawback is on account of the firm hold speculators have on the Rio market. Prices fluctuate a point or two from day to day and at the close of the market this week are a point or two higher than a week ago. Stocks on spot are reported abnormally low for this season of the year, and at the same time the demand is steadily improving.

In New York markets the tendency of the market during the last few days has been towards higher prices with developments latterly of a character to confirm the contentions of bull interests. The expected decrease in the Brazil crop movement which is necessary to keep the outturn of the present Rio and Santos crop within the small estimates promulgated by various Brazil houses has begun to show itself, and the estimate of receipts for November at the two ports Rio and Santos was reduced nearly 500,000 bags as compared with the amount of coffee received in October.

The statement of the world's visible supply of coffee on the first of November proved to be the greatest surprise. At best it was not expected that the increase would be smaller than in October last year when 147,702 bags was added to the world's stock of coffee. Therefore when the increase of only 84,334 bags was reported it had considerable influence in creating renewed confidence in the situation. The cause of this unexpectedly small increase in the world's stock of coffee is found in the light receipts during October of coffee other than Rio and Santos and which amounted to only 156,000 bags compared with 303,000 bags during the same month last year.

The point is made by believers in the market that the stock of coffee in the world is now at its maximum and that with smaller receipts and probably rapidly decreasing stocks for the balance of the crop year the natural tendency of prices will be towards a higher basis. Europe, which apparently has not given credence to the statements which have been current the past few months of a small yield from the present Brazil crop has held off as a buyer, and has allowed her stocks on hand and to come forward from Brazil to decrease to a point over 1,000,000 bags below her holdings at this time last year. Not only, however, is the European visible supply of coffee much smaller than at this time last year but it is also understood that the stocks existing in the interior of Europe in the hands of the consuming trade have been considerably reduced. Therefore it is believed that Europe is in a position to easily take care of all the remaining coffee that Brazil will have to market for the balance of the present crop year. The visible supply of coffee for the United States, it is true, stands at high record figures, but on the other hand the indications are that much of this coffee is closely held, and therefore there will be no general spilling of supplies should an advance in prices occur.

TEAS

This week's cables from Calcutta report an advance in the price of common tea generally, and it is reported in the same cable that the leaf has changed for the worse. This is unwelcome news to the trade because the leaf has been rather poor throughout the season which is now so far advanced that with poorer leaf at this period likely to develop into light red leaf with sticks, it will give little opportunity for securing a supply of desirable teas at moderate prices. Buyers have been consistently advised of conditions by Calcutta houses, but for the most part have held out of the market in the hope of doing better; it will now be impossible to do as well. According to usual practice buyers have commenced to operate more freely at advanced prices on teas which were declined as unsuitable when prices were lower, and some importing business has been done with Calcutta this week.

The Ceylon market is steady at the recent decline for common teas and firm at the recent advance for teas possessing any quality. Strictly fine tea is scarce and very high. A buying order in London for strictly fine tea has brought the response that no more than 150 chests per week can be obtained, although buyers' requirements are for 300 chests per week.

There is no change in the position of green teas which are meeting with only a moderate sale. Our quotations are as follows:

Sugar.

The market has more than maintained its strength and we have again to record further advances and the situation is entirely without parallel in recent years. As we went to press last week the nominal quotation for centrifugals in New York was 4 3-8c for 96 test. Since then there have been large sales of spot and nearby sugars at 4.41c and 4.43 duty paid for 96 test. There have also been sales of new crop Cubans at 3.00c and 3 1-16c c. and f. the latter equal to 4.42c duty paid, showing an advance of 1-16c in distant sugars. We also hear of sale of 100,000 bags Cubans to Arbuckle at 3 1-32c c. and f. for January shipment. New crop Demeraras have been freely dealt in, principally by Canadian refiners at 2.81c c. and f. New York for 96 test, but these sugars are now held for 3.00c c. and f. New York, which would equal 4.68c on New York duty paid basis.

Beet sugars have made further advances for the week going rapidly from 12s 1 1-2d to 12s 11 1-4d, the maximum figure however not being maintained and the nominal quotations as we go to press are 12s 9 3-4d for November and 12s 10 1-2d for December for 88 test basis f.o.b. Hamburg, the former equaling duty paid parity of 4.75c for 96 test centrifugals and registering a net advance of 2s per cwt. from the recent lowest or say within the last three weeks. Receipts at U. S. four ports for week ending November 2nd were light, viz 26,149 tons with meltings of 42,000 tons, leaving total stock in four ports of 143,248 tons. Combined stocks of U.S. and Cuba are only 148,748 tons, a decrease of 97,169 tons from last year. The decrease in the world's possible supply is now 456,826 tons.

Refined in both U.S. and Canada advanced a further 10c for the week, making prices to-day 30c per 100 lbs. higher than those of two weeks ago. We refer to amended price list at foot.

Foreign Dried Fruits

The trade is busy this week receiving second direct shipments of Mediterranean dried fruits landed at Montreal a week ago. This shipment which includes the bulk of requirements for the Canadian Christmas trade is the last of the season, the rest coming either by New York or London, Eng.

There has been an advance in California dried apricots and peaches in consequence of the very firm situation obtaining in primary markets. Advices from Armsby & Co., San Francisco, are to the effect that peaches and apricots are pretty well cleaned up in the United States and that only a few cars here and there can be had at advanced prices. The raisin crop has been reduced nearly 30 per cent. by rains; the position of the article is very strong at the recent advance and orders can only be booked subject to confirmation. Prunes remain on a very low level for medium sizes, but large and small fruit is at a premium and orders are not being accepted by shippers until specifications of sizes required by buyers are approved.

Valencia raisins are reported a shade easier while currants are firm. New Fard dates are due next week, while the New York steamer bringing supplies of Hallowees and Sairs will be here the week after. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

New crop filberts are due to arrive shortly and Ivica and Tarragona almonds are now being distributed in this market. A steady demand for all kinds of nuts continues with prospects of larger consumption from now on. Invoices of new walnuts have been received and supplies should be on hand before the next issue of The Grocer is out.

Supplies of old peanuts are about exhausted, and new crop stock is being offered only in limited quantities until supplies are more plentiful. The present crop of U. S. peanuts is estimated to be ten to twenty-five per cent. larger than that of 1903 and with favorable weather the quality will be good. Prices are somewhat easier. Our quotations are as follows:

DRIED FISH.

The market in dried and cured fish continues firm and steady with prices unchanged from last week. Salmon trout have appeared on the market and are selling at $6 per keg. Lake herring are reported very scarce. We quote the following prices:

Boneless fish, per lb	0 04½
Cod fish, 1-lb. bricks	0 06½ 0 07

EVAPORATED APPLES.

There is considerable range of prices in evaporated apples this week, some dealers quoting as low as 5 1-2c while others say 6 1-4c is not too high for choice stuff; 6c, however, would seem to be the top figure generally with the average price ranging about 5 1-2c, or perhaps a shade higher. The demand is steadily improving and the outlook for evaporated apples bright in view of the fact that on account of their cheapness they have largely taken the place of dried apples.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts of eggs are large for this season of the year and the local demand for new laid eggs can be fairly well supplied. The margin between new laid and pickled eggs is gradually growing greater as the colder weather approaches. Should the present cold snap last receipts will undoubtedly drop off. While new laids are quoted at 22 to 23c, one who wants guaranteed new laids usually has to pay up to 25 or 26 cents. We quote:

Eggs, new laid	0 22 0 23
" fresh	0 20 0 21
" pickled	0 19 0 20

HONEY.

Present conditions continue unchanged. The outlook is for a fair demand. Our quotations are as follows:

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08 0 08½
" sections, No 1, per doz	1 90 2 00
" " No. 2, "	1 65

BEANS.

The crop is now all harvested and that portion offered for sale is moving freely. During the week the price on handpicked prime No. 1 and 2 has declined 5c per bushel. No further decline is anticipated. Our quotations are:

Beans, handpicked, per bush	1 55	1 60
" prime, No. 1	....	1 45
" prime, No. 2	....	1 35
" Lima, per lb	0 07	0 07½

SEEDS.

Trade continues quiet and as a result prices have become easier, although for srtictly fancy seed a higher price is being the last week. First consignments ation of present prices for some time; if any change should take place it will be an advance. Our quotations are as follows:

Alsike clover, per bush	3 50	6 75
Red clover	5 00	6 75
Mammoth clover, per bush	5 00	6 75
Timothy	1 00	1 35

Green Fruits.

Fruit has had a freer movement during the last week. First consignments of Florida oranges have arrived, reports stating a fine crop. As these oranges are the favorites a heavy movement is expected. California navel oranges are not expected to receive much attention till after Christmas. New Messina lemons are arriving in good condition. Frost has affected the crop of Cape Cod cranberries and prices have advanced.

The banana crop in Honduras has been totally destroyed by storms and this with the increased demand in the absence of small fruits, warrants an advance in price. Dates are expected to arrive shortly from Asia. Sweet potatoes are firmer, the price on cloth covers having advanced 25c per barrel.

Canadian grapes are arriving in large quantities; recent frosts, however, are expected to stop the supply. There is a better inquiry for Fall and Winter apples, especially the red variety. Cape Cod cranberries (late Howes) are selling at $9.50 per barrel, Florida oranges at $3.50 per box and Florida grapefruit at $5 per box. Crab apples have been struck off the list as their season is practically over. We quote the following prices:

Woodall & Co., Liverpool, Eng., in their circular of October 29, 1904, say in regard to the English apple market that reduced receipts have had a beneficial effect on the market, but that larger receipts can be readily disposed of from now on. This activity is satisfactory as showing that the English crop is becoming much scarcer and that every day is hastening the time when supplies must be drawn from foreign markets and relatively better prices anticipated. The general excellence of quality and condition has been maintained and occasionally some beautiful lots of red varieties been offered realizing a high range of values; for instance some choice Canadian Kings realized 19s per barrel with Spies up to 15s 6d.

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Wheat is moving more freely owing to favorable weather, and as a result prices have declined on Manitoba wheat. Other varieties remain firm with no indication of an advance. Oats and buckwheat are still advancing. Other prices continue unchanged. We quote the following:

Provisions.

The market in provisions remains firm with good demand compared with the stocks on hand. No changes have been made in prices in any line. Bacons and hams are strong. The business done in fresh meats is much better this week on account of the cold weather. Spring lamb has advanced a quarter of a cent and light hogs have dropped the same. We quote these prices:

Poultry—Larger supplies of poultry are coming to hand and prices have dropped in every line. Turkeys are not very plentiful and it is difficult to say just how many will be on hand for Thanksgiving. Some dealers think that there will not be any decided shortage, while others fear that the farmers may hold back for Christmas. The general opinion is, however, that there will be far more to hand than last year. Chickens and geese are up to the demand. We quote the following prices:

Hens	0 06 0 08
Geese	0 07½ 0 08
Turkeys	0 12½ 0 14
Ducks	0 09 0 10

Butter—The butter market remains unaltered from last week. Supplies are fair. with the demand good on good grades. Dairy butter in tubs and large rolls has advanced a cent and creamery prints are stronger. The prices are as follows:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 20 0 21
" solids, fresh	0 18½ 0 19½
Dairy prints	0 16 0 17
" in tubs	0 14 0 17

Cheese—Cheese shows a decidedly firmer tone. The export demand is not appreciably greater but the season is closing with prices higher than they have been all year. The result is that dealers' quotations have advanced a quarter to a half cent. The results of the board meetings for the week ending November 8 are as follows:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Nov. 10, 1904.

Groceries.

COLLECTIONS are good and trade generally in groceries is active everywhere. The faintest sign of Christmas trade has already set in, even though it is only the middle of November. Orders from certain districts indicate an increased volume of trade. In fact it is generally believed that the Christmas trade will be larger than ever before. The advance in sugar of another 10c, totalling in all 30c, makes granulated selling at $4.85 per 100 lbs., and is a notable feature in the market. Spices remain inactive except in the fact of one instance of a sharp rise in white pepper. Tea is still quiet, and little demand has been noticed in the local market. The demand for molasses has increased and the distribution has corresponded with the consumption. In dried fruits considerable interest has arisen owing to the Autumn trade for the holiday. In some cases prices have changed considerably, but at present they are normal. Canned goods continue to attract attention, and everything is now under the heading of new pack, and salmon is just as prominent a feature as ever. In green fruits a noticeable arrival has been the tinted Almeria grapes. Finest selections have been selling at $7 per keg. Considerable interest is being taken in Canadian onions at present, and splendid samples have been sold on the market, which in some cases surpass the Spanish in appearance and flavor. These onions have created considerable demand. In nuts the most noticeable decline is in peanuts, which have dropped to 1c. Fish of all kinds are in good demand. Haddock is considerably less in price. Steak cod is very plentiful. The market for fresh lake trout closes on Nov. 15, so that these fish are practically out of the market. In canned vegetables it might be mentioned that Canadian asparagus tips are being sold at from $2.50 to $3.75, but they are scarce. Clover leaf salmon is now in stock everywhere, and is in good demand. Eggs remain firm and excellent business is being done in export, notwithstanding the alleged discountenancing of Canadian stock in the Old Country. Beans and potatoes are selling well, and the flour and feed market is very active and abundantly supplied, notwithstanding the small amount of export that has been possible owing to the extensive home consumption.

SUGAR

The noticeable advance in sugar of 30c during the past ten days certainly verifies the prophesy extended in The Grocer three weeks ago. Early in the month of October the refined market was strong and it steadily grew in importance. Notwithstanding the strength of the Canadian market, cutting is going on in New York, and this occasioned an independent advance, which occured about the middle of the month. The last two weeks in October saw steady advances, and Arbuckle of New York was compelled to announce that while there was an advance he continued to take business at $4.85 for barrels and $4.80 for bags. There was a fight, however, between the American and Howell and the Federal. The point is that speculators are observing the market, and as the difference between raw and refined is not large, refined is considered comparatively cheap, and the trade might do well to carry good stocks this season of the year. New York prices are considerably in excess of local prices, but with the exception of Arbuckle they all agree to $5.10 for barrels, granulated, which, of course, corresponds with the $4.85 here. Arbuckle still quotes $5. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

There has been a fair demand for grocery grades of molasses and somewhat better distribution has taken place. Receipts have not increased and foreign molasses has a tendency to advance in price. The lower grades of molasses seem to be attracting considerable attention, and full figures have been paid for them. We quote:

COFFEE.

Activity has been noticed in the coffee market during the last week, inasmuch as news from the countries of production was encouraging. Receipts have continued larger than was expected, and coupled with this a cable has been received from one of the most reliable Brazilian houses that the October flowering was promising very unsatisfactorily. The combination occasioned a reported advance in coffee. It is reported that stocks are heavy in Santos, Rio, and the States, and an increase is expected in the world's visible supply of nearly 300,000 bags. Notwithstanding the estimate of experts that 500,000 bags will equal the crop, the market has not been disturbed. The demand locally has been slow and rather less than for some weeks previously. In consequence the quotations have tended downwards. We quote:

Good Calcuttas	0 10 0 10¼
Choice "	0 11½ 0 12½
Jamaica coffee	0 10½ 0 11
Java	0 18 0 22
Mocha	0 16 0 19
Rio	0 08 0 09

SPICES.

The demand for all kinds of spices is good. Importers seem, however, to be purchasing fresh supplies in limited quantities. An advance has been noticed in white pepper and the supplies in this commodity are extremely limited. The stock to arrive is small and the chances are that higher prices will exist to the consumer. Some considerable interest has been taken in Acheens peppers and a considerable advance was shown. The reported shortage of the clove crop has been denied and the product is supposed to be above the average. Nutmegs are in improved demand and although stocks are small, indications are that liberal arrivals will be received early in December, in view of which prices are expected to decline. Ginger has been dull and prices remain firm. We quote:

Peppers, black	0 20 0 22
" white	0 25 0 31
Ginger	0 17 0 24
Cloves, whole	0 25 0 35

TEA.

The market has increased in strength considerably this last week, and on the whole is firm, and considerable demand has been noticed for different grades which have been quiet for some time. Plenty of supplies are coming in and the decline in low-grade teas has occasioned considerable increase in the volume of business. The probabilities are that shipments of this class will be on a liberal scale, and in increased quantities, so that no immediate prospects may be looked for of any upward movement. The improvement in the Dooars and Sylahets has continued and the trade is observing this. Assams and Darjeelings remain of indifferent quality. Finer qualities have sold in less favor to buyers, owing to the extensive supply. Japan teas are coming in freely and increased business has been recorded. Moderate quantities of Ceylons are on the market. Fannings and dust show no change in value. Considerable hardening has been noticed in the rates for broken pekoes. Congou tea is quiet and in Chinas, Formosa Oolongs have shown a good business. A fair private inquiry has been noticed for Scented Capers. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Little change has taken place in the canned goods market, and the demand from the country has been very slight. The consumption is small and the large holders do not anticipate any chance of forcing sales at less than proper value. New pack goods of all kinds are in stock and the demand seems to be increasing. The Norway sardines are holding a strong position in the market locally and they promise to continue to do so. French sardine fishing is over, and probably the smallest stocks on record have been recorded in the sixteen ounce and eighteen ounce tin. In fact some contracts for 18 oz. tins are reported to have been cancelled. Portuguese sardines are advised from the best sources, and they can be now obtained at a moderate figure, and are said to sell absolutely on their merits. Low prices are noted for canned apples, and there has been considerable inquiry for California pears. Low prices have been quoted for limited quantities. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Considerable interest is being taken in dried fruits as the Christmas season approaches, and early orders for goods due to arrive have been reported in many cases. Supplies have up to date been equal to the occasion, except perhaps in currants, and this want may be supplied well when the Str. Jacona arrives at Halifax. Prices have not been seriously affected by the scarcity, except perhaps the case where forward offers of fruit for shipment close at hand are, if anything, inclined to be slightly cheaper than those at present ruling on the market. Importers like to realize their fruit as soon as possible after arrival, and any market is healthier from having frequent supplies and fresh stocks. Dried fruit would suggest rare possibilities for profit if properly handled. Plenty of currants have arrived in New York, but they were swallowed up to cover future sales already made. Saturday of this week the Fredrica was expected in New York. She has 1,700 tons which is said to be the total spot supplies for the market until the Regina Elena arrives about the 10th or 15th of November. In raisins the demand is good and the quality of stock arriving is up to the mark. Prices have exceeded the expectations of importers. The fruit is exceedingly good and buyers take it readily. Malaga fruit is in good demand, and to arrive stock is being sold generously at good prices. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Abundance of green fruit is still on the market and the most notable arrival has been a quantity of tinted Almeria grapes, known as the famous "Villalobos," which means that the grapes will keep long. They are selling at $7 a keg and are in strong demand. New lemons are attracting attention, extra fancy selling at $3.75. California fruit has arrived in abundance. Tokay grapes are selling at $3.50 per crate. Solway peaches at $2 a box and Italian plums at $2.25 a box. Apples are being disposed of in large quantities by the local exporters, and on the spot Spies, Baldwins, Russets and Greenings were selling at $3.25. Hand picked Fameuse at $3. We quote:

Vegetables.

A large and steadily increasing business has been carried on in vegetables of all descriptions. Probably the most notable has been in onions. New Yorkers are still after Canadian onions, and the product from the Simcoe, Ont., fields seems to be attracting the American connoisseurs. Hudon, Hebert & Co. had a large quantity of Canadian onions, which in color and weight seem quite equal to some of the Spanish product. We quote:

Fish.

All kinds of fish are in active demand. Haddock and steak cod are plentiful and prices are easier. Fresh dore are practically out of the market. Fresh lake trout closes its season on the 15th of November and is therefore in considerable extra demand. Salt lake trout is now in the market and is selling as high as $5.25 for keg of a hundred pounds. The market has changed little since last week. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Eggs are an interesting commodity and are strong in price. The market is very firm, although no actual change has taken place during the week. Several lots changed hands during the early part of the week, at 21 to 21 1-2c and in some cases as high at 22c was paid for really good stock. Good straight cold storage stock sold at 19 to 19 1-2c and No. 2 or pickled was sold at 17 1-2 to 18c per dozen. The demand for selected eggs in a jobbing way was fair at 24c and Montreal limed at 20c per dozen.

BEANS.

No change has taken place in the bean market which rules quiet and steady. We quote:

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

POTATOES.

Active trade has been done in potatoes and steady prices rule. Car lots of fair to good stock are quoted at 43 to 50c per bag, and choice at 60c to 62c.

HONEY.

A slow demand has marked the honey market and offerings are fair. We quote:

Provisions.

A steady business has been conducted all week in provisions, although cable advices from all the principal foreign markets were weaker, among the most prominent being the decline of 3s in the prices for Canadian bacon. No marked effect was noticed on the local market for live hogs, which sold on Tuesday at $5.25 for selected lots, $5 for mixed lots, and $4.50 to $4.75 for heavy fat per hundred. For dressed hogs the market was alive with good demand from butchers for small lots. Sales of fresh killed abattoir stock were made at $7.25 to $7.50. In country dressed at $6.75 to $7 per hundred. Trade has been fairly good in lard and bacon, hams, etc. No change in prices. We quote:

Cheese—Cheese has taken a boom and knowing dealers state that the activity may prove good for the market all around, inasmuch as if the prices at present paid in the country represent what cheese is worth, then the cheese held here is worth half a cent more than that price. No doubt the large importers in the Old Country were taken by surprise by the advance at this time of year, but the only effect it can have is to stimulate the market to such an extent that prominent holders may get rid of stocks which they have held for some time at a profit. On the wharf, for instance where it is the custom to see large numbers of buyers, only probably six or seven appeared, and while 9 3-4 cents was the advance quoted for 2,000 boxes of Quebecs, there were some prominent dealers there who only paid 9 1-2 cents. This had an undercurrent of sense attached to it, inasmuch as allowances were claimed on nearly every box purchased, so that 9 1-2c without allowances was equivalent to more than 9 3-4c with a bit chopped off each box. Holders believe that they can overcome the decline on fine September goods and if Fall stock fails to reach 10c and 10 1-2c laid down here, September goods ought to be worth more.

Butter—The butter market is strong and certain sharp advances at country points have tended to disturb the local market. This appears to have been due to competition among certain buyers for certain factories, and to general demand. The best price available for finest salted Townships creamery is 20c and little above that has been realized. Early in the week 250 packages of Quebec creamery sold at 19 1-2c and 19 3-4c, which is an advance of half a cent a pound over last week.

For later provision reports see next page.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS' SALE.

At the Fire Underwriters' sale extraordinary to be held at Montreal, November 23, 24 and 25 will be sold without reserve the entire salvage of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, consisting of staple and fancy groceries, domestic and imported; wines, liquors, etc. All goods will be sold ex-bond and revenue. As most of the original packages are only partially damaged by water extraordinary values are open to the trade. Fraser Bros., auctioneers, will conduct the sale under arrangement with the Gans Salvage Company.

DEATH OF MR. DAVID WATSON, JR.

Mr. David Watson, Jr., Toronto, who was connected with the firm of R. S. McIndoe, as chemist, died on Sunday last, November 5. Mr. Watson was a very bright and clever chemist and Mr. McIndoe spoke of him to The Grocer in the highest terms. Mr. Watson was a son of David Watson, formerly of Kerry, Watson & Co, wholesale druggists, Montreal. The funeral was held in Montreal on Wednesday, November 9.

REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Clerks Association was held November 8, 1904, in the Temple building. Among those present were President J. R. Hellstrop, Secretary M. J. Anderson and W. Turpin, E. Matthews, W. Bail and R. Hudson. After the transaction of regular business the evening was given up to social intercourse.

ADVERTISING LESSONS BY MAIL.

REFERENCE was made in a recent issue of The Grocer to correspondence courses by mail. It was stated at that time that there were at least two institutions in Canada who provided a course of instruction in advertising through the medium of correspondence. One of these institutions is the Central Business College of Toronto, whose activities in several departments of correspondence instruction have illustration in the plentiful advertising this company is doing. The Central Business College has prepared its course with manifest thoroughness. Each study paper is issued in pamphlet form, with an official-looking blue paper cover. From the printers' point of view the job is a good one, and from the student's point of view the lessons commend themselves as being ample, practical and excellent. This course has been prepared by Mr. W. A. Lydiatt, a Toronto man whose instincts led him years ago to enter the world dominated by printers' ink. He is a practical printer, has had an extensive experience in advertising in Canada and across the border, has a quick appreciation of the value of the many forms of publicity, and has brought to his work matured judgment and fine ability. All his work is characterized by sanity and clearness, and the student under his direction is assured of a forceful, helpful teacher.

The Central Business College in its prospectus entitled "Better Advertising" is very frank in its statements to prospective students. Unlike the highly-colored, enticing literature sent out by many of the American correspondence schools, this prospectus holds out no fairy dreams of $2,000, $5,000 and $10,000 positions for those who complete the course. It states in straightforward language the advantages of a course in advertising to every man concerned with the problems of selling, whether the merchandise be groceries, life insurance or banking.

There are several courses adapted to the varying needs of those who enroll. There is a course for the grocer, one for the shoe dealer, one for the druggist and so on, and there is a complete course designed to equip the man or woman whose ambitions are to become an advertising expert or specialist.

These courses range in price from $50 on the installment plan, for a full course, down to about half this sum for a specialized course. When one considers the cost of preparing and issuing the series of lessons, the fact that no text books and college attendance are required, and that the student has the benefit of a specialist's direction and assistance during the full period of his study, the fees do not seem excessive. Advertising is one of the weighty factors in present day merchandising, and is worth studying by every man and woman who has ambitions beyond the mere taking of orders.

BOOKS, CATALOGUES, ETC.

One of the most unique catalogues which have come to the notice of The Grocer for a long time is that issued by the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto. Besides being a complete price-list of every commodity of interest to the retail grocer, it is brim full of valuable classified information as to how and when to buy, and a veritable encyclopaedia of weights and measures, sizes, packages of all staple lines, fruits, etc., and will undoubtedly prove of great practical assistance to the retailer in buying, besides possessing considerable educational value. The Eby-Blain Co. is distributing these catalogues throughout the Canadian trade and will be pleased to forward one to any who may be overlooked.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

J. W. Bickle & Greening, Hamilton, report extensive selling of King Oscar sardines, especially in Ontario and the Northwest.

White & Co., Toronto, have received a couple of cars "Seal Brand" Florida oranges for their Thanksgiving trade.

The Walter M. Lowney Co., Boston and Montreal, have lately put up a new line of goods in Diamond Sweet Chocolate 6-lb. packages which is proving popular with the trade.

J. R. Greig Montreal, Canadian agent for Kkovah goods, is receiving his second shipment of Kkovah plum puddings and mince meat. The sale of these two holiday lines is reported as far exceeding his brightest expectations. These lines are attractively packed in stone basins and jars of various sizes and sell at sight. They are of the highest quality.

White & Co., Toronto, received their first car "King Edward" new Messina lemons this week.

Warren Bros. & Co. are offering special values in Eleme figs, 2¾ inch in 10 lb. and 56 lb. boxes.

Howe, McIntyre & Co., are the Montreal agents for the "King Oscar" sardines and other high class goods packed by Chr. Bjelland & Co.

Leonard Brothers, Montreal, have an excellent variety of oysters still to offer at reasonable prices. They are also in receipt of large quantities of Labrador herring in barrels and half barrels and the arrivals are by express daily.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are offering for immediate shipment extra choice Labrador and Nova Scotia herrings in bbls. and half bbls.

HAMILTON FIRM EXPANDING.

To keep pace with their growing business Lumsden Bros., Hamilton, are adding a 5th storey to their Jersey Cream Yeast factory. The demand for Jersey Cream Yeast is such that the firm is at present 700 boxes oversold.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, are doing a good business in Eureka brand maple syrup.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Walter S. Mitchell, Canadian manager of Bovril, Montreal, is wearing a pleasant smile these days. The reason, and a very substantial one, is the advent of a son and heir. Congratulations.

Mr. James R. Greig, Montreal, is on a business trip to Quebec in the interest of Kkovah products. Kkovah Plum Pudding in crocks is a taking line with the trade.

A Good Repeater

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

NEW baking powders and new foods, like new fads, come and go but Royal goes on forever. Grocers are always sure of a steady sale of Royal Baking Powder, which never fails to please their customers, and in the end yields to them a larger profit than cheaper and inferior brands.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special correspondence of The Canadian Grocer.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 3, 1904.

THERE is little change in groceries to note this week. Prices are firm in those articles in which fluctuations occur. Coffees have advanced and there is no prospect of lower prices. Tapioca has gone up, and the business is good at the increased figures. Canned vegetables are firm, and merchants do not look for any lower prices. Provisions are featureless. Eggs, though, are very firm, as the supply is short, and it is not unlikely that there will be a slight advance with the approach of holiday time.

In fruit, peaches are over and blackberries are just done. There are some second crops but the quality is poor, nor were they as plentiful as the second crop strawberries. There were some boxes of the latter to be seen a week or so ago, and the second crop must have been on the market for a month or more. This year was certainly exceptional in this respect, for growers up the Fraser sent many crates to the Territories, and received therefor large prices. Persimmons will be obtainable in a day or two, and will go at $1.50 per case. Egg plants are to be seen at many of the stores, and as a novelty sell well. Cranberries are 4c per lb. Onions have dropped a little. Radishes and lettuce are now to be had in good quality and quantity. There is nothing to note in regard to other vegetables.

Mr. Maxwell Smith, Dominion inspector for the Fruit Marks Act, has secured his first conviction in Vancouver of a violation of that enactment. It provides that fruit marked a certain quality should be that quality. Rev. George Ditcham, agent of the New England Fruit Co., was charged with selling pears to a local commission dealer marked XXX, indicating No. 1 quality. Examination revealed that the fruit was slack in the boxes, badly bruised, and quite a number of small and deformed specimens were included. Part of the fruit was also scabby. One of the best boxes had fully 25 per cent. below grade. The case was well defended, but a conviction was entered by the magistrate. Mr. Smith has very assiduously watched this branch of his duty, and this is the third time he has brought punishment on unfair packers. The enforcement of the Act means good fruit to the purchaser, and if its provisions are observed there will be no such complaints as bad fruit, or little specimens at the bottom.

A car of Ontario apples, consisting of 162 barrels, have been condemned by Thomas Cunningham, fruit inspector under the Provincial Government. They were consigned to a local warehouse, but an order was given either for their cremation or re-shipment out of the province. The inspector was astonished at the very bad condition of the apples. When the car was opened it was found to be infected with the larvae of the codlin moth. Some were crawling over the heads of the barrels and others had taken up their Winter quarters between the barrel hoops. The inspector expressed his amazement at the stupidity of Ontario shippers in sending infected fruit to British Columbia, when it is known that none will be allowed to enter. Mr. Cunningham also wired interior inspection stations to be on the lookout for infected Ontario apples.

There will be a big fruit crop in the Okanagan district next year, and already the C. P. R. and the provincial freight rates commissioner, R. M. Palmer, are preparing for it. Mr. W. M. Kirkpatrick, assistant general freight agent of the railway company at this city, has, with Mr. Palmer, just returned from the interior, where they went to observe conditions. Points which had no service last year will be accommodated next year, and better rates will be established. The fruit trade in the Okanagan is expected to be so large, judging by the increased acreage, that two fruit trains daily will have to be run. Even at this time of the year potatoes and other vegetables and apples are being shipped in such quantities that the accommodation is hardly sufficient. Tomatoes are a great feature of the interior grower. This year there were many hundred tons shipped out, but the demand was not filled. The grade grown is of the best, and in 1905 there will be many more acres devoted exclusively to the growing of this article.

The Delta Milling Co. is still actively engaged in coming to the front. Those interested are endeavoring to erect a building either in Vancouver or New Westminster soon. It is a combination of farmers who think they are not getting fair play from the produce buyers.

Mr. W. J. Brandrith, secretary of the B. C. Fruit Growers' Association, is arranging for the shipment of a representative assortment of B. C. apples to Toronto, where they will be on exhibition at the annual meeting of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association from the 8th to the 12th instant. The samples will be selected from Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and the interior, and should do much to acquaint the east with the possibilities of British Columbia as a fruit growing country.

Apples are also to be sent to England for competition purposes. Some of those grown on the Coldstream ranch at Vernon have been sent to the agent general, and will be entered in the show of the British Horticultural Society, which takes place about the end of December.

Butter made at the Edenbank creamery is recognized as the best in this part of Canada, and the demand is always greater than the supply, notwithstanding that the price is generally 5c better. Mr. A. C. Wells, president of the creamery company, was in the city this week from Sardis, in the Chilliwack district, and stated that the creamery was to be enlarged to meet the ever increasing demand.

The Dominion Fisheries Department has agreed to send out a quarter of a million salmon eggs from the east for distribution in the Cowichan and Nanaimo rivers, at the request of the Fish and Game Club of Vancouver Island.

Those engaged in the construction of the fishway in the Quesnel Lake dam have returned and report that very few salmon were seen in the Quesnel River, and none were females.

Mr. G. I. Wilson, Mr. R. Welch and Messrs. Evans, Coleman & Evans, all of this city, and formerly associated with the B. C. Packers' Association, are acquiring a number of canneries by lease, to date from May 1 next. Next year is that of the big run, and they are preparing for it. The first secured has been that of the Washington Packing Co., at Bellingham.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Nov. 7, 1904.

WITH the elections well over it is expected more interest will be taken in business. October was a quiet month. The fact that lumber interests are so depressed is a large factor in the general condition. At this season large quantities of provisions usually go into the woods but this Fall business in this particular has been light. On Prince Edward Island the agricultural situation this Fall is not good. This does not help the general situation. It must not be thought, however, that there is any serious depression. Many report a heavy Fall business and a generally strong market leads to a feeling of confidence. The advance in sugar has been the chief feature of interest in business during the week. Spices attract considerable attention at this season. Cloves are still high. Pepper is firm and tends upward. Ginger and nutmegs are low. Cream of tartar quite firm.

Oil.

In burning oil sales are large. Prices are unchanged. Lubricatings are rather quiet. Paint oils have but a light sale, and there is no change in price. Cod oil is finding a rather dull market. This is a primary point.

Salt.

Quite a large cargo of Liverpool coarse salt arrived this week. Stock on hand is not large. There is a fair demand and prices are very firm. In factory filled there is but very little imported at this season. The demand for fine salt is earlier. Canadian fine has a fair sale right through the season. There is very little rock salt used here.

Canned Goods.

Corn and tomatoes come to hand slowly. Stocks will be light. Prices which are high are very firm. Peas seem plentiful. Fruits are firm except gallon apples. These are offered low with but a fair sale. Salmon is in good supply. Prices are unchanged. Meats have but a light demand. New oysters are being offered and full prices are asked. In domestic fish, prices are unchanged. Clams gain in demand each year. They are fine goods and should sell even more freely.

Green Fruits.

Apples are freely offered. Prices are low. Auction sales are daily held but only second grade stuff is sold in this way. In oranges, Jamaicas have a good demand. Lemons are quiet and quality of stock is only fair. Ontario grapes are low. They have not as large a sale as expected. Malaga grapes have a light demand. Cape Cod cranberries are freely offered. Some natives are seen. Sweet potatoes have just a fair demand.

Dried Fruits.

Business is very active. New goods are arriving freely. Malaga and Valencia raisins, peel and figs are all here. Prices show little change from last year. In seeded California raisins several cars have arrived. Loose Muscatels are daily expected. Prices of seeded are low. New prunes are not yet here and prices are low, but 90-100s are now held at a premium on the coast of half cent as compared with the larger sizes. Evaporated apples are easy and demand is but fair. Onions are rather higher. There is quite a range in price and quality. New peanuts are quoted. Prices are lower than have ruled. Shelled almonds are lower but the tendency is again to higher figures.

Sugar.

Holders of stocks are buoyant and the stock held is quite large. Price has advanced twenty cents during the week and market is firm. Quite a quantity of English sugar has been bought. The tariff situation is unsettled.

Fish.

The high prices still rule. Dry codfish are very high. This has tended to create a fair demand for pollock. Pickled fish are also held at full figures. Some Canso and Yarmouth herring are offered. In smoked herring there is a fair supply and compared with a few months ago prices show a decline.

Flour and Feed.

In flour, full prices are held. There is a good business. Feed shows but a fair sale. Oats are quite firm. Oatmeal remains unchanged. The large sale of breakfast foods affects the demand. Cornmeal is quite high, some think too high. Beans are unchanged and there seems a tendency to shade prices. Barley is in limited demand. Peas are scarce.

Provisions.

There continues to be a very light sale for barreled pork. Local packers are offering quite freely and prices are low. In beef prices are rather firm with, however, but little business. Smoked meats hold quite firm. Pure lard is rather higher. Refined is slightly lower and is now well below pure lard. In fresh meats there is but a fair business. Beef keeps low but retailers make little or no change in prices. Lamb is still freely offered. Mutton is dull. Veal shows fair value. Pork low.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Mechanical and Electrical Effects.

BY the use of a small motor there are innumerable displays of a spectacular nature that will work wonders in advertising a business, and will prove of unending interest to the passersby. The crowd never tires of a mechanical display, and there is such a wide range of ideas available that novelty can always be a part of the window. The effect need not be of an elaborate nature, nor should the motor be in constant use; its efficiency as a feature of the display will be much increased if it is varied with ordinary arrangements. The average window dresser considers such a mechanism as entirely beyond his means, but the cost is not as prohibitive as might be supposed. A quarter horse power is ample for an ordinary moving display, and even less may be found sufficient; a half horse power will run any effect desired. The cost depends upon the current used, alternating or direct, the latter being about three-quarters the price of the former. The alternating current is now, however, most used. For this a good ¼ horse power motor should cost about $80, 1-3 horse power $90, and ½ horse power $105; but motors of less trustworthy construction can be obtained for considerably less money. The same power with direct current would cost about $60, $70 and $80, respectively. In addition to the motor there are necessary only the belting and a few pulleys.

If the expense of a motor is too great, or there is no electrical connection, the window dresser can set up a water motor that will cost him only a few cents and will give good satisfaction where not too great power is desired. In some place out of sight and near at hand (the cellar is preferable as it is nearest the window) place two barrels, one filled with water on a table or elevation above the other. The water runs through a small hole onto a water wheel fixed on an axle in the lower barrel. By connecting by means of a belt a small wheel on the end of the axle with the object to be moved in the window, the apparatus is complete. A simple revolving platform can be made of a tireless bicycle wheel fastened in the window floor by its axle. A belt wound around the rim and connected with the water wheel will easily turn quite a heavy load. This motor can be made more powerful by placing one of the barrels upstairs and connecting it with the water wheel downstairs by means of a tube or pipe, the extra fall of the water accounting for this. A water wheel under a tap will generate good power and remain in action for any time. The barrel will supply the power for some hours without refilling.

Many windows can be greatly improved by fixing colored or frosted incandescent bulbs through the display. The effect is exceedingly good, and the cost small, after the initial expense. In wiring for such a window care must be taken that the insulation is perfect, otherwise fire is apt to break out, and the insurance would be hard to collect. All lights before the eyes should be colored or frosted to prevent a blinding glare.

Even the moving figures which are set going by winding are serviceable for a change, and are so inexpensive that a half dozen can be purchased for very little money. Such schemes have not the favor they once had, but their adoption is not at all objectionable at times.

This Week's Illustration.

This window was dressed by J. C. Whitesides for Fred. Carne, Jr., Victoria, B. C. The roof is a lattice work of puffed cheese cloth, and suspended from it is a natural grape vine with the home grapes hanging down in bunches.

The background is composed of closely gathered olive green satine, which is fastened to the edge of roof, and hangs down the full length of the six feet of the back. Each side is white cheese cloth draped with grape vine attached and a small bunch of wheat on one side and oats on the other, tied with white and pale purple ribbon respectively. Suspended from the very top to centre and back of the background are streamers of white and pale purple ribbon.

In the centre of window against the background are two pillars 8 inches in diameter and 3 feet high, on which is resting the sign in a gilt frame, white mat and black paper with white letters, "Our Thanksgiving, 1903." Between the pillars to the front is a box covered and surrounded with white cotton batting forming a mound recovered with puffed white cheese cloth and surmounted with another covering of green satine, similar to the back. Standing on the top is a large doll size of a big baby draped in white, with the ribbons of a sign in hands with the words: "Everything for Thanksgiving Dinner."

The goods displayed were placed on different colored plates, starting with canned soups and on down to fruit, wines, whiskies and everything dainty that could be wished for, with price tickets on nearly all. On the floor on background were vegetables that were on exhibition at the fall fair.

FROM THE LAND OF THE MIKADO

JUST now, with the eyes of the world fixed upon Japan and her valorous fight for national existence, it is interesting to hear from one of her prominent business men. Last week one of The Grocer's Montreal representatives had the pleasure of a chat with Mr. V. Nakamura, head of one of the largest tea growing, manufacturing and tea firing companies in Japan. Mr. Nakamura was unable to speak English and the conversation was carried on through the courtesy of Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, who represents this company in Canada. It is high-grade teas that Mr. Nakamura grows and manufactures. His headquarters are at Haibara, Shizouka, 150 miles from Yokahama inland, and he has a branch at the latter place, by means of which he keeps in touch with the tea planters of the country. In addition to running his own extensive business, from which is produced about one-fourth of the total quantity of tea exported, Mr. Nakamura has found time to be a director in the Toyo Co., also represented in Canada by Mr. Nishimura; he is also president of the Yen Yo Bank, and a director of the Agricultural and Industrial Bank at Haibara.

He has just returned from the St. Louis Exposition, where Japan tea received the Grand Prix, and his table sauce (something like Worcester of England and called Shoyu) won the gold medal, or as the Japs call it, a "Kimpai." This sauce they claim to have invented long before the best English sauces were on the market. The same sauce, which is manufactured by Mr. Nakamura, took the grand prize at Paris Exhibition.

In his opinion the war had not interfered with things in general in Japan. The reason that the tea production has fallen off about four million pounds was because poor prices have been current for export, and the farmers have devoted their land and time to rice growing this year. Mr. Nakamura referred to the present season in Japan as very pleasant. It would be comfortably warm and laborers would be busy cropping the rice. The Japanese people are most appreciative of the British and Colonial sympathy in their war struggles, and Mr. Nakamura remarked that it was a little flattering to call them the Britain of the Orient. He has just visited Boston, New York and Chicago, and at these points he noticed a distinct increase in the consumption of high-grade teas. The same change would likely reach Canada very shortly. He believed that Japan tea would continue to be cheap because the machinery and modern methods which were being continually introduced lessened the cost of production.

Referring to the tea export duty which had been proposed, he thought that when the Government assembled at the end of November the subject might come up, but it would entirely depend upon the circumstances whether such a tax was imposed. He, with hundreds of other prominent merchants in Japan, believed that the economy of the Mikado and his Ministers would preclude any necessity of a tax on tea. Further, he had the assurance that many other articles would be taxed before tea was touched, owing to the fact of the immense export trade done in this commodity. The total export of tea amounted to over forty millions of pounds, while the home consumption was something enormous. According to his observations of trade possibilities (by reasoning from an experience based on the life of his father and his grandfather, who were both engaged in the tea business) the trade in Japan tea will be greater than it ever was. Mr. Nakamura will be in the country about ten days prior to his trip to the coast and then home.

MARKET NEWS FROM TRINIDAD.

ACCORDING to latest reports received from Gordon, Grant & Co., Port-of-Spain, Trinidad, dated October 20, the market in breadstuffs is quiet and steady, with flour of all grades in light supply and stocks generally exceedingly moderate. There is a decidedly better feeling in hog products, but the demand is restricted and values in consequence unchanged. Last receipts of codfish, consisting of 500 casks, by American and Canadian steamers, have temporarily supplied requirements, but as stocks previously were nearly exhausted, the position continues healthy. The next Canadian boat brings but a very small quantity so prices may be expected to be maintained if not still further advanced. Good split herring are wanted and medium and large mackerel would also sell to a limited extent. The exceptionally dry, hot weather ruling at the present time will, if it continues, undoubtedly retard the ripening of the cocoa pods and seriously affect prospects for the coming crop. The cultivation of Venezuelan cocoa is reported to be suffering also from lack of rain. Advices from Venezuela indicate that the production of Balata is much curtailed and shipments cannot be of any magnitude until prices in foreign centres again reach a level to encourage attention to the gathering of the article.

A MARKET FOR CANADIAN BLACK CURRANT PULP

By H. Watson, London, Eng.

THE consumption of jams, jellies and similar preserves in the United Kingdom is very large. The demand for certain fruits being in excess of the quantity grown at home, considerable importations are made from abroad. When practicable, fresh fruits are purchased, but the exigencies of transportation and other reasons render it necessary that a certain proportion of such fruits reach the British market in the form of "pulp." As an indirect result of previous reports on the general features of this trade, Canadian fruitgrowers and canners have been enabled to ship raspberries to the United Kingdom upon several occasions. In many years, however, when crops in Great Britain are large, prices are too low to be profitable to Canadian shippers and the trade in raspberry pulp is attended with great uncertainty. Representations have, however, been made from several quarters that Canadian fruitgrowers would more advantageously direct their attention to the possibility of developing a trade in black currants. An endeavor has, consequently, been made to obtain some definite and reliable details upon the subject, more particularly because black currants can be grown to great advantage in many parts of Canada, the present acreage being limited simply because the domestic demand for black currants is comparatively small.

DEMAND FOR BLACK CURRANTS

Black currants, it may be mentioned, are not only used largely by jam manufacturers, but there is also a considerable consumption for the production of cordials, essences and similar purposes. One large firm hazards the opinion that the amount of black currant pulp used by jam makers alone would approach from 1,600 to 1,700 tons. A considerable proportion of this is imported from abroad, either fresh or pulped, but as the customs does not separate black currant from other varieties of fruit-pulps in the trade returns, no figures are available from that source. Speaking generally, there would appear to be a considerable quantity of black currant pulp imported annually, and several firms state definitely that there is usually a good demand for good whole fruit —black currant pulp packed in the approved style. The demand, it should be emphasized, is for "whole fruit," and any arriving in a mashed up condition would realize very inferior prices. The packages commonly used for continental pulp is the 5 kilos tin, packed 10 to the case, and many firms recommend this as the most suitable. One large firm, however, speaks very highly of the square 15-lb. can used by the Australian shippers of fruit pulp as being excellent "travellers." These are packed four to the case, separated by cross partitions so that each can lies in a nest so tightly that shaking about and bruising is almost impossible. The cost of packages being often a considerable item, any means of decreasing this expense deserves the fullest consideration. An inquiry made as to the possibility of shipping the pulp in casks has, however, elicited the unanimous opinion that casks and barrels are unsuitable, as the fruit would be almost certain to sustain damage in transit, and the suggestion is, therefore, condemned.

PRICE.

Having ascertained that there exists a pretty regular demand for black currant pulp, the next important feature is the question of price. In exceptional years like 1903, when the fruit crops failed almost everywhere, phenomenal figures were paid. The information essential for the Canadian shippers, however, is whether the average price realized for black currant pulp in this market would be generally of a profitable nature. One dealer says that before disease attacked the English crops fresh currants could be bought at as low as £12 ($58.40) to £16 ($77.87) per ton. Another jam maker considers 24s ($5.83) to 26s ($6.32) per cwt. (112 lbs.,) a fair average value both for fresh fruit and pulp. Against this, prices were as high as from 50s ($12.15) to 55s, ($13.36) and even up to 60s ($14.58) for best quality fruit.

One large dealer in pulp considers that in recent years the average value has varied between 40s ($9.72) and 50s ($12.15), and regards this as a good basis. Another important firm which handles a great quantity of fruits and pulps and is very conservative in its ideas states that until the disease is stamped out Canadians would be safe in planting for this market and can rely upon realizing between 28s ($6.80) to 33s ($8.02) per cwt. (112 lbs.), c.i.f., for good whole fruit pulp.

As a result of thorough investigation the general opinion in Great Britain at the present time seems to be that the prospects for Canada building up a profitable export trade in black currant pulp with Great Britain are favorable, provided only Canada can supply black currants of the quality and in the form required by the British market. Prices named above are in shillings per 112 lbs. cost, freight and insurance, to London or other ports.

As a rule importations of fruit pulp are actually made by merchants and brokers from whom the jam makers obtain supplies as required. Among the numerous English firms interested in black currant and other kinds of fruit pulps may be mentioned :

H. & T. Walker, 41 Eastcheap, London, E. C.

John Idiens & Sons, Evesham and 84 Leadenhall street, London, E. C.

Duhamel & Co., Plough Yard, E. C.

Any of the above invite correspondence from Canadian producers or shippers.

Violates Fruits Marks Act.

An action was brought against a prominent fruit grower of Lytton, B.C., last week, by the Dominion fruit inspector, for violating the Fruit Marks Act. The case in point was that on Sept. 10 the grower sold 40 boxes of Bartlett pears marked XXX, which mark represented the highest standard of excellence of fruit. At the same time the boxes were not marked with the name of the variety as required; the fruit was not uniform in size, was bruised, and showed a fungus growth called scab.

An organized effort is now being made to enforce the law with reference to the correct designation of all fruit grown in British Columbia, and in regard to the proper packing of the same. This is of prime importance if British Columbia fruit is to hold its high standard in the market, since a single shipment of imperfect fruit designated as high-class, or of fruit so packed that it will not stand shipment, will often close the market of an entire district to growers in the locality whence it is shipped.

Use Gallon Apples.

Few people know how to use gallon apples; if they did, they would not waste so much time and money on green fruit, as gallon apples are already prepared for use, and only require opening the can, pouring the fruit into a serving dish after removing the water, and covering it with a hot syrup made from granulated sugar to suit the taste. They are ready to be served as soon as the syrup has had time to permeate the fruit. For pies, the quarters are sliced and treated the same as in making green apple pie.

Fruit Notes.

The first shipment of new Hollawee and Sair dates arrived in Toronto Wednesday last.

The Grain Situation.

THE very heavy eastward movement of grain from Manitoba and the Northwest Territories continues. During the month of October 9,074 cars of wheat went to the lake front, or roughly speaking, 9,074,000 bushels. This is 785 cars more than for October, 1903. Considering that farmers did not deliver grain at the elevators as early as they did last year by two weeks, owing to the lateness of the season, the forward movement so far has been exceptional, the railway companies in the west apparently straining every nerve to keep grain on the way and prevent blockade. The general impression seems to be that the railway lines have never before given such an efficient service a this season. At the same time the fact remains that there are abnormally large stocks of wheat in store at Fort William and Port Arthur, simply because the facilities for transportation by water are inadequate. This drawback is having more or less of a tendency to demoralize trade.

The scarcity of cars is altogether a more serious matter in Ontario, where much difficulty is being experienced in moving grain from such shipping ports as Point Edward and Goderich. As an instance may be cited the fact that grain ordered for shipment a month ago from the former port has not yet reached Toronto. As a result several Ontario flour mills have been obliged to close down temporarily.

The grain market continues firm but steady, with prices of Manitoba Northern No. 1 a shade easier than a week ago, and prospects pointing to a continuation of the present firm situation, and perhaps a further hardening in the market. Some flour exporting is reported for the week, notwithstanding the fact that export prices are not much above the elevel ruling at home, the reason being that Canada has at present more than sufficient flour to answer domestic requirements. Speaking generally of the western grain crop, besides a splendid asset of 60,000,000 bushels of wheat there remains to be considered 50,000,000 bushels of oats, 10,000,000 bushels of barley, and splendid crops of potatoes, flax, rye, and vegetables. Manitoba and the Territories will easily sell $10,000,000 worth of live stock, and will have an agricultural round-up aggregating nearly $90,000,000 for about 60,000 actual farmers.

So much better did Western Canada fare this year than the northwestern Spring wheat states that the farmers of Northern Minnesota desire to have the duty on seed wheat from Canada remitted, else they will have trouble next year in getting good seed for their fields.

The quality of the Ontario grain collected so far is, generally speaking, below that of last year. Wheat is small in the kernel and weather beaten. Barley is a shade lower in color and oats not as bright as usual. Peas and buckwheat, on the other hand, are improved in quality, the former being freer from weevil.

Total	10,602,000	9,524,000	10,459,000

According to Beerhohm's latest London list, the final estimate of the wheat crop of the United Kingdom is 1¼ million quarters less than last year. The quality and natural weight, however, average far higher and it is probable that of this year's crop at least 4 million quarters will find their way to the mills as against 4½ million a year ago. Liberal supplies and large shipments to Europe have combined to bring about general indisposition to buy wheat, in spite of the extraordinary position in America, where the markets appear to be following an entirely independent course. At present the trade would seem to be somewhat perplexed by the great possibilities in the American position, and the probability in Argentina, where crop conditions, according to latest cable advices, were favorable. It will, however, be several weeks before a definite idea of the Argentine crop can be formed. For the immediate period supplies are so ample that buyers are difficult to move from their present waiting position.

In France the quantitative shortage in wheat is largely compensated by the excellent quality of this year's grain, which is yielding excellent flour results, thus lessening the apprehension that considerable imports would be necessary to supplement the home crop. In Russia, weather conditions have not been favorable to Winter wheat and rye, of which large areas have been sown.

Russian Wheat in Great Britain.

THE possibility of a passage at arms within the last fortnight has between Russia and Great Britain ply of all other sizes is good, there is brought more or less prominently before the Canadian trade the prospects of supplying the "Tight Little Island" with sufficient food to keep her going if supplies from the Russian Empire were to be cut off.

The general opinion seems to be that Great Britain would feel the lack of sufficient wheat in the event of hostilities, or in any event if the requisite amount was forthcoming, the shortage, with Russia a non-shipper, would be such as to advance prices noticeably.

Within the past year or so Russia has been perhaps the largest shipper of wheat into Great Britain, particularly since the United States' home demands have been such that, notwithstanding an annual crop of 500,000,000 bushels or so, she is unable to part with any considerable quantity, as compared with her shipments to the United Kingdom in former years.

To-day the Republic is shipping something like one-fifth of what she did a few years ago, the consequence being that Russia and the Argentine have been called upon to make up the deficiency. Last year Russia shipped about twenty per cent. or one-fifth of the total wheat imported into Great Britain, and this year the percentage has been much larger, running all the way from a fourth to a third. It is not at all certain what the Argentine crop will be. Some reports have hinted at a comparative failure, and a small-sized crop would mean no export to speak of, placing Argentina in the same position as the United States.

From this time forward the United States will not monopolize the export trade in grain to Great Britain as she has done for many years past. Her acreage can not more than keep pace with the ever growing population, and England must look to other markets. At present Russia and the Argentine, more particularly the former country, are filling in the gap. Now is the time for Canada to assert herself. That dream of Imperial unity which Mr. Chamberlain has laid before the people takes hold when the Empire is placed in the position of England at this very minute. Canada will have 30,000,000 bush. of wheat to export, but what is more significant, she is in a position potentially to supply the whole of the 200,000,000 bush. which represent the requirements of Great Britain every twelvemonth.

U. S. Wheat in Canada.

According to reliable reports a certain confectionery and biscuit firm in Winnipeg has been reduced to the extremity of importing wheat from the United States for manufacturing purposes. The reason assigned is because there is practically no Fall wheat grown in Western Canada. Farmers in Manitoba and the Territories sow Spring wheat almost exclusively, but for some reason or other this wheat does not make the right kind of flour for biscuits, baking too hard and taking too dark a color. Fall wheat flour, on the other hand, seems to answer the purpose exactly.

To Re-adjust Duty on Breadstuffs.

An effort is being made by American millers to bring about a re-adjustment in the existing customs relations governing the importation of foreign breadstuffs. At the present time grain may be imported into the United States on payment of a duty of 25c per bushel; it may also enter the country in bond but must re-cross the border bushel for bushel in the form of by-products and flour made from the identical wheat.

The chief objection to existing conditions is that it is practically impossible to preserve the identity of wheat throughout the milling process, and that it does not pay to export such by-products as bran and shorts. Accordingly, the American milling industry desires legislation which will admit of such by-products being consumed at home, and also provide for a rebate of duty on exportations of unidentified flour on condition that it is equal in quality to the Canadian wheat purchased; in other words, it wants a law which stipulates that a pound of flour be exported for every pound of wheat imported in bond, but at the same time allows of the local disposition of by-products. It is claimed that this will place the big American flour mills in a position to import Canadian wheat in bond for purposes of export, as well as to buy outright in large quantities for domestic use.

Quick Bread-Making Process.

An English journalist by the name of Pickering is credited in a current newspaper item with an invention which entirely dispenses with the customary night work in bread making. The preparation of the dough takes most of the time required in the ordinary baking process, as, after mixing and kneading, it must be left to rise, which requires from four to twelve hours. Mr. Pickering's invention reduces this time to about one hour. No additional plant is required and no extra ingredient is put into the bread, the desired effect being produced by the action of temperatures. The inventor has patented the process, and a company to exploit it, called the Quick Bread Co., has been formed. At a practical demonstration recently given it is said that the flour was made up into dough ready for the oven in fifty-nine minutes, and the batch of twenty-five loaves was produced from the raw flour in two hours and thirty-five minutes. The flour was weighed and the number of loaves compared with the number produced by the ordinary process, and it was found that eight more quartern loaves than usual are produced from a sack of flour.

Good Bread From Dark Flour.

The Department of Agriculture of the Northwest Territories have issued a pamphlet on the comparative values of the different grades of wheat. One of the most interesting facts brought out in the report is that bread made from some wheat and flour graded low, while dark in color, is of just as good quality as bread of light color.

KENTVILLE BOARD OF TRADE.

At the recent regular quarterly meeting of the Kentville, N.S., Board of Trade, a report from the merchants of the town with one exception showed a much larger business, better cash sales and fewer customers' notes in the bank this year than last. The outlook for Winter business in this section is very bright.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Tobacco Industry of Canada.

THERE is a Canadian industry that has been but little recognized in the past, says a contemporary, but which possesses possibilities of almost magic import for the future, and which under fair conditions may be made to expand into a veritable Klondyke of wealth, namely, the tobacco industry.

The Canadian farmer who proposes to make a specialty of tobacco raising must consider four important elements in the carrying on of that industry. Firstly, the nature of the soil—including the character of the fertilizers; secondly, the quality and nature of the seeds; thirdly, the time and manner of planting, transplanting and cutting; fourthly, the proper method of curing it, as well as the construction of the drying house and the precautions necessary in the seasoning of the tobacco. These four points are capable of development in all the details that practice constantly suggests, into four volumes of theory. But, in the present instance, unlike in the case of many other industries, the theory is the outcome of practical testing, instead of the practice being the outcome of pure theory. It must be considered that conditions in Canada, especially in regard to tobacco, differ greatly from those that obtain in more southern climates. Under proper treatment and by the exact application of the theory that experience has taught in Canada, we can raise as good, as highly and as sweetly flavored tobacco as the best that grows in Virginia, or in any other section of the American Union, but the sine qua non is a strict adherence to every detail of the rules that practical experience has suggested to those who have made an interested study of the subject.

The first great mistake that the Canadian farmer makes is to attempt to raise tobacco on any kind of soil, regardless of whether it corresponds or not with the requirements of the tobacco plant. To sow tobacco in ground that should be given over to the raising of oats, or wheat, or vegetables, is merely a wasting of the soil and of all the labor put on it. Your ground, which might be profitably used for other purposes, is simply utilized to raise poor tobacco that will command no price, and will only serve to lower the standard of Canadian tobacco. There are some farms that have not one acre of ground, from end to end, that is suitable for the planting of tobacco. The soil must be dry and high. The space at our disposal will not permit entering into further details, but they constitute a most interesting study. Equally as important as the selection of the soil, is that of the fertilizers. This is a veritable scientific study. No fertilizers should be left on the land longer than eight or twelve hours before being ploughed in; otherwise they evaporate and become injurious instead of beneficial.

The transplanting, from the glass-boxes to the field, should take place during the last weeks of May, so that the plants may have two months and a half to grow and be ready for cutting by the middle of August. In planting there should be at least eighteen inches between the plants and two feet and a half between the rows. These few details are given merely to afford an idea of the exactness with which the rules of practical theory must be followed and to show that it is not sufficient to scatter tobacco at random as you would sow some other products.

Then, when the harvest time comes, it is necessary that the tobacco be cut in a dry season. If it has rained heavily, it is necessary to wait till the sun has heated the soil again and made it dry, before attempting to cut the plants. And in cutting the ground should be covered with a sheet, a sail, or some such canvas covering to save the leaf from coming in contact with the soil. The tobacco leaf is covered with a species of gum to which sand sticks, and that deteriorates the quality of the tobacco when pressed. The plant should be divided into three. The one culling the tobacco should make four piles; the first for the top leaves, the second for the middle leaves, and the third for the bottom leaves, or those near the root, while there is a fourth pile for the refuse or stems or broken leaves. These piles indicate the grades or quality of the tobacco.

When the crop is gathered in comes the most exact, delicate and important work—that of properly drying or seasoning the weed. It should be hung in bunches from hooks in the roof of a dry-house. These bunches should be far enough apart to allow the air to circulate between them. The house should have ventilating windows whereby the warm air, in sunny weather, may be allowed to enter and the damp air in rainy weather may be kept out. For there must be no moisture permitted to dampen the leaves, and yet they must not be allowed to dry up too rapidly. If it were possible to allow a crop to season for two years, it would be worth forty and fifty per cent. more than tobacco that has been fabricated after a hurried drying.

Inland Revenue Returns.

The Grocer has received the following returns from the Inland Revenue Departments of Winnipeg, Ottawa, Kingston and Prescott, in regard to turnover in tobacco and cigars for the month of October, 1904 :

Winnipeg—Cigars ex factory, $1,548 ; cigars ex warehouse, $2,532.60; manufactured tobacco ex warehouse, $25,929.51; raw leaf tobacc, for use, $1,387.15 ; total, $31,397.26.

Ottawa—Tobacco, $3,095.75; Canadian twist, $6; cigars, foreign, $180; bonded factory, $16.91; officers' supervision, bonded factory, $25; total, $3,323.66.

Prescott—Foreign leaf cigars ex warehouse, $150; raw leaf, $51.40; total, $201.40.

Kingston—Cigars ex factory, $507 ; cigars ex warehouse, $1,050; raw leaf for use, $501.92; manufactured tobacco ex warehouse, $1,042.50; total, $3,101.42. Grand total for month, $38,023.74.

Canadian Exhibit at St. Louis.

The Canadian exhibit of tobacco is interesting. The Province of Quebec displays leaves of the 1901 crop with the accompanying statistics that it amounted to 7,655,975 pounds. A case of Queen's Navy chewing plug exemplifies the manufactured article. A large number of cases show the varieties of white Burley grown in the Province of Ontario, also samples of Little Dutch, Zimmer Spanish, Connecticut seed leaf, Blue Prior, Quesnel and Havana seed.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

AS the ocean season of shipping nears its close freights have improved slightly. New charters are quite rare, and now that elections are over considerable interest is being taken in the grain movement from the west.

Freight engagements are reported of Manitoba wheat from Fort William through to Montreal by the all-water route at 5¼c per bushel, and by lake and rail at 5¾c, with 6c asked. The rate on corn to Buffalo from Chicago is 1¼c per bushel, but this is not important, as little business is done in corn from Chicago to Montreal. The handling of grain by the trunk lines is attracting some attention, because the board of managers of the New York Produce Exchange has adopted the agreement recently proposed regarding the handling of grain by the trunk line of railways. The old agreement has been in force twenty years and was entirely out of date. The new one goes to the trunk line committee for adoption, and will probably be put into effect Nov. 24.

It provides in effect that the regular companies may put together in elevators, warehouses, boats or barges, provided by themselves for the purpose, grain of the same kind and grade, without regard to the ownership, after the same has been inspected and weighed in accordance with the agreement; either receivers of grain or the railroad companies may preserve the identity of the shipment if they so choose. It is also provided that all questions of difference between the New York Produce Exchange or any member thereof, and the railway companies, or either of them, parties to this agreement, growing out of the inspection and delivery of all grain arriving by rail at the port of New York, shall be settled by a private arbitration committee, consisting of three persons.

All this arrangement, if adopted, will be operative just as the ocean shipping season for ocean and lake traffic is ended.

It, therefore, will have its effect upon St. John, Halifax and Portland, where all the leading Canadian steamship lines trade in Winter.

Rates on nearly all commodities have been advanced slightly, owing entirely to the time of year. Lake and rail freights of the Dominion are very copious and profitable at this period.

CAN YOU WRITE A GOOD AD ?

We make it worth trying.

There are thousands of people in Canada who know a good advertisement when they see it. Most of them have the ability to write a good advertisement—some have the ability, but don't know it.

We want them all to enter this national contest—open free to all—to try and carry off one of the valuable prizes.

In case of a tie, the first ads. received get the prizes, so get YOUR advertisement in as soon as possible. Contest will be closed December 15th, and prizes awarded as soon after as possible.

The successful ads. will be reproduced in this journal with the names of the winners, and accompanied by a special article commenting on the entries, and enumerating the good points of the best of them.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST :

Advertisements entered may be for any business the contestant may choose. Each ad. entered should be accompanied by a statement specifying what the ad. is intended to advertise, or what results it is intended to secure.

Each ad. must have been written by the contestant, either specially for this contest, or for publication in any Canadian newspaper during the preceding three months.

It shall occupy, or be intended to occupy, a space NOT LARGER than 5 inches, double column.

Illustrations may be used if necessary to illustrate the article advertised, or if thought to make the ad. more result-producing.

Consideration will be shown by the judges to the neatness of appearance of copy, the display arrangement, etc., so that every ad. should be properly laid out the same as you would send it to the newspaper for publication.

All entries will be stamped with the date received, and in case two or more ads. of equal merit are considered better than all others, the one first received will be awarded the prize. So don't delay in entering the contest.

There is no limit to the number of entries to be made by any one person, but no person can secure more than one prize.

Any further particulars may be secured on request, and all communications and entries should be addressed to

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

FORMING A JOINT STOCK COMPANY.

A few points of interest to the bookkeeper in changing from a partnership to a Joint Stock Company or in the Amalgamation of Industrial Concerns.

By H. R. W.

FROM the legal point of view, the parties applying for a charter of incorporation must be not less than three, also twenty-one years of age, and may petition the Lieutenant-Governor through the Provincial Secretary for the issue of letters patent.

The provisional directors of a company are usually the applicants for the charter, and constitute a committee, who manage the affairs of the company up to the time of the first general meeting of the shareholders, when a board of directors is elected.

A company may be incorporated under special act, such as banks or mining companies, or by letters patent under the great seal.

In case of amalgamation, the directors of the different companies may enter into a joint agreement to be executed under the corporate seal of each company, prescribing the terms, conditions, the name of the new company, the last word of which shall be the word "Limited," which must be written out in full when the word immediately preceding it is neither "Company," "Club" nor "Association," but when any of these words precede, the word "Limited" may be abbreviated, provided the letters "L" and "D" shall be the first and last letters respectively. The prefix "The" in the name of a company may be omitted where any of the three words mentioned above form part of the name. The use, or rather, misuse, of the word "Limited," has been the source of legal disputes to some extent, and it might therefore be well to call attention to the responsibilities of the directors and officials of a company in this connection. The word must be used on all the letter paper of the company, on the signs, in the advertisements, on the corporate seal, in fact, everywhere the name of the company is used.

Every company, director, manager or officer who knows of the omission of the word "Limited," or of its abbreviated form as before described, and does not comply with the provisions in regard to its use, shall incur a penalty not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offense and may be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars for a second offense.

With their joint petition for charter the various companies shall deposit with the Provincial Secretary an original of the agreement of amalgamation, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may then by letters patent confirm such agreement, and from the date of such confirmation the said company shall be deemed consolidated, and the new company shall possess the rights, privileges, etc., of each of the companies so consolidated.

An action pending against any one of the different companies would not abate, nor would the right of creditors be affected in any way by the amalgamation.

If the number of shareholders is less than five in any limited company for a period of six months after the number has been so reduced, every person who is a shareholder of the company during the time that it so carries on business after such period of six months, and knows the fact, is individually liable for the payment of the debts of the company contracted during such time.

The petition for charter should set forth the objects of the amalgamating companies; should state where the head office was to be situated; the provisional directors, their addresses; the nominal and paid-up capital; the number of shares and the value of each. It must be very specific, as the charter will only be granted for the purposes enumerated in the petition, and the company has no right to go beyond that unless additional letters patent are applied for through the usual formalities.

The proposed name of the company should be as short as possible, and must not conflict with that of any known company.

The Ontario and Dominion acts differ in some respects in regard to joint stock companies. Under the Dominion act one-half the total amount of capital stock must be subscribed before applying for a charter.

Usually after the required amount has been subscribed the company commences business before disposing of the balance, but if no business should be done for three years, the charter will be forfeited.

A company is governed by the laws of the province or state which granted its charter, no matter where it is carrying on business, although a fine or tax may be imposed according to the laws of any other province in which business is being conducted.

If the company's capital has been impaired, the shareholders cannot be held liable for any of the debts of the company provided their stock has been paid up in full; if this is not the case, they are liable for the unpaid portion.

Certain books are required to be kept by law:—A copy of the letters patent; a copy of the by-laws which govern the annual meeting; the number which constitutes a quorum; the time of election of directors, their qualifications; transfer of shares, etc.; the names, addresses and calling of shareholders and the number of shares held by each, the amount paid and unpaid on each share; the name, address and calling of directors and date when each became, and ceased to be, a director, and a register of transfers.

These books shall during business hours be kept open for the inspection of shareholders and creditors, who may take extracts therefrom.

An annual statement must be filed on Government forms, for which a fee is charged.

It is necessary that a certain number of shareholders shall be present in order to constitute a meeting, the required number being called a quorum.

If the shareholders at the time of meeting do not exceed ten, the quorum shall be three; if they exceed ten, add to the above quorum one for every additional four up to fifty, and one for every additional ten after fifty.

A few general items of interest along this line will be given in next issue.

CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS' STUDENTS' ASSOCIATION.

THE annual meeting of this organization was held at the offices of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, 27 Wellington street east, Toronto, on Monday evening, October 3, at 8 o'clock, Mr. A. G. Ross, president, in the chair.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. T. Kernahan, C.A., hon. president; F. H. MacPherson, F.C.A., hon. vice-president; A. F. Park, president; G. M. Begg, vice-president; Howard R. Wellington, secretary-treasurer; A. L. C. O'Brien and A. G. Ross, executive committee; G. Noble, librarian.

The report of the retiring president evidenced a most satisfactory condition of affairs and showed that the efforts of the Association to raise the standard of efficiency among the more advanced office men in Toronto had been highly successful.

THE VALUE OF SYSTEM.

THE motto for every successful enterprise to-day should be, and is, to a great extent, "Be Progressive," or, in other words, "keep up with the times in which you live."

The tendency, however, with concerns who have been in business for a number of years, and who are also doing an immense volume of trade, is to stubbornly adhere to the old methods which have been in vogue for the past 50 years, contending that as a certain amount of success has attended their efforts so far, no change should be made. Especially is this the case in regard to office systems.

By adopting an up-to-date system and arranging the accounts in a systematic manner, statistics may be obtained in regard to the business which are simply invaluable to every progressive business man; excessive expenses in certain departments or branches, small profits on certain lines of goods, heavy purchasing, slow sales, may be instantly localized by a systematic arrangement of accounts and records.

There is, of course, in some instances, a possibility of "too much system," but with reasonable care and common sense this may be avoided.

Every new system which is put upon the market should not be adopted, as, in some cases, it will necessitate increasing rather than decreasing the staff of an office, but there are, without a doubt, systems which will produce far more satisfactory results at a greatly reduced cost than the methods now employed by a number of our leading commercial houses.

Conditions have changed wonderfully within the last few years, and office methods and systems must change accordingly to keep up with the new condition of affairs, although it is quite natural for the office man who has been running in a rut for so many years to be prejudiced against anything new along this line.

There are retail merchants running monthly accounts with customers right in our large cities to-day who rarely furnish a bill of goods with a purchase. What satisfaction is there for the customer to have a large itemized bill rendered irregularly, sometimes a month after the goods were bought, with nothing in the way of a delivery slip to check it with?

Suppose the wholesale merchant sent a lot of goods without an invoice. What would the retail merchant say?

Don't use a scrap of paper to take an order on; it does not pay. You will probably lose the memo. of your order and perhaps a customer also.

The cost of duplicate cash sale and charge books is so small that every dealer should use them, and it would be much more satisfactory, both to the dealer and customer.

Don't be too severe on "New Systems," as they are called; each system has been specially adapted to some business to reduce expense and labor, although possibly not suitable for your own peculiar business.

When your attention is called to an error in your work—when it is suggested that you might improve along a certain line of work—when you are advised to do a thing in a different manner from that to which you have been accustomed—don't flare up or go around all day with a long face; it is for your own good. Rather benefit by the suggestions; guard against such errors in future; strive to improve.

SELF-RELIANCE A GOOD TEACHER.

WE often find that boys who have educated themselves in the country, almost without schooling or teachers, make the most vigorous thinkers. They may not be quite as polished or cultivated, in some ways, but they have something better than polish, and that is mental vigor, originality of method, and independence. They do not lean upon their schooling, or depend upon their diplomas; necessity has been their teacher, and they have been forced to act for themselves and be practical; they know little of theories, but they know what will work. They have gained power by solving their own problems. Such self-educated, self-made men carry weight in their communities because they are men of power and think vigorously and strongly; they have learned to concentrate the mind.

Self-help is the only help that will make strong, vigorous lives. Self-reliance is a great educator and early poverty is a good teacher. Necessity has ever been the priceless spur which has called man out of himself and spurred him on to his goal.

Grit is more than a match for almost any handicap. It overcomes obstacles and abolishes difficulties. It is the man who makes an opportunity and does not wait for it—the man who helps himself and does not wait to be helped,—that makes the strong thinker and vigorous operator.

It is he who dares to be himself and to work by his own programme, without imitating others, who wins.

WALL PAPER.

HANGING FLOCK PAPERS.

By Joseph Dillon.

THE first requisite is, an intelligent paperer one who has had experience in his art, and with sufficient pride in his work to make him aim as near perfection as a mortal may.

The flock itself must be handled with exceeding care, particularly avoiding repeated rolling and unrolling, which has a tendency to crack it and irreparably mar the artistic effect.

The application of the paste should be rapid and thorough, particularly remembering that only the best flour paste, free from various preservative agents, will insure the integrity of the delicate coloring of the flock. I strongly advise making the paste yourselves.

The edges should be trimmed after pasting, as in this way only can we be certain of an even pasting of the surface, without the danger of paste-smeared edges.

The paper should not be allowed to lie on the pasting board long after the paste has been applied, permitting the moisture of the paste to strike through the ground of the flock, and perhaps producing a permanent stain, but it should be transferred with reasonable rapidity from the pasting board to the wall, which has previously been properly cleaned and lined with good lining stock.

Probably on no one detail will so much of the success of the hanging of a flock depend as upon the careful butting and setting of the edges. Avoid rolling the edges, butt the flock true and flatten with a soft brush; avoid any extra pressure on any one part of the paper and treat all in the same manner. Any paste spots will ruin the work, and no amount of trade juggling will remedy it. Its cure lies in its prevention.

One word more, and you will have the gist of my experience in flock hanging: Avoid the hanging of flocks or any delicate goods in damp weather. The moisture is sure to penetrate the paper, thus preventing the firm grip which the setting paste would otherwise take, leading to the formation of blisters and the separation of the paper edges and causing for the manufacturer of that paper an undeserved complaint. I consider it safe to state that 90 per cent. is owing to defective hanging, and not to the manufacture of the goods.

MOIRE PAPERS

The moire papers for ceilings and for wall panels continue to find an extensive sale. Several effective designs are shown by Stauntons Limited, wall paper manufacturers, Toronto, and are extremely decorative. Prices are moderate and allow of a good profit to the dealer. This firm is also showing an extension with corners to match, suitable for panelling for walls and ceilings. Samples of these may be had at any time on application by wall paper dealers.

TO THE RETAIL MERCHANT.

Why do you sell bulk Soda? These are days of progress.

The enterprising dealer has ceased to figure percentage. Amount of goods turned over, and profit accrued, with economy of time and labor, is his method. A keg of Soda means to the merchant, 100 paper bags, 100 twines, 100 down weights, and the loss of 10 to 12 pounds, with no assurance of quality; since low prices mean cheaper methods of production among manufacturers, and of course inferior products (or Soda.)

Ask your Grocer's traveller for Cow Brand Soda in packages. You save the twine, time, paper bags, and loss of weight. You give your customer a handsome package of Soda, free from lumps, and of assured uniformity in strength. In short, they have the best Soda there is, and both merchant and customer have the satisfaction that always attends the handling of a first-class article.

Sold by all wholesale Grocers in package only.

A request by postal card will bring you some of our Cow Brand Cook Books in French or English, as desired.

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

Can't you?

A WINTER TRIP TO NASSAU

By Geo. H. Hees in Industrial Canada.

EVERYBODY in search of health or pleasure should, if they can, make a Winter visit to Nassau, the "Queen of the Bahamas." Leaving New York, with its snow and ice and Wintry blizzards, in less than four days you are in Nassau amid warm sunshine fragrant flowers and beautiful song-birds.

The shores of Nassau are washed by the Gulf Stream, and the climatic influences of the trade winds make an equable climate during the Winter months of an average of 72 degrees. Frost and malaria are unknown on the island. The best months to visit the Bahamas are January, February and March. The evenings are delightfully warm, and pleasant odors from many tropical trees and flowers yield their perfume after the setting sun.

RETURNE
NOV 18 19

Historical.

The Bahamas were for nearly two hundred years governed by the Spanish, but since 1787 they have been British dependencies. Columbus is supposed to have landed October 12th, 1492, on what is known as Wattings Island, which he named San Salvador. It is about two hundred miles distant in a northeasterly direction from Nassau. The inhabitants Columbus named Indians, and they are believed to have been of the race of the American Indian. Many changes among the inhabitants have taken place since then, and of the 14,000 in and around Nassau, only about 2,000 are white. In wandering about the island you wonder where so many whites are, for outside the city you seldom see any but the colored race. But there are enough officials and business men to form a colony of their own, and so Nassau is not without its "social four hundred."

The era of Nassau's greatest prosperity was during the Civil War in the United States, when it was the harbor of refuge for blockade runners and refugees. In January and February, 1865, more than twenty steamships laden with cotton arrived at this port. So great was the increase of business that the English Government built the large "Royal Victoria" Hotel to accommodate the influx of business men and refugees. This hotel is now used for the overflow of the new "Colonial" Hotel, both of which belong to the system of Flagler's famous southern hotels.

The colored race is peaceful and gives the authorities but little trouble. They are generally neat and very polite to the whites, and if there are beggars on the island I never came across one. They are better featured and speak the English language with less dialect than their black neighbors of the Southern States.

The big American lines direct from New York, call at least weekly, and steamers from Florida during Winter months arrive and depart tri-weekly, and tramp steamers trading with the islands are in port frequently. The trade is supplied almost entirely by United States houses, who look closely after the wants of the merchants.

A Nassau Sponge Yard.

Industrial.

Sponge and fruit are their principal exports; scores of vessels are engaged in sponge gathering, and all sponge gathered among the Bahamas is brought to Nassau, which is said to be the principal sponge market of the world. The arrangement between vessel owners and crew is so fair that strikes are unknown. After the vessel owner deducts the cost of provisioning the vessel for the voyage, the cargo is sold at auction and the money divided between vessel owner and crew, each taking half. Should the vessel owner wish to buy his own cargo, he can do so only by being the highest bidder. Sponge is first dried, then pounded with a wooden mallet to get the sand out; girls then trim off the rough edges and "fingers," after which it is ready for the auction sheds. Sales are frequent, and buyers from the States and Europe are always in attendance at the auctions.

Their "auctions" are seemingly a misnomer as they are conducted without an auctioneer. Buyers use blank cards as they walk around the sponge which is separated by partitions. They mark on the card the number of the lot and their offer, the cards are then handed in at the office, and the lot, of course, is awarded to the highest marked price.

Cotton was at one time grown on these islands, and in 1783 over eight hundred slaves were used in this industry on Long Island; but the red bug got into the bolls and destroyed several crops in succession, and after the abolition of the slave trade in 1834, the business was abandoned.

During the Spanish American War when the ports of the Philippine Islands were closed, rope became scarce and Manilla rope went up in value with a bound. They found in Nassau what seemed to be a substitute for hemp grown in the Philippines. It is known as "Sisal" and belongs to the Cactus family. The sprouts or leaves are about four feet long, thick and tough, with sharp points on the edges. The fibre is long and very strong, but rope made from it is inferior to Manilla rope. It becomes hard and stiff when wet and is slow in drying. Since the close of the war the industry has greatly fallen off, though sisal is still used with some success in the manufacture of small cords and twines.

Nassau Fish Market.

At the market are many kinds of fish, for the waters of the Bahamas swarm with tropical fish and turtles. Some are of most beautiful colorings and strangely odd shapes. The valuable green turtle, the delight of epicures, fresh from the waters, is always on sale at the markets. At the curio shops are many souvenirs you will want to take home—curios made from the wonderful lace bark tree, shells of dazzling beauty, and sharks' teeth formed into fantastic shapes. The valuable tortoises that produce the shells that are made into combs and artistic jewelry are found in these waters. Shop and factory are usually combined, and these beautiful goods are made before your very eyes while you wait.

You may watch the old mammies in the market serve out to the pickaninnies for a penny, their breakfast of a hodgepodge of fish, corn and rice. Living is cheap, and a few cents will buy a day's food for the black man.

Tropical air produces languor and you are not surprised at the little work performed by the natives. I said to an old darky one day, "How do you folks get your living, you never seem to be at work, but always lazing around?" "Well it's this way, Chief," said he "we live mostly on the white visitors in the Winter and then by the grace of God, till they come back again."

Hogg Island.

Probably never can you get so much value for your money as when you visit Hogg Island. The boatman takes you across the bay, a mile from the city, where you meet Captain Hague who owns the fruit grove and farm. After handing him an English shilling, you are invited to the tables filled with fresh picked fruit, oranges, melons, bananas, cocoanuts, bread fruit, star apples, pine apples, custard apples, sapadillos and grape fruit growing all around you. You will see the black boys picking oranges that have just arrived at the acme of perfection. The oranges are peeled and a wooden skewer run through them, and you eat them from the skewer, as you eat corn off the cob. If you do not eat at least a dozen oranges, the captain thinks you are not fond of the fruit; you are urged and urged to eat, and you do eat, and you then understand why the place is called "Hogg Island." Then you walk across the island to one of the best bathing beaches in the world, and the water is so delightfully warm and exhilarating that when you come out, you are hungry and hasten back to the fruit tables where you again attack the fruit, until you are surprised that you can eat so much. I have picked and eaten oranges in Florida, Cuba, California, Honolulu, Australia and among the naked savages of the Fiji Islands, but to me no orange is equal in delicious flavor to that of "Hogg Island." You are rowed back to the city by the black boys who entertain you with their ragtime coon and sentimental songs, and all this variety of pleasure and entertainment for the single shilling and tips to the boys.

NO CONCESSIONS TO JAM MAKERS.

The Minister of Inland Revenue's determination to enforce the Pure Food Act of Parliament is already bearing fruit. Under this law, if a food produce contains glucose, or any substitute the label must contain the word compound. Manufacturers find that the word compound on their packages leads the public to view the contents with more or less suspicion, and have so complained to the Inland Revenue Department. There will be no relaxation, however, in the law governing this matter, and if manufacturers find that compounds do not sell well they will probably soon take the lesson and do away with substitutes altogether.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

The Grocer is in receipt of an attractive illustrated booklet issued by the Computing Scale Co., Dayton, Ohio, advertising their numerous computing scales, near weight detectors, chart, automatic springless and portable scales. The high standard of the Dayton scales is already well known; their prices range from $25 to $135.

Graham, Morton & Co., Leeds, Eng., are distributing among the trade a catalogue illustrating and describing their newest loading and unloading machines, conveyors and elevators of all descriptions for cold storage plants, steamships, etc.

THIS is an article that can't help being popular, because people can't help liking nice things to eat—that's human nature.

Acadia Prepared Codfish is a nice thing to eat. It can be made up into the most delicious of Dishes.

Besides it is wholesome and nourishing, good food for body and brain alike.

Another thing in its favor is the convenience and cleanness of the article. It's already to cook—nothing fussy or dirty about it.

Put these facts before customers who have not yet tried the fish, persuade them to buy just one package and you will establish a new trade for yourself. Nothing could be easier. The people will like the fish and you will get the orders.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

Good Red-Herring "Sardines."

COMPARATIVELY few imported sardines are sold in this country nowadays, says a Maritime exchange, yet not one consumer in a thousand knows the difference between the imitation and the genuine, so nearly does the fish sold for a sardine resemble the real sardine in appearance and taste. Nine-tenths of the "sardines" come from Maine. In Eastport alone there are over two dozen places where the mock sardine is prepared and boxed.

The mock sardine industry was begun long ago by a couple of sharp far-seeing New Yorkers, who began to pack small herring in little wooden kegs and place them on the market under the name of "Russian herring." The venture was most successful, but the men got the idea there was more money still in modelling the herring after the French sardine.

A similar experiment had been tried not long before, but it had turned out to be a failure. It had been easy to pack the Maine herring in olive oil and to encase it in boxes which imitated the French production, but the taste of the herring remained unmistakable, and the scheme failed. The New Yorkers, however, after a few trials, hit on a mixture or blend of spices and oils for a packing sauce, which made a "sardine" of a herring and caused to spring up a gigantic industry. "Sardines" are made not only from common herring, but from young sea trout.

The way the fish are handled at the factory is a sight worth going to Maine to see. When they have been piled in heaps on long tables the cleaning begins. The rapidity of the work is wonderful. A seven-year-old girl can behead and clean seventy-five herrings every minute for ten minutes without a miss or a halt.

New York is the great wholesale centre for these Yankee "sardines." One Maine factory alone—and there are others doing as large a trade—has made and sold as many as two million boxes of "sardines" in a year.

Japanese Herring Season Closed.

THE review of the Japanese herring fishing for this season brings out the most unsatisfactory and disappointing state of affairs that has been ever recorded in the history of this industry. The herring catches for the third season aggregated 100,619 kokus, making the total catch since the opening of the season 700,687 kokus, showing a decrease of 372,796 kokus or 14,539,044 gallons, and a decrease of 151,080 kokus, of 5,892,121 gallons, compared with the catches of the corresponding periods in 1903 and 1902 respectively. The catch up to this time was very light, and far below the estimate which was recorded at 815,500 kokus, or 31,804,500 gallons, against 700,687 kokus or 27,326,793 gallons actual outturn. The catch for the season is divided into the first, second, third and fourth seasons. The fishing closed early in October, and the total catch of herring for this year aggregates 715,536 kokus, showing a decided falling off of 362,396 kokus, or 14,133,444 gallons, compared with the catch for 1903, and a decrease of 212,453 kokus, or 1,912,077 gallons on the average yield of the past five years. The smallest total catch during the past eight years was made this season, the largest catch being in 1903, amounting to 1,150,000 kokus, or 44,850,000 gallons, while the next largest catch was made in 1897, when it amounted to 1,136,384 kokus, or 44,318,970 gallons.

Reports from Kobe, Japan, state that the market for herring oil is depressed, that prices during the season have gradually declined, and at present have touched the lowest point for many years past, due to the absence of demand the world over, and owing to European markets being flooded with all kinds of fish oils, which are far in excess of consumption, and the war in the Far East.

High Price of Codfish.

According to the Trade Review of St. John's, Newfoundland, the present price of codfish is the highest in fifty years. In 1876 the price was the same as now for prime mercantile, which would mean about $5 for tolgual shore. That same year, however, the very best made Labrador was $4, which, at that time was considered an extraordinarily high figure. Flour was cheaper in 1876 than now, and a frequent purchase was a barrel of flour, a pound of tea, and a pound of tobacco for a quintal of prime merchantable fish.

Interesting Fish Experiment.

An interesting fish experiment is being tried in St. John, N.B. Every year some thousands of salmon caught in the weirs are placed in a salmon pond, and when spawning season comes are stripped of their spawn and the eggs forwarded to hatcheries.

It has been an open question whether or not the fish came back each year, and this season eight hundred fish were marked for identification, a copper tag with place and date indicated being attached to the dorsal fin and the fish being released. The catch next year will be awaited with much interest.

Fish Notes.

According to the St. John Globe, herring have not been so plentiful for years in Canso Bay as they are this season.

The sardine fishing in the St. John, N.B., harbor seems to be going on rather slowly owing to the starvation prices offered by the American buyers. The local fishermen claim they cannot carry on a profitable business while the sardines will bring only $3 per hogshead, although a few days ago this was considered a fair price. During the present week the work has been practically suspended.

SETTLEMENTS OF JAPAN TEA.

The Grocer is indebted to C. M. Bernard, of Bernard & Co., Yokohama, Japan, for the following statistics in regard to settlements of Japan tea for the present season:

Tea settlements to September 30, 1904.

Yokohama	176,837 peculs
Kobe	115,147 peculs
Total	291,984 peculs

or 18,245 peculs less than last year to an even date.

Shipments to September 30, 1904.

Yokohama	21,563,497 lbs.
Kobe	11,382,158 lbs.
Total	32,945,655 lbs.

or 2,692,657 lbs. less than last year to an even date. There has, however, been an increase in shipments to Canada of nearly 1,000,000 lbs.

ENGLISH FIRM EXPANDING.

It will be welcome news to the trade generally to know that Sutcliffe & Bingham, of Manchester, England, the well-known manufacturers of "Kkovah" grocers' specialties have decided to open up agencies in Toronto and Winnipeg.

ADULTERATED COFFEE.

The Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, on a recent analysis of 75 samples of ground coffee found that 45 were genuine, 19 adulterated and 3 in which adulteration was declared.

"MADE IN CANADA" FAIR.

From all acounts the "Made in Canada" Fair being held in Brockville is proving to be a big success, and it is conceded by all who have made the fair a visit that the exhibit of E. W. Gillett Company, Toronto, is one of the most attractive at the fair. The display made by this company is very similar to that which they had at this year's Canadian National Exhibition held in Toronto.

Jos. Gaumond, general merchant, St. Jean Port Joli, is offering to compromise at 40c on the dollar.

Importing Ontario Cheese.

G. A. Putnam, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes in Ontario, has received an interesting report from the chief instructor for Eastern Ontario, C. G. Publow, who has been visiting a number of wholesale cheese houses in Montreal. He states that the September and October cheese outputs received from Ontario by these houses, and intended chiefly for shipment to Britain, are superior to those of any previous year. The quality is more uniform and of a higher grade, and this improvement is held to be due, in a large measure, to the systematic instruction which has been carried on in Ontario during the last two years. The chief instructor for Western Ontario, S. H. Barr, reports the same satisfactory conditions in his district. Mr. Putnam has also received answers from several instructors to a circular letter, which he sent out some time ago with a view to securing hints and suggestions toward continued improvement. Some of the replies are to the effect that a number of factories should have cooler curing rooms and better drainage; that cheesemakers should reject all tainted and over-ripe milk, and be more observant in several important details of the work. One instructor thinks factory owners should have no option, but that instruction should be compulsory.

Nothing Better.

The Grocer is in receipt of an ornamental plaque issued by the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, which should occupy a position of prominence on the counter of every retailer. From a crimson ground rises a pyramid of graduated cheese pots, bearing the well-known trade marks of this firm, the whole effect being artistic in the extreme. Doubtless there will be brisk inquiries for such an effective reminder of the many excellent qualities of MacLaren's Imperial and Roquefort cheeses.

Satisfaction Among English Trade.

Very general satisfaction will be felt at the result of the Canadian cheese case, recently on for hearing at Hastings, Eng., says the Grocers' Journal. Otherwise the trade in cheese between Canada and Great Britain—one of the Dominion's largest and best assets—might have been grievously injured. As might be supposed, it was the old story, "some one had blundered," and thereupon followed all the trouble. Now, as the result of analysis at the Government laboratory, it is proved that the cheese in question was absolutely pure, and the case has been dismissed with ten guineas costs to the defence in addition to the court and certificate costs.

Butter Trade of Japan.

Importations of butter into Japan for the last three years have aggregated as follows: 1902, $47,586.64; 1903, $72,054.41; 1904 (first 8 months), $33,020.93. The heavier importations always come in the latter months of the year, and it is probable that the remaining months of 1904 will put the total above that of 1902, but yet below that of 1903, the latter year having been increased abnormally by the Osaka exhibition demand. The consumption of Canadian butter is capable of indefinite increase were Canada in a position to supply it and to press it upon the Japanese market.

The consumption of margarine, a product kindred to butter, is becoming rapidly accelerated, the figures for 1904, 1903 and 1902 being $40,986, $27,659 and $11,113 respectively. Doubtless among the soon-coming evidences of Japanese progressiveness after the war—will be the following the example of Canada in the complete exclusion of deleterious foods of which margarine may rank among the chief. At present importations of margarine into Japan are mostly from Holland, some coming from the United States.

Smyrna Eggs for British Market.

THE following particulars of the export of eggs from Smyrna are recently developed trade in the taken from the Bulletin of the French Chamber of Commerce at Smyrna:

The trade has been carried on for a long time on the coasts of Syria and the Black Sea, but it may be considered as new at Smyrna, for it is hardly three years since the export to Europe was started. The first attempts were successful; they were made with Marseilles and London, and amounted to the export of 500 cases, three-quarters of which were for Marseilles. The following year, 2,500 cases were dispatched to Marseilles, Naples, Genoa, and Palermo. Finally, last year about 5,000 cases were sent to Marseilles, London, Naples, Palermo, Malta, Vienna, Munich, etc. Every case holds 120 dozen—i. e., 1,440 eggs; 5,000 cases therefore represent a total of 7,200,000 eggs. The messageries steamers which sail at regular intervals and make quick voyages, loaded a large proportion of these consignments in 1903—namely, 673 cases for Marseilles and 801 for Naples. As for consignments to London, the transhipment at Marseilles is feared, for it is essential that it should be made with care so as to avoid the breakage, which is sometimes considerable, in spite of the precautions which are taken for preserving the inside and outside condition of the packing cases. Accordingly, direct consignment to England, without transhipment, is preferred.

As Great Britain has begun to receive eggs from Smyrna, it is likely that the town will become one of her regular suppliers. At present the exportation is limited to the nearest Mediterranean port supplied by quicker steamers, but as the methods of preserving eggs improve from day to day, one may hope that the distance and length of the voyage will no longer form an obstacle to the ever increasing extent of this trade.

Swedish Exports of Butter to England.

The Swedish state dairy agent in England, Fredrik Bagge, has sent in his report for the first half of 1904 to the board of agriculture. Mr. Bagge complains that the butter market has seldom or never been so bad as it is now, chiefly owing to the decreasing demand for first-rate products. As a rule, everybody asks for cheap butter. The merchants have also been able to satisfy these demands, as the import of colonial butter has been considerable and the English dairy butter has been unusually good this year. The import of Swedish butter during the first six months of 1904 amounted in value to $2,748,643, against $2,698,600 during the same period last year.

HINTS TO CANADIAN EXPORTERS.

THE Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, is in receipt of a letter from a merchant residing in Colombia, South America, to the effect that the people there are incensed against the United States and disinclined to trade with that country. Among other things Colombia purchases flour, kerosene, sewing machines, canned goods, soda biscuits and furniture from the United States. At present there is an excellent opportunity to get this trade if Canadian exporters so desire. Shipments could be made from Halifax or Montreal to Jamaica whence there is a weekly service to Colombian ports.

C. E. Sontum, Canadian commercial agent in Norway, in his latest market report states that Norway has entered into a parcel post convention with the United States and suggests that Canada follow suit. Canadian apples of first rate quality are in constant demand in Norway, notwithstanding the high rate of duty and a market can be built up so long as first class stock only is sent over. Baldwins and choice evaporated fruit are principally required. In view of the short crop of hay there are excellent prospects for Canadian hay in Norwegian markets. Mixed clover and timothy not too coarse is the kind wanted.

A leading Japanese importing firm has complained that Canadian exporters of salmon require inspection and weighing on the Canadian side as a condition. The result is little or no business. On the other hand United States houses agree to accept Yokohama customs weights. Another kick is registered because when first catch salmon are contracted for it occasionally happens that some of the second comes mixed up with it.

W. A. MacKinnon, Canadian commercial agent in Bristol, England, calls the attention of the trade to the large demand for leather in Great Britain, which might be supplied from Canada. Large British importers secure the bulk of their supplies from the United States via Boston and Liverpool, owing, they claim, to no inferiority of the Canadian article but to the more moderate prices asked by American importers.

The Canadian commercial agent at Antigua, Montserrat and Dominica, B.W.I., in his latest report draws attention to the fact that Canadian manufacturers are in the habit of drawing through the bank against shipments. Most importers in the West Indies object to this procedure, although they are quite willing to remit on receipt of goods. It is suggested that manufacturers should first satisfy themselves of the standing of their consignees and make free shipments.

A British West India importer writes that he recently received three shipments from as many Canadian houses and that the invoices arrived a week later than the goods. Such delay causes no little inconvenience when bills of lading do not arrive with goods, consignees having to satisfy the steamers' agents as to the ownership of the goods before delivery can be secured. In the absence of invoices the customs authorities have to be satisfied, and often heavy deposits have to be made pending the arrival of documents. When goods are supplied against draft to the bank, and drafts do not arrive, the goods are held in the steamers' warehouse subject to a heavy rent, this being done to prevent these warehouses from being used for general purposes. Several instances are mentioned where orders have gone to New York instead of Canada simply because consignees seldom have any trouble such as often occurs with shipments from Canada.

It has frequently been the experience of importers in the West Indies to have Canadian shippers disappoint them entirely after they have contracted to make delivery of a certan quantity of a certain article at a certain time. West Indian merchants are anxious to encourage trade with Canada and feel that the Canadian trade should do what it can towards the removal of the necessity of sacrifice on the part of customers in the West Indies.

Salt Sense

The ordinary Salt of ordinary trade must not be confounded with Windsor Salt, which is sifted, not ground. Think of the goodness that slips away from the Salt crystal that is mangled, bruised, ground—think of the impurities that must creep in. Windsor Salt contains nothing but pure, white, dry, whole Salt crystals—no matter that they are fine and small crystals, they are whole crystals all the time.

Windsor Salt

is prepared in the only safe, sure way, by the Vacuum process. Every particle of moisture is dried out, which prevents the "caking" of the Salt. If you will stop to consider you will quickly see why Windsor Salt is best. Any man of intelligence and sense will agree to that.

CHEESE IN ENGLAND.

WITH the factories in Canada all closed, dealers have now the market well in hand. Stocks are of fair size, but the element of speculation brought about by the uncertainty of the production of the coming month and the anxiety of factories to dispose of their stock is past, and with a full knowledge of the quantities in store, and of the strength of the demand for cheese in England, holders of stocks in this country are disposed to make the Englishman pay for his small purchases during the past Summer.

Last Winter the English dealer lost a lot of money by laying in large quantities when cheese was ranging around 11½ and 12c on this market, and then being forced to dispose of it at a lower price. This season he changed his tactics and bought only from hand to mouth during the months of manufacture, hoping that stocks would be so large in November that he could purchase at his own price.

The Canadian dealer was, however, too wily to be caught by this. He let out just what was demanded, without forcing down prices by overeagerness. Meanwhile he kept the market well in hand, and it is said even encouraged the English dealer in his procrastination, spreading the report in England that the 1904 output of cheese in Canada was enormous. When the English dealer found that he had to buy in November, however, he discovered that the production had not been so large as reported, that stocks were strongly held, and that Canadian dealers were not by any means tumbling over each other in their anxiety to sell.

This accounts for the rise in cheese during the past week. Export stocks cannot be procured from the factories, and Canadian dealers are well aware of the strength of their position. At the same time they realize that to ask the high prices of last year would only curtail the consumption and the prospect is that while the English dealer will buy lower than the highest figures of last year he will have to come to the terms of local holders without any bickering or attempt to cut prices.

GERMANY AND TRADE.

THE expression "Made in Germany" has become a household word all over the world. Recently it has been emulated by the expression "Made in Canada," and other countries would do well to follow Germany's example in matters of trade. Germany as a trader has become a great and dangerous rival to Great Britain, as well as the United States. The secret, however, belongs to Germany only in part. Her system of technical schools is one of the strongest factors in her industrial prosperity. The technical school produces keen, capable and well-drilled young people, who take their places in different industrial institutions all over the land. It is well known that technical schools are comparatively new in this country, and even then they are not nearly as important a feature of the educational system as they ought to be. To illustrate the uses of a technical school would require an exhaustive inquiry into the large emporiums of trade throughout Great Britain and this continent.

Certain rudimentary facts, however, are easily obtainable and in this connection it is no secret that young Germans find ready employment in the large business houses of England and North America, being as a rule more versatile and able to do more work at less money than any other single man available. As a rule they know English, German and French thoroughly which at once places them in a position of trust and importance; at the same time their training in the technical schools has taught them the elements of business that the employer himself has taken years to learn. In addition to this they have a comprehensive knowledge of other lines of business, much of which is very little short of expert information. In fact a large manufacturer from London stated the other day that he had one German doing work which formerly required three English clerks. This might not have been the result of the technical schools, but of exceptional ability. However, there is no doubt that the technical school is a force which could be adopted in Canada with a great deal of profit. Our young men have to spend a lifetime in order to learn a business, and owing to the queer public school education they often have to learn a great deal of the ways of other countries entirely through the channels of commerce.

It would not do to make the slightest reflection upon education for purposes of culture, but many a lad would be more grateful to his teacher and his parents if he had been taught shorthand instead of Euclid, and thoroughly drilled in sound arithmetic instead of Greek and Latin, above all some practical facts about the ways of the world, and the inner workings of commerce. Dotted all over the Dominion the young Canadian will meet in competition with the young German and with all due respect to the capability of the average Canadian boy, he will find in the German a dangerous rival who not only has a better training for business, but he will work for less money.

If the Canadian is to be really successful in grappling with modern business conditions in the face of such keen competition, some radical changes in the educational system at present in vogue in Canada are necessary. It is gratifying to learn that a movement has been started in the Montreal Board of Trade, with a view to the establishment of technical schools in that city. Toronto is in the lead in this respect, having at the present time a well-equipped technical school whose work is meeting with general approbation.

THE WHEAT SITUATION.

PRESENT conditions of the wheat supply on the northern half of this continent are, to say the least, most peculiar. The United States, which only a short time ago was the greatest exporter of wheat in the world, has become an importer, thus fulfilling the prediction made by an English statistician a few years ago that within ten years the United States would be unable to raise enough wheat for her own consumption, and that Great Britain would have to look to Canada and her other colonies for her food supply. When this prediction was made it was received with a scornful smile, especially on this side of the Atlantic; Americans pointed with pride to the great wheat fields of Kansas and the northwestern states, not to speak of those on the Pacific slope, as capable of supplying all the home requirements and leaving an ample surplus for export for generations to come. In less than half the time named that portion of the United States laying east of the Rockies has been compelled to import food for domestic consumption.

Every week since the opening of the present crop year Bradstreet has reported on an average an export of wheat and flour equivalent to 4,000,000 bushels weekly, totalling 25,000,000 bushels up to Thursday, November 10, as against 60,000,000 bushels during the same period in 1903. One wonders how the exports have amounted to even this small total when it is considered that the price of wheat during practically the whole season so far has been away above an export basis; cash Winter wheat now selling at $1.18 in Toledo and $1.14 in St. Louis; while a better quality of wheat is only worth 99c over the ship's side at Liverpool, or $1.02 delivered at the mills. The bulk of this export, however, is in the shape of flour, that from the United States being practically all a low grade flour for which there is very little demand in the United States, and yet they are compelled to make it in order to manufacture the high-grade, for which the demand exceeds the supply, and which is sold at such a big profit that they can afford to sell the low-grade taken off in manufacturing at a low price for export. In fact the greater portion of the latter is sent forward on consignment and sold for what it will bring.

We must not forget, however, that the exports from Canada are included in the totals given above, and that during the whole of that period there has been a very considerable quantity of high-grade flour exported weekly by the Canadian mills, mostly made from Manitoba wheat. During the past six weeks the wheat export has been practically all Manitoba wheat, thus causing an increase of about 50 per cent. weekly during that period, when otherwise there would have been a marked decline if the price of this cereal in the United States is any indication of what one would naturally expect.

The price of wheat in Ontario, while much below the prices paid south of the boundary, is entirely out of line to permit any export business being done either in wheat or flour.

The situation was very tersely put by one of our oldest flour exporters the other day in a letter to a miller who wanted to know if the exporter could not take some flour from him, saying at the same time he was paying the farmers $1.05 to $1.05½ for wheat.

He wrote: "If you can sell me flour made from wheat at $1.05 to compete with flour made in Liverpool out of $1.02 wheat, and pay the freight to Liverpool on your flour, then I can give you some orders, not otherwise."

As indicated above, Manitoba wheat is being exported, as well as large quantities of flour made from Manitoba wheat, both by the mills in Ontario and Manitoba. In fact in spite of the smallness of the Ontario wheat crop the mills have rarely, if ever, had such a splendid Fall trade, many of them having been running at full capacity ever since wheat has been available in sufficient quantities, and having now orders booked for weeks ahead.

Manitoba wheat is the only reasonable priced wheat east of the Rockies, even the better grade of Manitoba is generally too high for export, although some small lots have been bought on account of its excellent quality by United States millers, who have paid the duty and used the wheat for home consumption, in order to maintain the reputation of some of their better brands of flour, which they found impossible to do with the best Duluth wheat available, owing to its poor quality.

That the price of wheat in Chicago and other eastern centres is abnormal is plainly shown by the fact that already over 15,000,000 bushels of Oregon wheat and flour have been sold to come to points as far south as St. Louis and to the eastern states and interior points in Michigan, although the freight paid is 37c per bush. As a result wheat is selling for this amount more in the United States on the Atlantic coast than on the Pacific, and yet the very fact that this wheat is brought over at such an enormous cost is used by the bulls as an argument why their wheat should go up to $1.50, failing to appreciate the fact that just so much less of their own wheat will be required.

SENSATIONAL ADVANCE IN SUGAR

A FURTHER advance of 25c in the price of Canadian refined sugar during the past week has caused almost a sensation in grocery circles in this country, following as it did an advance of 20c the previous week. Members of the trade are unanimous in their assertion that such a jump in sugar at this season of the year is simply without precedent in Canadian history. There can be little doubt that speculators have taken advantage of the strong situation prevailing in sugar to "boost" prices. At the same time it must be remembered that they have had excellent groundwork to build upon in the comparative failure of the European beet crop, and the very strong statistical position of all other sugars. With the market in an excited condition it is difficult to forecast the future with any degree of accuracy. Certain members of the wholesale grocery trade do not see how prices can go much higher, and have accordingly assumed a waiting attitude, buying only for immediate requirements. Meanwhile the tone of sugar continues very strong, with a hardening tendency distinctly noticeable at the close of the market.

MEETING OF TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening, November 14, in St. George's Hall, with President F. W. Johnson in the chair, assisted by the new secretary, B. Panter.

The feature of the meeting was the reception of a deputation from the Retail Merchants' Association, whose object was to explain to the members of the Retail Grocers' Association a scheme for holding a Pure Food show in Toronto on January 2 to 14, 1905.

In the course of his remarks E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, explained that the Pure Food Show proposition emanated from an American concern which has been giving exhibitions in the principal cities of the United States. The concern in question gives the demonstrations. pays all expenses, assumes all responsibilities and allows local associations a percentage of the gate receipts. After a pointed discussion the members of the Retail Grocers' Association decided in favor of the proposition and appointed a committee consisting of B. Snow, D. Bell, R. J. Bond, J. Kelly, H. Tolchard, D. Clark, A. White, R. Davis, B. Panter, R. Van Loon, and J. Scholes to co-operate with the Pure Food people and interest the public generally.

The trading stamp question came up again for consideration and at the special invitation of the association Mr. Trowern gave an outline of the campaign in Montreal, Hamilton and Toronto to date. A suggestion made by Mr. Bond which met with general approval was that the Retail Grocers' Association should bear their part of the expense incurred in fighting the violators of the trading stamp law.

In reference to securing more commodious quarters for the association a suggestion was made by B. Panter to engage a room in the Temple Building, and a committee composed of F. W. Johnson, P. Panter and D. Bell appointed with authority to secure new quarters after the first of January, 1905.

A HINT TO THE RETAIL GROCER.

At this season of the year when the retail grocer is stocking goods for the Winter trade, he is recommended not to postpone purchases of bottled and bulk pickles and vinegar until Winter sets in. The trade does not need to be told how unsatisfactory these lines are to handle in cold weather, especially pickles in bottles, on account of extra breakage, etc. The whole difficulty can be easily solved if the retail trade will stock the lines in question in proper season.

Messrs. W. P. and H. D. Eby, of the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are visiting the St. Louis Exposition this week.

Business Men in Parliament

Robert Bickerdike, M.P., elect for St. Lawrence, Montreal.

ROBERT BICKERDIKE. M.P.-elect for the St. Lawrence Division of Montreal, is a son of the late Thomas Bickerdike, Montreal. He was born in Kingston in 1843 and started his business career in Montreal, eventually entering the live stock export trade, in which business he has been highly successful. He organized and became managing director of the Dominion Abattoirs and Union Stock Yards Co., and was a principal mover in the formation of the Live Stock Association. He then founded the Live Stock Insurance Co. He was also a promoter of the Standard Light and Power Co. In 1896-97 he was president of the Montreal Board of Trade and in 1896 he was appointed a harbor commissioner of Montreal.

His political career began in 1897 when he was elected to represent the St. Antoine Division, Montreal, in the Quebec Legislature. In 1900 he successfully contested the St. Lawrence Division in the Dominion elections in the Liberal interest, winning by a majority of over 900 votes.

Mr. Bickerdike has not confined his attention solely to trade and to politics. He is interested in the Montreal General Hospital, the Royal Victoria Hospital and the Banque d'Hochelaga, besides work of a philanthropic character.

CLEAN ELECTIONS.

According to the Owen Sound correspondent of The Grocer the electors of North Grey are congratulating themselves upon the fact that the recent Dominion election was distinguished by the entire absence of corrupt and underhand dealings. This is a source of much gratification to all who deplore the bribery and corruption that have unfortunately become common in certain ridings and it is hoped that the excellent example set by North Grey may have a salutary effect on constituencies where there is need of purging in this respect.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Nov. 17, 1904.

Groceries.

SUGAR is again the feature. An advance of 25c has taken place within the last week, and granulated is now selling at $5.10 per 100 lbs. This is considered an excessive sugar boom and great interest is attached to the sugar market everywhere. Spices are also active and pepper is high with a tendency to advance any day. The molasses market has shown considerable strength, no doubt in sympathy with the strong situation in sugar. Prices have an upward tendency and holders of round lots are asking 30c a gallon for Barbadoes. Tea continues to remain dull and the news from Colombo dated about Oct. 12 shows an irregular market for all kinds of black tea, with rates in favor of buyers. Coffee remains steady, and in New York reports of a decline have caused a slight weakness in the market locally. The coffee market is still strong. Dried fruits are attracting some attention and normal supplies are coming to hand daily, so that the usual November proportions of business have been assumed. The demand for Valencias, especially in the lower grades, has not quite fulfilled the expectations of the importer, and a slight decline has resulted. Canned goods are still important; the canned corn pack, for instance, has turned out better than was at first expected, and the American canning factories show an increase of a large number of cases. Grapes are ruling in the green fruit market, the Almeria grapes being popular at the time. The finest brands have been selling at $7 a keg. Great interest is being taken in Canadian onions; red onions especially are selling in immense quantities. Fish of all kinds are in good demand, the first stock of Manitoba frozen fish is expected this week; also a large dealer expects a carload of salt salmon from British Columbia. The flour market is very firm and higher prices may be expected. Eggs are firm and the demand was excellent. Potatoes are in fair demand and are selling at good prices. Feed has advanced slightly during the week and the prices here are in advance of the Ontario market.

SUGAR.

Nearly every day has seen some advance in sugar, and to-day granulated is selling at $5.10 per 100 lbs, which is 25c more than was being paid last week at this time. Excitement in the European market for raw beet still continues to be the main feature in the situation, and the November option is quoted at 14s 1½d. This, added to the strong advices from American sources on both raw, cane and refined, for which prices are continually advancing, has created considerable excitement in the local market for refined. So marked has been the excitement that prices advanced twice in one day. The general impression is that prices will go still higher, based principally upon the strength of the raw sugar situation. SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

In sympathy with the strong sugar market molasses has advanced 2c, that is Barbadoes. A decided improvement in demand has been noticed and holders of large lots ask 30c per gallon, and they are getting it. It is reported that sugar refiners have bought a very large lot in the Lower Provinces at 26c per gallon, laid down here. It is also stated that the same figure was offered for round lots in Montreal, and the offer was refused. We quote:

COFFEE.

Spot Rio coffee is steady, notwithstanding the slight decline which took place in the New York market. Some disappointing European cables affected the market temporarily, but it rallied quickly and considerable strength is anticipated in the market generally. Reports from Santos state that some increase has taken place in the daily receipts, and this, coupled with the larger estimate for the current crop, led to a slight decline of 1s per cwt. Receipts latterly have been smaller and another estimate, which gave half a million bags less, has produced more confidence. Rates generally are supposed to be slightly easier. It however does not follow that grocers can secure the stock they want for first-class trade at any material reduction. Nevertheless the coffee trade is said to be much more profitable to-day to the grocers than the tea trade. We quote:

SPICES.

Further advances are reported in peppers. White pepper is especially noticeable, as the advance of last week has been well sustained, and it is learned from abroad that business is not being done in large volume. The spot stocks are reported very small, and the latest returns show only 392 tons of white and 1,225 tons of black. The slight stimulation in ginger has abated. Nutmegs and mace are selling steadily at recent quotations. The Zanzibar cloves have slumped and are away down. Some increased demand has been taken for Penang cloves. Supplies are apparently small and prices firm. We quote:

TEA.

While the tea market is very dull a slightly better demand has arisen and the market has assumed a steadier and somewhat stronger tone. McMeckin & Co. report for October that the policy of free selling of Indian tea, although it has appreciably affected the market, will doubtless prove in the end to have been the best. The quality generally was not equal to that of September, there being a falling off even in Assams and Darjeelings, while there was a very large proportion of common, rough, undesirable, low-grade tea. Ceylon teas showed a tendency downwards in sympathy with Indian teas, but the fall was not so marked. The improvement in the average price was said to be due to the rise in quality and to the presence of better grade teas for which there was a strong demand. In green teas, business is practically at an end in the meantime. As many as 9,000 packages of Java teas were sold in a market which sympathised generally with the position of Indian. Chinese tea business has been very small. Japans are holding their own and there are indica-

CANNED GOODS.

No change has taken place in the canned goods market, except that the demand is increasing and prices are firm. In canned meats high prices have been maintained and are likely to continue. This is affecting consumption considerably and stocks both in American and on the spot (owing to the strike) are on a reduced scale, so that the demand will no doubt be strong and will prevent any accumulation of supplies until after Christmas. French sardines are reported disappointing and the catches of fish suitable for first-class packers have been small. Packers usually close their factories on or about Oct. 31. When sardines are packed in November they are said never to have as good flavor as fish packed in the Summer and early Autumn. Canned corn is likely to be more plentiful than was at first expected, and the American factories all report considerable increase in their output. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Plenty of arrivals make the dried fruit market normal and active, as it usually is at this time of the year. Steamer Regina Elena arrived in New York this week with 1,900 tons of currants. Orders are numerous and increasing on the spot. An immediate shipment of fruits with most orders would indicate that supplies in different parts of he country must be light. Valencias have declined slightly. The trade in stoned raisins has developed well. The product this year, owing to improved machinery, will be better than it ever was. The prices compared with the unstoned fruit will be slightly reduced, and a good trade will no doubt result. Dealers should look after this special product as the capacity for dealing with it has limits. Then the Valencia market is now quite low for the kind of raisins used for this operation. A slight falling off has taken place in the sultana market and the early reports of exorbitant rates have been dissipated. Still a strong market holds for sultanas. The demand for plums and prunes has been good and the market is firm. California stock is holding a preference over the French fruit. Reports from France however, show a distinct advance during the past week, but the local market still holds stocks at old prices, and this coupled with the low current prices of last year's Californias will no doubt tend to hold the market down. Fancy fruits have dropped below the prices of former years. Buyers who are observant will do well to place their orders now, as it is improbable that prices will be lower than they are at present.

The market for currants in Greece has this season been unsatisfactory, both from the importers' point of view and also from the exporters'. The first crop estimates indicated good quality but a smaller crop than last year, and it was anticipated that in view of the legislation passed by the Greek Government that prices would have advanced somewhat and exporters bought freely for a time, but owing to lack of demand, particularly from England, which is one of the large consuming countries, prices eased off and for the last month or so have fluctuated within narrow limits, depending on exchange in Greece, and remain to-day at about the low point established. Owing to several reasons the exporter that has done most of the Canadian business for some years past has been obliged to default payments in Patras, although it is understood that all Canadian sales have been executed. However, this was possible owing to the market having declined, and as a consequence orders could be filled at a profit on the actual market value as against sales price. It is expected that when actual conditions of stocks are realized that prices will be advanced as there was no large carry over in Greece, and stocks in all importing countries were at a very low ebb.

Green Fruits.

Large dealers in Almeria grapes advise that the price of $7 per keg may not last longer than this week, and buyers should take note that an advance is reported. The apple export continues and from abroad it is reported that there is a tendency to advance prices. A steady demand is anticipated. Malaga lemons have decreased in value, based probably on the report that the first arrival of the new Messina fruit is near at hand. Onions are good things to buy at present. Stocks are light and prices are high. New Yorkers are after Canadian onions and both red and white are in strong demand. The first new dates have arrived, and fancy golden stock is selling at 4 1-2c a lb. New Italian chestnuts are selling at 12c per lb. Valencia onions are reported firmer and shipments are light. Fish.

All kinds of fish are in good demand. Oysters are naturally ruling the market and good prices are being obtained and a large quantity have been sold. On the 15th inst. lake trout went out of season and salt trout will now be in demand. The first car of Manitoba dore and white fish frozen was due this week, also a car load of British Columbia salted salmon, the first to arrive, due Thursday. It will sell at from $14.50 to $15 a barrel. Large dealers fear that the heavy gales in the United States may affect the supplies of oysters and are governing themselves accordingly. Haddock and cod are selling well and are very plentiful. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

There is a good demand for eggs and the receipts have not been large. The bulk of the arrivals were on account of through shipments. No large quantities, however, have changed hands and prices are firm at 21 to 21 1-2c for straight gathered stock, and at 19 to 19 1-2c for good straight cold storage eggs, while No. 2 grade and pickled eggs were quoted at 17 to 18c per dozen. Jobbers did considerable business in selected stock at 24c and in Montreal limed eggs sold at 20c per dozen.

BEANS.

The bean market is quiet and no new feature has developed. We quote:

Choice primes	1 30	1 35

POTATOES.

Potatoes are in excellent demand and are selling in a jobbing way at 70c to 75c per bag. In carlots good stock are selling at 43 to 50c per bag and the very best at 60c to 62c.

HONEY.

No change has taken place in the honey market. There is a slow demand. We quote:

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

A good business has been carried on in all kinds of provisions. The decline in Canadian bacon on the foreign market has been improved by an advance of a shilling. A fair volume of business continues to be done in all lines of cured meats and lard. The market is moderately active with a steady undertone. For dressed hogs the demand is fairly good and sales of fresh killed abattoir stock were made at $7.25 to $7.50 and country dressed at $6.75 to $7 per hundred lbs. We quote:

CHEESE.

Not a great deal of activity has been noticed in the cheese business, although the market has been strong in tone. Holders do not seem anxious to sell. The general price current was around 10c and some extensive transactions were heard of at this price. The finest Fall cheese are nominal in the absence of transactions.

BUTTER.

The butter market is very steady and there is a ready sale for anything of good quality and flavor at 20c upwards for creamery. Undergrade stock ranges down to 19c according to grade. Dairy butter sells for about 16c.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Nov. 17, 1904.

Groceries.

A FAIR to good business during the week under review is reported by Ontario wholesale grocers. Comparing the volume of trade, however, with that of last year a slight decrease has been experienced, the lull being perhaps accounted for by the fact that the wholesale trade has just experienced an unusually successful Summer's trade and it is surmised that the retail trade bought more for future requirements than usual earlier in the season.

Orders booked for the close of navigation are pretty well filled, the last boats being scheduled to sail on or about November 25. New crop foreign dried fruits continue to interest the wholesale trade; the bulk of supplies for the holiday trade are now in hand and are being rapidly distributed.

The item of chief interest in grocery circles is another advance of 25c in refined during the week, distributed as follows: 10c on November 10, and 5c and 10c on November 12. This is the second advance within two weeks, which is without precedent in the history of Canadian trade. The advance caused a mild panic on the street Saturday since the trade was of the opinion that the upward level had been reached. Some buying at present quotations is reported although in the face of the extreme high prices ruling even wholesalers are disposed to buy from hand to mouth and for present requirements only. At the close of the market beets are still advancing; raws have gone up 1-16 in New York and the refined market is reported as very firm.

Canned goods are steadier than last week, importations of corn and tomatoes from the United States being hinted at in the near future. Glucose has advanced 10c in Chicago. Teas and coffees are without special feature except that the firm tendency of Rios continues.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods are steadier than they have been for some weeks, the immediate requirements of the retail trade having been pretty well met. Some weeks ago the question was whether there was going to be enough corn and tomatoes to go around; this has been settled for the present. One or two houses are holding tomatoes as high at $1.30 on account of the curtailed pack. The opinion is expressed that stiff advances may be expected next Spring and Summer when stocks will require replenishing. In this event the trade would not be surprised to see importations of corn and tomatoes from the United States, which has only happened once or twice in the history of the Canadian trade.

The usual demand for canned fruits and vegetables continues. A firm market rules in salmon, supplies of which, including cohoes, etc., have been arriving

SUGAR.

Another sensational advance this week of 25c in Canadian refined sugar places this staple in a unique position in the grocery markets. On Thursday, November 10 prices were advanced 10c and on Saturday 5 and 10c in succession, both the latter advances taking place within 60 minutes of each other. At the present time the raw and beet sugar markets are very strong, an advance of 1-16 in raws taking effect on Monday, November 14. The trade may be said to be on the whole in a waiting position, although some buying for present requirements is reported on the present basis.

There is no question but speculators have taken advantage of the firm situation in Europe; at the same time the strong statistical position in America and abroad is largely responsible for the unprecedented upward turn of the market. The future is difficult to forecast with any degree of certainty. In some quarters a continuation of present high prices with a hardening tendency is predicted. In others the hope is expressed that there will soon be a reaction and several wholesale grocers are advocating the "hand to mouth plan" and are buying only for immediate requirements. We quote the following prices:

Foreign Dried Fruits

The trade has been kept busy receiving new crop Mediterranean dried fruits, which will be in hand for the most part by the end of this week, new dates being due to-day. Last week's advance in Californian evaporated apricots and peaches is having a tendency to check the demand. Considerable delay is reported in marketing the season's crop of Caifornian seeded rasins at the coast owing to heavy rains which have interfered seriously with curing operations. Shippers are also suffering serious inconvenience on account of the scarcity of cartoons.

A cable has been received from Smyrna withdrawing certain offerings in Sultana raisins and advising an advancing market. The currant market is also very firm, c. and f. prices being somewhat higher owing to extra Winter rates. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

New crop almonds, shelled and unshelled, are arriving in fair volume. Greenoble and new Marbot walnuts being expected in two weeks. This year's prices are firmer and higher than those of last year although the quality is reported better. California walnuts are expected to arrive at the end of this week. Trade is brightening and indications point to a brisk trade during the remainder of this ad the following month. We quote:

BIRD SEED.

During the week canary seed has become firmer, prices quoted being 6 1-2c, although some dealers are giving a wider range and are quoting at from 6 1-2 to 7c. Hemp has declined 1-2c. Other prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Canary seed, per lb	0 06½

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Evaporated apples are a shade easier than last week with probable purchasers showing disinclination to buy at 5 1-2 to 6c. The comparative lull in the market in which the demand is at best only fair at this time of year is not viewed as abnormal by the trade.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Receipts of newly laid eggs are very small, and prices have gone up with many of the dealers. One declared that for strictly newly laid he could get 27c, but this likely referred to hotels and restaurants, where the best quality was demanded and guaranteed eggs required. Pickled are almost entirely gone and fresh or cold storage are holding the centre of the stage as a general egg. Many dealers are selling fresh gathered at the prices quoted for new laids, but others are sorting over the fresh gathered and selling them as new laids or seconds since a great many of them are only to be ranked as seconds. Very many of the held over eggs coming forward are not equal to fresh or cold storage stock, as the country merchant has no way to preserve them. We quote:

" fresh	0 20 0 21
" pickled	0 19 0 20

HONEY.

The honey crop is getting into closer compass and as a result the market is firmer. The buying season is expected to begin in six weeks. No. 1 section has advanced in price. We quote the following prices:

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08 0 08½
" sections, No 1. per doz	1 90 2 25
" " No. 2, "	1 65

BEANS.

The bean market continues fairly firm and steady, a stronger tendency being noticed in Lima beans which are short owing to unfavorable harvesting weather at the coast. The inquiry for beans generally is moderately active at unchanged quotations.

Beans, handpicked, per bush	1 55	1 60
" prime, No. 1	....	1 45
" prime, No. 2	....	1 35

SEEDS.

Little seed is moving owing to lack of foreign demand. The outlook is for a decline in prices, alsike mixed with trefoil, timothy or any foreign seed being at a big discount at the present time. Prices continue unchanged. Our quotations are as follows:

Alsike clover, per bush	3 50	6 75
Red clover	5 00	6 75
Mammoth clover, per bush	5 00	6 75
Timothy	1 00	1 35

Green Fruits.

Trade during the past week has been quiet, but present indications point to a strengthening of the market for Thanksgiving trade. Jamaica oranges have been selling well. During past week no less than five cars of Florida oranges arrived, color shown for early shipments being good and fruit sweet. Lemons are arriving in fair supplies. Bananas are coming more freely and prices are easier. The Cape Cod cranberry market is higher although there is no material change in quotations. Jersey cranberries are expected on the market in three weeks. Sales of Almeria grapes are reported large, while those of Canadian grapes are decreasing. Sweet potatoes are firmer. There is good inquiry for large Winter varieties of apples. The season for Canadian chestnuts is practically over. We quote:

Vegetables.

With the vegetable crop gathered the market may be characterized as steady. Cauliflowers are reported scarce and prices have advanced accordingly from 35 to 50c. Dry mint has taken the place of green, selling at the same price. Potatoes are firmer. We quote the following:

Fish and Oysters.

The season for fresh caught trout and whitefish closed on the 15th of this month. By way of substitution trade in frozen goods is opening up briskly. Owing to cooler weather fish can now be shipped by freight instead of express, thus warranting easier prices in finnan haddie, pike and sea salmon. Trade is brisk in oysters, especially Baltimores, owing to large supplies of which prices have declined. Our quotations are:

GRAIN.

A stronger demand has caused Manitoba Northern wheat Nos. 1, 2 and 3 to advance 1-2c per bushel. Owing to scarcity peas have advanced 2c per bushel, and buckwheat and rye each 1c per bushel. The outlook is for a firm market during the present season. Our quotations are:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

Lack of accumulation in hides has caused a firm market, while owing to advanced growth of lamb skins, prices have advanced. The outlook for tallow is better and points to a steady market. The same remarks apply to wool. Our quotations are as follows:

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

The demand for smoked meats remains satisfactorily strong, but stocks have accumulated to a trifling extent and the result is a slump in prices of hams of a very minute nature. These trifling changes are not at all serious and are apt to be reversed the subsequent week. Hams are down a half cent. There is no change whatever among fresh meats, and the market is quiet. The prices for this week are as follows :

POULTRY.

As The Grocer predicted last week, there is no shortage of poultry. As would naturally be expected, prices have strengthened under the holiday demand but stocks are sufficiently large for present supplies. Hens are weaker in price as the quantities offered are overwhelmingly large. Chickens, too, are in abundance. Turkeys are less plentiful but will not prove an obstacle to a ready market. We quote :

Chickens, spring	0 09	0 10
Hens	0 06	0 07
Geese	0 08	0 09
Turkeys	0 14	0 15
Ducks	0 09	0 10

BUTTER.

The shortage in supplies of creamery butter is the only event worthy of notice in the butter market. This has advanced the price fully a cent. A large western creameryman says that he was offered 21c for all the solids he could produce in the next two weeks. Within a couple of weeks the position of creamery will be easier, as the Winter factories are just starting, and when in full swing larger supplies will be coming forward. Dairy butter is offered in fair quantities. We quote :

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 21	0 22
" solids, fresh	0 20	0 20½
Dairy prints	0 16	0 18
" in tubs	0 14	0 17
" large rolls	0 16	0 17

CHEESE.

Cheese is the most interesting feature of the dairy markets. With the few straggling boards which were not closed this week, running, and the price up to 10 5-16, there was no possibility of 9c cheese. The English dealer found he had to pay more or go without, and the result is that quotations are up a half to three-quarters of a cent. The factories are all closed now, and dealers have control of the market. There is no more speculation as to how much the factories will produce, and the dealer is encouraged to ask a good figure. There is, however, no danger of last year's level being reached. Stocks are too large for that. We quote :

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10	0 10½
" twins	0 10½	0 10¾

A WORK OF ART.

The Grocer is in receipt of a sample label of "Red Feather" brand tomatoes which are being offered to the trade by W. H. Gillard & Co., Hamilton. This firm evidently appreciates the value of attractive packages and wrappers, its "Red Feather" label in red, white and gold being one of the handsomest and most artistic that has ever been placed on the Canadian market.

WANT DRESSED POULTRY.

The Canadian Canners, Limited, are now ready to receive dressed poultry at the following factories, viz.: Aylmer Canning Co., Aylmer; Kent Canning Co., Chatham; Simcoe Canning Co., Simcoe; Simcoe Canning Co., Hamilton. Shippers are recommended to write for full directions as to packing and shipping to the Canadian Canners, Limited, 39 James street south, Hamilton, and to forward to the nearest factory.

AN OFFICIAL CHEMICAL ANALYSIS.

ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.
Guelph, Canada, Aug. 24th, 1904.

THE ONTARIO SUGAR CO.,
BERLIN, ONT.

GENTLEMEN,—

We have analysed the ten (10) samples of your granulated sugar, also ten (10) samples of granulated sugar from the Eastern Refineries which you forwarded to us. The following are the average results:

	MOISTURE. %	CANE SUGAR. %
Average of 20 samples	.0737	99.627
" 10 "
Ontario Sugar Co.	.0727	99.608
Average of 10 samples, Eastern Refineries	.0747	99.607

These figures show, judging from the results obtained from the analysis of the sugars submitted to us, that the sugar manufactured by your company from sugar beets contains practically the same amount of moisture and cane sugar as that refined in the Eastern Refineries. What little advantage there is in both items is in favor of your sugar. Your sugar was crystallized smaller, but is fully equal in value to the so-called pure cane sugar made in the Eastern Refineries.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Nov. 12, 1904.

NOW that threshing operations are practically at an end for this year, the many thousands of harvest hands have turned their faces eastward, and each train that passes through the city of Winnipeg from the Golden West is crowded with these laborers that have helped to thresh the great crop of 1904.

Trade for the past week has been very bright and active, and collections are now showing up to a better advantage.

Sugar.

The market for the past few weeks has been very active and bright and quite unsettled. We now quote a decline in sugar all around of 10c. Montreal granulated in barrels, $5.30; in sacks, $5.20, and yellow, $4.70. Wallaceburg in barrels, $5.20, and in sacks, $5.10.

Evaporated and Dried Fruits.

The market continues very bright and active, quoting Trenor's brand of Valencia raisins at $2.10 per case; prunes, 90-100 at 4½c. per lb.; 80-90 at 4¾c. per lb.; 70-80 at 5¼c. per lb.; 60-70 at 5¾c. per lb.; 50-60 at 6½c. per lb.; and 40-50 at 7¼c. per lb. Currants, which are now available, are quoting uncleaned Filiatras, loose pack, at 5¼c. per lb.; dry cleaned Filiatra, 5½c. per lb.; wet cleaned at 6¼c. per lb. and 1-lb. package dry cleaned at 6½c per lb. New evaporated apples are now on the market and are listed for 50-lb. cases at 6¼ to 6½c. and for 25-lb. cases at 6¾c.

Canned Fruits.

All lines of canned fruits are comparatively firm, quoting as before strawberries at $3.25 per dozen in case, and raspberries $3 per dozen in case and Upton's and Aylmer Jams in pails at 47½c. per pail. Canned peaches and pears are still quoted as follows: Peaches, 2-lb. yellows, at $3.75 per case; 4-lb. yellows, at $5.75 per case; and pears, 2-lb. F. B., $3.25 per case, and 3-lb. F. B. at $4.25 per case.

Canned Vegetables.

A general firmness holds the market with the exception of tomatoes. This line has been somewhat unsettled as to price and is now quoted $2.90 to $3 per case. Canned corn holds the price good at $2.50 per case; canned pears at $1.80 per case and canned beans at $1.80 to $1.90 per case.

Canned Fish.

The shipments of the catches of sockeye salmon now on the market are still being quoted at $7 per case and Digby chicks at 17c. per box.

Lye.

Gillett's lye has now advanced, and the upward turn shows that the market is back at the old quotation, the price list holding Gillett's lye at $4.10 per case.

Flour.

The market is still very firm and bright, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.90, No. 2 at $2.70, No. 3 at $2.20 and No. 4 at $1.55.

Honey.

The market is still very bright and active, and all the new stocks of honey now on the market are of a very fine quality, quoting 5-lb. tins at 13c. per lb., 10-lb. tins at 12½c. per lb. and 60-lb. tins at 11c. per lb.

Cornmeal.

The demand is strong and the market continues very firm, quoting cornmeal at $1.75 per sack and 80c. per half sack.

Rolled Oats.

The market is active, but prices continue quite firm, quoting 80-lb. sacks at

The market is active and bright, quoting Florida oranges at $6 per case, California lemons at $6.50 per case, Washington pears (Winternellis) at $3 per case, Ontario Fall apples $2.75 per barrel, Ontario snow apples at $4 per barrel, Quebec (Fameuse) snow apples $4.50 per barrel, fancy XXX Spies and Kings $3.50 per barrel, Greenings and other varieties $3.25 per barrel, Malaga grapes $7 per keg, Ontario basket grapes, green and blue, 23c. per basket; native onions, per lb., 2½c.; celery, per dozen bunches, 50c.; Spanish onions, small cases, $1.50; large cases, $4.50; and oysters (standards) (selects) per gallon, $2.25; Chinese figs, $2 per case; dates, 5½c. per lb. and California figs $1 per 1-lb. package.

Eggs.

The demand continues very heavy and the supplies from the country are still very much limited. The market now quotes eggs in advance of last week's price list, and the upward turn now puts eggs out to the trade at 25c. per dozen for the fresh gathered.

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

BUTTER.

A prevailing activity is quite noticeable in the butter market and the demand is very heavy for all available stocks. We quote fresh creamery per lb., 27c.; creamery, per lb., 24c.; dairy, per lb., 21c.; and tub dairy, per lb., 16 to 18c.

CURED MEATS.

The market continues bright and firm with a good demand in all available stocks. Our quotations are as follows:

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 11, 1904.

THE chief activity at present is in dried fruits, which are moving out very satisfactorily. There has been a little flurry in wholesale circles here owing to the efforts made by a few jobbers to corner all the Merles best quality raisins on this market. Other jobbers claim that this attempt was not fair to them, and some days ago it looked as if price-cutting would be adopted as an act of retaliation, but, fortunately for all concerned, wiser counsels prevailed.

Sugar stock has gone up considerably in consequence of the enforcement of the dumping clause, which has effectually prohibited the importation of American refined sugar and given Canadian refiners much more complete control of the local market. Formerly sugars refined "in bond" in the United States were passed through the customs here at the bonded valuation, but the interpretation put upon the dumping clause is that the value for duty must be the actual selling price on the American market. This means that the Canadian duty has to be paid on the United States duty as well as on the value of the commodity itself. This increases the cost of American refined sugars laid down here by one half cent a pound, which, under the present conditions, is prohibitory.

Such importations as have been made since the first of October have paid the added duty under protest, and an attempt is being made to have the present ruling set aside. In the meantime all importations of sugars refined in the United States have been discontinued.

The local refinery has been an active buyer of raw sugars in the West Indies during the last week or two in anticipation of a sharp advance in the markets there.

The flour market keeps very firm. The Winter freight rates have now gone into effect, which adds nearly 20 cents a barrel to the cost of laying flour down at the seaboard, and, therefore, even should conditions become slightly easier at the mills, the market here would be slow to respond. One of the Manitoba milling companies has been pushing very actively for business in the Maritime Provinces of late. By extensive advertising the consumer has been reached and possibly induced to buy. Whether from this reason or from the comparatively high price of Ontario flours, jobbers report that a much larger proportion of their orders call for Manitoba flour than during previous seasons.

Trade generally is in a normal condition, but collections are not up to the mark, especially in those districts affected by the hay shortage. In one little town and surrounding district last week $6,000 was sent out in payment for hay from Quebec. In other years the district had sufficient hay for the home needs and considerable for export.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Nov. 13, 1904.

FALL business is quite active. Our people look forward to a good Winter, the outcome of increased Winter port business. It means a great deal to our laborers in particular, though all of course share in the benefit. The amount of provisions required for the steamers, both for sailors and passengers, and for the large cattle shipments, means large local expenditure. In the local market it means high prices for poultry, particularly turkeys.

There is some feeling against the condition the Government allows the sugar matter to remain in. It is most unfair to ask the merchants to make entries subject to possible changes. There should be a definite statement so the trade will know just where they are. Once an entry is made, the Government should collect no further duty. The goods are put right into consumption and the merchant has no chance to prevent a loss. In any line once a merchant pays the duty demanded the Government should have no right to collect any further amount. This is a particularly unpleasant situation. Markets are generally firm, particularly dry fish.

Oil.

The business in burning oil this season has been very large. Prices have remained unchanged. Now the oil men are looking forward to Spring business in lubricating and paint oils. The outlook for lubricating is not particularly bright. Linseeds for future are quoted low. Cod oil is still unsettled.

Salt.

The Winter port business is now opening and there will be more frequent arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt. Fair stocks are held. Prices are firm. In fine salt there is a very light sale for Liverpool factory filled, particularly at this season.

Canned Goods.

Prices are firm in all lines except gallon apples. In corn and tomatoes dealers are not getting their full purchase, and those who ordered from the association after July are not likely to get any. Prices will have to advance. Peas are quite plentiful. Fruits are in but a limited stock. Meats are finding less demand. In salmon the market is well supplied. Domestic fish are a fair pack and prices remain unchanged.

Green Fruit.

Business is rather quiet. The cold weather, of course, affects shipments. Apples are perhaps a little firmer, but remain cheap. Quality generally is good. Oranges show a fair sale with Jamaicas supplying the market. Lemons are rather poor quality. In grapes it is late for Ontario fruit, though some are still offered. The Malaga grapes received are particularly good. Cape Cod cranberries have a steady sale at even prices. Sweet potatoes have just a fair demand.

Sugar.

The market is very firm and a further advance is expected. Quite large quantities of foreign sugar have been bought. Dealers are very anxious to know what the Government intends to do in regard to the duty. The present situation is most unfair to the trade.

Molasses.

Prices are unchanged. While there is not a large stock of Barbadoes, Porto Rico is in ample supply. Some very nice Trinidad is offered.

Fish.

Receipts of dry fish are very light, the smallest in many years. Prices are very high. The high price of dry cod helps the sale of pollock. The West India market is good for all lines of fish. Pickled herring are scarce and high. Some few eastern herring are offered. Smoked herring are the one line sold at reasonable figures. There are quite free receipts. Boneless fish are low compared with dry fish.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour the market continues very firm. Dealers have difficulty in getting goods forward on account of a shortage of cars. Oats and oatmeal are firm. Cornmeal seems scarce, with prices fully maintained. Beans are somewhat unsettled. This is quite a market for yellow-eye beans. Barley is but a fair sale. Peas are scarce and there is but a limited demand.

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

In barreled pork prices are rather higher. While there is a rather better sale the business is a small one. Beef has but a light sale; there is no change in price. Pure lard is firm at rather higher price. Refined lard is easy. Smoked meats are quite firm with demand supplied locally. In fresh beef prices are low. Lamb is rather firmer. Mutton is dull. Veal has but a light sale. Pork is low. Poultry holds at full figures.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

A New Crockery Line for the Grocer.

A LINE of crockery which has already become exceedingly popular among the trade of the Maritime Provinces and which is to be heartily recommended to grocers all over the country is plain reinforced English tableware with monograms, crests, etc., to suit the taste of the individual buyer.

The Grocer has repeatedly urged members of the retail trade individually to take up a specialty as a means of rejuvenating business generally and creating new trade. The advantages to be derived from a crockery department in this respect are already known to many grocers. Plain tableware with stamped monogram, etc., for use in hotels, restaurants, fraternal organizations, church societies, is recommended as a specialty within the crockery department, which is worth the serious consideration of every grocer.

True it is something out of the ordinary, but then the enterprising grocer is always looking ahead for something of this sort which will give him scope to exercise to the limit his powers of persuasion, the attractiveness being in proportion to probable margin of profits. In the average sized Canadian village or town to-day there are from one to half a dozen hotels, a similar number of church societies, and as a rule one or two friendly societies and fraternal organizations. The grocer has only to advertise the fact that his store is the headquarters for the tableware in question, and it is simply a matter of personal canvass before he secures orders from the leading societies in his town. The objection is made in the case of hotels that ordinarily they have already invested in cheap stock patterns. It is no secret that such ware as the latter is very fragile and needs constant replenishing. Here is the grocer's opportunity to emphasize the economical advantage of buying tableware that possesses lasting qualities and which may be duplicated at will. Another feature which cannot help but appeal strongly to "mine host" is that of having something unique and characteristic of his house.

The same arguments can be used with redoubled force in soliciting fraternal organizations and clubs, while the durability of this class of tableware as manufactured in Great Britain at the present time is its strongest point in the eyes of restauranteurs and chuch societies. Another class of customers that might be followed up is the young married couples who can easily be persuaded to inaugurate their housekeeping arrangements by investing in a dinner service with individual monograms, etc.

One grocer may raise the objection that although these suggestions may be all right theoretically they can not be put into practice with profit to the retailer. It will not be denied that the annual value of the turnover of crockery to one family cannot be very large; at the same time the aggregate of crockery sold to all the families in a neighborhood is considerable and represents a good margin of profit.

NEW MONTREAL BY-LAW.

An amended by-law has been passed by the Municipal Council of Montreal in regard to the inspection of bread. According to the new regulations all bread wagons must be covered and certain hygienic measures must be observed in bakeshops. Further, it shall be unlawful for grocers or other persons to expose for sale outside of their stores, bread or flour or any other food article liable to be contaminated by exposure to the open air ; the same shall be kept inside the stores, in proper receptacles, closely covered, and according to the directions of the said inspector or inspectors. Bakers, pastry-cooks and confectioners shall obtain a certificate from the bread inspector before taking ut a license.

THE PRICE OF BREAD INCREASED.

French bakers of the city of Montreal advanced bread half a cent per two-pound loaf on Monday, November 14. The English bakers advanced their prices some time ago, basing their action no doubt upon the high price of flour. The new scale will make the price at the rate of 8c and 9c per loaf, which has been the price charged for some time past by the English section of the trade.

MANUFACTURERS AND EXPRESS COMPANIES.

AT the last monthly meeting of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association one of the principal items of business discussed was that of carriage by express or freight. The general opinion was that the importer who wishes to receive goods within reasonable time after shipment should have them sent by freight.

In support of this, a committee was appointed which will wait upon the American Express Company and the collector of customs to register complaint in regard to the delay of express parcels going through the customs examining warehouse.

To further place themselves on record regarding the matter the association passed a resolution as follows: "That in the opinion of the executive committee of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, it is advisable that the express companies should be placed within the jurisdiction of the Railway Commission."

A report was received in the meeting to the effect that the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress will not consent to the presence of the National Trades and Labor Congress at the special conference with the Manufacturers' Association, which the former requested some time ago.

It is probable, therefore, that the manufacturers will give the National Congress a separate conference.

OTTAWA NEWS.

S. J. Major, wholesale grocers, Ottawa, owing to increased business have been obliged to secure additional premises and have opened a large bonded and excise warehouse and general storage branch at 128 York street. The building is three storeys high, 100 feet long by 40 feet wide. The company's sample room and offices will be enlarged at the beginning of the new year and the sample room made into one of the finest in the country.

DEATH OF PROMINENT HAMILTON GROCER.

The Grocer regrets to have to chronicle in this week's issue the death of Mr. T. Hazell, one of Hamilton's most enterprising retail grocers and most highly respected citizens, which occurred on November 11.

The deceased was born in Northern Chepstow, Monmouthshire, on May 25, 1865, but spent the early portion of his life at Ilfracombe, Devonshire, from which place he came to Hamilton, as a young man, with his parents. Shortly after his arrival here he went to work for Mr. Thomas McKay, grocer, on the northwest corner of King and MacNab streets. On the death of his employer he bought the business, assuming control for himself in 1888. Since that time his success has been the talk of Hamilton business men, and those with whom he had dealings say that no other man could have done so well. The business that he leaves to-day was owned and controlled by himself absolutely.

RETURNED TO BUSINESS.

Mr. A. Allard, of Provost & Allard, Ottawa, who has been confined to his house during the past six weeks by a severe attack of rheumatism, is again on duty. Though still not entirely recovered and requiring the assistance of a cane in getting about he is making strenuous efforts to attend to business.

Mr. Ransford, of R. & J. Ransford, salt manufacturers, Clinton, Ont., was a caller at the Toronto offices of The Grocer this week.

Hamburg as a Market for Canadan Apples.

THE following information concerning the possibilities of Hamburg as a market for Canadian apples may prove of interest to Canadian apple shippers:

Taking the figures for four years as a criterion, Germany imports on an average about 126,869 tons (of 2,240 lbs) of apples per year, valued at $12,942,423. These are received chiefly from Austria, Italy, Netherlands, Switzerland, United States and Canada. The part played by the two latter countries being shown in the following table:

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.

No duty is levied on apples imported into Germany; but all shipments received from oversea countries are carefully inspected for "St. Jose Scale." In this connection Canadian exporters of apples to Hamburg are recommended not to ship more than 50 barrels or cases under the same marks, so that in the event of a lot being declared infected only 50 packages would be detained by the inspector, instead of the entire shipment.

HAMBURG THE PRINCIPAL MARKET.

Hamburg is the most important market in Germany for apples imported from oversea countries. The selling season extends from the end of September until March, but the best prices are usually realized from the first of October to the middle of December. The market then generally remains quiet until after January 15, when some improvement may be expected.

PACKAGES AND VARIETIES.

The bulk of the imported apples sold in Hamburg are packed in barrels, but boxes are preferred for fruit of first-class quality. When filled the barrels should weigh about 143 lbs. and the boxes from 40 to 50 lbs each. The varieties most in demand are King, Baldwin, Ben Davis, Spy and Russet.

SELLING METHODS

The Hamburg fruit brokers dispose of the consignments they receive in much the same way as their confreres in Liverpool or London. Public auctions are held at which the different lots of apples are sold to the highest bidder. The broker's charges are as follows: 5 per cent. commission on sales, and 50 pfgs. (6 pence) per case or barrel to cover cost of warehousing, delivery, and Government inspection, the latter amounting to 20 pfgs. per package. Shippers wishing to know the names and addresses of fruit brokers in Hamburg may secure this information upon application to the Markets Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Prunes Are Popular.

The exportation of prunes from the United States has grown rapidly in recent years, the total number of pounds exported in 1898, the first year in which a record was made by the bureau of statistics, being in round terms 16,000,000; in 1902, 23,000,000; in 1903, 66,000,000, and in 1904 will amount to about 74,000,000, valued at about $3,500,000. Germany, France and the United Kingdom are the principal customers for this class of American fruit, the total quantity sent to Germany in the fiscal year 1903 being 18,500,000 pounds; France, 16,000,000, and the United Kingdom, 15,000,000, while Belgium took nearly 5,000,000 pounds, Netherlands nearly 4,000,000, and Canada about 4,500,000. Of the 66,000,000 pounds of prunes exported in 1903 9,000,000 went from San Francisco and 53,500,000 from New York, although they are chiefly the product of the Pacific coast.

Market for Apples in 3-lb. Tins.

According to commercial reports received by the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, there is a good opening in England for Canadian apples in three-pound tins. The fruit, however, must be firm, not pulpy or flaky. If properly put up it would find a ready sale in hotels and restaurants, where large quantities of pies are consumed

Banana Crop Damaged.

Details have come to hand in regard to the damage done to the growing banana crop by the recent storm in Honduras. It is thought that importations of bananas for the next six or eight months from this source will drop from 400,000 bunches a month to 200,000 bunches. Coming as it does at the very verge of the Winter business this shrinkage will be seriously felt in the fruit market.

Fruit Packed in Peat.

What is considered a highly importanf discovery has just been made in the matter of shipment of fruits, and it is believed that a solution has at last been found to the problem of transporting delicate tropical fruits over long distances.

Experiments have been made by a French firm under the auspices of the French Government in shipping fruit from the Island of Guadeloupe in the Lesser Antilles, to France, enveloped in a particular kind of peat or turf known as Dutch peat. Pineapples, bananas, mangoes, sapotas and other delicate fruits, have been taken when in perfectly ripe condition, enveloped in the fibrous substance, and after several weeks spent in transportation, unpacked at their destination in perfectly fresh and sound condition.

A successful outcome in regard to transportation of tropical fruits over long distances, at the same time preserving their original flavor, is of exceeding moment. At the present time fruit, in order that it may arrive in other than a state of putrefaction after a long journey, has to be picked not only immature but before the pulp has reached its full development and is still fibry. Without maturity the full flavor never obtains.

Photographic Fruit.

No end of novel uses are likely to be made of the so-called "photographic fruit" that has just made its appearance in England. Already it is settled that at festive banquet boards in future a feature will be made of big apples containing on their rosy cheeks photographic imprints of the guest of honor, patriotic emblems, etc. The photographs are obtained by fixing on the green surface of the apple, before it is ripe, a photographic film. It is then fully exposed to the sun, and the film stencils itself, as it were, on the reddening skin.

A PROSPEROUS COMMERCIAL BODY.

THE quarterly meeting of the members of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Mutual Benefit Society was held in the association rooms on Saturday, November 5, at 3 p.m. Mr. Alex. McA. Murphy, the president, occupied the chair.

A. McA. MURPHY
President of the D.C.T. Mutual Benefit Society, Montreal.

The reports presented were of a very satisfactory nature and met with the approval of all present. The nomination of officers for the ensuing year resulted in the re-election of Mr. Murphy as president, Mr. Richard Booth as vice-president, and Mr. Charles Gurd as treasurer. The following were nominated as trustees: Joseph W. Rousseau, John E. Wright, John Hardie, J. H. Ferns and James Robinson. This action being unanimous, the society was freed from the necessity and expense of a competitive election. The total paid for death claims during the year was $12,000.

Among those who addressed the meeting were David Watson, George Nann, J. S. N. Dougall, president of the parent association, and Mr. Fred Birks, the society's first president, who spoke in glowing terms of the progress the society was making. Fifteen members were admitted at a meeting of the trustees subsequent to the general meeting.

The Mutual Benefit Society was organized in January, 1886, for the purpose of providing commercial travelers with a safe, easy and economical means of making provision for their families in case of death. Organized on a strictly mutual basis, it has steadily grown from a very small membership in the first year until now, after 18 years' existence, the membership is over 1,100, thus assuring the payment of $1,000, which is the maximum.

The sum of $170,000 has been paid in death benefits since organization. The affairs of the society, which are on a solid basis, have passed successively through the management of trustees, elected annually, who have shown capacity, energy and devotion, all freely rendered. The prospects for the future of the society are bright.

WESTERN WHOLESALE BROKERS' ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the wholesale grocery brokers of Winnipeg was held recently at the office of Ashley & Thompson to discuss matters of interest to the brokerage fraternity of Winnipeg and the Canadian West. The discussion developed the idea that it would be to the advantage of the brokers and the grocery trade generally if an association was formed. It was accordingly decided that such an association be formed, to be known as "The Western Wholesale Brokers' Association," and the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Pres., J. Tees; vice-pres., E. Nicholson; sec.-treas., Geo. Adam; executive committee, Messrs. Gordon, Duncan, Carman, E. A. Scott and G. B. Thompson. The following firms were admitted as members and signed the roll: Buchanan & Gordon, Tees & Persse, Nicholson & Bain, Scott, Bathgate & Co., C. Duncan, Jos. Carman, Geo. Adam & Co., J. M. Scott, Jos. E. Huxley, J. H. Pennock & Co., W. A. MacKenzie & Co., Ashley & Thompson and Bell & Armytage.

REG. W. GRAHAM
Secretary of the D. C. T. Mutual Benefit Society, Montreal

It is desired by the members that every wholesale broker join the association. Any information desired will gladly be given by the secretary or any member of the association.

GROCERS AFTER THE TRADING STAMP LAW.

At a postponed meeting of the Montreal Retail Grocers' Association, held November 10, a resolution was unanimously passed urging the aldermen to assist in whatever way possible the setting aside of the injunction of the Trading Stamp Company in order that the city by-law may be put into force making the use of the trading stamp illegal.

Other matters of routine were discussed and the subject of the limitations of the grocers' licenses laid on the table to be further dealt with at the next meeting. President Daoust was in the chair.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

The following inquiries for Canadian trade have been received from Leeds and Hull, Eng. The names of firms making inquiries and their addresses may be obtained from the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. Parties desiring such information will be careful to mention the office under which the said inquiry appears and the number:

68. A wholesale manufacturing confectionery company desires to be put in communication with dealers in Canada for their goods, including drops, rocks, sticks, comfits and general confectionery: and they desire to appoint agents in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg.

CHARLES GURD
Treasurer of the D. C. T. Mutual Benefit Society, Montreal.

70. Large manufacturers of liquorice and pomfert cakes desire communication with Canadian houses.

Why do the best grocers sell the best flour?

Because it pays to please the customer, and the grocers who don't do that see other grocers getting their trade away from them.

That's why the best grocers feature the best flour—

"Royal Household"

A better flour than any other for both bread and pastry—proven best by daily test—best because it's made from the best wheat, by the best mills in the British Empire, the Ogilvie Flour Mills, the leading flour producers for over thirty years.

The demand for Ogilvie Flour is three times as great as the demand for any other flour made in the Dominion.

Have you observed the process of publicity by which Royal Household Flour is being advertised?

It's the most interesting and enterprising campaign ever undertaken in Canada.

Why not send for the details? We furnish them to grocers so they can see why Royal Household is not only the best flour but sells the best of any flour on the market—and why grocers who push it prosper.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

FLOUR FROM THE GROCER'S STANDPOINT.

DISCUSSING flour from the retail grocer's point of view he that sells his own brand of flour has an argument that not only sounds good to himself but to his customer as well. It reads something like this:

"You, my customer, know that I want your confidence—and your trade. I therefore recommend to you only what I know to be best. I have studied flour, and found a brand which I can recommend. It's the best flour you ever bought or I ever sold. My name stands for it as you see by the label on the bag. Just try this flour and I'm sure you'll be pleased with it."

The customer tries the flour and is pleased to find that it makes excellent bread and pastry. She tells the grocer so, orders more of it, and gradually gets into the "habit" which is just what the grocer aimed at from the first. Now is his chance, if he is at all unscrupulous, to work in something that pays bigger profits. The more unscrupulous he is the larger immediate profit he will contrive to make. The first flour furnished is the best procurable, and as it has given satisfaction he secures the trade and confidence of his customer. Before long, however, he manages to introduce a percentage of cheaper flour along with the high grade article or else substitutes a lower grade of flour.

The customer does not detect the difference. The lowering of the grade, however, is the entering wedge and the grocer grades off gradually until he is selling her a cheap flour at the price of good flour. In time she finds her baking is not up to the standard. She attributes it at first to her lack of care in mixing the constituents of the dough, to kneading, baking, or the baker. If the poor quality persists she goes to her grocer and complains of the flour.

• • •

Then how easy for the grocer to say, "Madam, you must have exposed that flour to something that has contaminated it or else one of my assistants has been careless. You know flour is very sensitive. Let me give you another bag and take back the one you have." He goes out to the back of his store and puts up a bag of the best flour he has—the original flour that won her trade. She goes away to find it O.K. Perhaps he never again dares to sell her an inferior grade of flour, but that is not the question. His customer buys after that on suspicion. She questions the quality of everything he sells her. Then he realizes that a customer's confidence though hard to cultivate is easy to kill.

Staff Changes.

A popular appointment has just been made in the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co, where F. H. Anson, manager for foreign departments of that firm, has been made general superintendent. Mr. R. R. Dobell, who has been manager of the same company in the Liverpool office, will succeed Mr. Anson as manager of the foreign department, with headquarters in Montreal. These changes will tend to make the working of this extensive concern more effective, and are only a small part of the expanded reorganization plan which Mr. Thompson, the managing director, has been working upon for some time. Business is growing to such an extent that these increases in staff have been found necessary.

Canadian Flour in Japan.

It has been demonstrated to a certainty that Canadian flour makes better bread and more of it than almost any other flour in the world's markets, and it is nothing short of remarkable how widespread the knowledge of this fact has become even in Japan. The only thing that hinders increased sales of Canadian flour in Japan at the present time is the comparatively high prices asked. In his last report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, A. MacLean, commercial agent to Japan, says there is danger that in the absence of more strenuous effort to keep Canadian flour before the market and promote its sale, the good results of the Osaka exhibition may be lost. A concerted effort to continue the Osaka exhibit so far as Canadian flour is concerned until the native millions are taught to call for "Canada Ko" (Canadian flour), instead of "Meriken Ko" (American flour) would not be costly beyond the means of Canadian millers.

A glance at the above statement shows that the United States of America are very far ahead of all other countries of the world in supplying John Bull with the flour he requires beyond what he thinks proper to produce himself, and that but for this addition to his food supply there would, in existing circumstances, be the greatest difficulty in procuring flour enough to satisfy all his needs, even at prices much higher than those which now prevail.

In the aggregate 12,369,996 packages of flour arrived in Great Britain from abroad during the cereal year ended August 31 last, as against 12,820,154 packages in 1902-03 and 12,005,828 packages in 1901-02. The difference in the supply between one season and another was not so great as to call for any special remark, the receipts of foreign flour having been about at an average in the past three years, and not such as to af-feet seriously the general position of the article. But, examining the matter more closely, there is a marked deficiency in the imports of flour from the United States during 1903-04 as compared with those in the preceding year. Very fortunately the falling off referred to was practically made up by largely increased shipments of flour from other countries, chief among which may be mentioned Australia and the River Plate.

It is interesting—if not in some quarters alarming—to observe that, according to the agricultural returns the area under wheat last year in Great Britain was the smallest ever recorded, being 1,375,284 acres only, or 42,199 acres less than in 1895, and 727,000 acres less than in 1898. In Ireland the decrease in the area under wheat is proportionately even greater than in Great Britain. The truth appears to be that the better English wheats are largely tending to go out of cultivation in favor of varieties giving a large yield; whilst these latter varieties are found to compare badly with the imported wheats in point of strength and quality. With the modern roller mill red wheat or white will make equally white flour; but it is not only color that tells. The main factor is what the baker calls "strength"—the capacity to make a large loaf; and there is little doubt that the lack of this was the reason why during the season of 1903-04 No. 1 Hard Manitoba was selling at about 35s per quarter, Hard Winter Kansas and Russian wheats at about 33s, while the best English wheat was not fetching more than 28s or 29s. Clearly English farmers must look to their laurels.

Why Bread is Dear.

In explanation of the comparatively high price of bread in Canada to-day it may be said that the price of bread is indirectly ruled by the wheat market. Since 1900 wheat has been steadily advancing, namely 5c per bushel in 1901, 10c per bushel in 1902 and 1903 respectively, while at one time this year wheat was 25c above the average of 1903. Another factor in the stuation is the presence of trade unions, the demands of which are in no small measure responsible for the upward tendency of bread. Owing to keen competition among Canadian bakers prices in certain sections have not followed the normal pace, and price cutting has meant for the time being cheap bread to the consumer although the manufacturers claim that owing to the steady advance in the cost of the raw material, the price of bread should go up accordingly if there is to be any profit for the baker.

Why U. S. Breakfast Foods Do Not Sell in China.

An opportunity has been afforded Canadian manufacturers of learning a valuable lesson from the experience of certain breakfast food firms across the border who have been trying to introduce their goods in China in paper packages.

On arrival these goods are invariably found to be mouldy and practically useless; even when not mouldy they are usually so impregnated with dampness as to be inedible.

One firm wiser than the rest is packing its food products in tin. Unfortunately the tins used are sealed with paper which largely counteracts the advantage gained by the use of tin. British firms always send their goods in soldered tin packages, usually made with a patent key by means of which they can be opened readily. This of course makes the goods more expensive, but guarantees their preservation. On the other hand the sealing of tin packages with paper is entirely inadequate for the Chinese climate. According to a consul residing in China proper attention to packing and quotations on complete outfits after the British fashion would result in an enormous increase of American trade with the Orient.

Cereal Notes.

T. O'Brien's flour and grist mills at McIntosh Mills have been destroyed by fire; loss estimated at $20,000.

In a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, A. W. MacKinnon, Canadian agent at Bristol, says that Canadian shipments of flour do not always prove equal to samples submitted. Another complaint is that shipments are not always in accordance with the terms of the contract.

The alarming news has reached The Grocer that thousands of bushels of Canadian wheat are being hauled across the line into North Dakota without paying duty. The practice is said to be one of several years' standing although this year the amount that is being hauled across is enormous, owing to difference in price in the two countries.

Tobacco Culture in South Africa.

THE growing of tobacco in South Africa is reported on by the Agricultural Assistant to the Department of Agriculture as follows:

During the past season unusual interest has been evinced in the culture of tobacco. Above one hundred farmers have grown plots of from 1,000 plants to 30 acres, and the results have been exceedingly encouraging. In the past the tendency has been to plant the crop on the richest soils, and grow quantity regardless of quality, but this year there has been a fuller realization of the importance of soil and seed, and a distinct improvement in the tobacco has been the result. Small plots on the granite formation have produced golden and mahogany-colored cigarette leaf equal to the average American leaf of the same type. The culture of this class of tobacco will be greatly extended during the coming season. Good pipe tobacco has been grown in nearly every district. Seed supplied by the Department of Agriculture has effected a marked improvement in the class of leaf. Some first-class cigar leaf has been grown in the Melsetter district, and when Cuban seed is used, and the crop properly cured and fermented, the best cigar leaf in Africa should be the result.

Several growers have been receiving an average of $625 per acre for their crop, but this is much more than could be generally expected. A return of from $150 to $250 an acre would be fairer figures on which to base an estimate. The working expenses are, approximately, $60 per acre. Both the working expense and the selling price must eventually be reduced. At the present time there is no other agricultural crop yielding so large a monetary return as tobacco culture in South Africa, and this, considered with the quick return, the non-perishability of the cured crop, and the ease with which it may be shipped, shows how desirable a crop it is for general cultivation. No attempt as yet is being made to export tobacco out of Africa, the African markets being at present far more profitable than the European markets.

Philippine Exports to England.

The imports of tobacco into Great Britain from the Philippines were as follows during the year 1902: Unmanufactured 10,421 lbs., valued at $3,815; manufactured 400,640 lbs., valued at $569,500.

Effect of English Law.

The English statistics in regard to the import movement of tobacco into Great Britain for the nine months ending September 30, 1904, are interesting owing to the revolution caused by the recent English law discriminating against American stemmed leaf:

The total number of pounds of stemmed leaf imported by the United Kingdom this year from the United States was 25,109,883 pounds, a falling off from 1903 of 9,488,649 pounds, and from 1902 of 44,126,320 pounds. The imports of unstemmed leaf amounted to 35,612,572, an increase of 19,225,122 pounds, or 117 per cent. over 1903, and an increase of 23,294,198 pounds, or 189 per cent. over 1902. The importations of leaf tobacco from other countries than the United States only amounted to 1,484,000 for stemmed leaf and 6,599,669 pounds for unstemmed leaf for the first nine months of 1904.

Australian Competition.

To further encourage the cultivation of higher-grade tobacco within the Commonwealth, the British Australasian Tobacco Co. is offering special prizes for merit and an over and above price for winning parcels on the following conditions: Upon certain fixed days during 1905, to suit the convenience of growers, the judging and awarding of prizes will take place at Tumut, Bathurst, Tamworth and Texas. Parcels of leaf grown in the respective districts, to be not less than two tons in weight. Two first prizes for each district of £10 each, with certificates. Four second prizes for each district of £5 each, with certificates. Winners of first prizes in each Egypt's Exports of Cigarettes.

The figures on the imports of tobacco to and exports of cigarettes from Egypt during the first six months of the current year, are of some interest. During the first six months of 1904 tobacco was imported to the value of 340,586 Egyptian pounds of livres (an Egyptian pound being equal to about five dollars in American money). This tobacco came mainly from Turkey and Greece, Turkey supplying tobacco to the value of L. E. (Egyptian livres) 192,820. The total exports of Egyptian cigarettes for this period was valued at L. E. 233,368. During the corresponding period of 1903 the exportation of cigarettes from Egypt was valued at L. E. 206,964. By weights the exports increased from 259,827 kilograms (a kilogram equals 2,204 pounds) in the first six months of 1903 to 292,419 kilograms for 1904. England was the largest single consumer of these cigarettes in both years, alhough its importation in 1903 exceeded that in 1904 by 4,887 kilograms.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

FREIGHTS have grown so bad that the C.P.R. and Dominion lines have decided to cut their services to Bristol considerably. These lines worked in conjunction during the Summer months, running three steamers, and thus had a steamer of each line in port about every ten days. Now they have dropped to one steamer each for the Bristol-Montreal service. The present service will be continued until navigation closes, after which the new schedule will come into force. These lines will operate their vessels alternately making St. John, N.B., and Portland once in three weeks instead of weekly.

Mr. John Torrance, Sr., of the Dominion Line, when interviewed said that the general public had no idea of the amount Montreal and the great lakes is nearing its close it is interesting to note that while the tonnage of this port has been larger the freight business incoming and outgoing has been smaller than for years past. By November 23 the ocean-going tonnage will show an increase of about 200,000 tons over that of 1903 and it is estimated may reach the two million mark.

In the same period the freights have fallen off fully fifty per cent. For instance the wheat shipments from Montreal from the opening of navigation to November 1st amounted to 6,694,000 bushels as compared with 14,330,000 during the corresponding period of 1903.

The decrease in corn shipments was also very large, but not so large as

DEAR SIRS:—

I have used your BALL-BEARING COMPUTING SCALE for several years now and I believe it has paid for itself a good many times over during that period. Most of my profits went to my customers in overweights in the past. Now I have a little left for myself.

Yours truly,

Increase Their Faith!

"Price" is an argument for trade but "quality" goes far ahead of it. Quality holds trade while price attracts for the moment only. Sell standard goods and you increase the faith your customers have in the service of your store. It pays to "increase their faith"

By Selling These Goods.

Felix & Co. Italian Macaroni

Always the same delicate, tender Macaroni that makes for permanent trade. Most attractively labelled and packed. Macaroni that will "increase their faith."

"Thistle" Brand Maple Syrup

A rich, clear, pure Maple Syrup that reminds you of boyhood days way up among the sugar trees. Always the same, and always choice.

A Maple Syrup that will "increase their faith."

Griffin & Skelley's Dried Fruits

"The pick of the pack" from the largest vineyards on the Pacific Coast. Peaches, Pears, Raisins, Apricots, Nectarines, Dried Plums and Prunes. "Increase their faith" by selling them.

"Shell" Brand Castile Soap

Containing 67 per cent. of pure oil, instead of the usual 60 per cent. of ordinary brands. Packed by Couret Frere of Marseilles.

In 1 pound bars and upwards and in pressed cakes also.

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like this, but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

Can't you?

Chicago. New York. St, Louis. New Orleans. San Francisco. Baltimore. Boston Philadelphia. London, Eng. Hamberg. Ger.

This one thing we have insisted on—the superiority of THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND.

We have told you why several times, but it won't hurt to repeat.

1. We pack fruits and vegetables grown in the famous Prince Edward County section. Canada has many garden spots, but none that excels our district.

2. We have the most modern factory in America—built this year, equipped after the best known ideas.

3. In charge of this factory is the best process man on the continent. We searched him out and paid the price.

4. We ourselves are practical men, and know our business through and through. We began the new Company with the sole purpose of getting the best trade and of deserving it. "There's always room at the top" was our motto.

And so we have sought the favor and business of jobbers and retailers with assurance—and, we are glad to be able to say, after six months history, with success.

It is not too late yet to specify in your occasional orders for canned goods THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND.

The Old Homestead Canning Co.

Picton, Ont.

Distributed in the St. John and Moncton Districts by Messrs. Bowman & Cole, Messrs. Geo. S. DeForest & Sons, St. John, N.B.; and Messrs. F. P. Reid & Co., Moncton, N.B.

These represent the change that has taken place in the tea consumption in Canada—the black indicates Japan and China tea consumption, the white Ceylon. At first Japan and China teas had the bulk of favor; now the situation is reversed. The black portion will disappear before very long. It has in England.

For the grocer it means—don't prolong an unsatisfactory condition of affairs. Don't keep on selling teas that are losing public favor. Encourage the people in the use of which come in both Blacks and Greens.

YOU HAVE TO RECOGNIZE the condensed milk business, it is increasing every day, and pays well. It is important you should handle goods you can rely on.

"Jersey Cream"

If You Have Money to Burn

Why! Go burn it. There is 10 times more satisfaction in burning money than in losing it in driblets, through carelessness of clerks, or disputed accounts. Who that has "pass-book" customers, has not had accounts disputed and partially repudiated? The best way to avoid all complications and misunderstandings is as follows:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Trade Marks.

MUCH is being written these days on the subject of trade marks and their value as an advertising asset. At a recent meeting of the Sphinx Club, a famous advertising men's organization, the following interesting facts relating to trade marks were brought out:

"The antiquity of the trade mark almost convinces one that there is nothing new under the sun. The cattle of Jacob were distinguished from those of Laban by a mark. It was the rule of Nebuchadnezzar to have his name stamped on every brick, in building palaces during his reign, which began in the year 604 B.C. A piece of china, of Chinese manufacture, bearing the factory mark, has been discovered, the date of which is said to be 1600 B.C. Ancient history shows that the Hindoos, a mercantile people, had their emblematical mark of merchandise 1300 or 1400 B.C. In France, as shown by a law suit in 1590, a clothier counterfeited a better clothier's trade mark, and the purchaser was entitled to sue the seller for deceit. A Frenchman writes that in 1666 the penalty for counterfeiting a trade mark was six hours in the carcan—an iron collar, by which the convicted man was fixed to a post.

"The earliest commercial relations were such that any form of notice as to origin of goods was unnecessary. The products of the miller or weaver were consumed in the neighborhood where they were produced, and good-will was simply the habit of going to a particular place to get a particular commodity. But with the increase of commercial intercourse the reputation of the miller or weaver was extended. At a later period came the steamship and railway, and with them the use of packages, labels, marks, names and other expedients by means of which the individuality of the manufacturer was preserved and his reputation made a source of profit and good-will. It then became apparent that by putting the mark for which the purchaser looked upon other goods a profit might be nefariously made. Many yielded to the temptation, and the courts were soon called upon to deal with the question: 'Should marks of origin be protected?' and, if so, how?

"A specific demand for the article of one producer belongs to him alone. Legally speaking, so far as one introducing and popularizing his goods yields to the temptation to bid for an existing demand, he must carry with him to the end of the enterprise competitors who will share some of the benefits of his exertions. In so far as he builds up a unique demand by emphasizing his trade mark he will enjoy all the fruits of his labors.

"With the expansion of commerce it became manifest that it was possible to divert an existing reputation and goodwill without making use of the technical trade mark used upon the goods. It was an easy matter to simulate the salient features or name of an article which had acquired reputation so that the casual purchaser would accept the imitation as the article sought. Many forms of artifice were resorted to and used to accomplish successfully the objects of commercial piracy without crossing the artificial lines which had, perhaps, been drawn. It is the province of equity to correct that wherein the law, by reason of its universality, is deficient. The most recent and authoritative cases establish the proposition that no matter what the means employed, whether they consist of colors, the peculiar shape of a package, a descriptive word, a geographical name, a man's own name, or anything else;—if, in fact, having regard to all the conditions which prevail in each particular trade, one man's goods are being represented to be the goods of somebody else or so marked as to promote mistake, confusion, or fraudulent substitution, equity will interfere to correct the wrong."

This subject of trade marks has, of course, much more interest to the manufacturer than to the retailer, but it concerns also the retailer. In this day of commercial competition manufacturers, to secure a preference, must trade-mark their goods. This alone will not promote a demand. The demand comes through the exploiting by means of advertising the trade-marked commodity. The grocery trade in Canada is becoming more and more familiar with the tendency on the part of manufacturers to trade-mark their wares, and to seek to create a preference for their wares through advertising, sometimes to the trade only, sometimes to the consumer only, and sometimes to both. Thus teas, breakfast foods, biscuits, yeast, pickles, coffees, sauces, syrups, cheese, marmalade, fish preparations, mincemeat, baking powder, ammonia, bird seed, cigars, tobaccos, cocoas and chocolates, and what not, are being trademarked and advertised, with what success has witness on the shelves of every grocer in the land.

That this specializing tendency on the part of manufacturers is but in the early stages of its development in Canada, seems to require no argument, and the next ten years will see some interesting efforts made to divert an existing demand to a particular channel, and to stimulate a sale for new articles of commerce.

Pithy Paragraphs.

Learn to do—by doing.

It is not wit, but common sense, that makes the capable ad. writer.

To maintain and increase business you must do something for business. To advertise is often just what your business needs.

The key to successful advertising is the exciting of a desire on the part of the reader for the goods advertised. One advertiser excites the curiosity, another the interest (pecuniary), another the sense of taste. But whatever the method, the object is the same in all cases—the teaching that the article exploited may conduce to the comfort, the convenience, the pleasure, the luxury, or the necessity of him who reads.

Don't expect to reap good business from bad advertising.

An ad. which is brief and concise has the power of keeping the mind concentrated on a given subject, therefore preventing one's thoughts from wandering. It saves time, thus labor. It saves space, likewise money. It is a symbol of truthfulness, dispelling doubt. By its use the curiosity and attention of the uninterested can be aroused more quickly and held longer than by a lengthy explanation, because it will have spoken and finished long before the other has hardly begun to speak.

VIEWS ON INDIAN AND CEYLON TEAS.

MR. P. C. LARKIN. Toronto, was a visitor to the Salada Tea Co.'s branch in Montreal during the past week. The Grocer had the pleasure of an interview at his offices on St. Paul street, and besides renewing old acquaintanceship obtained Mr. Larkin's views on one of the great questions of the day, tea.

Mr. Larkin had just returned from a trip to the St. Louis and Chicago branches of the Salada Tea Co. and was on his way to the Boston, New York and Philadelphia branches. "At St. Louis," Mr. Larkin stated, "Salada obtained the highest award and gold medal."

"What is your opinion of Ceylon greens and will they continue a factor in the tea trade of Canada and the United States?" Mr. Larkin was asked.

The Future of Ceylon Greens.

"I am glad you asked me this," he replied. "In Detroit, Minneapolis, Chicago and St. Louis, our branches are selling a great deal of green Ceylon and Indian tea. In Buffalo and Detroit particularly, where we have been packing greens since they were first made in Ceylon, the demand is increasing every month. In Toronto and Montreal also we are making satisfactory progress."

"If that is your opinion, Mr. Larkin, will you explain why the production of green teas has been practically stopped by the planters?"

"The planters have not ceased manufacturing green teas permanently, and while many of the gardens have turned their attention to black teas, it is only owing to the fact that more green tea was made and thrown upon the American and Canadian markets recently than could be readily consumed. No matter how good an article may be the attention of the consumer cannot be directed to it all in a year or two as it takes time to make its qualities known even through the medium of advertising. If every green tea drinker could taste Ceylon and Indian green tea it would be unnecessary to advertise them afterwards. I believe there are tens of thousands drinking Ceylon and Indian green teas this year who were not a year ago. If the Ceylon and Indian planters had merely doubled their previous year's production of green teas there would have been a tremendous demand in Canada and the United States for this article to-day. They were not satisfied with this, however, and quadrupled the production in one year at the same time doing comparatively nothing to attract the attention of the public. As a result although Ceylon and Indian teas are going into consumption more rapidly than ever there is still a comparatively large stock of greens in first hands which will be used up in the course of the next six or eight months, when the demand is bound to set in again.

"The gardens will not be in a hurry to resume operations after this experience and the withdrawal of the bounty. Ceylon planters will always be prepared to produce these teas whenever we are prepared to offer them a paying price, which we will have to do as soon as stocks are thinned out; as regards the export bounty importers will not only have to make this up, but will also have to make up any price created by the supply and demand. We can no more do without Ceylon and Indian green tea than we can do without their black teas, and the reason is because the public wants them. Not all are green tea drinkers, but a fair proportion of the public is and this proportion is rapidly growing.

"The introduction of Ceylon green teas on the Canadian market was brought about by the Salada Tea Co. Everybody in the trade laughed at us at first, but we were convinced that the tea had 'cup merit' and we believed then, as firmly as we do to-day, that Ceylon and Indian teas are serviceable for the public. When we took up Ceylon black teas fourteen years ago, wholesalers and retailers said they might suit the English public, but that they would not suit the public on this continent. When we started to introduce black Ceylon and India teas in the United States seven years ago, the trade there told us that they had tried them on the public, but that they did not suit the people. The fact was that the only way they had tried them was to stock up with them, nothing being done afterwards to bring them to the attention of the consumer. The teas remained on the retail grocers' shelves until a fair proportion got old and stale. In some cases chests were never opened and if there had been a sovereign in every chest they probably would never have found it out. However, when we took hold of them we were not satisfied with selling the retail grocer, we sampled and advertised and so brought them to the attention of the consumer who has shown his appreciation of them by giving us in return a fairly profitable business. Every branch we have opened in the United States has been a repetition of our experience in Canada. It may take a long time and a lot of money, but the eventual result will be that both black and green Ceylon and Indian teas are bound to win the public's confidence and support."

FRESH AND CURED FISH

Why Fish are Scarce.

SINCE the opening of the fish season of 1904-1905 in Canada a number of complaints have come to The Canadian Grocer from the wholesale grocery trade, especially in Ontario, that they are unable to get supplies of dried and prepared fish, either with any regularity or in sufficient quantities to answer the requirements of the trade.

With the object of finding out the reason for this abnormality in trade conditions The Canadian Grocer has been in correspondence with several of the leading fishery interests in the Maritime Provinces, who emphasize the fact that the fish business of Canada and of the world generally has been in a more or less precarious state for the last two or three years. Last year, for some reason unknown to anybody, the cod fisheries of the world were practically a failure, and this year similar conditions have arisen. This is not due to any lack of perseverance on the part of the fishermen themselves or of the men employed in the trade.

Whatever the cause may be, the supply of bait in Canada during the last two years has been exceedingly limited. This difficulty Canadian fishermen are trying to overcome by artificial means, namely, by erecting bait freezers to insure supplies of bait for the fishermen. Another difficulty, as far as Canada and the New England states are concerned, has been the dog fish pest, the seriousness of which any one who understands the business well knows. When this fish comes on the grounds where cod are caught it is practically out of the question to get the trawl to the bottom, as the dog fish immediately seize everything in sight. Another difficulty has been that the bank fishermen of Nova Scotia do not prosecute their work during the Winter months, the season when in Ontario the demand for fish is greatest. At the present time ordinary dried fish such as are shipped to the West Indies are selling in Halifax at $5.25 per quintal, whereas normally they are $3.50, and have been known to go as low as $1.35, which goes to show there must be a big scarcity of fish, since the fish dealers of Halifax compete with the world in marketing their products.

Limit Foreign Buyers of Sardines.

It is being hinted that the commission appointed some months ago at Ottawa for investigating the sardine industry and dog fish pest in Canada will recommend the adoption of restrictive legislation, with a view to putting a limit to American sales of sardines caught in Canadian waters. The feeling is that the time has about arrived when in place of two sardine canneries in Canada the number should run up into the scores, as in the State of Maine, where the canners are maintained by reason of the Canadian catches.

Fish News From British Columbia.

The salmon pack on the Pacific coast, compiled to October 15th, shows a shortage of 578,244 cases of all varieties. There was an increase on the Columbia River, but this was owing to the season having been extended for an indefinite period. There was been no trouble with prices, as the small pack made the visible supply in the world's markets small, and the demand in the Old Country has been steady. All the canners are looking forward to the next year, which is expected to be that of the big run.

The cultivation and shipment of oysters is profitably engaged in at Ladysmith, on the east coast of Vancouver Island, by John Brenton, David Page, Joseph Ferguson, David Thomas and the Richard Brothers. The united capacity of the beds is about 40 sacks per week during the season from September to May. Mr. Brenton is a pioneer in oyster culture and has been experimenting with eastern oysters, which he has found to increase rapidly in size but not in numbers.

The regular fishing season for herrings has now commenced, and the curing companies at Nanaimo are busy.

Poor Mackerel Season.

The mackerel fishing season on the north Atlantic coast just ended has been an almost complete failure. Not for years have fish been so scarce, and never has the price been so high. No fish have been taken in the Bay of Fundy, and few on the Maine coast, which is usually a great mackerel ground. As the season advanced and fish became scarcer prices soared until as much as $20 a barrel was paid, and in some cases even $25 and $30. At present the average price is about $16 a barrel.

Lobster Pack Short.

Lobster stocks are reported to be getting into very small compass, stocks that are held being apparently in the Old Country. Talls are very bare at present and cost $13.50 per case. Flats and half flats are firm and are quoted at from $13 to $15 for the former and $13.75 to $15.50 for the latter, according to brand. The present outlook is that old stock will all be cleaned up before the new pack comes in about May of 1905.

Fish Notes.

In last week's issue of The Grocer the illustration called "Fishing boats at St. John, N. B.;" should have read "Fishing Boats at Halifax, N. S."

Latest market reports from Trinidad say that good split herring would sell readily, but that there is little or no inquiry there for other descriptions of pickled fish.

The property of the Pacific Packing and Navigation Co., and the Pacific American Fisheries Co., one of the largest salmon canning combines in the world, was sold at receiver's auction on Nov. 12.

The Fall haddock fishing is just opening at Canso, N. S., and fishermen are looking forward to a good season. Haddock fishing from the port of Canso has grown to large proportions, and has proved very profitable during the past few years.

A consignment of 100,000 fish eggs will arrive in Ottawa shortly to be used in stocking some of the Canadian lakes with a species of fish known as onananiche, which was formerly thought to exist only in Lake St. John.

Because of the war in the Orient the price of dog salmon has gone up from $15 to $32 per ton f.o.b. Vancouver. This fish was previously considered worthless, but large quantities are now being put up. Shipments of fish to Japan are rapidly increasing.

F. X. St. Charles & Co., dealers in groceries, wines and imported liquors, Montreal, have moved into their new premises at 39-43 St. Gabriel street, which are among the largest and most up-to-date of their kind in Canada.

Canadian Food Products.

THE Manchester, Eng., Journal of Commerce, of Nov. 10, contains the following interesting editorial on the subject of "Canadian Food Products:"

The blunder recently made by the municipal authorities at Hastings in mistaking a very good sample of Canadian cheese for margarine cheese has, at any rate, served the purpose of demonstrating beyond a doubt that the dairy products which come to this country from Canada are of the purest possible description. The Canadian Government is extremely zealous in seeing that the food stuffs of the Dominion shall retain the good name they have already acquired, and when the High Commissioner and the representative of the Canadian Department of Agriculture found that the cheese in question was the product of a reliable factory in Molesworth, Ontario, the matter was so energetically taken up that almost immediately there was collected a large body of the most convincing evidence in favor of the purity of the cheese, followed necessarily, of course, by the complete withdrawal of the accusation and the prosecution, and the dismissal of the case with costs.

It is difficult to account for the taking out of the summons in the first instance, especially in view of the fact that the report of the analyst of the Government laboratory in London showed conclusively that the cheese contained no other fat than milk fat, and that the amount of such milk fat present was no less than 43 per cent., a figure which at once ranks the product as of the very first quality. But the case did more than merely show that this particular sample of Canadian dairy produce was pure, for the evidence gathered together in Canada, and which was mentioned at the Hastings court, constituted a remarkable body of testimony to the care taken by the Canadian Government to render it absolutely impossible that any adulteration whatever be made in the cheese manufactured in the Dominion. In the first place the Canadian law absolutely prohibiting the addition of foreign fat is clear and explicit, and so thoroughly does the sentiment of the people harmonize with this piece of legislation that the section of the Dairy Products Act dealing with the matter has never been violated. It has been scientifically demonstrated, too, that any adulteration with foreign fat is impossible after the cheese has been manufactured, and in the Hastings case the whole of the process of the manufacture of this particular sample was followed up from the delivery of the milk by the farmer to the arrival of the cheese in England, sworn affidavits from the storers, the buyers, the manufacturers, and everyone connected with the handling of the product being forwarded from Canada, and the proof of the purity of the cheese as testified by the British Government analyst thus being abundantly confirmed. These affidavits, too, gave incidentally a vast amount of interesting and reliable information regarding the processes of preparing cheese for export in Canada, and no one reading this testimony can help coming to the conclusion that in buying Canadian cheese the public of Great Britain have a guarantee of purity, quality, and cleanliness of preparation such as they possess in regard to very few food products sold in our shops and markets.

All the Canadian product of this description intended for export is made in large factories where the milk from the surrounding dairies is collected, the factories themselves being public places, visited daily by a large number of persons who are thoroughly conversant with processes of cheese manufacture. The materials and apparatus necessary for adulteration are not to be found at these cheese factories, nor could they be introduced there without many independent people being aware of the fact, a remark which applies to the manipulation of the milk which would be necessary in order that the process of adulteration might be gone through.

Better even than all of these restrictions is the presence in Canada of an exceedingly high and lofty ideal as to the purity of the dairy products of the Dominion, an ideal which it must be admitted is based on the knowledge that it is only by keeping its cheese and other farm produce pure and above suspicion that the articles sent abroad from the Dominion will be able to retain their hold on the markets of the world. The worst of these food prosecutions is that the public take a keen interest in allegations of this kind, especially when they are followed by convictions, whilst extremely little notice is taken of those instances when the local analyst has been proved to have made a mistake. In this case, however, the matter does not rest at the mere negativing of the deposition of the Hastings analyst, for the energetic manner in which the Canadian authorities in this country have taken the question up, and the magnificent testimony which they have been able to produce in favor of the purity and quality of Canadian cheese gives the public an interest in the case far beyond that usually evoked by a prosecution of this kind. Not only are the High Commissioner and the Department of Agriculture to be congratulated, but Messrs. Thomas Ballantyne, of Stratford, Ontario, who bought and exported the cheese, the famous Molesworth cheese factory of Ontario, who made it, Messrs. Andrew Clement & Sons, Limited, of Glasgow, who imported it, and the shopkeeper of Hastings who sold it to the consumers, are alike to be felicitated at the sequel to the case, whilst the general public both of Canada and the United Kingdom must feel mutually gratified that an occasion has been furnished for demonstrating that the food supplied to the Mother Country from her colonies is absolutely pure and above suspicion.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

Mr. E. Augur has accepted the management of the Brownsville, Ont., Powder Milk Factory.

Work on the new building to be erected by the Whyte Packing Co., Stratford, Ont., has begun.

B. H. Halliday & Co., commission merchants, provision dealers, etc., have opened an office in Morden, Man.

D. B. Martin & Co., of Baltimore and Philadelphia, have purchased the big east end abattoir, Frontenac street, Montreal.

Prof. Robertson, Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying for Canada, has resigned in order to accept the presidency of a large experimental college which is to be established through the generosity of Sir William Macdonald of Montreal, for the promotion of scientific agriculture in Canada. The new college and experimental grounds will be situated at St. Anne de Bellevue near Montreal.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, Nov. 21, 1904.

A GREAT deal of feeling has been aroused in local wholesale circles over the present season's direct importation of Merle raisins. Three of the leading jobbers stipulated with the representative, Juan Merle, that in consideration of their accepting 20,000 packages no other raisins sold to Halifax jobbers should have the Merle brand upon them. Unaware of this understanding other jobbers placed their orders with the broker in the usual way and for the usual quantities and it was only when the goods arrived that they discovered that their goods were not branded and that practically their three competitors had secured a monopoly on this market of Merle branded raisins. Not to be defeated, a few branded raisins were secured in Montreal and elsewhere and a wordy war ensued. So far all parties claim to have maintained uniform selling prices but threats of slaughter prices are heard and on the whole the raisin trade is in a very unsettled condition, which can hardly prove satisfactory to any of the interests concerned.

The wholesale grocers of Nova Scotia have at last decided to come into line with those in other parts of the Dominion in the matter of terms to customers. Hitherto long credits were given. In the last couple of years at nearly every meeting of the Guild the matter of shorter terms was discussed and a very strong element came out in favor of a change, but certain opposition could not be overcome and until recently no action was taken. On the first of November an agreement was reached to become operative on January 1st, 1905. The agreement is signed by twenty jobbing houses, including practically the entire wholesale trade of the province. The principal clause in the agreement reads as follows:

"On and after January 1st, 1905, the terms on which we will sell general groceries (terms of sugar and tea unchanged) will be 30 days net or 1 per cent. off 10 days, interest at the rate of 6 per cent. to be charged after 30 days. Terms on flour and meal to be net 30 days and no discount. All monthly accounts to be settled for by the 15th of the following month, otherwise interest will be charged at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. Customers wishing to take advantage of the 1 per cent. discount must pay for the goods before the expiration of the specified 10 days limit."

The adoption of the above terms puts Nova Scotia in line with the wholesale grocers of the entire Dominion and it is believed will be to the advantage of all concerned, retailer as well as wholesaler.

Last week a Flour Men's Association was organized here in connection with the Halifax Board of Trade. The objects of the association are threefold; 1st. to have better facilities provided by the railway at the terminal for handling the trade; 2nd, to secure fair freight rates for export trade; 3rd, to devise ways and means of extending the export business. At the present time merchants have to provide their own warehouses for flour for the export trade, the flour shed at Deep Water having been taken for other purposes. In the matter of freights it is only necessary to say that while practically the entire flour trade of Bermuda is handled by Halifax houses they are compelled to make their shipments from an American port because of the discrimination in railway rates which makes it impossible to ship via Halifax. In the case of Manitoba flours for export the rate is 21 cents in favor of American ports, but in the case of Ontario flours the rate to Halifax is only one cent per cwt. or two cents per barrel higher than the rate to New York. Why the railways should be satisfied to accept a rate from Ontario milling points to Halifax only two cents a barrel higher than to New York and demand a rate of 21 cents per barrel higher for flour which must pass through these same Ontario points on its way to both Halifax and New York is difficult to understand.

The excitement in sugar continues, there having been a net advance of 45 cents in the last ten days. The Acadia refinery is getting out a new equalized list for the guidance of the trade in selling sugar at competing points. The terms are unchanged and the new list differs in no important particular from the old one, save that a few slight changes have been made in freight allowances at unimportant points.

* * *

Trade has been fairly active in the last week. It is better than at the first of the month, but it is still hardly up to that of last year at this date.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. A. P. Murray, sales manager Edwardsburg Starch Co., has returned from a trip to St. John, Nfld.

Mr. P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Ceylon Tea Co., left town on Saturday for a trip to Washington, Philadelphia, Richmond, Virginia, and New York.

Mr. W. F. Crossen, of the Napoli Macaroni Co., Toronto, was a caller upon the Montreal trade during the past week. He favored the offices of The Grocer with a visit; in the course of conversation reporting that his reception by the trade had been most satisfactory and that his company's goods will figure prominently among the stocks of local jobbers and retailers.

Mr. Jas. R. Greig, Montreal, representative of Sutcliffe & Bingham, London has returned from a trip to Quebec, Ottawa, and Kingston in the interest of Kkovah products. Kkovah plum pudding sales are reported as most satisfactory, the excellent quality of the goods combined with their delfware packing making them a very desirable line for the grocery trade and a profitable one for the season.

Mr. Donald C. Alexander, with Mr. James Alexander, exporter and dealer in butter and cheese, Montreal, has been proposed for membership on the Board of Trade by Mr. Alexander McFee. Mr. W. P. Coleman, of the Canada Car Co., has been proposed by Mr. Geo. E. Drummond.

Mr. Robert Greig, of the Robert Greig Co., Toronto, was a visitor at the World's Fair this week. While there Mr. Greig was shown the official list of awards, and was peculiarly gratified to find that his firm had won both gold and silver medals for excellence of their White Swan cereals.

Mr. Hugo Rohde, representative for Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, in the Northwest Territories, visited the head office this week where he was welcomed by a large number of friends. He reports business as booming and that his firm has gained a splendid place in the growing west.

Mr. W. H. Troop, secretary Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, N.S., passed through Montreal this week on his way home after a business trip to Manitoba, Northwest Territories and British Columbia extending over the past four weeks. Mr. Troop reports business generally as first-class, trade in Vancouver, Winnipeg and the other large western cities being particularly good. The fame of "Halifax" and "Acadia" codfish had preceded him and good orders were naturally the result. Mr. Troop during his stay in Montreal made his headquarters with A. H. Brittain & Co., the Montreal and Ontario representatives of Black Bros. & Co.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

New sultana raisins are in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, are in receipt of a heavy shipment of fancy table raisins. Their prices should interest close buyers.

For the holiday trade Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, have a most complete assortment of Bordeaux, Spanish, Tarragona, Madeira and Malaga wines.

CORRECTION.

The Canadian Grocer of Nov. 11 contained an article on "Stock Foods; a Boon to the Farmer," in which the statement was made that no less than 53 prizes had been awarded for representative stock foods at the World's Fair, St. Louis. It should have read that 53 prizes were captured by J. E. Brethour, a prominent Canadian stockman, for hogs fed and fitted on a representative stock food, namely, Anglo-Saxon Stock Food.

Suppose you yourself had a valuable horse taken suddenly sick or had a fine lot of hogs being destroyed by cholera, or a herd of dairy cows ailing, or poultry dying—and immediate relief was imperative to save you from serious loss—would you hesitate about deciding to have the best and surest remedy? Would it pay you to take an indifferent article? Would you think your dealer was doing the square thing by you not to give you the best so as to insure relief and prevent loss and trouble for you? Surely not.

In Pratts Food you have just such an article with over 30 years of the hardest kind of test behind it, and the assurance of quick and certain results. In Pratts Food you have more than a commercial article, you have a business maker that will not only insure you future sales, but also gratitude from stock owners and increased patronage. You have also the conviction that you are selling the oldest and best Stock and Poultry Food in America.

We have some attractive literature showing how we advertise the goods in connection with your own business. A postal card will fetch it.

AN INTERESTING EVENT.

THE Western Daily Press, of Bristol, England, just to hand, contains an account of an interesting event which occurred on Oct. 20, namely, a dinner of welcome tendered by the Constitutional Club to Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, who recently went to Bristol to serve in the capacity of Canadian Commercial Agent.

It would almost seem as if another era in the development of closer trade relations between Canada and the Mother Land had dawned when representative British business men see fit to confer such a signal honor upon a representative of the Department of Trade and Commerce of the Dominion of Canada. Not only does it show that Canada is coming to be looked upon as one of the commercial nations of the world, but that Great Britain recognizes her wisdom in sending commercial representatives to foreign countries as a means of building up her trade and commerce, so much so that the general opinion expressed at the banquet was that Canada's example in this particular might be imitated with advantage.

The commercial agency system as a branch of the work of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, has now been in existence for a number of years, one of the commercial agents in Australia having been at his post for more than a decade. It was only recently, however, that Sir Richard Cartwright, as Minister of Trade and Commerce, began an extension of the system, and appointed in rapid succession commercial agents with headquarters at Birmingham, Leeds, and Manchester. Bristol was the fourth centre in Great Britain to become the headquarters of a Canadian commercial agent.

It is the duty of these commercial agents to find new outlets for Canadian goods, and to place Canadian exporters in touch with possible customers in the different countries. Their duty is to advise shippers what lines of goods, what quality and quantity are wanted, also what styles of package will best meet the demand of foreign trade or endure with the minimum of damage the long journey from producer to consumer. Another important part of their functions consists in informing Canadian shippers what mistakes are complained of by local importers; in short, what obstacles are preventing a satisfactory development of Canadian trade and what suggestions the importers could make with a view to the removal of such obstacles. Similarly commercial agents are instructed to afford importers every information regarding Canadian sources from which they may draw their supplies. Since one-sided trade is never satisfactory nor permanent, the various Canadian commercial agents are making a strong effort towards the development of return trade. Generally speaking, however, they aim to exploit as thoroughly as possible the markets of the countries in which they are stationed for the benefit of Canadian exporters.

RECIPROCITY IN COAL.

We direct attention to a paragraph from the Ottawa Journal on the subject of Nova Scotia coal.

From reports in Nova Scotia papers, we judge there are two movements on foot. One is to secure reciprocity in coal in order to obtain an outlet in New England. The other aims to push the Nova Scotia market past Montreal into Ontario. That province not being a natural market for that coal, it follows that its supporters rely upon the ascendency of protectionist doctrines to succeed.

The interests of the manufacturers and consumers of Ontario Province lie in the direction of making reciprocity palatable to the mine owners in Nova Scotia. The low rate of freight, 60c from Louisburg to Boston, is a powerful argument in favor of that solution.

CANADIAN TRADE WITH CARDIFF.

THE interest of Canadian exporters centres largely in securing suitable ports abroad; that is, ports which allow of requisite dockage, storage and shipping facilities, and by their location assist materially in furthering prompt and efficient distribution of goods to the various consuming centres. The better the location the greater the success that must undoubtedly attend the efforts of the shipper. In this connection the attention of The Canadian Grocer was recently called to the port of Cardiff, Wales, on account of the many advantages it offers to Canadian fruit exporters. According to a leading Welsh journal, Cardiff's dock accommodation is unique, its shipbuilding yards of growing importance, and being in touch by rail with all the leading consuming cities in England, it is well suited to become one of the most popular receiving and distributing centres for foreign and colonial fruits in the United Kingdom.

Immense quantities of imported fruits are now consumed in West of England districts, the increased importations of recent years being largely due to the development of the distributive fruit trade in the cities and towns between Cardiff and Birkenhead. The wholesale fruit shippers, merchants and dealers in Cardiff enjoy every necessary facility for building up an immense trade. They can supply the Midland and Northern cities and markets, including London, Leicester, Sheffield and Birmingham, in the most efficient and economical manner. With regular and direct steamship services devoted to the foreign and colonial fruit trade, Cardiff would soon become one of the most influential ports on the west coast, because it offers such excellent facilities for controlling the demand in the Midlands, its position readily enabling its merchants and importers to deal with large shipments upon a profitable basis.

In respect to Canadian, American, Californian and Canary Island fruits, the import trade is especially promising. Cardiff offers a first-class opening for extended shipments of goods from each of the above mentioned producing sections. Canadian apples can be received and sold with the utmost dispatch. Not only does Cardiff command the Midland fruit trade, being in direct contact with the largest and best buyers there, but through no other port can the increasing consumption in Wales be dealt with. The reputation of the fruit importers and merchants of Cardiff, moreover, is recognized by all sections of the trade throughout the four kingdoms.

Cardiff is geographically the natural ocean port for the Midlands, which include Birmingham and Staffordshire, largely populated by industrial classes also. The importance, for instance, of Cardiff for the Canadian trade in undoubted. From Montreal, via Cardiff, the distance to Birmingham is 2,874 miles; to Liverpool, 2,906; Milford, 2,-904; and Southampton, 2,913 miles. The importance of a mining and industrial population to colonial fruit shippers cannot be too strongly insisted upon. In proportion to population the import trade for fruit and foodstuffs is better in Cardiff than in London, over a quarter of a million bushels of Canadian and American apples being dealt with by Cardiff firms each year. Quantities are brought direct by the Lord line of steamers from Montreal. The demand, however, is in no way satisfied by these arrivals, and has to be met by supplies brought from other ports. It is estimated that 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian apples could easily be disposed of at good prices in Cardiff each year if direct and regular shipments were forthcoming. It seems rather surprising that the Cardiff distributors, through the want of adequate direct shipments of oranges, apples, etc., have to draw their supplies from distant import centres. The fact that they do this, and yet have a vastly increased local trade to deal with, is proof of the importance of Cardiff as a receiving and distributive centre for fruits.

From these observations it would seem that Canadian apple shippers could make no mistake in using the port of Cardiff. The Lord line steamers ply directly between Montreal and Cardiff. From the representatives of the Lord line at Montreal it is learned that the great drawback to regular and profitable sailings has been the inability to obtain return cargoes, a matter the commercial interests of Cardiff through its Chamber of Commerce ought to look into. Lumber, flour, grain, cheese and butter are some of the principal Canadian exports which could be carried and there is little doubt but that a satisfactory carrying trade in these commodities could be managed were the interests on the other side to be exploited as they deserve. The agents of the Lord line report that instead of two sailings per month some few years ago they have been compelled to put their boats on other routes and during the past season have only been able to send out two vessels. Lumber, which constituted a considerable proportion of the freight, has, owing to poor business abroad, become practically a dead letter. The Lord line would no doubt be willing to make regular and more frequent sailings, but it must have return cargoes. The Canadian Grocer has always argued in favor of a greater interchange of business between Canada and the Mother Country, and to that end has advocated better shipping, railway, terminal and other facilities which tend to increase mutual trade. Judging from Welsh journals' remarks the merits of Cardiff are strong, and it is to be hoped that action will be taken by the shippers and importers on both sides (particularly the most directly interested business men of Cardiff) which will result in steady and increased trade.

CANADIAN FRUIT GOING TO WASTE.

ACCORDING to the November bulletin issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the yield of Fall or non-shipping varieties of apples this year was very large, and notwithstanding the fact that the demand for this class of fruit was more than met, thousands of bushels in various parts of the province remained unpicked or were fed to live stock. The question at once arises: Who is responsible for so much fruit going to waste, and what can be done to remedy the situation?

It would seem that an effort ought to be made by Ontario canners to utilize the surplus fruit, especially at a time when the export market offers such splendid inducements. Instead of doing this the Canadian Canners Limited, to quote Mr. A. McNeill, Chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa, as interviewed by the Toronto Globe, is resting on its oars, catering almost exclusively to the domestic trade, while at the same time it is paying comparatively little attention to the export market. If the canners were only more enterprising at least fifty per cent. more money would find its way into the hands of the farmers, and the volume of trade be increased yearly by no less than $5,000,000, according to a conservative estimate. Their activity at the present time, however, is nothing more nor less than a stumbling block in the way of the healthy development of the fruit growing industry in Ontario.

The Canadian Grocer is in favor of such combinations as the Canadian Canners for purposes of economy of manufacture and selling, and particularly for the building up of the canning industry in this country. At the same time it is not in sympathy with a policy that aims to create a monopoly by exclusive selling agreements, and is of the opinion that any canner, or combination of canners, who fail to see the advantage to be derived from working up as large an export business as possible, particularly when they have the necessary wherewithal at their very doors, are not only blind to their own best interests but to the best interests of Canadian trade.

THE POSTAL C.O.D. SCHEME.

WE are pleased to note that the attempt made by the British postmaster-general, Lord Stanley, to introduce the postal cash-on-delivery system into England and the British Isles, has proved a failure. Such a volume of protests poured in upon him that the bill legalizing the introduction of the system has been withdrawn. Every retailer from one end of the land to the other raised his voice against the innovation, with the result that Lord Stanley found himself opposed by such a solid phalanx of the retail interests that to proceed in the face of it was rank foolishness.

Canada's interest in this incident has not been merely that of a spectator. Lord Stanley had his eye on the colonies quite as much as on the home land. He went to the trouble of sounding the postal departments of all the colonies on the question.

While we are not aware what was said by our own postoffice authorities, it is quite patent what would be said by the commercial interests of 'this country, outside a small section comprising a few manufacturers and the big department stores. Canadian retailers, we take it, would be quite as loud in condemnation of the scheme as any of their British contemporaries.

C. o. d. means more trade for the large central establishments, who advertise far and wide, and less business for local merchants who are unable to advertise outside their own immediate neighborhood. Small businesses are already sadly handicapped, and the result of still further diminishing their sphere of action would be disastrous to many of them.

A GOOD SORT OF CULTURE.

AT the request of Mr. R. T. Steele, of Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton. The Canadian Grocer is reproducing in this week's issue an appreciation of the late Mr. T. Hazell, of Hamilton, Ont., appearing in the Hamilton Herald of November 12. Mr. Steele was one of the closest friends of the deceased and as he was more or less closely associated with him in business for years he is in a position to speak with authority when he says that in Mr. Hazell's death the business community of Hamilton has sustained an irreparable loss in so far as he was an exemplary type of business man.

"When the word 'culture' is used in its human application, nine times out of ten it means culture of the intellect or the aesthetic faculties. The motive for it is usually selfish—either personal satisfaction in one's own development or a craving for appreciation and praise from others. How often does this culture run to seed without fertilizing other minds and characters! Self-centred, caring only for the development of his own talents, pandering to his own tastes and unmindful of the needs of others, the egoistic culture-crank too often goes down to his grave without having done any real good to his fellow men.

"A man died in Hamilton, Ont., November 11 who did not give much thought or time to intellectual or aesthetic culture. He was an unpretentious man—a grocer, diligent in business, honorable and faithful in his social and business relations, but modest in his estimate of his own worth. He would have laughed heartily at the notion that he was worthy of eulogy, and yet during his funeral service every retail grocery in the city was closed as a mark of respect, a thing without precedent in the history of Hamilton. He thought little of himself, but very much about others. There was one form of culture that he prized highly and practised earnestly—the culture of brotherly kindness, of charity in the true sense. Of this grace he sowed in abundance—and he reaped an abundant harvest. A young man, not yet 40, there was probably no other man in this city for whom a real affection was felt by a greater number of people. Who can estimate the range and value of the good influences that have had their source in the kindly, wholesome, manly, sympathetic nature of Tom Hazell?

"No self-centred devotee of self-culture, he. But the culture of which he was an exemplar is perhaps quite as worthy of attention as that of the library and the studio and the laboratory, and its fruits are not to be despised."

WHAT ABOUT THE COAL DUTY?

(Journal, Ottawa).

IN the affairs of this Dominion the little Province of Nova Scotia has been heard from in the past, and since the events of the 3rd of November, is not likely to be dumb. Just now the coal question is bothering her. She is commencing to raise a surplus of coal, which she wants a market for. New England would do for the market if a United States duty of 53c per ton against outside coal did not interfere. Ontario would suit also but that Pennsylvania coal can be delivered there at most points at cheaper prices than the carriage alone on Nova Scotia coal. The proposition is thrown out that Nova Scotia may ask Mr. Fielding to double the duty in favor of Nova Scotia coal.

The battle cry of the manufacturers, "Sufficient protection to hold the domestic market," is equally good for coal producers, and while the manufacturers may not relish the presence of these new allies in their procession to Government Hill, they may have to keep step with them.

Meanwhile, what the consumer would like—the person who buys coal for his home or business—would be to see the duty on coal abolished altogether.

Business Men in Parliament

A. E. Kemp, M.P. elect for East Toronto.

A. E. KEMP, M.P., who carried East Toronto in the Conservative interest by an overwhelming majority, is of English descent, though born at Clarenceville, Quebec, on August 11, 1858. His grandfather came from Hull, England, settling first in Montreal and then in Toronto. His father was born in Hull.

The member's business career opened in Montreal, when as a boy he entered the firm of Prouse Bros., rising to be cashier. After five years' service, he started into business for himself in the wholesale furnishing line. In 1885 he moved to Toronto and two years later he succeeded to the business of the Dominion Tin and Stamping Works, a manufacturing concern which had started operations in 1866. Mr. Kemp has had remarkable success in the industrial world and to-day the firm of A. E. Kemp & Co. is known far and wide, as one of the premier institutions of Canada. Over 300 hands are employed and over 2,000 different articles of metal are manufactured.

Mr. Kemp has always taken a prominent position in the business life of his home city. He became a member of the Board of Trade in 1891, and passing through the various stages of office ultimately became president in 1899, holding that important position for two years.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Nov. 24, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS continues good. Money is plentiful; collections are good and confidence seems to pervade the whole structure of finance. When the Quebec elections are over, things will at once become more settled. There is a general feeling of a broadening and rising market following the Federal elections and good crops make the backbone of the country's money-spending. Sugar is again featured on the markets. Another advance took place last week of ten cents, making granulated in barrels quoted at $5.20 per cwt. The strong position is said to be based upon the strength of raws and Willet & Gray in their last detailed statement indicate a deficiency in raw sugar. Molasses will not likely stir much until February and at present the market is inactive though firm. Coffee, though strong, maintains the decline reported last week and is a very interesting commodity just now both for buyers and sellers.

Dullness still dominates the tea market although some activity has been noticed locally. The last report of Dodwell & Co. from the country of production states that the market was weak but the demand had increased owing to the slight decline in prices generally. Japans are holding their own in price and a better feeling has set in. Canned goods of all kinds are selling well and the call for Blue Point oysters in two pound cans has been surprising. These goods are exceedingly scarce, so the trade should be warned accordingly. They are not expected on the market until Christmas. Figs are scarce. Sultanas have dropped away down and on the other hand California raisins have advanced half a cent and have a tendency to go still higher. Pressed hops have advanced and are now selling at from 25 to 28c. There is a moderate demand for spices and the pepper advance has been maintained. Fish of all kinds are selling freely and the first stock of frozen sockeye salmon is on the market, also new pickled lake trout. The flour market is very much alive and the recent advances have been maintained. The demand for export flour seems to be increasing heavily. Eggs and provisions generally are firm and good stock find ready buyers. Cheese and butter are going to conclude the season quite a good deal better than was expected two months ago.

SUGAR.

Another advance of ten cents makes sugar again the talk of the grocery market. Granulated is now selling at $5.20 per 100 lbs. which is unusual to be sure. The strong raw market has much to do with the situation. The best authorities report a probable deficiency in the raw production, so that the prospects are for dearer refined sugar. Willet & Gray have just published a long report which tells exhaustively the situation.

"Closer estimates are now possible, and are given below. The figures include those for all the principal countries, among which are Russia and other countries not in the Brussels convention, as under present conditions surplus sugars from the latter countries will find a market somewhere in the world, displacing a like amount from the convention countries. Looking back, the world's consumption for the campaign year 1901-2 appears to be some 700,000 tons larger than the year before, the heavy increase being due to tariff changes in the United Kingdom. During 1902-03 the consumption was smaller in anticipation of lower prices in Europe, when the Brussels convention became effective, September 1, 1903.

"The consumption during the last (1903-04) campaign was very heavy, 10,895,238 tons, an increase of 10 per cent. for the world, owing principally to the reduction in European prices to local consumers, and partly due to the refilling of stocks depleted the year before. If we apply the same percentage of increase to this campaign year there would be required for consumption 11,984,761 tons, while the estimated total supply is only 11,323,605 tons, or a minus of 660,000 tons.

"There must be a workable stock in the world, in hand and afloat, on September 1, 1905, of at least 500,000 tons, as this will be reduced 300,000 tons in October, pending the receipt of new crops, and by reserving this quantity out of the total supply there will remain for consumption only 10,823,605 tons, or less than was consumed last campaign.

"One question is, How high must prices go in order to check the consumption to this extent?

"Another question is, Can there be such an increase in production next (1904-05) campaign as to give an adequate supply and cause a reaction in prices to anything like the recent level of values? A heavy increase in cane production is not to be expected, and a million tons more beet will all be wanted. It looks to us as if high prices will rule for two years at least. Following are statistics:

	Tons.

COFFEE.

Some improvmeent has taken place in the coffee market locally and the demand has been better than during the previous month. Mail advices state that Santos receipts are likely to be from 650,000 to 750,000 bags. This would not have a tendency to improve the general market. Then another damper has come to hand in the report of the world's visible supply having increased 14,000 tons. There are probabilities of heavy stocks loading the market towards the end of the year. However at present there has been a tendency towards dearer rates. Milder grades of coffee are so cheap now that they might easily advance.

TEA.

With a dull local market the news from the different countries of production seems encouraging. From Yokohama dated October 28 Smith, Baker & Co. state that the buying season has practically finished for this year and while prices to the producer for choicest crop were fairly satisfactory the same cannot be said for second and later crop teas. All transactions since August first have shown a serious loss to everybody concerned in the growing, picking and forwarding of teas to primary markets. Unless prices improve both the land and labor will probably be devoted to other industries. They further state that it is their firm conviction that basket fired teas which have been falling off in make of leaf for two or three years will continue to deteriorate instead of improve. They attribute this fact to the skilled labor required to make good style teas, being too expensive and the trade will not pay a price equivalent to the cost of extra labor involved in producing fancy leaf. There has been a fair demand for medium teas of both India and Japan, which will probably continue owing to the favorable values. In Chinas there has been little attention paid to Young Hysons although the quality of goods coming forward is said to be very desirable. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

Marked activity has been noted in canned goods of all descriptions especially in canned fruits. Export trade in fruits is alive and the demand for pears is notable, English buyers making inquiries through local brokers for pears. The salmon market continues very firm, as the available supplies are small. From France it is learned that there is still some fishing going on for sardines although the principal factories have closed. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Currants are very firm and according to mail advices there may be some excitement and a rise in the market. However the fruit trade generally is very dull, Valencia raisins are declining in price owing to immense supplies. The stock arriving is of excellent quality and good size, being somewhat mixed in color. Re-stoned raisins it might be well for the trade to remember are more or less a manufactured article and the production is somtimes limited so that orders should be sent in advance of requirements. Muscatels are reported to be of A1 quality and prices are reported reasonable. The market for sultanas is weak and the California stock has advanced half a cent a pound with a tendency towards a further rise. Figs are scarce. Persian dates are reported unsatisfactory, and their first arrivals are expected in a couple of weeks. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Great interest is being taken in Almeria grapes which the trade declares will go higher and buyers would do well to take advantage of the market now. Fruit of all kinds is active and the market is steady. Florida pine apples are selling at $4 for 24's size. The foreign apple market is reported very strong. Cable advices indicate an improvement. No. 1 Baldwins have sold from $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel. All good brands have brought good prices and the local market is busy and copiously supplied. We quote:

Vegetables.

Onions still rule the market and are the best vegetable for selling prices available. They are in strong demand and the prices are high. Red onions in bags are selling at $1.50 a bag (75 lbs) and yellows at $1.60 per 80-lb bag. Some of those Simcoe county onions have sold well in the east this year and the demand is still strong. All other vegetables are in good steady demand. Turnips are coming in more freely and prices have a tendency to decline. We quote:

Fish.

The first lot of sockeye salmon from the coast, that is frozen fish, is on the market and so is the pickled lake trout. There is a reported shortage in the codfish catch in Newfoundland of 150,000 quintals. However, all kinds of fish is in excellent demand and it is expected things will be much brisker in about ten days after Advent sets in. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

No new feature has arisen in the egg market. In the wholesale way there were small offerings in straight gathered stock and little has been doing. The market rules from 22 to 22 1-2c while sales were made of good cold storage stock at from 19 to 19 1-2c.

POULTRY.

The poultry market is quiet but the market is steady. Turkeys sold at 14 to 15c. chickens at 10c, fowls at 6c and geese at from 8 1-2 to 9c.

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

No change has taken place in the price of live hogs and the tone is still easy. Plenty of supplies are coming forward for which the demand is only fair and sales of selected lots are being made at $5, mixed lots at $4.75 and heavy at $4 to $4.50 per 100 lbs. The dressed hog market is unchanged, fresh killed stock selling at $6.75 to $7.25 and country dressed at $5.50 to $6.25. Cured meats are selling fairly well and a steady demand has been noticed for some lines at unchanged prices. We quote:

CHEESE.

Nothing very interesting in cheese can be recorded except perhaps the movement of some underpriced stock and the fact that the stocks of the finest are so concentrated, bringing buyers and sellers closer together. The season bids fair to conclude much better than was at first expected. The price for finest all round was about 10 to 10 1-2c per lb.

BUTTER.

Steadiness marks the butter market with considerable local demand. Finest creamery is selling at 20c to 20 1-4c, and western dairy at 15 to 15 1-2c.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Nov. 24, 1904.

Groceries.

A HEALTHY trade has been transacted in groceries during the week under review, with no special feature unless it be the distribution of foreign dried fruits and nuts for the Christmas trade. The sugar situation continues very firm, with another advance of 10c in Canadian refined effective on Wednesday, November 16th: considerable speculation on the part of the retail trade is reported, on account of the feeling that the present high level of prices is likely to rule for many months. A slight reaction may follow the pronounced upward tendency of sugar, but a big drop does not seem likely. At the same time it must be remembered that speculators have had a hand at work in bringing about present situation and it must be viewed accordingly with care.

Canned goods continue firm, especially tomatoes. In order to meet the requirements of the trade several carloads of tomatoes have been imported from the United States during the week. Cheap grade Indian teas have advanced in price on account of crop shortage, and a similar tendency is noticeable in Ceylons. Green teas have been moving more freely on account of the very low level of values offering. The coffee market is brighter, the Rio market having dropped a few points, although Mochas are high. Valencia raisins are disappointing on account of the exceptionally low prices quoted on California seedlings.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation in canned goods continues firm and steady without special feature except a general firmness, particularly in tomatoes. It is thought there is enough corn to meet the requirements of the trade until next season. Tomatoes are very scarce, however, several cars having been imported during the week from Baltimore and Philadelphia. The same thing happened about three years ago, when there was a shortage in the Canadian tomato pack. An estimate of the cost of such goods laid down in Toronto reveals the interesting information that the duty and freight charges amount to 62c, whereas the cost of the article at the point of production is 65c, bringing the net cost of tomatoes laid down in Toronto up to $1.17.

A seasonable trade is reported in canned fruits, with canned fish firm and high, and the demand for canned meats nominal. We quote the following prices:

TEAS

Locally teas are quiet for the week under review, and the season of increased buying by the retail trade will not begin until January.

Indian teas in all cheap grades have advanced ½d per lb. in Calcutta, for which readers of The Grocer will have been prepared by recent market reports. The opinion is current in prominent tea circles that a further advance in the market is sure to take place, since it is now certain that the output of Indian tea, while still quite large, will be from ten to twelve million pounds less than earlier estimates.

The Ceylon market is also higher, but the advance is not very marked as yet, owing to the fact that it has not yet reached within ½d per lb. of as low a price as is ruling in Calcutta for commonest tea. The scarcity of strictly fine flavoring Ceylon tea continues and buyers are having the utmost difficulty in securing teas of this character. Strictly fine Indians are also in short supply and bringing good prices.

A little more has been doing in green teas, the market being on a very low basis of values, which seems to be stimulating consumption. We quote the following prices:

SPICES.

The spice market has been quiet during the week under review. Cable advices from Batavia name 12 11-16c for Lampong for November-January shipment and advices received from Holland say that the Lampong crop of pepper will amount to only 37,000 piculs, as compared with 110,000 piculs last year. SUGAR.

The recent record advance in this staple seems to have reached its limit for the time being, and in Europe there have been some reactions on profit-taking. After going to 14s 6d f.o.b. Hamburg (equal to 5.12c for centrifugals, c. and f. New York) beets have with occasional fluctuations settled down to 13s 11 1-4d for November and December shipment. This latter is equal to parity of 5.00c for centrifugals in New York and there are rumored sales of the latter of Cuban new crop at 3 3-8c cost and freight, equal to 4.74c landed terms duty paid. These last sales indicate increasing firmness in Cuban holders' ideas and the advance in canes along with the decline in beets serves to narrow down the differential between the two descriptions which has been so abnormal. At one time it was as much as 59c per 100 lbs. This equalization of values must continue until both descriptions are on about the same parity and all present indications are that canes will advance further. While the disparity in favor of canes continues American refiners will have to compete with British refiners for the few available sugars, and we already hear of sales of cargo Peruvians and one of Demeraras to the United Kingdom within the past week.

Now that Java sugars are no longer a factor for this season Canadian refiners have to look elsewhere for their sugars pending receipts of new crop British West Indies and we hear of sale to Canada of cargo Fiji centrifugals, the first on record. These sugars come in under the preference.

Sales of new crop Cubas for early shipment so far total over 130,000 tons. The earliest shipment now available is January-February, which is held for 3 7-16c cost and freight New York.

Total stocks in United States and Cuba are only 135,355 tons, a decrease of 90,280 tons from last year. The world's visible supply is now 1,526,355 tons, a decrease from last year of 550,097 tons.

Mr. F. O. Licht, of Magdeburg, recently issued his second estimate of the European beet crops, figuring 4,950,000 as the probable outturn or a reduction of 70,000 tons from his first estimate. This would mean a deficiency in Europe of over 900,000 tons compared with last crop and allowing for increased cane production would mean a total supply during present sugar campaign of 9,732,000 tons against 10,372,752 tons actual production last campaign. These figures are suggestive, especially when

Foreign Dried Fruits

The currant market has been fluctuating within narrow limits for the week, the chief influence at work being doubtless fluctuations in exchange. Prices are about on the same level as the average for the whole season. Notwithstanding important advances in values of California raisins and the fact that considerably fewer Spanish raisins were imported than usual, the local market is devoid of any strength and the bulk of the fruit is being sold at prices that leave importers absolutely without margin. There are a few sellers, however, who refuse to follow the crowd, holding that the quantity of fruit in the country will be insufficient to supply the holiday demand, and that better prices will rule within the next few weeks. Markets abroad are very dull, and as late as the first week of the current month there were said to be 100,000 cwt. of fruit in Spain, so that an opportunity will be provided to replenish stocks on a moderate basis for Winter and Spring trade.

The feature of this season's trade locally is the demand for fine table fruit. We quote the following prices:

FOREIGN NUTS.

The distribution of new crop nuts arriving last week has become general. What is perhaps a record shipment was that made by E. M. Dadleszen of Bordeaux, France, who received cables on October 28 for walnuts for which the G.T.R. delivered advice notes at Toronto on Tuesday, November 15.

Quality of meat and color of new almonds is exceptionally good. Marbot walnuts are arriving in good condition. During the week prices on filberts and pecans have declined. Marbot walnuts are quoted at from 10 1-2 to 11c. We quote the following prices:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

Sales of evaporated apples during the week are reported as rather slow at 4 1-2 to 6c. Lower quotations are maintained in certain quarters, although the above quotation is the one ruling the market at the present time.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

A very healthy tone is manifest in the egg trade. While warm weather has interfered with the sale of meats and other things it has created an increased demand for eggs. Very few new-laid eggs are coming forward, but the demand for fresh is very large. There is no change in prices, which are:

Eggs, new laid	0 22 0 23
" fresh	0 20 0 21
" pickled	0 19 0 20

HONEY.

The honey market is practically the same as last week with trade steady. The hard Winter, late Spring and comparatively cool and wet nectar season have combined to limit honey production. Colonies were rather weak in the Spring and required considerable building up. The average yield of honey per colony, Spring count, will be about 30 pounds, or some 10 pounds less than was looked for in August. There is very little basswood honey. We quote the following prices:

Honey, extracted clover, per lb	0 08 0 08½
" sections, No 1, per doz	1 90 2 25
" " No. 2, "	1 65

BEANS.

Prices in beans continue unchanged with the market steady.

Notwithstanding the lateness of the crop beans promised well in August; since then some of the crop has been more or less damaged by frost. The bean acreage in Ontario for the present year is estimated at 50,892 acres and the yield at 912,849 bushels or 17.9 bushels per acre as against 978,246 bushels and 18.4 bushels per acre in 1903. Our quotations are as follows:

SEEDS.

Trade is quiet and prices continue unchanged. The outlook is for a quiet market for some weeks, with the same prices ruling as at present. Our quotations are as follows:

Red clover	5 00 6 75
Mammoth clover, per bush	5 00 6 75
Timothy	1 00 1 35

Green Fruits.

The fine weather of the past week has strengthened the demand for fruit generally. Navel and Mexican oranges have arrived on the market and are showing excellent color for first shipments. Reports state fair-sized crops of navels. The large crop of oranges in California during the past years warranted Mexican growers in up-rooting the majority of their trees, which means that there will be a comparatively small crop of Mexican oranges this year. Bananas have been scarce on the local market, owing to increased demand in the United States during Thanksgiving week. The local demand has been limited, however, and although there is no surplus stock, prices have declined.

Sweet potatoes in double headed barrels. Canadian pears and Fall varieties of apples have been struck off the list at the close of the season. The supply of Canadian grapes is diminishing and will be over in a week.

Prices generally are easier, with the exception of cranberries, which have advanced owing to scarcity caused by severe frosts. Although cranberries have been steadily advancing at shipping points, indications point to no further advancement here, owing to the fact that dealers are well stocked, and will not import further on account of the difficulty of making sales to the retailer at higher prices. Budd's Long Keepers are expected to arrive about December 5. The consumption of Almeria grapes to date has been enormous, and will continue, owing to the scarcity of Canadian fruit. There is a good inquiry for figs, particularly new Smyrnas, of the Protoban variety, and reports state ready sales. We quote:

Vegetables.

Vegetables in bags and crates are selling readily while vegetables in bulk are quiet. Carrots, turnips, red cabbage, and cauliflowers arriving are first-class quality, but scarce and prices are firm.

In some localities there has been from a fair to a large yield of potatoes, but considerable rot has appeared, more especially where the crop was grown on heavy soils or on low-lying land. The extent of the loss from rot is variously estimated at from 20 to 50 per cent. There were under tillage this year in Ontario 133,119 acres yielding 15,479,122 bushels of potatoes or 110 bushels per acre, as against a yield of 16,676,447 bushels and 120 bushels per acre in 1903. An advance in the price of beets, onions and parsnips is not unexpected. Our quotations are:

Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

The demand has slackened somewhat owing to the fact that the local trade is well supplied, and prices are on too high a basis for export. During the week Manitoba Northern wheat, No. 1 has declined 1 1-2 cents per bushel, No. 2 2 1-2c and No. 3 2 1-2c per bushel. Red and white wheat have each dropped 1 1-2c per bushel. Barley, owing to the strong demand, has advanced in price. We quote:

Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

London sales for wool have increased from 5 to 10 per cent., and as a result prices in wool on the local market have advanced. Lamb skins are still advancing in price on account of age and size of stock arriving. Tallow is quiet, with prices steady. We quote:

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

Things are rather quiet in the smoked meat market on account of the mild weather. Every line of business is feeling the need of a cold snap to infuse new life. Prices have come down a cent in heavy mess pork and short cut, not only on account of the smaller demand but also because stocks are so low that dealers are selling "closer to the block." That is, meat is sold directly after killing and the expense connected with storage thus saved. In fresh meats the weather has had just as serious an effect, but no changes are quoted. We quote these prices:

POULTRY.

For such weather as is being experienced now there is almost a glut of poultry in the market. In spite of various rumors of shortage for Thanksgiving a quantity has been brought forward, which has brought prices down a cent in every line. The public is not after poultry during a time of high temperature, but it is probable that even with good weather the stock on hand would be over large. The prices are as follows, with old turkeys, of which a few are coming to hand, at 9 to 10c:

Chickens, spring	0 08	0 09
Hens	0 05	0 06
Geese	0 08	0 09
Turkeys	0 12	0 14
Ducks	0 08	0 09

BUTTER.

It is complained that the quantity of butter coming to hand is very small and has been so for some time. It is between seasons for the factories and creamery butter is said to be quite scarce. A couple of weeks will see this remedied, but it is not likely that prices will drop. Few tubs are offered and what are sold are stocks that have been held over by dealers in their cellars for some time. Prices are as follows:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 21	0 22
" solids, fresh	0 20	0 20½
Dairy prints	0 17	0 19
" in tubs	0 14	0 17
" large rolls	0 15	0 16

CHEESE.

There is a good demand for cheese both at home and abroad. Shipments to England this week show that the English dealer sees no insurmountable obstacle in the higher prices asked. As long as these do not go more than a half cent higher consumption will not be lessened. Stocks are not overlarge and dealers are in no fear of any being left on their hands. We quote for this week:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10¼	0 10½
" twins	0 10¼	0 11

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Wednesday, Nov. 24, 12.30 p.m.

BUTTER—Better demand for fine creamery; jobbers have bought up finest October at 20 and 20½c.; for export, buyers pay readily 20 to 20½c.; fair to good creamery, 19½ to 19¾c.; under grades to medium, 19 to 19½c. Export market reached its minimum.

CHEESE—Low priced sales are ruling. Not so much stock in cold storage as was anticipated. Finest Ontario, 10¾ to 10¾c.; finest townships, 10¼ to 10¼c; finest Quebec, 10 t 10¼c.; French cheese, ordinary, 9¾ to 10c.

PROVISIONS—Prices still steady; demand fair for smoked meats and lard; movement good. Dressed hogs quiet; prices easy and unchanged.

EGGS—Market quiet, but firm; selected stock brought 24c. to-day, and limed 20c. per doz.

And for corresponding period of 1903	338,277

Shipments of butter this season to date are about 150,000 packages in excess of those of last season, but a slight decrease of 38,000 packages when compared with the shipments of 1902, which were 520,004 packages.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of the Canadian Grocer,

St. John, N. B., Nov. 22, 1904.

BUSINESS has been very active. Not only have the dealers been busy getting out their Fall orders, but dried fruit and other lines arriving add very much at this particular season to the regular work. Orders from outside points are large this Fall. The extreme weather of last year made it difficult for the outside dealers to renew stocks and many found themselves short of supplies. The general desire is not to be caught again. River navigation is closed. The first Winter port steamer will be here before this report is in print, so we have about settled down to Winter business. Coastwise vessels are still running.

The matter of chief interest is the continued advance in sugar. Quite good stocks are held. Never was the advantage of the Grocers' Guild so manifest to its members. Without it they could not possibly enjoy the benefit or at least anything like the full benefit of the advance. The Winter freight rates on flour increases the already firm market. The holiday has added to the work of the wholesale men during the past week.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

White & Co., Toronto, received a car California navel oranges this week. The color was good for a first car, which was well taken by the trade.

James Rutherford & Co., Montreal, are offering special values in new Japan fannings and siftings which are sure to interest buyers.

New dates, "Fard," "Hallowee" and "Sair," are in stock with the Eby, Blain Co., Toronto.

Leonard Bros., Montreal, report the arrival of B. C. frozen sockeye salmon salted in barrels, half barrels and tierces: also Labrador salmon in barrels and tierces as well as pickled lake trout in kegs. Dealers would do well to write for prices.

Laporte, Martin & Co., Montreal, have just received 100 cases shelled walnuts, extra fine quality, which they are offering to the trade at very low prices; also Grenoble walnuts, Tarragona almonds and Sicily filberts.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, is offering tempting values in a range of teas this week. Samples are freely furnished by Mr. Marceau on application.

McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit merchants, Toronto, are in receipt of one of the first cars of navel oranges to arrive on the local market. They also expect a car of Mexican oranges and a car of Almeria grapes.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, report having a heavy demand for their Diamond Brand Maple Syrup; put up in pints, quarts, halves, gallons and five gallon tins.

The Eby, Blain Co., Toronto, reports the arrival of their first shipment of new "Marbot" and "Bordeaux" walnuts.

Buyers of apricots will do well to communicate with H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto.

H. P. Eckardt & Co., Toronto, are selling extra good quality Brazil nuts.

The Eby, Blain Co., Toronto, report a very heavy stock of Malaga raisins, which they are offering at low prices.

The first Fard dates for the season arrived in Toronto this week

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Nov. 21, 1904.

BUSINESS is very bright and splendid prospects are anticipated by the trade. All markets continue fairly firm with the exception of the sugar market which has again taken a big advance.

Manager Black, of the Ogilvie Milling Co., in an interview the other day spoke on the subject of conditions as they exist at the present time. "Threshing returns now complete show a yield of sixty-three to sixty-five millions of wheat and although only one and half per cent. of the sixteen millions was inspected and graded below No. 5, still better results may be expected from the large amount still to come forward, as the inferior grades are always first to be marketed.

"The returns of wheat now held in store in the interior elevators added to the quantity now inspected show but one-third of the crop has been as yet delivered by the farmers. The coarse grains are now beginning to move and will show a considerable exportation surplus. There will be a very large amount of money in circulation this year and all financially interested in the country are bound to be more than pleased with the final results of the past season's harvest."

Sugar.

The market which has been very active for the past few weeks has again taken an upward turn, quoting Montreal granulated in barrels at $5.75 and sacks at $5.65; yellows in barrels at $5.15 and in sacks at $5.05. Wallaceburg is holding strong at 10c lower, quoting barrels at $5.65 and sacks at $5.55.

Canned Fruits.

Activity prevails in the market with prices quite firm and the quotations on raspberries are still listed at $3 per case of 2 dozen and strawberries at $3.25 per case of one dozen. The 1904 crop of peaches are quoted 2-lb yellow at $3.75 per case and 3-lb yellow at $5.75 per case. Pears continue strong at $3.25 per case for 2-lb F.B., and $4.25 for 3-lb F.B.

Rolled Oats.

The market continues bright with a strong demand, quoting 80-lb sacks at $2.25, 40-lb sacks at $2.30 and 20-lb sacks at $2.35.

Candied Peel.

The new stock of candied peel is now available which the market quotes as follows: Lemon peel at 9c per lb; orange peel at 9 1-2c per lb; and citron at 14c per lb; 1-lb drums mixed at $2.40 per drum and 1-2-lb drums at $1.30 per drum.

Canned Vegetables.

All lines of canned vegetables hold the prices firm. Canned beans continue strong at $1.80 to $1.90 per case and canned peas at $1.90 per case. Tomatoes are now quite steady since last week's advanced price quoting on the price list at $2.90 to $3 per case.

Cornmeal.

The market for the past week has been very active but firm, quoting cornmeal per sack at $1.75 and per half sack at 90c.

Gillett's Lye.

The market continues to quote Gillett's lye at the advanced price as listed in last week's price list at $4.10 per case.

Peanuts.

The new stock of peanuts which will be on the market in the course of a few days will be listed about 1-2c to 3-4c lower for the cheaper grades and about 1 1-2c lower on the jumbo grade.

Almonds.

The new Valencia shelled almonds are now available at 28c per lb.

Oysters.

The market is bright with a good demand, quoting standard oysters per gallon $2 and select oysters at $2.25 per gallon.

Flour.

The market continues very strong and bright, quoting No. 1 patent at $2.90, No. 2 at $2.70, No. 3 at $2.20 and No. 4 at $1.55.

Green Fruits.

The market is still very active and bright, quoting Florida oranges at $6 per case, California lemons at $6.50 per case, Washington pears (Winter Nelles) $3 per case, Ontario Fall apples $2.75 per barrel, Ontario snow apples $4 per barrel, Quebec (Fameuse) snow apples $4 per barrel, fancy XXX Winter apples, Spies and Kings $3.50 per barrel, fancy XXX Greenings and other varieties, $3.25 per barrel, Malaga keg grapes $7 per keg; Chinese figs and dates 5 1-2c per lb.

Provisions.

The firmness of the market is now quite general in all lines of cured meats and the market now quotes the same as in last week's price list:

Hams, per lb	0 14
Breakfast bellies, per lb	0 13½
Breakfast backs, per lb	0 10

57 VARIETIES

PICKLES. PRESERVES. RELISHES.

"THE first and only time in history that a world's fair has awarded a prize for the thing and for the treatment of the people who make it!" exclaimed a prominent author and lecturer when he heard that the International Jury of Awards at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, Mo., had conferred two Grand Prizes on H. J. Heinz Co.—one for the excellence of their food products, the other for the welfare work among their employes.

WON GRAND PRIZES

WORLD'S FAIR, ST. LOUIS

Unconsciously the jury did a most logical thing. The Heinz preserves, pickles, baked beans, relishes, etc., are of highest quality. They are made of the best materials by employes who are happy and comfortable, working in a clean, sanitary factory, and developed to a high degree of heart and hand efficiency.

That's why the "57 varieties" are good. High-grade work-people produce high-grade results.

Special Correspondence of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 17, 1904.

LOCAL dealers have no complaint to make as regards the amount of business being done. In some lines there is a decline of activity, the approach of the Winter season being the reason; that is, in fruit and vegetables, but then fruit is mostly off the market with the exception of apples, bananas and such articles as are good nearly all the time. Prices are practically unchanged, though a slight increase in lard is noted. Butter and eggs are the same, but firm, with butter retailing at 35 and 40 cents for the preferred good article, and eggs at 50 and 60c. Flour is climbing and another raise may be noted in a day or two.

Ashcroft potatoes are coming in a little more freely, but the price will still hold good at $25 per ton, and will remain at that figure for the Winter. The quality of potatoes is very fine this season, in fact all fruits and vegetables are some of the best we have had in this province.

About the only change in fruit and vegetables is the drop in navel oranges from $5 to $4.50.

Cannerymen are active already in anticipation of the salmon run next year being an equal of that of 1901, the banner year. It was noted a week or so ago of the leasing of the cannery in Washington State by G. I. Wilson and others of this city, and of their intention of securing more. The other day a cannery at Blaine, disposed of under mortgage sale, realized far more than the upset price, so keen was the bidding, and it is expected that the English Bay cannery at Vancouver to-morrow will easily be sold. The Fraser River Canners' Association has asked the Provincial Government to declare itself on the trap question, and there is much activity along this line

Another line of fishing that promises extensive development is the herring. Mr. John J. Cowie, the Scotch expert, who was in Vancouver this week returning from Nanaimo where he was investigating this resource of the provincial fisheries, states that the fish here are not quite so large as on the Atlantic coast, but are all the better for that, as when large they are apt to become coarse. He is confident they are fully up to the standard of the Scotch herring, and can be cured equally as well. The expert curers, whom he had in the Maritime Provinces this year, would have come out to British Columbia had it been known in time, and before they went home. The season is just beginning here. Next year, he states, demonstrations will be given here. He complimented the British Columbia packers upon the kind of a barrel used, it being watertight and airtight, and the original brine in which the fish were cured, was prevented from draining away, thus preserving the flavor of the fish, and keeping them good.

The Brackman & Ker Milling Co. is improving its facilities in all the points in the west where it does business. In Vancouver it has erected a large warehouse 60x400 feet to enable it to meet the demands of business. During the next few months there will be placed in this warehouse one of the most complete and up-to-date cleaning plants in the west. In New Westminster, a mill wharf has been constructed, and an elevator is being seriously considered. At Ladner a large hay barn and granary has been secured, with lots to permit of additions. At Victoria considerable improvement has been made to the machinery, part of the new installation being a plant for the manufacture of cooked goods, similar to those of eastern manufacturers.

The Gulf of Georgia Fish and Curing Co., of Nanaimo, has received an official letter from Consul Morikawa, the Japanese representative at Vancouver, stating that his Government has contracted for enormous quantities of salt fish from all parts of the world for food for the Japanese army, and that it had been found that this company's brand was better packed and kept better than that of any other received. When the steamer Athenian departed on Monday she carried a large consignment to Japan.

American papers have circulated the report that the Athenian may be sunk by the Russians because of carrying raw cotton. The C.P.R. steamers have continually carried this article for many years past and no danger is feared by local authorities.

The firm of Hallam & Wyndham, Limited, of Victoria, has opened a wholesale and retail business in teas, coffees and cocoas. This is a new firm, which will go into the business on a large scale, extensive additions being contemplated shortly.

ought especially to cultivate, a uniform box measuring 10x11x20 inside is recommended. In many cases apples are better for being carefuly wrapped in tissue paper, pears require it always; where the sample of apple is particularly solid, however, this is not essential. The aim in packing the box should be to secure a maximum of compactness and neatness, which means that the box must be perfectly full and that there must be as little tissue as possible, to say nothing of excelsior which is frequently used to excess in packing. (The English buyer has been known to remark that he pays for apples not excelsior.) Ordinarily one thickness of tissue is sufficient and the fruit will open up to better advantage if faced downward in the package.

There is more or less question as to which is the more desirable apple package for the export trade, the box or barrel. For the ordinary trade, say about 80 per cent. of Canadian apples, there can be little doubt that the barrel will always be the more popular package. At the same time it is no secret that a barrel of Canadian apples has never been known to reach Great Britain in perfect condition, and that there are certain varieties of apples which cannot be shipped in barrels without spoiling. To the Englishman, however, who wants a fancy apple for table use price is no consideration, and a bruised apple not to be considered. For this trade the box package is necessary, and it is entirely because Tasmanian and Californian fruit comes thus packed to the English market in perfect condition that it has become so popular.

It ought to be a consideration to the apple shipper to know that the box is about as cheap a form of package as the barrel. The English consumer moreover prefers the box; although it must be confessed that he has become so accustomed to seeing Canadian apples in barrels that he naturally becomes suspicious directly he sees a Canadian box package labelled "Canadian apples." The buyer and the wholesale dealer in this country, and the broker, the wholesaler and the grocer over in England favor the barrel simply because less labor and expense is involved in handling. The opinion of the Fruit Division as outlined by Chief McNeill is that it is simply a matter of educating the English consumer to the superior value of Canadian apples packed in boxes (at least of fancy apples) and of overcoming the existing prejudice of the middleman when this department of the export apple trade of Canada will by the use of box packages and better packing be placed on a more satisfactory commercial basis than it has yet known.

COLD STORAGE.

Although much remains to be accomplished in the perfection of cold storage facilities for early Fall apples at the point of production, the equipment of the ocean steamers sailing from Montreal compares very favorably with anything of the kind in the world. In fact their cold storage plants have become so favorably known that Californian shippers are using Canadian lines extensively for their European fruit trade during the months of August and September in preference to lines sailing from United States Atlantic ports. For late Fall and Winter apples cold storage on shipboard is not necessary, properly ventilated chambers answering all requirements.

AN IDEAL CATTLE FOOD.

WM. R. CUMMINGS, of Cummings Bridge, Ottawa, whose exhibit at the Central Canada Exhibition at Ottawa this year proved especially attractive to visitors, besides manufacturing the well known breakfast food preparation "K-Y," is also patentee and manufacture of "Fat-Equal," a patent calf and pig food. This product, which is a preparation discovered and controlled by Mr. Cummings, is a fine prepared rolled oat flour, sifted, cooked and cleaned, and its use where health and growth is sought is well worth the consideration of farmers and breeders of live stock. So many high recommendations from authorities have been received that the question of "Fat-Equal" being an ideal calf and pig food is considered by Mr. Cummings and those who have employed it with their stock, as no longer a debatable one

Mr. Cummings will be pleased to mail samples, pamphlets and prices to any subscriber of The Grocer interested in this class of cattle food. He is also open to appoint responsible agents throughout the country. Reference to The Grocer's report will bring full particulars.

ONTARIO FRUIT, FLOWER AND HONEY SHOW

THAT the directors of the Ontario Fruit, Flower and Honey Show have succeeded in giving the public a valuable practical demonstration in connection with one of the leading industries of the country is the unanimous opinion of many hundreds who have visited the exhibition in Toronto during the past week.

The Canadian Grocer is interested particularly in the fruit department, and has looked forward anxiously to this new departure of the Ontario and Dominion Departments of Agriculture, the object of which on the one hand is to place before the public the latest achievements in the fruit culture and on the other hand to offer to the fruit growers themselves such hints as will enhance the commercial value of the industry both in the matter of growing fruit best adapted to certain localities and in picking, packing and storing for the export trade. The Government authorities have felt for some time that Canadian growers have not got anything like adequate returns from what is destined to become one of the leading industries of the world, and hopes by holding such fruit exhibitions from time to time to place the fruit growing industry of Canada on a scientific basis in all its phases. That this end is likely to be accomplished in the near future is shown by the large attendance of representative Canadian fruit men at last week's show.

FRUIT STATIONS.

One of the most interesting features is the exhibit of the experimental fruit stations, of which there are 12 distributed through the fruit growing districts of Ontario. The object of these fruit stations is to identify new varieties of fruit introduced by the nurserymen, to discover for the benefit of the fruit grower the varieties best suited to his particular locality for commercial purposes, and to instruct him in the arts of packing and storage according to the latest approved methods.

In the exhibits of the various fruit stations a distinction is made between desirable and undesirable varieties. In grapes, for instance, there are 121 separate varieties shown, but only 12 are classed as desirable commercial grapes. In apples out of 110 distinct varieties only about 15 are recommended for planting. Among the finest exhibits are those made by the Brockville and Prince Edward Island stations, and after seeing such a beautiful collection, to which additional charm is lent by their exquisite "bouquet," one ceases to wonder why Canada's fruit exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition has won such general admiration. The best varieties for the St. Lawrence Valley are undoubtedly the Fameuse, McIntosh, red and scarlet Pippin. In the Prince Edward district the banner varieties are the Fallawater and Ontario.

Among the varieties shown by the Lake Huron station, and classed as desirable, are the Spy, Baldwin, King, Ribston and Blenheim, all of which are rated as good commercial export apples. On the undesirable list are the Wine Sap, Haas, Pewaukee, Magog, Red Streak and Pioneer, classed thus because they are either poor bearers in this particular locality or do not pack well. An interesting exhibit is made by Algoma, the farthest point north in Ontario at which late Fall or Winter apples can be profitably grown. It may be news to readers of The Grocer that the best results are obtained from the culture of late varieties of apples such as Duchess, Alexander, Wolf River, Wealthy, Longfield, and Scots Winter, the farther north they are grown, provided they can mature. As a proof of this it is only necessary to compare samples of the same apple as grown in Algoma and Essex County. The latter fruit shows up well as far as size in concerned, but is deficient in keeping qualities; the apple grown farther north is smaller, but much firmer in consistency and more valuable for commercial purposes.

CO-OPERATIVE PACKING AND SHIPPING.

The Fruit Department at Ottawa after a thorough investigation has come to the conclusion that there must be greater co-operation among Canadian fruit growers if they are to hold the export markets. The general feeling is that in respect to fruit Canada should occupy the same position in foreign markets as she does at the present time in respect to cheese, and to this end the Government authorities have inaugurated a crusade in the interests of more scientific packing and handling of apples. Already in Ontario several associations for the co-operative picking, packing and shipping of apples have been formed with the object of securing greater uniformity and adequately meeting the requirements of the various export markets. Experts will be employed to teach the grower the art of commercial packing of fruit, concerning which the majority of apple growers in Canada are sadly lacking in information. A few far-seeing fruit men have discovered that Canadian fruit is selling in England to-day for about one quarter the price it might be were Canadian shippers to pay proper attention to the matter of packing for the fancy export trade. Even in the Canadian west the fruit trade is abnormal in this respect, namely, that the bulk of the fruit sold comes from California and Oregon. Now this is by no means due to the superior quality of fruit grown in the United States; as a matter of fact the home grown article has generally a better flavor and color than the imported fruit. It is also smoother. The latter is more popular, however, because it is larger, has better keeping qualities and lastly because it is attractively packed. A better illustration of this very fact is to be seen in any Ontario grocer's or fruit dealer's window in fruit season, where California pears, peaches and plums regularly have the preference, simply because of the superior keeping qualities of the imported article. This is in a measure due to the care taken by the Californian in preparing fruit for the market, but also to the fact that so few Ontario fruit growers know what a good commercial pear or peach is.

Through the courtesy of Mr. A. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa, the writer was given a practical demonstration of suitable and unsuitable methods of packing apples for export. For the fancy trade of Great Britain, which is what Canadian fruit growers

THE BEST FLOUR FOR EVERY PURPOSE

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Canadian Rolled Oats for Russia.

DURING the last few days the report has been current in Canadian wheat and cereal circles that Russia is importing a considerable quantity of Canadian rolled oats through the medium of Norway. This would be significant at a time when she, as one of the largest oat producing countries in the world, is engaged in a disastrous war.

The Grocer has interviewed several prominent Canadian exporters on the subject but has not succeeded in obtaining any convincing information. It is true that Canada has exported about twice the volume of rolled oats to Norway this year as she did a year ago. The total, however, does not amount to a very large figure, being considerably less than $100,000. Norway does not manufacture food products, and has yearly to import considerable quantities, mostly from Germany, Scotland, Russia, the United States and Canada. The imports from the United States and Canada depend directly upon crop conditions in Europe—if oats are plentiful there, less rolled oats will be imported from the United States and Canada. Thus the Canadian export trade in this article is a variable quantity. It so happens that the United States is in a better position this year to supply the export markets with products than Canada. Under normal conditions Canada is in a position to compete in the export grain trade with any of the above mentioned countries, and as a matter of fact her export trade with Norway in oat products, although in its infancy, is steadily increasing. The opinion of the trade is that even an increase of one hundred per cent. within the last year can scarcely be credited to anything beyond ordinary market conditions, and that the rumor that the surplus is going to the Russian Government has very little foundation.

Trade Conditions in Trinidad.

In their latest report to The Grocer, dated Nov. 3, Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, say that importations of breadstuffs continue on a very moderate scale, and that although no improvement in quotations can be reported a firmer feeling seems to be slowly developing. Flour of all descriptions is in light supply, particularly the lower grades, stocks of which are nearly exhausted. Split peas are now selling more freely, although there has been a sharp decline in the price of oats owing to several large lots of oats having been landed lately.

Only a few irregular lots of cocoa have arrived from the country within the last fortnight, and while light pickings may be made in some districts before the end of the year it is predicted that the regular crop will be very late and that supplies of any importance will not be forthcoming until February or March, 1905.

Lake of the Woods Company Meets.

At the adjourned annual meeting of the shareholders of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., in Montreal, on Nov. 16, the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Robert Meighen, Thos. Fyshe, David Russell, Robert Reford, W. H. Murray, Robert Thompson, St. John; Hon. Robert MacKay, Cyrus A. Bird, and Albert MacLaren.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors Robert Meighen was elected president and managing director, Thos. Fyshe vice-president, and George O. Hastings general manager, with headquarters at Winnipeg.

Thirty Millions for Flour.

BY way of emphasizing the fact that the flour milling industry is becoming an increasingly important factor in Canadian trade, The Grocer estimates Canada's yearly expenditure for flour at $30,000,000. Among the firms manufacturing the best and most popular brands of Canadian flour, which nothing excels in the markets of the world, is the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Montreal and Winnipeg, who have brought the process of manufacture almost to the limit of scientific perfection by the use of electricity.

Their special brand of "Royal Household" flour (so called because the Prince of Wales selected it for his household) has been successfully introduced in Great Britain, the Netherlands, Scandinavia, Finland, South Africa, Gibralter, the West Indies, Newfoundland, and even far off Fiji and Australia, and is favorably known in Canada from coast to coast. At the present time, according to the officials of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., their Montreal, Winnipeg and new Fort William mills are being taxed to their utmost capacity to supply the requirements of the trade.

High Price of Ontario Wheat.

"The circumstances in regard to Ontario wheat have been very peculiar of late," remarked one of Toronto's grain dealers the other day. "About ten days ago, for example, I paid $1.05 for number 2 Ontario wheat, while at the same time I was paying $1 for No. 1 Manitoba. Here is a difference of 5c per bushel in favor of Ontario wheat, whereas there should be under ordinary circumstances a difference of 10 or 20c per bushel in favor of the Manitoba. Of course you quite understand that the cause of this is the very short crop we have in Ontario this year."

Western Wheat Situation.

ACCORDING to the Ogilvie Flour Milling Co. this year's wheat crop in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories is finally estimated at from sixty--three to sixty-five million bushels. A little over one-third has been delivered by the farmers to date. Coarse grains are now starting to move and will show a considerable exportable surplus.

The great bulk of the grain grades high, and should, therefore, bring good prices. In fact, the Bank of Commerce figures that the farmer will get at least 80 cents per bushel for the greater portion of the wheat which he ships. Some of the lower grade article will sell as low as 50 cents per bushel, but even so, the country is believed to be better off than in preceding years. In 1903 the Manitoba farmer received an average of only 65 cents for his product, and in 1902 the average price was 55c. Taking these figures as a basis it is calculated that the wheat crop in the Canadian west is this year worth $43,800,000, as compared with $33,457,000 in 1903, and $35,108,150 in 1902. An increase of $10,000,000 over last year, and a gain of nearly $9,000,000 over the year before, constitute on the whole a very satisfactory showing. It is true that the money thus produced from the ground has this year to be divided amongst a considerably increased population, but, nevertheless, it is clear that the west is steadily progressing, and that it is no longer dependent upon one crop, one interest, or one locality.

U. S. Millers Want Wheat Duties Amended.

In view of the remarkable scarcity of milling wheat and the necessity of some form of legislation that shall afford relief to the milling industry in the United States the Journal of Commerce recently asked a number of the most prominent millers in the different sections of the country for their views regarding the specific form of legislation most needed. Replies show that millers are overwhelmingly in favor of the removal or radical modification of the wheat duty. Fully two-thirds of 79 replies take that view. Should the tariff be modified to meet their views, there would naturally be no necessity for the Lovering drawback bill, but in the event of failure to secure an appropriate tariff action, millers are quite as urgent in their demand for the liberalization of the drawback laws on the lines of the Lovering drawback bill.

Flour and Petroleum.

Another reform for which the South Wales grocers are agitating is the use by millers of covered vans, specially kept for the purpose, for conveying flour and offals. At the last meeting of their council it was pointed out that it is by no means an uncommon practice to send out flour in vans previously used for the conveyance of petroleum. The association was disastrous, for the flour was invariably completely spoilt. Flour and offals were also delivered from open vans, and in course of transit got wet and damaged. Doubtless the millers will give heed to the complaints of their customers, as the delivery of flour and other mill products in sound condition is obviously to the advantage of both parties.

Mexico as a Wheat Growing Country.

There is a strong probability that the Republic of Mexico will enter the markets of the world within the next few years as one of the great wheat-producing countries. A number of syndicates recently obtained concessions from the Mexican Government by which they have the use of large areas of land for terms of years. They are experimenting with different kinds of wheat, and have already found that while ordinary varieties of grain produce but from three to five sacks per acre, the "turkey red" variety will yield from twenty-five to thirty sacks, or from 50 to 60 bushels to the acre. Turkey red grain is also splendid milling grain. If it is discovered that large crops can be raised in Mexico an endeavor will be made to place the grain-growing industry on a commercial footing.

Flour Milling in Ireland.

According to the London Miller the flour milling industry continues to go ahead and prospects are of the brightest nature. For many years past there was no feature of the Irish landscape more disheartening to look upon than that whereon stood the silent deserted flour mills. The chance of the Irish miller is again upon him, and he is manfully doing his part to make his mark upon the times in which he lives. Neither American wheat nor American flour have been seen in Ireland for months--in a sense—and the hearts of the Irish millers are lighter than for a generation.

Cereal Notes.

Extensive improvements are being made in the plant of the Brackman & Ker Milling Co., at New Westminster and other B. C. points. Apparatus for the manufacture of cooked foods is being installed at Victoria.

The grain growers of Hamiota, Man., have entered an action against the C. P. R. for violation of the Grain Act. The company, it is charged, supplied the Ogilvie firm with a special train of 14 cars to be loaded at their Hamiota elevator, while a large number of applicants' names appear on the car order book unfilled.

The Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., with headquarters at Ottawa, has been incorporated to carry on a milling business. The share capital is $1,000,000, and among those interested are D. C. Cameron, of Winnipeg; A. Carmichael, of Rat Portage; H. S. Dowd, of Quyon; J. A. Cameron, of Dominionville, and J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay.

It is reported on reliable authority that the Japanese population of British Columbia is considering the advisability of going into grain raising and as a preliminary is prospecting through the Northwest Territories. A number of Japs will take up Government land this coming season.

James Townley has informed the Victoria, B. C., Board of Trade, that he is prepared to establish rice mills in that city, provided the local merchants will support him by giving preference to his output, on the understanding that price and quality are equal to the outside product. The Chinese in Vancouver purchase their rice, of which they consume a considerable quantity, from one of their own merchants who has a large rice mill.

Irish Tobacco Growing Experiment.

THE tobacco growing experiment in Ireland conducted by Colonel Nugent Everard and Department of the Agriculture and Technical Instruction, seems now assured of success. A fine yield of tobacco has been gotten from the 20 acres experimented on and placed in a tobacco barn built under the personal direction of Colonel Everard at a cost of about $5,000. Since September 4 the curing, sorting and drying of the crop has been going on continuously. The Irish Tobacco Trade Journal further states:

The 20 acres were not planted to their full capacity. This was a wise decision, for, if closely planted, unskilled farm hands are prone to crush and injure the plants when tending them daily, thus causing loss in the yield. The tobacco leaf is peculiarly sensitive to rough treatment, and it is of the highest possible importance to gather the plants with leaves unharmed. But, with the moderate planting, the 20 acres have yielded an aggregate of about 14,000 pounds weight of leaf. This is a remarkable result for what was practically an initial experiment. It is estimated, however, and, indeed, proved, that the average yield per acre will be about 1,200 pounds of leaf, for which good average prices will be forthcoming. Dublin manufacturers and experts have priced the samples already grown, and have returned their estimate at as high as 7d and 8d (14 and 16 cents) per pound. At these figures it is easy to work out a very decided margin of profit, even allowing for the heavy duty to be paid in full.

We were privileged to see the processes of curing, sorting and drying the tobacco in operation recently. The shed is of large dimensions, containing a number of spacious apartments, all fitted with heating apparatus, capable of producing a temperature as high as 180 degrees. When the tobacco is first gathered from the fields it is hung in the curing room. The curing operation is effected by smoldering oak sawdust, which diffuses a sufficiently strong and spicy smoke. When adequately cured the "hands" of leaves are taken to the sorting room, where they are sorted according to their quality—this being in view of the different treatment to be meted out to the plants of different qualities. In this room a good many people are employed, and dexterity has already been attained in the sorting. Later on, in other rooms, the tobacco goes through the process of drying. Varying degrees of heat are observed for this process, according to the moisture of the plant. It does not do to render the plant too dry—11 degrees of moisture being held to be the minimum—and much experience and care is needed in preserving the proper temperatures. Finally, after a treatment in the barn, which extends over a period of six or seven weeks, the weed is ready for packing in hogsheads, to be dispatched to the manufacturer.

This being an experiment on a commercial scale, one vital point to have determined was naturally the suitability of the various kinds of soil. For that purpose the tobacco was grown in three parishes on the estate, on four different descriptions of soil. On only one of these was it found that a really high-class tobacco could be grown. This soil, best suited to tobacco, is a heavy clay soil on a gravelly sub-soil. The next best is a rather light loam, with a clay sub-soil; and the third best is a poorer class of this soil; the least suitable of all, showing the smallest return, is a light gravelly loam, with sandy sub-soil. These results will be of great value in future experiments.

During the curing and drying operations Col. Everard has had the advantage of the advice of a distinguished American expert in tobacco growing, Mr. J. N. Harper, professor of agriculture in the University of Kentucky, and chief agriculturist of the state experimental farm. The tobacco grown on Col. Everard's twenty acres has been pronounced by him to be of the highest quality—quite equal to that grown in Virginia and Kentucky. Mr. Harper also pronounces the Irish climate to be almost perfectly suited for tobacco culture. In its high degree of moisture it has rather an advantage over Virginia and Kentucky, and the amount of heat and of sunshine is quite ample.

The plant is gathered when the leaves are of a full rich green color. Under the influence of the drying and curing process it soon acquires a golden or brown color, and in this condition it is packed for the manufacturers. The experiment has been on the whole a striking success, and it will lead to more elaborate trials.

In the town of————there is a grocery store where Mr. ——— buys his tobacco. Right alongside of this store is a barber shop which sells both tobaccos and cigars. Our friend smokes both a pipe and cigars; he buys his tobacco from the grocer, and his cigars from the barber. The grocer makes no money out of his tobacco and the barber makes 60 per cent. on his cigars.

The grocer can't give a single sound reason why he doesn't sell cigars.

Cuba Wants Tariff Concessions.

In connection with the negotiations in progress at the present time for a commercial treaty between Spain and Cuba, a petition has been presented to the Spanish Government from the Cuban planters and manufacturers setting forth the necessity for obtaining from Spain concessions in the tariff in favor of Cuban tobacco, which represents so great a proportion of the wealth of the island. The petition stated that no other product can better be offered to Spain in exchange for oils, wines, cotton, textures, shoes, and other goods imported into Cuba, and which during the last fiscal year aggregated a value of $10,023,312, or eighteen per cent. of the imports from all countries. During the twelve months ended June 30, 1903, Spain imported $1,681,624 worth of Cuban produce, or two per cent. of the total exports from Cuba, of which amount no less than $982,243 is credited to tobacco.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE Board of Managers of the New York Produce Exchange have adopted the agreement recently proposed regarding the handling of grain by trunk lines, which was to go into effect November 24. This was dealt with in this department three weeks ago.

Some immense cargoes of freights left Montreal last week, and prices were slightly firmer owing to the last week of ocean navigation at that port. Lake and rail freight has been very active, and firm rates ruled.

Shipments of freight perishable by frost seem to have curtailed some wholesale grocery, vegetable and fruit orders.

The R. & O. Navigation Co. reports a very poor season for passengers, and only a fair one for freight.

Tonnage totals have been excellent for Canadian shipping all season. Immense competition will set in now between the big all-rail routes of United States and Canada. The terminals, such as Portland, Boston, Halifax and St. John will be chiefly affected.

WINNIPEG THE METROPOLIS OF THE WEST.

IT may be truly said that the eyes of ambitious young Canadians are today fixed on the great Northwest, and particularly on Winnipeg, the metropolis of Western Canada. The remarkable development of Manitoba's capital within the comparatively short period since its incorporation as a city is almost a subject for wonderment, and commercial interests have already come to look upon it as the distributing centre for the whole of the west. Accordingly one finds in Winnipeg nearly every wholesale house and manufacturing firm in Canada represented. The wholesale district, with its massive and substantial buildings and wide streets, compares favorably with those of the largest cities of America. Building operations are being pushed with unprecedented rapidity, one of the most significant features being the large number of American firms preparing to establish industries to catch the western trade. To refer to the grocery trade, the wholesale firms of Winnipeg without a single exception have been obliged to increase their accommodation in order to handle their rapidly increasing business; the other side of the trade is represented by no less than one hundred and fifty retail grocers, all of whom are reported to be doing a splendid business.

"Eureka" is heard every now and then from manufacturers claiming superior merits for their experiments.

"I have found it," was the consumers' cry 50 years ago when

Edwardsburg "Silver Gloss" Starch and was placed on the market—it is still the cry.

The Best cannot be improved upon.

Just like fishing

Building up trade is just like fishing.

If you use the right kind of bait and cast your line where the kind of fish you want are most plentiful, you'll quite likely get a number of bites.

Then if you go about it right you are pretty sure to land most of them.

Apply the illustration to business.

If you want to catch the grocery trade, cast your line where all the good grocers in Canada congregate every week —looking for bait to build up their businesses with — in THE CANADIAN GROCER. But

Suppose results don't come at fust
What be yew goin' tur dew?
Take out yewr ad, and kick yewrself,
An' go ter feelin' blew?
Uv course yew hain't; yew're goin' tew fish,
An' bait an' bait agin;
Bimeby some nibbles 'n bites 'll come,
Then yew'll pull 'em in.

Our Department of Advertising Service is now providing good bait for a number of our advertisers—and stands ready to help a few more in this connection.

Drop us a line about it.

JAPAN TEAS

will always be sold in Canada. Grocers need not be scared at alarmist ads. of Ceylon Green Tea producers. These gentlemen have already gone back on their "fad." They're not making imitation Japans now. The public want the genuine Japan Teas, no bounty-fed imitations. Grocers, don't be misled by such tactics as coupling Japan teas with China Teas. It's a "red herring" across the trail.

Japan Teas are here to stay, they please the consumer because they give better value in every way than any Green Ceylon or India Teas grown, and they do not require "bolstering up."

Take a can at random

—open it up, and taste for yourself. That's the test of tests. It is the test we welcome.

Honestly, friend Grocer, we want you to sell our goods — THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND. We have done everything to make

THE OLD HOMESTEAD BRAND

OF

CANNED VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

(Strawberries, Plums, Pears, Peas, Corn, Tomatoes, Beans, etc.) just as good as it is possible to be, and we believe—and we ought to know—that we have succeeded. But what good is it all if you don't know, too?

Give an order to your wholesaler, insist upon OLD HOMESTEAD, and see for yourself. If they aren't all we claim, we've lost our money.

The Old Homestead Canning Co.

Picton, Ont.

Distributed in the St. John and Moncton Districts by Messrs. Bowman & Cole, Messrs. Geo. S. DeForest & Sons, St. John, N.B.; and Messrs. F. P. Reid & Co., Moncton, N.B.

We leave it to every grocer——

Is it not a fact that Ceylon Teas are steadily growing to be the most favored?

This being so, is it not business prudence to urge their sale?—in package or bulk, as people or the grocer may prefer.

This thing of carrying 2 or 3 stocks is bad. It costs money—locks it up and pays no dividends. We certainly think that the grocer serves himself when he gets his people to use which may be had in both Blacks and Greens.

CEYLON TEAS

MAPLE SYRUP

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Show Cards and Price Tickets.

BY far the most common cause of the disagreement among window dressers as to the use of show cards and price tickets, is the different class of customers dealing at the different stores. One merchant may find that his customers prefer the window that is a display of goods only, while another soon discovers his sales increase when he includes in the window the price of the articles displayed, or a sign drawing attention to them. The grocer who caters to strictly high-class trade has less use for price tickets and almost no place for show cards; but the store which handles popular lines cannot be as successful as it may unless price tickets are in evidence.

The broad statement that the high-class trade are above price, are not interested in price tickets, and that therefore they are out of place, is decidedly erroneous.

No matter what store is making a display of bargain goods, nothing is gained without the price ticket. In windows containing a collection of small articles price cards are valuable, as also where several grades of the same goods are shown. They should not appear with goods that do not seem worth the price asked, however cheap in reality that price may be; neither are they in place among staple goods, the price of which everyone knows.

There are very many who are naturally too timorous to risk asking the price of an article when there is a chance of its being too expensive. Others have the idea that the article which is not ticketed is too high in price. There is no question that many articles of luxury are sold through the price ticket, since if it is not really needed a man will not bother inquiring the price, but it may be the ticket that will convince him he needs the article enough to pay the price asked.

But however valuable a price card may be it should not be used always. A window now or then without a card of any kind will be a pleasant variety.

Much of the value of cards depends upon the neatness with which they are printed, and the style of paper and ornamentation used. Cards with elaborate scrolls and letters are not advisable, straight businesslike cards and lettering being more artistic, more easily read, and less tiring to the eye. Cards should be of regular shape and the printing not over large. Proportion in size of letter and spacing should be carefully considered.

Show cards should be thoughtfully worded, and all preposterous or slang phrases avoided. The public is not affected by "less than cost," "half price," and such ridiculous wording. Attention should not be drawn to a rival store, nor should show cards be used that are merely funny. Some find little place for show cards in g grocery window, and there certainly are not the op-place for show cards in a grocery wingoods store. A good plan to adopt is to keep a book of phrases so that there is little trouble about the wording.

Grocery with open front—E. H. McMillan, Vancouver, B.C.

Whether show cards or price tickets, the size, shape, lettering and positions should be constantly altered, so that variety may be obtained.

TO PRINT THE CARDS.

The simplest way to print the cards is to buy the rubber letters, but there is a lack of individuality in such lettering that detracts much from their value. Asphaltum applied with a camel's hair brush to prevent streaks is very often used, and is inexpensive. Jars of drop black in distemper can be had for a few cents, and can be prepared ready for use by adding a little dissolved gum-arabic to some of the drop black on a piece of glass. Japan colors are frequently used and dry more evenly and quickly, and have a gloss that is pleasing. A mixture of lamp black, water, dissolved gum-arabic, and a very little alcohol, makes a good black. The gloss and permanence of the coloring depends upon the amount of gum-arabic used.

Oftentimes a waterproof letter is required, and this it is said can be obtained by washing over any lettering the following varnish: Take films of celluloid, and after washing away with warm water and a nail brush every trace of gelatin, dry them and cut into small bits. These, when placed in a bottle with methylated spirits, will dissolve, and when a creamy solution is formed brush it over the lettering, and a waterproof, dirtproof card is the result.

If none of the clerks are clever at drawing the lettering, a simple method is to cut out letters of the required size from bills or elsewhere, and by placing them on the card the outline can be drawn and filled in with the black. The drawn letter, however, provided it is sufficiently neat, is far more satisfactory.

A SUCCESSFUL TEA BROKER.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has pleasure in reproducing in this week's issue a characteristic photograph of Mr. C. M. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., tea merchants, Yokohama, Japan, who is residing at present in Chicago, Ill. Mr. Bernard is well known in Ontario and Quebec grocery circles, having spent several years in the tea brokerage business in Canada.

Mr. Bernard was born in London, England, where he lived until ten years ago, when he joined Bernard & Co., Yokohama. Being desirous of learning the business from the picking of the leaf to ard went to Japan, where under the able instruction of his brother (who is acknowledged to be the most experienced tea man in Japan, having shipped teas to Canada and the United States for over thirty years), he acquired very thoroughly the mysteries of the tea business from the picking of the leaf to the shipping of tea packages to foreign markets. Later Mr. Bernard returned to Montreal, the Canadian headquarters of his firm, where he stayed for several months before opening an office in Toronto for the development of the tea trade in Western Canada. Toronto wholesalers need not be reminded of the success with which Mr. Bernard met during his five years residence in Toronto. In 1901 he was promoted to take charge of the Chicago agency, which position he holds at the present time.

SUCCESSFUL TENDER FOR STEAMSHIP LINE.

The governments of Canada and Mexico have accepted the tender of Andrew Weir & Co., of Glasgow, Scotland, for the steamship service between Canada and Mexico on the Pacific. The Glasgow company have two steamships available at present, but ask for certain modifications in the service. It is believed they regard the ports of call in Mexico as too numerous, and will expect a larger subsidy if all the ports are maintained. The present subsidy is $100,000, and will be borne by the two governments in about equal proportion.

FULL OF FISH

If every grocer would fill himself with the subject of HALIFAX PREPARED CODFISH he would have no difficulty in interesting his customers, and he would have no difficulty in getting filled with the subject if he would just try the fish once for himself. Every consumer who gives it a trial at once becomes a FISH ENTHUSIAST, so if the grocer is able to gain a customer for it once, he will gain him for good, and that new enthusiast will advertise the fish to others, until the vogue for HALIFAX PREPARED CODFISH becomes a habit with the people. Then his trade for the fish will be an established and sure thing, in view of which it would seem wise for the grocer to get "FULL OF FISH" at once.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

Prepared Fish Trade.

IS the retail trade receiving its share of the enormous trade to be done in prepared boneless cod fish? It is an admitted fact that the grocery trade, generally speaking, does not receive as large a portion as it might of the enormous trade there is to be done in prepared boneless cod fish, owing largely to the way in which this sea food has been packed and prepared in the past, and to the fact that a great many retail grocers have not given this branch of their business the attention it deserves.

Every grocer, especially in larger centres, counts yearly (just as soon as weather conditions permit) on a nice trade in smoked fish of different varieties. There is a season of the year, however, when he is entirely out of these lines, consequently losing profits on a branch of his business which should not be neglected.

Grocers can now buy boneless cod fish especially prepared for keeping at all seasons of the year (provided ordinary care is used with it) packed in attractive wooden boxes of special package form, as well as shredded cod in cartons, which presents this food to the consumer in a most appetizing form. What has hurt the sale of cured cod fish is the oldfashioned method of curing and rough way in which this fish was formerly handled. Some of the most popular forms in which it is prepared is shredded cartons, wooden boxes, and one and two lb. bricks.

Another Dog Fish Product.

THE livers of the common dog fish are of considerable commercial value according to Charles H. Stevenson, in the United States Fish Commission Report. It does not appear that any important fisheries are organized especially for the capture of these sharks. Many, however, are taken incidentally, and the livers extracted and thrown into the liver butts with those of other fish. The livers are shaped like those of the cod and pollock and are very brittle, breaking readily when lifted.

In Boston and Gloucester dog fish livers are sold at the same rate as those of cod, viz., 25 to 30c per bucket of 2½ gallons. The yield of oil during August, September and October is about sixty quarts per bucket, but at other seasons it is much less. The oil is seldom kept apart from cod oil for currying purposes and it sells for the same price per gallon. It is estimated that from 10,000 to 15,000 gallons of dog fish oil are prepared on the New England coast annually, nearly all of which is combined with cod and sold for currying. When warm it has a strong odor resembling ammonia, but this may be removed by refining.

On the coast of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia large numbers of dog fish are taken for the conversion of their livers into oil. The livers of 100 dog fish yield six to eight gallons of oil. According to a report of the Commissioner of Fisheries of Canada, as early as 1876 about 60,000 gallons of dog fish oil were exported from Victoria at a valuation of 40c per gallon. The present annual product is said to exceed 200,000 gallons.

Dog fish oil is used on the Pacific Coast in competition with other oils with most favorable results, being, according to one authority—"Equal if not superior to oil supplied to H. M. ships by the service both for lubricating and lighting purposes."

More Salmon Traps.

ACCORDING to the Victoria Times there will be at least half a dozen salmon traps operated on the shores of Vancouver during the season of 1905. New ones are to be built for Findlay, Durham & Brodie, of Victoria. An extra trap will probably be worked at Clover Point, and there will also be another one at Sheringhan Point. Some of the firms interested will ship the salmon catch to the Fraser River to be canned. One firm in particular is contemplating the erection of a large salmon cannery on the Island.

The erection of these traps, however, is contingent upon the Provincial Government granting suitable sites to canners and fishermen holding licenses from the Dominion Government. This is being delayed by the local Government, presumably because of the old difficulty between the province and the Dominion with respect to the control of the fisheries on the B. C. coast. Meanwhile those who wish to put in traps are being subjected to undue delay in placing orders for pile driving, nets, webbing, etc.

Last month the canners, with the exception of one firm operating on the Northern British Columbia coast, petitioned the Minister of Marine and Fisheries not to permit the operation of traps along the northern coast. The exception to the petition was a firm which already had an application in for a trap license in the north. It is held by the canners that no necessity for traps exists in the north, for the reason that Canadian net fishing there is not subjected to unfair competition, as is the case further south, where Americans have the shores of Puget Sound strung with traps, while until last Summer fishing operations in Canadian waters in the vicinity of the forty-ninth parallel were restricted to the use of gill nets. The department is now being pressed for action on the petition.

Indians Destroying Salmon.

In a report from Port Essington, B. C., under date of Oct. 24, J. T. Williams, Dominion Government Fisheries Inspector, advises the Department of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, of the wanton destruction by Indians of hundreds of sockeyes, which last season made their way to the headwaters of the Skeena River in order to spawn. According to the report this wholesale destruction has been going on from time immemorial, and it is a wonder there are any salmon left along the coast of Northern British Columbia. The Department is keenly alive to the fact that the depredations of the Indians must be stopped if the fisheries are not to be sacrificed.

B. C. Herring Industry Promising.

Mr. J. J. Cowie, the Scottish fishery expert, has just returned from the Pacific Coast, where he inspected the herring fisheries. There are great quantities of herring there which are not now made use of. In fact herrings are sent from the Maritime Provinces to Vancouver by the carload. Mr. Cowie reports the British Columbia fisheries as productive as any in the world, and that there is no reasonable limit to the catch. The fish have more oil than the Atlantic herring, and dry salting would probably have to be used in curing them. There is an unlimited market for these fish in Japan, China, Straits Settlements and other Pacific Ocean markets.

B. C. Salt Fish Beats the World.

The directors of the Gulf of Georgia Fish & Curing Co., Nanaimo, B. C., are congratulating themselves upon the receipt of a letter from Japanese Consul Shimgu, of Vancouver, giving a statement as to the quality of the salt fish supplied by this firm to the Japanese Government. Japan has been contracting enormous quantities of salt fish from all parts of the world for use in her army, and reports that the fish supplied by the Gulf of Georgia Fish & Curing Co. were better packed and had better keeping qualities than any other fish received.

Salmon Industry in Danger.

Considerable difficulty has arisen out of the divided jurisdiction of the States of Washington and Oregon in regard to the spawning of salmon. At present there is an absolute deadlock; meanwhile poachers with gill nets, traps, seines, wheels, etc., keep up the raid on the vitality of the salmon, and hatcheries on the Columbia River are getting so few salmon for propagation that they might as well go out of business.

This is of vital import to the fisheries of British Columbia in so far as American fishermen, by neglecting to observe any regulations in catching fish off B. C. shores past which salmon have to go to reach the Fraser River, are ruining the industry on that river. The Fraser is the breeding ground for supplies of salmon on both sides of the line.

A recommendation is made by the Victoria Colonist that the authorities of the State of Washington and of the Dominion of Canada endeavor to unite on a policy that will conserve the salmon industry for both countries.

Fish Notes.

The united canneries on the Fraser River have been sold for $119.500.

COMPANIES TO VOTE IN MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

At a meeting of the executive of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Toronto on Nov. 24, one of the subjects discussed was "Securing franchise rights in municipal elections to incorporated companies."

Mr. R. J. Yonge, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, in the course of an interview with The Canadian Grocer stated that this matter had been down on the official slate for some time. It is claimed that while members of incorporated companies carrying on a manufacturing business have votes where they reside, they have no voice whatever in municipal legislation affecting the districts in which their factories are situated. When it is considered how large the manufacturing interests loom up in the aggregate property assessment of many Canadian towns and cities the reason for a change by way of re-distribution in the municipal franchise is easily seen.

When asked whether the idea was to allow an incorporated company as such one vote or more, Mr. Yonge said the details were not yet arranged. He would go so far, however, as to say he thought one vote should be given such a company. In case the managing director of a firm located at Montreal, say, was given a vote in the municipal elections, he would have an additional vote in his home municipality in the event of its being other than Montreal.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

The Canadian Grocer is in receipt of a handsome illustrated price list issued by Lutey Bros., grocers, Butte, Montana. Not only does it cover the grocery field comprehensively but contains a fund of information of practical value to the retailer.

The Robert Greig Co., Toronto, is issuing a booklet to the trade entitled "How to Add to Your Profits," which tells in a very convincing way the many excellent qualities of Pratt's stock and poultry foods.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Butter and Cheese Situation.

THE cheese market has been quiet during the past week. Some large orders to ship out stored cheese were received from the United Kingdom to catch the last steamers leaving Montreal, and a large quantity left by the Portland steamer sailing on Saturday, November 26. The price of October made cheese is held at 10 to 10¼c, and for earlier made Fall goods holders' ideas are keyed up to 10¼ and 10½c. United Kingdom importers have not forgotten last year's disastrous wind-up, and are acting very cautiously, which would imply that they await a better retail demand on their side before operating further.

The butter market has been active and a good trade has passed at 20½c for choice quality. Holders are advancing their price to 20¾ and 21c, and with the home trade getting a little anxious for their Winter requirements it looks as if they would succeed in getting what they are asking. From now out the quality of butter will hardly pass for United Kingdom requirements.

Confiscated Meats.

WAR on diseased meats and foodstuffs is being waged in Montreal. Dr. McCarrey, chief food inspector, is hot foot after the impure food handlers, and last week he made an example of a few.

At the abattoirs the following animals were destroyed: Thirteen cattle, two calves, two sheep, three hogs, one lamb, besides twenty-one livers and 904 pounds of other meat.

At the various stalls in the city the following goods were confiscated: Two thousand pounds of foodstuffs, 66 pounds of fruit, 40 pounds of fish, 2 boxes of salmon, 399 pounds of beef, 14 pounds of mutton, 114 pounds of pork, 10 pounds of blood pudding, 314 pounds of veal, 122 pounds of sausages and 160 pounds of poultry.

The large number of confiscations led Dr. McCarrey to remark that this was partly owing to the fact that, as the cold weather approached the number of animals killed for food increased weekly. Still there was an unusual large number of diseased animals being shipped to Montreal, and the inspectors were kept very busy.

The Canadian Grocer inquired at the office of the Provincial board and learned that rigid inspection of all abattoirs outside the city is now in force, and that further precautions are to be taken in order to co-operate with the anti-tuberculosis league. In fact they were in accord with Dr. McCarrey.

Canadian Butter Bears Danish Label.

"I AM often interested in things I see during occasional visits I pay to factories," remarked the manager of one of the leading Canadian banks the other day. "For instance, a short time ago I was in a butter factory in Ontario. The town in which the factory is situated is a small one and I was told that the whole of the output of that factory was regularly shipped to Denmark without being salted, where it was prepared for the English market and sold as Danish butter. I was also in a pork factory the other day and I noticed that the hogs which they were killing were all of medium size, and that when cut up the bacon showed regular streaks of lean and fat. I learned in this instance that all the output of the factory was shipped to Ireland, and no doubt from there re-shipped to Great Britain as Irish bacon."

"There is one thing about it," remarked one of the gentlemen who was listening to the narrative, "it is a testimony that Canada's butter and bacon must be pretty good stuff or it would not be bought and palmed off as the product of countries which have established a very high reputation in the products as mentioned."

Falling Off in Dairy Exports.

Official reports show that the total value of butter and cheese shipments from Montreal this season is $25,000,000. Of this amount the cheese exports totalled $18,000,000, and the butter exports $6,500,000. This is a falling off of nearly two million dollars, as compared with last year, caused principally by the cold weather setting in much earlier than last year, which resulted in a big decrease in the make.

Potato Culture in Spain.

A group of capitalists is about to form a company at Pamplona for the manufacture of starch and dextrin from potatoes. The authorized capital of the company is $714,286, of which less than one-third will be called for at present.

The climate and conditions of the country in the vicinity of Pamplona are eminently suitable for the cultivation of the potato, and it is hoped that before long the company will be able to supply industrial starch and dextrin at a price lower than that which is now being paid to German makers. The imports of these products into Spain have amounted to about 14,000 tons annually, valued at nearly $500,000.

New Dairy Paper.

It is rumored that Canada will shortly have a new dairy paper. Committees appointed by the Eastern and Western Dairymen's Associations have been considering the matter, as a result of which it has practically been decided to start such a paper and conduct it as the official organ of both associations. It is expected that the first number will be published in time for distribution at the annual convention of the Dairymen's Associations in January.

London, Eng., Provision Markets.

Latest market reports from Thomas Nesbitt & Co., London, Eng., advise that the demand for butter is improved and the market firmer. Trade in bacon is steadier at reduced quotations, while hams are meeting with more inquiry at generally improved values. The market for lard is firm for best bladdered, but quiet in consequence of high rates. The egg trade is slow in consequence of high rates and cheese is selling fairly well at advanced prices.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

Geo. A. Bayle, St. Louis, Mo., has been awarded two gold medals at the World's Fair for Bayle's "Potted Cheese."

It has been officially announced that hereafter iced cars will be furnished by the British Government free of charge for conveying Canadian butter from Avonmouth to Bristol. This important concession removes what may have been an objection to Bristol shipments, and will undoubtedly add to the popularity of this port as a distributing point for Canadian butter.

TORONTO FRUIT EXPORTER DEAD.

THE CANADIAN GROCER regrets to have to chronicle in this week's issue the death of Mr. George McWilliam, of the firm of McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, which occurred on Saturday, Nov. 26.

Mr. McWilliam was well known in fruit circles throughout Canada and the United States, having for years been a principal in the firm of McWilliam & Everist, one of the oldest and largest wholesale fruit produce and commission firms in Western Canada.

He was born on July 13, 1852, at Moss Side, Carney, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, and came to Toronto in 1871.

In 1874 he entered the wholesale fruit business in which he was afterwards engaged up to the time of his death. In

The late George McWilliam.

1878 Mr. McWilliam admitted Mr. F. Everist to partnership, forming the firm so well known to the Canadian fruit trade at the present time.

Mr. McWilliam enjoyed the distinction of being the pioneer apple exporter of Canada, and of having seen the trade grow from a very small beginning to its present proportions.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

The A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, are making a most liberal offer to send to Old Country friends of the trade, all carriage charges prepaid, at regular wholesale prices, any quantity from a half dozen up, of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese. As Canadian enterprise is to be commended at all times, and as there are doubtless many of the trade who will take advantage of the offer, we feel that besides assisting our readers to that end we are also doing our duty to Canada and Canadian trade. The well known merit of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese is such that the manufacturers are not afraid to put their product up in competition with any cheese in Europe or the world.

Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, has three hundred cases of smoked Norwegian sardines, "Aurora" brand, ¼s, arriving next week.

Honey is no longer looked upon as a luxury, but owing to the heavy loss of bees during the unprecedented severity of the last Winter some sections of the country are almost entirely without honey. Foster & Holtermann, Brantford, who have a specially constructed bee house and cellar capable of accommodating 1000 hives of bees safely in any temperature, are leaders in this line. R. F. Holtermann is well known as a beekeeper and lecturer. By his hints on selling and storing honey he has enabled many dealers to very materially increase their trade in honey.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, have just passed into stock a car of green Rio coffee, which they are offering at attractive prices.

Retailers looking for a really meritorious shoe blacking are recommended to place an order with the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, for their "Gold Medal" shoe blacking.

C. E. Colson & Son, Canadian agents for Crosse & Blackwell, London, Eng., report delivery of large shipments of C. & B. goods to Demers, Fletcher & Co., Hudon & Orsali, Montreal; John Sloan & Co., and the Eby-Blain Co., Toronto; Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, and A. M. Smith, London, Ont. This information should be of service to buyers.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are offering a new and what is proving to be a very rapid selling line—Bode's Chewing Gum. Handsome vending machines are given with first order.

Mr. W. H. Dunn, Montreal, has interesting prices to offer to the trade this week on Norwegian sardines, 'Aurora" brand.

White & Co., Toronto, have received a car of California walnuts, and are expecting their first car of holly this week.

Dawson Bros., Toronto, have received two cars of Messina lemons. They are also expecting the arrival of a car of Mexican oranges, a car of Florida oranges and grape fruit, a car of navel oranges, and a consignment of Almeria grapes.

PERSONAL MENTION.

A caller at the Montreal offices of The Canadian Grocer during the past week was Mr. A. B. Hardwicke, Canadian representative for Pyle's Pearline.

Mr. N. N. Munro, eastern Ontario representative for Hamilton Coffee & Spice Co., Hamilton, is calling upon the Montreal trade this week and meeting with a good reception. This market is looked after by the Montreal agent, Mr. Silcocks, St. Nicholas street.

Mr. D. A. Morrison, who has for some years traveled for Baird & Peters, wholesale grocers, St. John, has decided to go into business for himself. He has purchased the wholesale and retail grocery business now conducted at Amherst, N. S., by Fillimore & Morris, and will take possession Feb. 1, 1905.

A grain warehouse belonging to Mr. Cooper, of Goderich, was destroyed by fire on Nov. 26.

THE LATE JAMES STUART.

THE death of James Stuart on Saturday last at his home, 300 Carlton street, Toronto, after an illness of only a few weeks, came as a shock to his hosts of friends in Toronto and Western Ontario.

It is the lot of few men to be more universally loved than was the late James Stuart. His nature was of the kindliest, and his friendships were strong and steadfast. His native ability was supplemented by a wide experience, and his counsels were sought and heeded by many a man vexed with difficulties, and never was there one who put his confidence in Jim Stuart who went away without feeling braver and stronger for counsel given. In his home he was loved with a rare affection. He was a comrade to his sons, and their mutual devotion was a subject of common remark. The blank his death makes in the family circle must remain ever unfilled.

He was born in 1846 at Richmond Hill and was therefore at the time of his death in his 59th year. He attended in his boyhood Upper Canada College, graduating from that institution. There he formed acquaintances and friendships with those who in later life, came, many of them, to be regarded as among the brightest and best known of the citizens of the province. He began his business career early in life, entering the employ of W. H. Miller, wholesale grocer, Toronto. Later on he removed to Hamilton, in which city he lived upwards of 30 years. He became associated with the late Alex. Harvey, of Hamilton, in the wholesale trade, and later was a member of the firm of J. Stuart, Son & Co., wholesale grocers. He was a peerless salesman and to this day in the territory he visited in connection with his business, the memory of him is a cherished one. His wit, his fund of stories, the sunshine that always accompanied him, his sincerity and withal his fine manhood, made him an ever-welcome caller.

Ten years ago he came to Toronto to make his home, and in the enjoyment of family life, unharassed by care, he lived out his life. But the old instincts were hard to get rid of, and he became the advertising manager of The Canadian Grocer. In this capacity he proved that he had lost nothing of his former ability, and a goodly number of advertisers were brought into The Grocer through his persuasions. About nine months ago he was offered the eastern management of the Winnipeg Commercial, and discharged the duties of this office with credit to himself and profit to his company.

Not the least interesting item in connection with his career is the fact that he was a Fenian Raid veteran, having served with "H" Company of the 13th Battalion.

There is left of his family his widow, a daughter, Mrs. A. C. Milne, of Lacombe, Alta.; and three sons, H. M., of New York; C. P., with McColl Bros., Toronto, and J. T. with the Firstbrook Box Co., Toronto.

The interment took place at St. James' Cemetery, Toronto, on Monday last, and many an old friend yielded to his emotions as the sad and solemn service for the dead was read. The memory of

The late James Stuart.

James Stuart will continue to be a green one with everyone who was privileged to be counted his friend.

CANADIAN GOODS IN UNITED STATES.

Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of Chinese Starch and Ocean Mills, Montreal, has had such success with his products in the eastern states that he is now opening up an American factory at Rouse's Point, N. Y. Starting in a small way through a local traveler, Mr. Lefebvre has had orders from Ogdensburg, Massena Springs, Rouse's Point, N. Y., Nashua and Manchester, N. H., Bangor and Portland, Me., and Lowell, Boston and Salem, Mass. In order to develop the United States trade he is opening a branch factory there.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

The names and addresses of the firms making the following inquiries may be had by application to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, or to the Editor of this paper. Parties making inquiries will be careful to mention the office under which said inquiry appears and the number.

THE following inquiry has been received from the curator, Canadian section, Imperial Institute, London, Eng., concerning Canadian trade.

105. A Covent Garden firm of fruit salesmen possessing an old established connection asks to be placed in communication with Canadian exporters of apples and fruits on commission.

The following inquiries regarding Canadian trade have been received by the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa :

43. A London firm is desirous of being put in communication with responsible firms in Canada whose business connection lies with mineral water manufacturers for the sale of sugar, tartaric acid, etc. The London firm desires to establish an agency in Canada.

46. A wine and cognac house asks for good representation in Canada.

47 and 49. A French firm manufacturing olive oils wishes to open up with Canadian buyers.

Salt Sense

The ordinary Salt of ordinary trade must not be confounded with Windsor Salt, which is sifted, not ground. Think of the goodness that slips away from the Salt crystal that is mangled, bruised, ground—think of the impurities that must creep in. Windsor Salt contains nothing but pure, white, dry, whole Salt crystals—no matter that they are fine and small crystals, they are whole crystals all the time.

Windsor Salt

is prepared in the only safe, sure way, by the Vacuum process. Every particle of moisture is dried out, which prevents the "caking" of the Salt. If you will stop to consider you will quickly see why Windsor Salt is best. Any man of intelligence and sense will agree to that.

SPICE MANUFACTURERS EXONERATED.

BULLETIN No. 95, on ground spices, issued by the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, just to hand, is, as usual, full of interest to the trade. On page 4 will be noted a special reference to an error made by the Department on samples 17945 and 17950 (spices said to have been put up by S. H. & A. S. Ewing, Montreal, reported in error in the previous bulletin).

It may be stated that a serious mistake was made by the collectors in attributing the above mentioned samples to stock purchased from S. H. & A. S. Ewing. Investigation proved that the Department was in error and that S. H. & A. S. Ewing had never sold one of the parties, and not to the other one for a period of nearly two years. Naturally enough this firm did not feel disposed to allow the former report to go unchallenged.

The Canadian Grocer has seen copies of correspondence between S. H. & A. S. Ewing and Hon. L. A. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue, dealing with the subject, and certainly a great injustice was done to Messrs. Ewing. The Department has rectified its mistake in its late reprint bulletin No. 95.

Previous comment has been made in these columns upon the manner in which samples are collected by Dominion inspectors for analysis, and it is to be hoped that some improvement will be made with a view to getting correct information before a decision is given and published broadcast. In the absence of this an incalculable amount of damage may be done to the manufacturer by the Department, though unintentionally. It is believed that some action has been taken by the Manufacturing Grocers' Section of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, with a view to assisting the Department in securing better means of obtaining samples for analysis.

WHERE THE FIRST TELEPHONE WAS MADE.

ON a pine clad eminence about a mile and a half from the City of Brantford, stands a house whose historic interest will grow with the growth of Canada's trade. It is the house in which was invented by Prof. Bell the first telephone.

In these days of universal telephones it is not easy for us to realize that it is little more than a generation since that great and marvellous invention was introduced to the public. It would perhaps be an exaggeration to say that it has revolutionized commerce, but it is not going too far to say that by facilitating commercial intercourse to an extent undreamt of by an earlier generation it has given an impetus to trade hardly less than that caused by the introduction of the telegraph.

The house in question was built by a Mr. Morton, whose grandson, Mr. Foster, conducts at the present day a flourishing wholesale grocery business in Brantford. The house was later acquired by Mr. Bell. It is from the foregoing historic circumstance that the City of Brantford derives its familiar appellation of "The Telephone City." One is glad to learn that the civic fathers of Brantford have ideas of acquiring the house and preserving it as a national monument.

DUMPING CLAUSE REVISED.

THAT the work of those who have been fighting the anti-dumping regulations tooth and nail ever since their adoption has not been without avail is seen in the official announcement of a revision in the regulations according to which the amount of any advance in the market value of goods between time of their purchase abroad by the importer in Canada and the date of their exportation to Canada shall not be subject to the special duty after November 9, 1904, provided such goods have been exported in the usual course of trade and the actual date of purchase has been established to the satisfaction of the collector of customs by contracts or other sufficient proofs produced for his inspection. It is provided, however, in respect to goods subject to an ad valorem duty that the ordinary duty shall be collected as heretofore on the fair market value of the goods at the time of their exportation to Canada.

COAL TO MEXICO.

IN illustration of the celerity with which trade is opening up between Canada and Mexico, we note Sir Wm. Mulock's approaching visit to Mexico, the completion of the arrangements for direct steampship lines on the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and lastly the contract of the Dominion Coal Company to supply Vera Cruz with 25,000 tons of coal.

The manager of that company states that early in October they sent 5,000 tons of coal to Vera Cruz where it was tested by one of the railway systems. This coal proved so satisfactory that the above-mentioned contract was placed. Shipments will be principally from Louisburg during the coming Winter season. This, together with the 75,000 tons contracted for by the Boston and Maine Railway and Halifax and St. John trades should keep the collieries fairly busy until navigation to Montreal opens again.

CANADIANS AND BRITISH INDUSTRIES.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to have Canadian manufacturers to the number of 300 or more visit Great Britain next Summer. The suggestion emanated in the first place from the London Chamber of Commerce, which body in conjunction with certain influential friends in Canada is reported to have already completed arrangements for the entertainment of their colonial visitors in July, 1905.

It would be a difficult matter to estimate the far-reaching influence of such a visit on the commerce, sentiment and patriotism of Canada, especially when it is remembered that her destiny as a nation is largely in the hands of just such men as will go to England as representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. They have already established the worthiness of the commercial fabric of Canada. At the same time they have learned the value of education, and by this time appreciate the importance of demonstrating to the Englishman what has actually been accomplished as well as what may be accomplished in Canadian manufacturing circles.

The manufacturers will have an opportunity to inspect the finest manufactories of Great Britain and to discuss and decide upon a basis for exchange trade between the two countries. Lord Strathcona has shown a keen interest in the movement, and it is hinted that Lord Brassey who paid such an interesting visit to Canada at the time of the Chambers of Commerce Congress, is giving it his personal attention.

It ought to go far towards removing misconceptions, and strengthening the ties between Canada and the Motherland. It will come, moreover, at an opportune time, as a challenge to the American press which is overflowing with reciprocity talk at the present time in spite of the assurance of the Hon. Geo. E. Foster at a banquet in Boston the other day that reciprocity had become a dead issue in Canada. The English press has recently shown an inclination to indulge in groundless fears concerning Sir Wilfrid Laurier's alleged friendly attitude towards reciprocity with the United States. The real calamity here, however, is the diverting of public attention to an issue in which Canada has absolutely no interest.

Business Men in Parliament

H. B. Ames, M.P. for St. Antoine, Montreal.

IN the Parliament which will meet in January no more self-sacrificing and zealous worker for the country's weal will be found than Herbert B. Ames, who has been elected to represent the St. Antoine Division of Montreal. Mr. Ames has for several years been closely identified with the reform movement in municipal politics in Montreal, and his services as alderman since

H. B. Ames, M.P.

1898 will stand him in good stead at Ottawa.

Mr. Ames was born in Montreal in June, 1863, the son of the late E. F. Ames, who came to Montreal half a century ago and established what is now the important boot and shoe business of the Ames-Holden Co., employing 325 hands. Mr. Ames graduated from Amherst College in 1885, entering the employ of his father's firm in August of that year, where he rapidly gained a complete insight into the business.

Though still a director of the company and largely interested in its welfare, Mr. Ames has since 1893 devoted himself more particularly to the work of improving the tone of municipal politics in Montreal. He was actively interested in the Volunteer Electoral League, launched in 1892, and in 1898 he became an alderman for the St. Antoine ward.

In January, 1903, Mr. Ames was elected to the Council of the Board of Trade, a proof of the confidence the business men of Montreal place in his ability. As a member of the board he had much to do with making the Chambers of Commerce Congress last Summer a success. This year he was enthusiastically received in Britain, when, in company with other Canadians, he returned the visit of the British delegates.

His interests extent in many directions. He is a director of the Great Western Life Insurance Co., and of the Dominion Guarantee Co. He is actively interested in the Y. M. C. A. and the Montreal Christian Endeavor Union. He is also a member of the Protestant section of the Quebec Council of Public Instruction, and a governor of the Montreal Dispensary.

OUR WINTER PORTS.

REPORTS from the most reliable sources would indicate that the business to be handled at the ports of St. John and Halifax this Winter will exceed that of any previous year. The sailings have all been fixed and some seven lines of steamers will ply between Canada and Liverpool, London, Glasgow, Bristol, Manchester, Belfast, Dublin and South African ports.

The weakest point, as in previous years, will be the import business. Were all the merchandise brought into Canada to come in via the Maritime Provinces' ports, there would be an enormous impetus given to the shipping interests of these cities. Unfortunately a very large portion of the Canadian import trade passes through United States ports. This is largely due to indifference on the part of importers in Western Canada. So long as they secure their goods they do not seem to care whether they come via Halifax, St. John or New York. Apparently they do not understand that it will be to their ultimate interest to build up our maritime cities.

Many importers hold the idea that for despatch and cheapness the Canadian ports are not to be compared with the big United States ports. In this contention they are wrong. The import business via Halifax and St. John is neither slow nor expensive. On the contrary, it is deserving of the best consideration on the part of importers. If it is found that goods can be brought in cheaper by a United States port, it becomes the duty of the importer making such a discovery to enter a protest to the Government. The Government are not paying subsidies to steamers sailing to our ports for nothing, and they can demand as low a rate on import stuff consigned to western points as may be quoted by steamship companies trading with United States ports.

"SALADA" GREEN TEA VERSUS JAPANS

AWARDED GOLD MEDAL St. Louis 1904

Perhaps you who have for years been wedded to the sale of Japans may think this a little premature,

But if you will take the trouble to consider this "SALADA" Green Tea question—mark the vast superiority over Japans in leaf and draw—note the entire absence of Dust, Dirt, Chips, or any Adulterant whatsoever—then, if only casually, to look around you, and see what a pronounced success your confreres are making of its sale, we venture to say that even you will be forced to confess that our oft-repeated claims of its ultimate dominating influence in the direction of leadership are more than mere romance—yes, considerably so.

Sealed Packets only—same form, style and prices as the Famous "SALADA" Black Teas.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 1, 1904.

Groceries.

SNOW has brought with it a general impetus to business. "The ringing of the bells," said a prominent wholesaler, "means the ringing of coin on the counters." So with good sleighing and Christmas trade already with us, trade may be considered in first-class shape. The Quebec elections were so tame that they scarcely had any effect upon business. Collections are reported poorer than they ought to be. It is thought that elections may have had something to do with this fact. Sugar is still ruling strong with a tendency towards a still further advance. Molasses is quiet and without any special feature though the market is firm and there is a fair demand. Spices are still high and are said to be likely to remain high. The low price of cloves may be continued as the supplies are greater than was at first expected. The coffee market has stiffened a little and the news from the countries of production shows that a rise is in sight. A considerable falling off has been recorded in the daily receipts. In currants the arrivals are in abundance and most of the stocks of dried fruits have arrived weeks ahead of the time they came last year. There has been a slight advance in sultanas, and Valencias have declined. A good business is being done now as Christmas is in the air and briskness rules. In canned goods the market for salmon is very firm and there is a good demand for all kinds of canned meats. Canned fruits are also in excellent demand. Green fruits are active and the first car of California navels arrived this week consigned to Hart & Tuckwell. Grapes are selling freely and a nice assortment of grape fruit is on the market. Vegetables of all kinds are now on the market in abundance despite the frosty weather and good prices are available. Eggs are a rare commodity now to get fresh, in fact the ridiculous period for eggs is now setting in and new laid, boiling eggs, which are other terms for strictly fresh, will shortly bring as high as 40c a dozen. The flour market remains very firm and the demand is first class.

SUGAR.

The sugar advances of the past ten days have been well maintained and notwithstanding these advances trade has increased and the demand is unusually good. The sympathy with raw sugar is so marked that advances have taken place in refined all over the world. In London, great excitement was reported a short time ago, owing to the unfavorable results arrived at from beet workings. In fact from London it is officially reported that the rise in beet was quite phenomenal. It is believed however, to be a speculative value and one that must break as soon as the speculators wish to realize. At any rate the sugar market locally is very firm and if the prophesies of knowing ones be true now is a good time to buy sugar before it advances more. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Now is the quiet time for syrups and molasses and certainly there is not much doing. However, the demand has not been bad and the prices have remained very firm with not the slightest tendency to sag. We quote:

COFFEE.

The coffee market is considerably stiffer than it was a week ago and there is now a prospect of a higher market. Mail advices state that the London record for deliveries for the year show a falling off of 54,000 tons. The most that could be made of this has been utilized by those interested in advanced prices. The figures this year are said to show more accurately the consumption than did those of last year. From Guatamala and Colombo the prices are reported to have advanced and as the receipts have declined in the Old Country further advances are expected.

SPICES.

The spice market is still strong. There is more inquiry for Singapore and white pepper. The spot market is firm. Higher prices are being asked for arrival. A steady business is being done in nutmegs and mace. A slightly firmer feeling has been noticed in Zanzibar cloves, but the arrival market is irregular, the present tendency being towards higher rates. Hemp seed continues to advance in value as difficulty with regard to transport in Russia still exists.

TEA.

The tea market is flat, but while prices are low, considerable business is being done. Mail advices state that Indian tea has been in active demand and lower descriptions have advanced slightly. Not much change has taken place in the values of medium teas. Some of the Dooars and Sylhetts have shown improved qualities. Finer descriptions have met with good inquiry. From Calcutta a report comes that there will be a probable early close of the season and a reduced estimated outturn owing to unfavorable weather. In Ceylons low grades of whole leaf have been sought eagerly. Broken Pekoes have shared a slight advance, while Dusts and ordinary Fannings remain firm. Fine liquoring Fannings are reported scarce. Low priced Congou tea has been in good demand. Some business has been conducted privately in Oolongs in finer grades. Young Hysons and Sow Mees have been irregular. While the tea market locally is remarkably dull, it is acknowledged that it is better than it was last year at the corresponding period.

CANNED GOODS.

A general firmness has characterized the canned goods market. Salmon continues firm and sellers are not numerous for finest quality. Spot stocks are light and limited. Holders of fine grades of Alaska fish are carrying their stocks until the new year, rather than attempt forcing business at present. Prices for lobsters are slightly firmer, although they are not selling freely. The one pound tall tins are practically out of the market and buyers are turning their attention to the three pound tall tins. Canned meats are slightly easier in price. The demand for canned fruits is not so good. Prices are unchanged.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

This is the season when Christmas supplies create an exceptional demand for dried fruits. Supplies of currants are increasing, although there has been a slight scarcity up to date. All kinds of dried fruits have arrived in good condition, and fully two weeks earlier than in former years. Trade in sultanas has improved, and a slight advance has taken place all round. It is reported that the stock of sultanas is not heavy and it would not be surprising to see a further advance in prices. The Valencia market, on the other hand, has fallen flat, caused by the immense quantity offering, and the forcing of sales. Buyers seem to take little interest in the decline in prices, and there has been no rush for Valencias. The trade in muscatels has opened satisfactorily and some attractive parcels have arrived. It is reported from Malaga that the remaining stocks are short, and that buyers who are putting off purchasing with the hope of getting cheaper fruit will be disappointed. In figs it is found that grocers are selling more than the fruit dealers and the trade has hardly been up to the average. The demand for plums and prunes is very good, but no advance has taken place in the price as was expected. We quote:

Green Fruits.

The green fruit market has been stirred by the nearness of Christmas. The first car of California navel oranges is due this week. California celery arrived in one car lot December 1st, and a car of Mexican oranges was on hand November 29. Grapes are plentiful and are selling at good prices. Tinted, long-keeping Almeria grapes selling at $7. California Winter Nellis pears, very fine, selling at $3.50. We quote:

There is a good demand for all kinds of vegetables and notwithstanding the frosty weather, large quantities have changed hands at good prices. Fish.

There are seven fast days in the month of December, occasioned by their being five Fridays, which are added to the two ordinary fast days, namely Immaculate Conception, December 14, and the day before Christmas. The fish trade will naturally be brisker and the demand has already increased. Frozen fish of all kinds are now on the market. The season for lake trout opens on December 1st, and an abundance of frozen stock will be on hand at reasonable prices. Frozen smelts, frozen herring, and frozen salt salmon are ruling strongly in the market and a marked activity has been noticed in all these lines. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

As one day follows another it grows more difficult to get fresh eggs, in fact, retailers who guarantee new laid stock have charged as high at 40c a dozen and visions of excessive prices face the consumer. While prices in a wholesale way show no distinct change, the market is decidedly firm and straight gathered stock is scarce. The price quoted is 22c to 22 1-2c per dozen, and good straight cold storage stock in round lots is quoted at 19c to 19 1-2c, with No. 2 pickled at 17 1-2c to 18c. Jobbers have made special sales of selected stock at 24c, and limed eggs at Montreal are worth 20c a dozen.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Little new has occurred in the flour market, except that the firmness continues and export trade continues heavier. Trade generally is of a most satisfactory nature. The earnings of the large Manitoba milling companies are simply enormous, as witness the half million dollar profit made by the Lake of the Woods Milling Co. for the year ending August 31, 1904. We quote:

Dairy Produce and Provisions.

A firmer market has been noticed in provisions, owing perhaps to the colder weather; smaller offerings have occasioned an improved demand from packers. Trade was quite active and sales of straight lots at 5c to 5 1-4c per pound. For dressed hogs there was no change in the market, for which the demand is fair at $6.75 to $7 for fresh killed abattoir stock, and at $6 to $6.50 for country dressed per hundred lbs. For cured meats prices have been steady and a good volume of business has been transacted. We quote:

CHEESE.

Marked strength rules in the cheese market. Export trade has been heavy during the past week, owing to the close of navigation, and domestic trade has been of a most satisfactory character. The local stocks are held by some of the strongest men in the trade, and there is little doubt that importers will be forced to their way of thinking. The Old Country importers who are anticipating a falling to pieces of the prices in Canada will find that no such condition exists, or is likely to occur. The cheese market is in a very healthy state. The probabilities are that some of the large Canadian holders will exact substantial prices from the Old Country buyers before the new season sets in. The ruling price is from 10 1-4c to 10 1-2c per pound for finest cheese.

BUTTER.

Steady prices rule in the butter market. The export has been considerable for the past week. Prices ruling around 20 1-4c to 21c for finest creamery with western dairy at 15 1-2 to 16c.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 1, 1904.

Groceries.

FOREIGN dried fruits continue to be the leading item in the grocery trade, which as a whole is reported satisfactory for the week. Currants and Valencia raisins are in active demand, with reported scarcity of the latter on spot. A good volume of trade is reported in Malaga fruits, particularly fruit of finest quality. Figs in mats are scarce and firm in price.

Canned goods have arrived at their quiet season, and nothing startling need now be expected before Spring, as the requirements of the trade are pretty well met. Kippered herring are scarce and in quality hardly up to the level of previous years.

Sugar continues very firm and buying has been at a low ebb during the week. Just after going to press last week one of the Canadian refiners advanced the price of sugar 5c. The lead, however, was not followed by the grocers, and as a result prices are unchanged from last week. The policy of the trade at present seems to be to buy only for immediate requirements. One or two houses, however, were fortunate enough to be pretty well stocked up before the big advance came.

Coffee is a shade weaker, but little of interest has transpired locally. Ceylon green teas are moving more freely, while Japan greens continue dull. The foreign nut trade so far has been very satisfactory, with supplies of new stock arriving almost daily. The latest arrivals are California walnuts.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods are not so active as they were a few weeks ago, the market having settled down and the requirements of the retail trade being pretty well met. There is still a scarcity of tomatoes, and importations from the United States continue on a small scale. American brands, however, are not up to the standard of domestic canned vegetables.

There is not such a scarcity of corn as was at first anticipated, and it is now thought there will be ample to last until the canning season of 1905. A considerable range of prices rules in corn, namely, from $1.10 to $1.20. Canned fruits are quiet as well as canned salmon. Supplies of the latter are coming from the coast only in sufficient quantities to supply the immediate requirements of the trade on account of the high prices. There is still sockeye salmon to be had notwithstanding the fact that several of the more pouular brands are exhausted, for instance "Oweekayno" sockeye salmon has not as yet arrived on the eastern markets. Other varieties of canned fish are scarce, particularly kippered herring, and it is reported that the quality is not up to last year's average. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The syrup and molasses market is without special feature this week locally and prices continue unchanged.

According to reliable reports there has been an interesting development in molasses in Eastern Canada on account of the extraordinary firmness of the sugar market. At the present price of sugar refiners can afford to buy molasses and reduce it to sugar, and have bought largely for this purpose with the result that there has been a general stiffening up of prices on all grades. The producers of molasses in the West India Islands, where most of it comes from, feel the pulse of the market and regulate their output of molasses or sugar to correspond with the demand, thus keeping up the price. We quote the following prices :

COFFEES.

Locally the coffee market has shown signs of increased activity during the week, the season of increased consumption having commenced. Rios are still high and scarce, although advices from primary markets have had a tendency to ease the situation. In certain districts where Rios usually have the preference, milder coffees have become popular temporarily on account of the high price of Rios.

The large supply of mild grades of coffee which upset the bull campaign in coffee last Spring is a factor which is not likely to be experienced this Spring. Several estimates have been received during the week from mild coffee-producing countries, and they in a number of instances indicate small crops; particularly is this true of the crops of Venezuela, United States of Colombia and Porto Rico. The crop of Hayti is expected to fall back to an average yield. Another important factor in the supply of mild coffees is the understanding that the large surplus stocks of coffee that existed in producing countries, particularly Venezuela and United States of Colombia, have been marketed, and that it will be only this year's growth of mild coffee that will come on the market. Relative to the crop of Rio and Santos coffee well-informed interests continue to express their belief in the statement that the yield will fall short of 10,000,000 bags; in fact, it was pointed out that if the receipts of coffee at Rio and Santos for the balance of the crop year are the same as last year the total yield of the crop will be a few thousand bags short of 10,000,000 bags.

TEAS.

There is little change to note in foreign markets. Both Calcutta and Ceylon report "sales passing off with spirited buying at slightly hardened prices."

Locally there has been more general buying for importation. Strictly fine teas remain very scarce, and standing orders in London, Eng., are being filled only sparingly from week to week owing to short supplies of strictly fine tea coming on sale.

There has been more doing in greens, particularly Ceylon greens, of which considerable quantities have been sold both in Montreal and the west from spot stocks, which are now getting into much smaller compass. Difficulty is experienced in finding sellers to-day at the abnormally low period of 2 weeks ago. It has ceased to be a matter of opinion, being now recognized as a fact, that Ceylon green will show considerable advance within a few weeks. Owing to the low prices ruling in consuming markets the gardens have absolutely stopped making for the present and supplies on spot are being sold at 1 to 2c per lb. lower than similar tea could be contracted for with any garden in Ceylon. It is therefore merely a question of how soon local supplies will become exhausted before an advance to the level of importation cost will take place.

Business in Japans continues dull, doubtless in a measure owing to the extraordinary values in Ceylon greens referred to above. Our quotations are as follows :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

The market in rice and tapioca continues quiet. It is believed that the trade is still pretty well stocked up with rice bought prior to the beginning of the Russo-Jananese war on the expectation of high prices and scarcity.

Samples of new crop rice from Texas and Louisiana have arrived on this market and are showing good value. A careful survey of the situation there shows considerable shortage in the total production of this season as compared with that of last year, namely, 750,000 to 1,000,000 bags. On account of excessive rain throughout the rice belt the crop has been damaged, and as a result there is a decided scarcity of stock good enough to be classed as fancy. SUGAR.

The course of the market for the week has been interfered with by Thanksgiving holidays in the United States, refineries being closed from Wednesday afternoon to Monday morning. The tone, however, has been well maintained and may be called steady to firm. Since the market reopened there have been large purchases by New York refiners, principally of Cubans and San Domingos totalling 185,000 bags, all to the trust; former for January-February shipment, the price understood to be 3 3-8c c.and f., equal to 4.72c duty paid. The San Domingos sold at 3 1-16c c. and f., which asis as these are non-privileged sugars makes the duty paid price 4.75c for that description. Holders of Cubans are now firm in their pretensions, asking 3 7-16 c. and f. for January-February, while March shipment could be purchased at 3 3-8c, but is not wanted at present. There have been further sales of Demeraras to Canadian refiners aggregating 2,500 tons now loading at 3 1-4c c. and f. New York, which would be equivalent to a New York duty paid parity of 4.93c. It will thus be observed that our refiners are allowing West Indian growers fully 3-4 perference on present purchases.

It is estimated that the Sugar Trust has already purchased about 600,000 bags new crop Cubans and as planters have sold freely of early arrivals they are in a very good position to hold aloof from the market until better market values are realized.

There have only been fractional fluctuations in Europe, 88 per cent. beet going from 13s 11 1-4d to 14s 1 1-2d, and declining later to 14s, on which basis the market is firm as we go to press. This is equivalent to a parity of 5.01c for cane sugar in New York markets, thus maintaining a differential of over 1-4c per pound. While it might appear that European reducers have every incentive to increase their sowings next Spring owing to the fact that to-day prices are 5s 7 1-4d per cent. above those ruling at this time last year, this incentive is more apparent than real, since while the market for August deliveries of present crop is 14s 7 1-2d, for October-December, 1905, delivery is quoted only at 11s by which latter basis new sowings will be governed.

Receipts at United States four ports for the week ending November 23 were 16,004 tons, while meltings were reduced, owing to the holidays, to 36,000 tons, thus leaving stocks at 111,509 tons or 20,000 tons less than the previous week Cuban stocks show a further reduction and along with stocks in United States Atlantic ports there is a decrease of 111,469 tons from last year. Combined stocks of United States and America are 1,537,359 tons, a decrease of 571,146 tons from last year.

There is no material change to note in refined sugar and prices are well maintained. In United States business with refiners has been light because dealers are able to undersell refiners with large holdings of cheap sugars. We quote:

Granulated and yellow, 100-lb. bags, 10c. less than bbls.

Just as we go to press word is received that the price of Berlin granulated in bags has advanced 5c per 100 lbs., making the basis $5.05 f.o.b. Montreal.

Foreign Dried Fruits

Conditions have developed in Valencia raisins exactly as forecast in our last week's market report, and several houses have been buyers on spot. The news is current in certain quarters that the situation is becoming acute. A little earlier in the season a decline in the price of California seeded raisins caused a dullness in Valencia fruit, and importations were in consequence considerably under their usual volume. Now the demand is greater than can be met with stocks much reduced. The market abroad is easier but fresh supplies will not be available for the Christmas trade.

Cheap figs in mats are in shorter supply than usual at this time of year and insufficient for the active demand. During the past few years there has usually been a carryover of this class of fruit, resulting in a loss to holders. This year importers have gone to the other extreme and now sales are profitable with comparatively few in a position to benefit owing to lack of stock.

Currants are selling well; the market, which was slightly weaker in Greece last week, has hardened to advance of 3 to 6d. A fortnight's delay in the arrival in New York of the steamer Jennie with supplies of currants for this market has upset trade to a certain extent.

Finest quality Malaga blue fruit is scarce and orders for top grades go unfilled for lack of stock. Importers apparently failed to recognize the increasing wealth of consumers within the last 5 years of good times, which has had the result of increasing the demand for the more expensive fruits. FOREIGN NUTS.

The filbert market is strong with old crop filberts diminishing rapidly. The Brazil market is high, owing to excessive demand and scarcity of supplies. What remains is held by a few speculators who are inclined to advance prices. Grenoble walnuts are arriving this week. First arrivals of California walnuts are selling at from 19 to 20c per lb. Owing to the Christmas trade prices are firm and advances are noted in almonds, filberts and Brazils. Advices from primary markets report a higher limit for Marbot and Bordeaux walnuts. EVAPORATED APPLES.

Sales of evaporated apples have been fair during the week under review at quotations ranging from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2c. Some members of the trade say that 4 1-2c is a little below the quotation ruling generally and that the price should range from 5 to 5 1-2c.

EGGS.

No change in prices is reported for this week, although a higher level is apt to be reached any day. Receipts are practically nothing as far as new laid eggs are concerned. Little definite information is obtainable about stocks of pickled eggs. Dealers object to revealing their position. It is known, however, that the production this year has been less than that of last year. Since June 1 it has been normal, but a full month's production was missed before that and this has never been made up. From this fact and from the very reti-

SEEDS.

Foreign buyers are not showing much interest in the market at present on account of high prices. The outlook is for a brightening up of the trade the beginning of next month, although indications point to an unchanged price list. Our quotations are:

Green Fruits.

Christmas orders are arriving freely. Mild weather has caused a freer movement of fruit and dealers are hoping that the present weather will continue as it will permit a large movement of fruit liable to damage by frost.

California navel oranges are ariving in good quantities; quality of fruit is exceptionally good, being tender in skin and sweet. The demand for Mexican oranges is strong, owing to the fact that they are cheaper than California stock. Considerable quantities are arriving, and for first shipments the color is unusually good. The price of both Jamaica and Florida grape fruit has become firm. There is a good inquiry for bananas and prices continue unchanged. The strong demand for Almeria grapes continues with large quantities arriving.

Trade in apples on the local market is quiet. The season for sweet potatoes is over and their place has been taken by kiln-dried stock. Canadian grapes and cranberries have been struck off the list as their season has ended. During the week we have added to our list Budds' long keeper cranberries, $9.75 per bbl., Florida tangerines (half-straps) at $3.50, and Florida pineapples at $4.50 per case. Although the demand for fruit has increased, the price of Mexican oranges, navel oranges and lemons has declined, doubtless owing to the fact that it has yet to reach a normal level. Vegetables.

The vegetable market continues steady. Cauliflowers of first-class quality are scarce. There is a good demand for parsnips and red cabbage. Prospects point to an advance in onions, and all root vegetables, as soon as heavy frosts set in. Prices continue unchanged with the exception of cabbage, which has advanced 15c. Dairy Produce and Provisions.

The provision market continues unchanged from last week. Not one change in price has occurred in smoked meats and lard. The demand remains strong. In the fresh meats business is a little dull on account of the fact that merchants are clearing out their stocks before the big holiday purchases. Spring lamb has advanced a quarter of a cent. We quote these prices:

POULTRY.

Receipts of poultry have fallen off appreciably, but to equalize this the demand is not very great. Farmers are too eager to flood the market at holiday time and to let it run short between seasons. No better prices are secured at any time by this means. Hens have developed a little greater strength and ducks are up as high as eleven cents for best qualities. Prices are as follows:

Chickens, spring	0 08 0 09
Hens	0 06 0 06½
Geese	0 08 0 09
Turkeys	0 12 0 14
Ducks	0 09 0 11

BUTTER.

The Winter creameries are now almost all under way and receipts of creamery butter are larger accordingly. Dealers have in the majority of cases made their contracts for the Winter season. Prices will not drop but a larger range is quoted this week for solids. Dairy butter also is coming in more freely. Tubs that are received are all of Summer packing, but there are sufficient offered to warrant quoting. Dairy prices are not just as steady as last week, but no drop is recorded. We quote for this week:

	Per lb.

CHEESE.

Events are holding off in the cheese market. The export demand is momentarily smaller, since foreign buyers seem indisposed to buy at prevailing prices in the hope that lower quotations will rule. This will in all probability be short lived, however, as local dealers are firm in their demands and the price is not sufficiently high to lessen materially the consumer's demand in England. Stocks will accordingly soon have to be replenished, and when this is done it will be at the present prices unless some weak dealer is discovered. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10½	0 10½

CHEESE AND BUTTER EXPORTS.

The export season for the port of Mantreal is ended as far as 1904 shipping is concerned, and for the season a distinct falling off has taken place in cheese. The exact figures show that there were 273,304 boxes less shipped this year than there were in the year 1903. The totals for the season from May 1st were 2,112,398 boxes, and in 1903, 2,390,702.

For the week ending Nov. 26 and the end of the ocean navigation the exports of cheese were as follows:

Cheese, week ending Nov. 20, 1904.	Boxes.
To Liverpool	7,084
" Manchester	4,112
" Glasgow	1,015
" South Africa	65
	12,276

Butter, the shipments for the week were as follows:

	Packages.
Liverpool	3,163
Manchester	534
South Africa	103
	3,800

The total butter shipments for the season show a decided increase over the corresponding period of 1903, and the exact figures are as follow:

1904	485,458

EXCITEMENT IN POULTRY.

A slight advauce has taken place in poultry of one cent all round. Considerable scarcity is noticed in turkeys and buyers are complaining that they cannot buy at former prices. Sales were made yesterday at 15½ cents, and in one case a standing offer was made for a huge lot in warehouse of 15 cents. It was refused. Some sales were made at 16 cents, so that the market may safely be quoted at from 15 to 16 cents. This means for fine stock, of course. Old dealers say that this is customery at the holiday season, and they expect prices to go away up. From the country it is reported that turkeys are scarce, and what there are are firmly held. For chickens the ruling price is from 9 to 11 cents. Fowl generally are held firmly, and while 8 to 8½ cents is the ruling price, the trend is upwards. Ducks seem to be scarce and are selling at 12 cents. Geese are not in such good request, although 8 and 9 cents was paid. The market is certain to be firm from now on, and activity will rule.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Nov. 28, 1904.

BUSINESS continues to be very active. Our Winter port business is now in full swing. The outlook is for the largest season's business we have yet had. Large quantities of American grain, pork products and other lines are shipped via St. John. The import business is not all we would wish.

Markets are very firm. Sugar, while not continuing to advance so quickly, is very firm. Cream of tartar is steady at quite full figures. Hops continue high.

Fish.

The high price of dry cod fish is still one of the interesting features of the market. Pickled herring are still high. The season of large demand is about over. Smoked herring are quite plentiful and at the present rather low figures sell freely. Finnan haddies have more attention; there is a large western sale. In fresh fish variety is limited.

Canned Goods.

The American canned corn received gives good satisfaction. It means quite high figures. Tomatoes are firm and will be higher. In other lines fair stocks are held. Oysters are firm and the pack reported light. In salmon the trade are well supplied. Lobsters are high. There is a limited business. Gallon apples are low. Other fruits firm. In domestic fish supply seems to be equal to the demand. Prices unchanged.

Green Fruits.

In apples there is a wide range in price owing to the quantity of poor stock on the market. Even the low prices do not prevent western apples in quite large quantities coming into the market. Oranges are freely sold at even prices. Lemons are rather lower and also better quality. Cranberries are freely sold at this season and prices this year are very reasonable. The Malaga grapes offered are particularly good and prices are low.

The Best-Selling Tea is the most profitable tea---not the tea that seems to be the most profitable by a comparison of costs. The best selling tea, and therefore the most profitable, is

Blue Ribbon Ceylon Tea

The Red Label at 40c. is a 50c. quality by comparison.

PERFECTION is not easily obtainable. In coffees it implies the best conditions of growth, selection and preparation, and the resultant qualities of strength, flavor and aroma. You may safely tell your customers that the name of CHASE & SANBORN on coffee means perfection.

MANITOBA GROCERY AND PROVISION MARKETS

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, December 1st, 1904.

CHRISTMAS grocery trade is now in full swing in wholesale circles and a good increase in business is reported. Dried and canned fruits are moving well and the market is reported active for green fruits. Price changes this week are not numerous. Sugar is still the centre of interest and it is maintaining its strong position. Prunes are very firmly held, the small sizes being very difficult to obtain. Canned tomatoes are very scarce and consequently the small supplies on hand are firmly held. No additional supplies of Canadian tomatoes are offering and wholesalers are talking of importing from the United States. Collections are reported to be improving.

Sugar.

The strong position of sugar is still the most interesting feature of the wholesale grocery market. Shrewd judges of the market are not anxious to make any predictions as to its immediate future but one wholesaler remarked that the close of navigation might be expected to cause a further stiffening of prices, as it costs about 10c per cwt. additional to bring sugar to Winnipeg an an all rail route. We quote as follows:

Montreal granulated, in barrels	5 75
" " in sacks	5 65
" yellow	5 15
Wallaceburg, in barrels	5 65
" in sacks	5 55

Evaporated and Dried Fruits.

An increased demand for dried fruits is reported in wholesale circles. Prunes are in a very strong position as some of the smaller sizes are practically out of the market. The large sizes are more plentiful. Raisins are moving freely. We quote:

Trenor's Valencia raisins, per case	2 10

" 3's, F.B. "	4 25
Plums, 2's, 2 doz. case, per case	2 75 2 90

Canned Vegetables.

Tomatoes are very scarce and prices of small supplies on hand are being firmly maintained. No additional Canadian tomatoes are coming to hand at present and indications all point to a famine in this particular line. Prices throughout are firm. We quote:

Tomatoes, 3's 2 doz., per case	3 00
Corn, 2's, 2 doz., per case	2 50
Beans, 2's, per doz	1 80 1 90

Canned Fish.

Sockeye salmon now on the market is quoted at $7 per case and Digby chicks at 15 1-2c to 16c per box. The latter price is a reduction.

Lye.

Gillett's lye recently reduced in price, is now quoted at $4.10 per case.

Flour.

A slight decline in Nos. 3 and 4 is the only change in the market this week. We quote:

No. 1, patent	2 90
" 2, "	2 70
" 3, "	2 10
" 4, "	1 50

Honey.

An active demand for honey is reported at present, the new stock on the market being of fine quality. Prices quoted are as follows:

Clover honey 1-lb glass, 2 doz. in case, per doz	2 00
" " 5-lb tins, 12 in case, per tin	4 50
" " 10-lb tins, 8 in case, per tin	1 00
Fancy comb honey, per doz	2 40

Cornmeal.

Cornmeal is easier in price this week and a slight reduction will be noted from last week's quotations. The price now is $1.70 per sack and 80c per half sack.

Rolled Oats.

Rolled oats are also easier this week and some reductions will be noted in the following prices:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondence of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 24, 1904.

NORMAL conditions prevail in the markets here this week, with some lines rather quiet. In general provisions there is little change. Flour in the opinion of many of the dealers, has gone to the highest figure, and some are even expecting that a drop will take place shortly, though it is difficult to know on what they are basing their calculations. Wheat looks as if it would hold up, and with Winter setting in it is too much to expect that a decline will take place. Bacon has gone down slightly, and butter has taken a slight rise.

There is a steady supply of fruit. Navel oranges are coming more freely, and the price has fallen to $4 per box. Lemons have gone up a dollar per box. The first importations of Malaga grapes are now on the market, and are selling for $9 per barrel. The first consignment of Japanese oranges has arrived, and are worth from 50c to 60c per dozen. The market should be well supplied with this fruit after the arrival of the next steamer from the Orient. It is in great demand in Winter, and an effort is being made to place them on the markets further east, which have hitherto not been supplied.

Thanksgiving Day of last week and the American date of to-day have created an activity in trade. The supply of fowls is very short. Live turkeys are quoted at 22 1-2c in the market, and at 25c a pound killed, with limited supply at that. Grouse retail for $1.25 per brace, a prohibitive figure except for those who wish them as a luxury. Chickens still come high, in fact the price for this class varies only slightly.

The three canneries operated by the company known as the United Canneries were sold by auction last Saturday, the price realized being $119,500. The establishments were the English Bay, Gulf of Georgia and Scottish-Canadian canneries, which at the time of purchase in 1900 were estimated at $45,000, $60,000 and $80,000 respectively. The purchaser was O. M. Malcolm, with whom are associated G. B. Dodwell and H. G. H. Cannon, who will conduct operations under the name of Malcolm, Cannon & Company.

Mr. John T. Williams, fishery inspector for the Dominion Government in Northern British Columbia waters, has reported that wholesale destruction of sockeyes going up the Skeena River to spawn has been carried on by the Indians. Six barricades and one dam thrown across the streams to prevent the fish from going further were destroyed. It is estimated that 2,000,000 sockeyes were taken by the Indians last year in this manner. This is the most sensational report yet made in connection with the salmon fishing industry. On the Naas River a large obstruction of rock effectually prevents the fish from reaching the spawning grounds above, and every year thousands batter themselves to pieces in a vain attempt to get over.

In the State of Washington a big lawsuit is in the courts, and the battle will be hard fought and far reaching. It is practically a fight against the big fishing combine, which has had a monopoly of the trap business.

million fruit trees will be set out in British Columbia this season. Ten years ago he foretold the development of this industry in the province, but little attention was paid to his remarks. Over 60,000 trees have been treated at the fumigation station in this city since the first of the month, and this is only the beginning of the season. Much of this stock comes from Ontario, but a large portion is imported from Oregon. One of the largest blocks to be put in, and that as soon as possible, is that of Stirling & Co., of Kelowna. This company has 300 acres prepared, and has contracted for 200,000 fruits trees of all varieties. The members of this company are experts and have tested the capabilities of the soil of the Okanagan district, and do not hesitate to invest the $40,000 necessary for the purchase of such a large amount of nursery stock.

In this connection it might be noted that the first payment of $25,000 has been paid by the Shatford Brothers on the option held by them on the Ellis ranch near Summerland. This comprises several thousand acres and is to be subdivided for small fruit holdings. About $400,000 or $500,000 will be required to put the deal through. Offers have been made for the option, and should the present deal fail, other people are waiting to take the project up.

MR. JOHN MITCHELL, MONTREAL, DEAD.

MONTREAL has lost one of its well known business men in the person of Mr. John Mitchell, until recently a member of the firm of J. & J. Mitchell, whose death occurred last week. The deceased was born near Dufftown, Scotland, the birthplace of Lord Mount Stephen, in 1830. Coming to Quebec when sixteen years of age, he entered the office of G. B. Symes & Co., at that time the foremost timber merchants in the Dominion. After spending some years there, he came to Montreal, and in 1854, in connection with his cousin, the late Mr. James Mitchell, he established the firm of J. & J. Mitchell, which did a very extensive business with the Maritime Provinces, Newfoundland, the West Indies and the Mediterranean. Since that time Mr. Mitchell has been more or less connected with every movement for the improvement of business conditions in Montreal. He had practically retired from business for the last few years and lived quietly.

He was one of the original members of the St. James' Club, and in company with Mr. David Shaw built the present Thistle Curling Club's rink. On account of serious illness he was forced to retire from active curling some years ago, though he never lost interest in the game, and his name still remains on the rolls as an honorary member.

Mr. Mitchell was twice married. By his first wife he leaves a son, now in business in the Saskatchewan Valley, and a daughter, who is connected with the Montreal Star. By a second marriage he leaves two sons, one of whom is manager of the Bovril Co. in Montreal, the other being connected with the Star.

TABLEWARE FOR HOTELS AND FRATERNAL ORGANIZATIONS

BY way of further comment on a line of crockery featured in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer, namely, plain English tableware with reinforced or welded edges and decoration of monograms, crests, etc., for use in hotels, fraternal organizations, church societies, etc., it may be said for the benefit of intending purchasers that many of the leading clubs, hotels, railway systems and steamship lines in Canada and the United States are using it exclusively because of its durability and distinctive character.

This style of crockery comes from the potter in two ways. In one the monogram or coat-of-arms is applied to the clay and burnt in before the glazing process. By this means the pattern is made to last as long as the tableware itself, and is practically ineffaceable. In the process of manufacture there will be more or less seconds or imperfect pieces, and as the coat-of-arms or crest is put on in an early stage articles of crockery coming out of the kiln as seconds cannot be utilized by the potter for any other purpose than for filling an individual order. This means that in ordering crockery of this description the buyer must agree to take all the seconds that come out in getting the requisite number of firsts to fill his order. This, however, need not be an insurmountable difficulty, except where the order is a small one. Hotels, clubs, etc., can easily utilize a number of seconds without anyone being the wiser.

By the second process the individual pattern is stamped over instead of under the glazing before the final burning and burnishing. There are no seconds, as in the other process, and it is probably on this account that more of it is used. The only advantage of having the pattern stamped under the glazing is that it lasts longer. According to the latter method the coat-of-arms, etc., will in time become dim and eventually wear off. There is this to be said, however, in its favor, that orders can be handled in smaller bulk, an impossibility in the former; that it is considerably less expensive, and that the pattern is good for years.

English Table-ware with Coat-of-Arms.

The retail grocer and general merchant in cities and larger towns throughout the country can make no mistake in judiciously following up the possibilities in crockery and china along the line of high-class English tableware with individual monograms, crests, etc. The percentage of the trade handling crockery and china as a side line is steadily increasing. To those who have carefully gauged the possibilities of a high-class crockery and china trade in their particular locality, this line is recommended as an attractive and profitable addition. In days when competition is as keen as at the present time, a merchant requires a special line or two over which he has exclusive control, not only to rejuvenate trade but to attract new customers, and on condition that they promise good returns, to afford scope for the exercise of a distinctly aggressive policy in building up trade. For a class of our readers best able to group themselves, such a line is English tableware with monograms, coats-of-arms, etc., after the style of the accompanying illustration, which represents one of Maddock's popular patterns as imported by E. W. Klotz, Toronto.

An Unusual Opportunity.

It is not often that a merchant has a chance in the midst of the holiday season, when such goods are in demand, to purchase a line of holiday goods at a special cut price. China dealers are given such an opportunity, however, by the Barnard & Holland Co., Montreal, who have decided to close out the balance of their bisque figures at a big reduction from regular prices. These are not the common, cheap figures frequently sold, but a very superior line of large pieces, making very suitable articles for Christmas presents. It will be noticed that only nine merchants will have the opportunity of securing one of these packages, that being the total number left. Incidentally it may be remarked that this firm have a few, but only a few, assortments of Christmas china left. Anyone requiring such goods will further his own interest in writing for lists.

FUTURE OF CEYLON GREEN TEA.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has received the following communication from C. M. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., Yokahama, on the Ceylon green tea situation:

Editor Canadian Grocer:

The Ceylon green tea business has proved an utter failure and resulted in loss to everyone concerned in it. The Ceylon leaf is not adapted to green tea making; it is picked too often and is too hard in consequence, a young tender leaf being required to make green tea. Stocks of green tea in Colombo are being sold at auction for 3 or 4c a pound, and the best use they can make of it is to ship it to Germany, where it is used for making caffeine.

A tea merchant just home from Colombo tells me that he does not think the growing of Ceylon tea will increase, as it has not paid and that a comparatively new industry, rubber planting, is taking its place to a considerable extent, and proving far more profitable. It is expected that shipments of Ceylon green tea to Germany will be increased, as the duty in that country on tea is to be reduced next year from 6d to 1½d per pound.

CANADIAN HONEY

By R. F. Holtermann

CANADIANS are pleased to hear of the good impression created at foreign exhibitions and in the markets of the world by Canadian manufactured and agricultural products.

During recent years the Dominion Government has undertaken to send exhibits to various parts of the world for the purpose of drawing attention to the resources of Canada. During the past year an exhibit of Canadian honey was made at the St. Louis Exhibition, which won a gold medal for display of comb and extracted honey and beeswax. Last July, at a time when the writer was exceedingly busy caring for some 400 colonies of bees, he was requested by the Exhibition Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, to collect in ten days an exhibit of honey to be shown in England. Comb and extracted honey was collected from Ontario and Quebec and forwarded in due time. The following letter was received in reply to an inquiry as to the impression made in England by this honey:

Ottawa, Nov. 11, 1904.

R. F. Holtermann, Esq., care Messrs. Foster & Holtermann,
Brantford, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—Replying to your letter of the 10th inst., I beg to inform you that we took part in the following exhibitions, which were held in the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, London: Confectioners', Bakers', and Allied Traders' Exhibition and Market, Sept, 5 to 10; the Grocers', Provisions and Allied Trades Exhibition and Market, Sept. 17 to 24; Dairy Show, Oct. 4, 5, 6 and 7.

At all these exhibitions we occupied 1200 square feet of floor space and put up an exhibit of food products that was an eye-opener to the British public. The honey attracted a great deal of attention and was favorable commented upon by members of the British Beekeepers' Association.

Some of the judges sampled the Canadian honey and pronounced it epual to any on the exhibition.

Yours very truly,

Canadian Exhibition Commission
(Sgd.) per W. H. Hay.

While Canadian beekeepers are looking to foreign markets with much hopefulness as an additional outlet for their products, they have done very little to develop the home market to the fullest possible extent. This market, which is the most profitable, is capable of enormous expansion by proper methods, such as bringing more clearly before the people the value of honey as a food, and producing a more uniformly excellent article. Honey varies as much in quality as does butter. One of the most fruitful sources of trouble is the removal of the honey from the hive before it has been ripened by the bee. Maple sap comes from the tree with but a small percentage of sugar, and before becoming fit for food it is evaporated to the consistency of syrup; so nectar is gathered by the bees from blossoms, and before being finally sealed in its cells it is evaporated by the bees by the process of fanning with the wings, so well known to beekeepers. In addition to the process of concentration the bees, while storing and re-storing the honey until it is finally sealed, reduce the article to a partially digested state, making it more readily assimilable than any other saccharine food within the reach of man, and rendering it equal in this respect to the expensive foods which have been treated with pepsin.

The source from which the nectar is gathered has an influence upon the color and flavor of honey, and for this reason great care must be observed in management of the honey. Much injury can be done the goods by storing them under improper conditions; honey should be kept in a dry atmosphere, never in a cellar. As it will draw moisture from the air, exposure should be avoided; storage in air-tight vessels directly after taking from the hive will prevent the absorption of moisture and preserve its delicate aroma. A warm atmosphere is a better place to store honey than a cold, though honey does not deteriorate in a cold dry place. The beekeeper who produces good honey should endeavor to educate the dealer and consumer to judge the goods; much honey has been pronounced adulterated that was pure but unripe when stored, or in some other way off quality. If liquid, honey should be thick in body; a dark honey may possess the true honey flavor and be a good food if of a heavy consistency, while a clear, light colored honey, if thin and unripe, can never have a good honey flavor and is inferior in food value. Color indicates the source of the honey and is a matter of taste; a pleased palate aids digestion, otherwise there is no difference in the food value between a dark and light honey.

A dealer lacking experience in judging honey cannot make a mistake in buying it in the solid granulated form; only well ripened and well cared for honey will granulate solidly and free from coarse watery grains. The consumption of granulated honey with bread and butter is becoming more popular, and handling in this condition by the retailer is easier than when it is in liquid condition, as the goods can be cut up and sold without the use of vessels for conveyance. The householder who prefers honey in the liquid form can readily convert it by gently heating it.

Until every family of five persons consume at least fifty pounds of honey per annum we should not consider that our Canadian market is developed to its full extent. Honey is heat and energy producing, a carbonaceous food well adapted for our Canadian Winters, and should be used in increasing quantities as we develop the north and west.

Swiss Chocolate Industry.

IN ten years the Swiss chocolate industry has increased tenfold in quality and twentyfold in value, as the following figures will show: Exports in 1884 were 580,000 lbs., value £52,000; exports in 1902 were 5,200,000 lbs., value £720,000; exports in 1903 were 6,500,000 lbs., value £910,000. Britain is the principal market for Swiss chocolate. British importers took in 1903, £400,000 worth of this article. In this connection it is interesting to note that the Societe Industrielle et Commerciale de Lausanne states in its last report that, should Mr. Chamberlain's proposals ever be accepted by the British public, the principal Continental chocolate factories would manufacture a certain part of their output in the United Kingdom. Last year a large Swiss chocolate firm built a branch factory in Paris. This step was taken on account of the tax on sugar having been reduced, according to the terms of the Bruxelles convention. The firm was thus able to compete successfully with the French industry.

Confectionery Notes.

Hamm Bros., biscuit, cake and pastry manufacturers, St. John, N. B., have dissolved partnership. The business will be continued by R. P. Hamm under the old firm name.

AMONG OURSELVES.

A LEADING Toronto china and crockery importer, who has won a name for painstaking thoroughness in following up business, tells a story of how The Canadian Grocer helped him to land a customer he had been watching for years. He always made it a point to keep his probable customer posted on current prices and market conditions generally, but apparently without avail. A couple of weeks ago his man put in an appearance, and after offering profuse apologies left a neat order, remarking casually that it was only after seeing the importer's ad. in The Canadian Grocer that he mustered up sufficient courage to call.

Editorial reference was made in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer to a descriptive atlas issued to the trade by the E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, Through the courtesy of the said firm we have been handed an inquiry for the atlas in question from Lutey Bros., wholesale and retail grocers, Butte, Montana, who say they are constant readers of The Grocer and were attracted by the notice.

Owing to our rapidly increasing circulation it was found necessary during the week of November 1 to add six new routes to our already large mailing list. This means that six extra mail bags will now be sent out weekly, one of which is for the foreign circulation, one for the Maritime Provinces, and the balance for Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. R. T. Goodfellow, grocer, of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, N. W. T., writes concerning The Canadian Grocer that he has always found it a first-class trade paper, eminently suited to meet the requirements of the retailer, and that no grocer should be without it.

GREEN FRUITS

The Olive Industry.

HOW olives grow, where, and the quantity grown, should be of interest to readers of The Canadian Grocer. The consumption of olives in Canada has increased over 600 per cent. during the past five years, principally because it was found possible to utilize this fruit in a hundred different ways directly importations in bulk began. The use of olive oil has become common in this country. In fact it is a poor table on which a bottle of olive oil is not placed. Bulk olives have also become so cheap that almost any pocket can afford them. Some interesting details have recently been published in the New York Sun regarding olives, and are reproduced herewith :

As is generally known, the olive tree holds a large place in Mediterranean industries. Italy produces more olives of fine quality, but Spain surpasses in quantity. The number of trees in Italy is about 100,000,000, while in Spain there are 300,000,000 trees. We may gain some idea of this intensive cultivation of a single kind of fruit when we remember that in 1902 the total number of fruit trees of every kind in Germany was only 164,000,000. The little island of Corsica is one great olive grove; 36,000,000 trees are flourishing there. The olive thrives along nearly all the coasts of the Mediterranean and reaches as far inland in Spain as Madrid. Most of Tunis is a frightful waste, but its olive groves number 20,000,000 trees. When in Tunis a man who owns a thousand olive trees is regarded as a very well to do grower, we may get some idea of the part which the olive plays in the material well-being of Mediterranean countries.

Of course the olive is so important only because it is one of the leading articles of food. Many millions of persons in the Mediterranean lands, as in ancient Greece, eat at every meal a handful of olives, dried or pickled in brine, with their bread. They use olive oil for butter and all animal fats. They dip their bread in it. The Berbers of Algeria sip olive oil as they eat their bread. The people generally use the oil in the preparation of all kinds of food; and while the fruit and oil are leading articles of export, most of the product is consumed in the lands where it originates. The economic importance of the culture is so great that, as in ancient Greece, the planting and care of the olive is a matter of State concern in a number of the Mediterranean countries.

It may be that the olive will never be so important in other parts of the world; but there is a zone girding the earth in practically the same latitude and at the same elevation where it may profitably be produced. Its cultivation in other countries is increasing. The history of its introduction into Mexico is curious and illustrates the fatuity of the Spaniards in the Columbian era.

Cortez took the tree over to the New World and planted it on the high and dry plateau of Mexico, where favorable climatic conditions were found. Olive trees began to multiply and the fears of Spanish growers were aroused. They said the Mexican crop would certainly put them out of business unless the cultivation of this fruit in the New World was forbidden. So the Government took strenuous action. It placed the olive on the list of agricultural products whose cultivation in Spanish America was forbidden. From that day until the revolution in the early part of the last century, when Mexico threw off the Spanish yoke, no olives were grown in that country. The only olive tree known to exist in Mexico proper in 1810 was in the garden of the Archbishop of Mexico.

After the revolution any one was free to plant the tree, but the Mexicans have never given serious attention to the crop and the republic grows few olives. The industry has had its greatest development in the New World in the United States.

In spite of the Spanish prohibition a considerable number of Franciscan fathers and other missionaries had planted the olive in the mission gardens of California, and when our gold seekers flocked into that region they often wrote home of the olive groves near the Pacific coast. The industry developed very slowly for years and it was only about two decades ago that it began to receive much attention. In 1880 the best Italian and French varieties were imported and some of them are now flourishing, but there have been years of discouragement, for it took time and experience to learn what varieties would thrive best and what soils were most suitable.

Southern and middle California are pre-eminently the home of the olive in America. Santa Barbara County is the region of largest cultivation. The tree grows nearly all over the state, but olives are not a sure crop in the north.

After Santa Barbara come the counties of San Diego, Los Angeles, Ventura, Fresno, San Joaquin, Alameda, Sacramento, Butte and Riverside, where the groves are increasing year by year. In 1893 as many as 278,380 trees were in bearing and 328,997 young trees were planted. In 1894 there were 425,000 bearing trees and 1,360,000 young trees; in 1895 800,000 trees were set out. The olive thrives in California to a height of about two thousand feet. The largest plantation is the Sylmar ranch near Los Angeles, which contains considerably more than 100,000 trees.

Tinned Apples Should Have Labels.

A commission merchant in Bristol, Eng., writes that he could place large quantities of Canadian apples in 3-lb. tins if the English consumer were instructed how to use them. Without such information this trade must continue to be limited in the main to restaurants and bakers, who use the apples for pies and stews. One large firm takes 600 cases a season, all to be made into pies. The method of the chefs is first to drain off the liquor in the tins and then to let the apples stand in water before using for pies. The fruit must, of course, be clear and firm, not pulpy or flaky. The merchant in question advises that the 3-lb. tins have labels bearing directions for use as above, otherwise those who use fruit, liquor and all, will find it unsatisfactory.

Fruit Notes.

White & Co., Toronto, have received a number of branches from Mexico bearing oranges, grape fruit and tangerines, for display purposes.

An exhibit of fruit from British Columbia at the Horticultural Society's show in London, Eng., held Oct. 18, consisting of apples, plums, and pears, was awarded the gold medal.

The Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association convention will be held at Windsor on Dec. 7 and 8; the Prince Edward Island annual convention will take place at Charlottetown, Dec. 21 and 22.

Ontario's Grain Crop, 1904.

A FEW years ago it would not have been putting it too strongly to say that Ontario's prosperity depended almost entirely on her grain crops. This is no longer true, since although a bountiful or lean crop undoubtedly affects to a greater or less extent the purchasing power of the farming community, which is the backbone of the country's prosperity, it is now only impaired to a limited degree by crop failure. The reason is because the dairying industry has become so widely spread throughout Ontario, so profitable and such a sure source of income, that combined with the several years of good crops and remunerative prices which Ontario has enjoyed it has enabled Ontario farmers not only to largely reduce the indebtedness on their farms, but in many cases to place a nice balance in the bank.

That 1904 has been a lean year is plainly shown by the final Government report just issued, which estimates the yield of both Fall and Spring wheat in Ontario as probably the smallest in several decades. Even this, in the opinion of a number of the best posted grain men, ought to be further reduced, notwithstanding the fact that the final report reduces its previous estimate on wheat nearly 50 per cent. In their opinion it is still double what the actual fact warrants, especially when you take into consideration the very low average quality of the wheat harvested. They also are of the opinion that the oat crop is nearer 75,000,000 than 102,000,000 bushels, as shown by the report.

The following figures will give our readers an idea of the amount of money which even a poor crop means to the farming community of Ontario, as based on the Government report.

They are the final estimates of the product of the 1904 crop, computed from returns of actual yield made by threshers and an extra staff of correspondents. In most cases the yields are below the forecast of August. 1904 :

Fall wheat—605,458 acres, yielding 9,160,623 bush., or 15.1 bush. per acre as against 17,242,763 and 25.9 in 1903.

Spring wheat—225,027 acres, yielding 3,471,103 bush., or 15.4 bush. per acre, as against 4,650,707 and 18.7 in 1903.

The total value of the wheat crop in 1903 was $16,420,000, as against at present prices $11,370,000 in 1904.

Barley—772,434 acres, yielding 24,567,825 bush., or 31.8 bush. per acre, as against 24,378,817 and 34.3 in 1903. Value, $10,318,000 in 1904.

Oats—2,654,936 acres, yielding 102,173,443 bush., or 38.5 bush. per acre, as against 109,874,053 and 41.6 in 1903. Value, $29,121,000 in 1904.

Rye—130,702 acres, yielding 2,001,826 bush., or 15.3 bush. per acre, as against 2,970,763 and 16.6 in 1903. Value, $14,012,000 in 1904.

Beans—50,892 acres, yielding 912,849 bush., or 17.9 bush. per acre, against 978,248 and 18.4 in 1903. Value, say $1,004,000 in 1904.

Peas—338,260 acres, yielding 6,629,856, or 19.5 bush per acre, as against 8,924,650 and 21.9 in 1903. Value, say $3,980,000 in 1904.

Buckweat—100,608 acres, yielding 2,066,234 bush., or 20.5 bush. per acre, as against 2,049,169 and 21.5 in 1903. Value, say $3,315,000.

Corn for husking (in the car)—329,882 acres, yielding 20,241,910 bush., or 61.4 bush per acre, as against 29,287,888 and 77.3 in 1903. Value, $5,850,000 in 1904.

The total value of the grain crop of Ontario as given above amounts to over $66,000,000, based on the Government figures, and even if the estimates of the grain men are correct, as mentioned above, it would still amount to over $54,000,000, which shows how important the grain crops of Ontario still are to the prosperity of the province.

Hints to Flour Exporters.

FLOUR is one of the lines in which Canada should everywhere excel, says W. A. MacKinnon, Canadian Commercial Agent to Bristol, Eng., and no obstacle exists there in the shape of a public skeptical or unconvinced of the merits of the Canadian product. That difficulty has been overcome by the pioneers in the trade.

Another difficulty equally serious, however, has arisen, namely, the claim that Canadian shipments do not always prove equal to samples on which the orders are given. It should be noted that even if it is in the shipper's power to prove the fault not his or unintentional, and that he has used reasonable care to prevent it, yet a certain amount of discredit inevitably follows such a dispute. Right or wrong, stories of British importers are apt to be received by their friends to the detriment of the good name of Canada, and of the reputation of her business men. The seller always has most to lose, for buyers are never too plentiful, hence Canadian exporters should use extraordinary care to see that no possible confusion occurs with regard to samples and the shipments which follow them.

Another complaint is that shipments are not always made in accordance with the terms of the contract. A case in point has recently arisen in which a Canadian firm contracted for a shipment in June, despatched the goods about July 10, and explained that it was "practically a June shipment." Leading merchants are aware how vital a thing is punctuality, time being often of the essence of the contract, but beginners in the export trade sometimes overlook its importance.

Price of Bread to Remain Unchanged.

At the last meeting of the Master Bakers' Association of Toronto it was decided not to increase the price of bread. The matter came up for consideration on account of the recent advances in flour, which have reduced the margin of profit on the manufactured article.

Troubles of Halifax Flour Trade.

The November issue of the Maritime Merchant refers at length to the inconvenience to which the flour trade of Halifax is being subjected at the present time, owing to a deplorable lack of terminal facilities and unfair discrimination in freight rates. In the case of Manitoba flour for export the rate is 21c per bbl. in favor of U. S. ports, with the result that Halifax dealers have to do a large share of their export trade with the West Indies via those ports direct instead of bringing goods to Halifax for transhipment. The seriousness of the situation, as well as the reason for the agitation in favor of a re-adjustment in rates, is readily seen when it is explained that the bulk of the flour trade of Bermuda and a small percentage of the flour trade of

If Ready-For-Serving Cereals

is having such a fine sale. It might be accounted for on the score of novelty. But ORANGE MEAT came on the scene after half a dozen others— when ready-for-serving breakfast foods were no longer a novelty, and it has made its remarkable success on the top of the failures of others. All hail, then, to the West Indies is controlled by Halifax houses.

The upshot has been the formation of a flourmen's association in connection with the Halifax Board of Trade, its object being three-fold, namely, (1) to have better facilities provided for handling the trade; (2) to secure fair rates for export trade; (3) to devise ways and means of extending business.

Grain Situation.

DURING the week under review an easier tone has been noticeable in the wheat market. This is not to be wondered at at this season of the year when such large quantities of grain are being marketed. The visible supply for the whole of North America on Nov. 28, 1904, was distributed as follows: Wheat, 35,595,000 bush., an increase of 2,196,000 bush. over the previous week; corn, 1,852,000 bush., a decrease of 360,000 bush. from last week; oats, 24,323,000 bush., a decrease of 92,000 bush. from the visible supply of oats a week ago. Much of the weakness in the speculative market is undoubtedly the effect of manipulation. Outside events, however, have favored speculators' operations. Reports from Russia show a much larger crop than has been counted upon. In Argentina weather conditions have proved to be exceptionally favorable for the maturing crop, although a change in market conditions during the week has had a tendency to stiffen the market.

Locally considerable delay is being experienced in shipping grain on account of a scarcity of cars, particularly in Ontario. The railroad companies require every available car for use in their competitive trade from Chicago to the seaboard, and as a result Ontario grain shippers have to suffer.

During the week a cargo of 80,000 bush. of Manitoba wheat was bought by a Chicago firm, an event unique in the Canadian grain trade in so far as it is the first Manitoba wheat of commercial quality ever bought by Chicago. The wheat in question is a particularly high-grade of No. 1 northern, and is to be used for special milling, in which a higher grade of northern Spring wheat is required than has been raised in the United States this year.

Importations of Manitoba wheat by Minnesota millers have ceased for the present. In the United States wheat liquidation has proceeded in the absence of export trade, and on account of the larger crop movement and increasing visible supplies. Flour has been dull for export and only fair for domestic purposes.

The Canadian flour market, in sympathy with wheat, is quiet, very little export business having been reported during the last ten days.

New Japanese Tariff.

The new tariff in Japan, which came into force on Oct. 1, 1904, affects some of the leading imports of Japan, as follows:

Flour	per 100 kins (133 lbs)	60 sen (30c.)
Wheat	" " "	16 sen (8c.)
Salmon, salted	" " "	94 sen (47c.)
Butter	per kin (1⅓ lbs)	14 sen (7c.)
Condensed milk	1 doz. lb. cans,	46 sen (23c.)
Timber		5 per cent.

Increase in Grain Acreage.

Government reports estimate the increased area in grain for the Northwest Territories next Spring at half a million acres, owing to the extraordinary open weather up to date. The Territories had somewhat less than 2,000,000 acres in grain this season, and will increase this acreage to 2,500,000 for 1905.

Cereal Notes.

The report is current that the C. P. R. is about to erect at Fort William another storage elevator of three million bushels capacity.

The attention of Canadian flour and cereal exporters is directed to the following proposed changes in the Norwegian tariff:

Rolled oats—Proposal of customs committee, 60c per 220½ lbs.; proposal of Parliament committee, 34.67c.; present tariff, 34.67c.

Pearl barley—Proposal of customs committee, 16c per 220½ lbs.; proposal of Parliament committee, 16c; present tariff, 13.3c.

Oats, whole—Proposal of customs committee, 16c per 220½ lbs.; proposal of Parliament committee, 16c; present tariff, free.

Clover seed — Proposal of customs committee, 8c per 2 2-10 lbs.; proposal of Parliament committee, 8c; present tariff, 5.34c.

Timothy seed — Proposal of customs committee, 4c per 2 2-10 lbs.; proposal of Parliament committee, 4c; present tariff, 2.67c.

No change is proposed for whole barley, beans, peas, corn, rye, or wheat flour.

PREMISES ENLARGED.

Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, has during the past few months had the premises occupied by him for years thoroughly renovated. He has also secured additional space, so that now he occupies an entire building of five floors, the ground floor being used entirely for general offices, private office and sample room. The interior is all neatly finished in hard wood, and certainly ranks as one of the finest office and warehouse premises on St. Paul street, which is saying a good deal. Mr. Dunn has enlarged his premises on four occasions during the past ten years, but he expects the present arrangement will afford him sufficient space for some time to come.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Smoking Shortens Life.

SMOKING shortens the long, lonesome hours into calm, quiet, philosophy. Probably the greatest disturbing factor is to see a sign "Please Don't Smoke," such as are in evidence in the Montreal and Toronto street cars. It seems a pretty hard proposition when no smoking accommodation at all is provided on the street cars. The open cars are no longer in use, so the lover of the weed must walk or stop smoking. It is quite amusing to see the young man trying to steal a puff while the conductor is gathering fares, and sometimes he is enabled to keep his smoke going from ane stop to another by a little judicious dodging.

What is very noticeable in the big cities now is the craze for 5c cigars. The swell young man knows where he can buy Havana cigars for 5c. He has a very handsome silver mounted case and he fills it with the "fivers." His friends may not know the difference; in fact it would take an expert to identify some of the very excellent 5c goods on the market to-day. It has tended to develop the cigar business enormously, in fact it has been a boon to the cigar trade. There is comfort for a man in the fact that 5c is not much, so he buys two. Then the artistic seller remarks: We have a cigar, same stock, but twice the value, adding, "A longer smoke." He may then continue: "We are not making these 5c cigars any longer after New Years."

"Why not?" exclaims the customer in dismay.

"Because they are long enough." Two clerks usually fall under the counter especially if the boss has said it.

This is the kind of humor that the average cigar store is guilty of, yet all the while cigars are selling and the output of all kinds of cigars has increased tremendously since the 5c cigar has become popular.

There is one retailer in Montreal who deserves especial mention for his windows. He uses unique cards and recently attracted attention by having a couple of old boots with well worn soles in the window labelled, "Worn out coming for Myers' Famous Special." His other noticeable method is to have 25c pieces stuck all over the boxes, which accentuates five for 25c. He, however, in addition to doing one of the finest 5c cigar trades in Montreal, does a high-class cigar trade, and he has testified how a really high-class 5c cigar will educate the smoker to use heavier goods as soon as his pocket may be able to afford it.

Tobacco War in Philadelphia.

Considerable guessing has been occasioned, says the New York Journal of Commerce, on account of the latest move of the American Tobacco Co. in closing its Philadelphia agency, which is ordinarily responsible for an annual turn-over of from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. Although it is largely a matter of conjecture, the general opinion seems to be that this is only another concerted move on the part of the trust to obtain control of the tobacco business of Philadelphia. The American Tobacco Co. is also introducing a scheme to restrict the sale of its brands of tobacco to certain jobbers. In order to get his tobacco a jobber must sign a six months' contract for a certain amount at a quoted price. If he wants more trust tobacco before the end of that time he must pay about three per cent. more for it. The ultimate object of the trust is to get the retail trade after all such jobbers are frozen out and it secures control of the market. It will then deal with the retailer as it is now doing with the jobber, that is, force him out of business and establish its own retail stores.

Death of Toronto Tobacconist.

The Grocer regrets to chronicle in this week's issue the death of Mr. J. W. Scales, wholesale tobacconist, Toronto, which occurred on Nov. 23. Mr. Scales was one of the pioneers in the tobacco business of Toronto, having started in business with his father as early as 1865. Some of the leading tobacconists in the city received their training in the late Mr. Scales' establishment.

Cigarettemakers Abandon Coupons.

That the public is becoming weary of the "coupon craze" is to be seen from the fact that one of the largest manufacturers of Turkish cigarettes in New York City has discontinued the use of coupons, at the same time announcing that he has found it a wiser business policy to present goods to the consumer solely on their merits.

Suggest to your lady customers that they buy a box of cigars—not for themselves—goodness, no! But for their husbands—for a Christmas present—or for their fathers—or for somebody else.

Cigars make acceptable presents, if you get the right kinds. Pharaoh or Pebble are the right kinds. We have them in boxes of 25 for the Xmas trade. Get your stock in now, and get your customers thinking about it.

In a 5-center, get Pebble; in a 10 center, Pharaoh.

You know our standing offer: 1000 cigars, assorted, express paid.
Unsold stock taken back at the end of three months at invoice price.

the people in the east accorded him every possible attention in trade, and that orders from this quarter are increasing rapidly. The demand for the Chamberlain cigar has doubled within the past year, and is to be attributed partly to the excellence of the cigar and partly to the campaign re preferential tariff which is being waged in the Motherland. It is remarkable how one great current of advertising assists business, and further how strongly co-operative any kind of publicity becomes so long as the name has been made known.

Christmas goods of all descriptions are now on the market in abundance. E. Mayer, J. A. Mayer and J. A. McNeil, three of the Fortier Co.'s travelers for the Province of Quebec, report an unprecedented Christmas trade. Some novel ideas are to be seen in the form of gifts.

The British Canadian Cigar Co., Kingsville, Ont., have been reorganized into a joint stock company.

WALL PAPER

ART IN WALL PAPER.

THE present day belief that good design consists of pattern—pattern repeated ad nauseam—is an outrage on good taste. A wall paper should be a background, pure and simple; that and nothing more. If there is any pattern at all (and a discreet pattern is certainly an enrichment) it ought to be of the simplest kind, quite unobtrusive both in color and also in its motive and shape. The general tone of a wall paper is the important thing to be desired; pattern is a mere trifle in comparison with tone. The art teaching of to-day gives but little consideration to this fact. It follows in the steps of William Morris, a great man, who somehow delighted in glaring wall papers. The kind of paper hanging that we need most of all is what may be described for want of a better name as the "tone wall paper." A dozen or so of good patterns—modest patterns, well drawn and unassuming—would be enough, if only they were printed in from fifteen to twenty pleasant tones of any normal color, such as red, green, blue, gray or yellow, the gamut of the color ranging from pale to dark tones. How easy it would then be to choose a wall paper to suit the lighting of a large room! At the present time, when an apartment has to be repapered, the decorator presents for inspection half a dozen thick books filled with samples of profusely patterned papers, so various and so useless that the patient examiner soon feels distracted. It is seldom that the pattern and the color are right in the same piece; that would be too much to expect. The only thing to be done (and this one thing is not really safe) is to choose a pattern that one has seen elsewhere and liked.

We all know from sad experience, when ill and in bed, what it is to have always in evidence a petterned wall paper, a thing that transforms a wall into a labyrinth of curving lines, by which the mind is fascinated and rendered anxious and feverish. Surely we might be spared this distraction. But if wall papers should be quiet in design and color, how is this principle of quietness to be reconciled with the splendor of tapestry, the most beautiful of all coverings for a wall? The answer to this question is quite simple. Tapestry is a thing apart; it has always, when good, the desired quality of modest reticence, though every square inch of it is full of entrancing interest. It keeps its place flat against the wall and never challenges attention. All painters love tapestry as the most exquisite of backgrounds; even men in black coats and white ties look well against it! But good tapestry is expensive and rare, and to-day one rarely sees a tapestried room. The material is still used in a good many homes, but the modern way is to employ it in strips and pieces, to frame it in woodwork and treat it as a picture. The real tapestried room has become, or is rapidly becoming, a glorious thing of the past. In such a room the furniture is reduced to a minimum. He would be a vandal who placed a sideboard against a fine piece of tapestry; and what person of taste would ever dream of hanging pictures on a wall enriched with this fabric and its silent histories?—The Upholstery Trade Review.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

IN a compilation of the failures in Canada and the United States during the month of October, Canada, according to the report of R. G. Dun & Co., does not make as favorable a showing as her sister country. Commercial failures during October in the States numbered 888, involving liabilities of $10,525,278. This is a striking improvement as compared with the corresponding month last year, when there were 1,086 defaults, with liabilities of $18,387,567. In Canada there were 112 defaults for $819,840, comparing with 85 failures and $747,312 liabilities last year, while the increase is still more striking when the comparison is carried back still further, for liabilities were only $502,183 in 1902 and $594,070 in 1901. This year's record is good as to manufacturing failures, 24 for $114,436 comparing with 20 for $474,248 last year, when two large saw mills and one mine defaulted for a heavy amount. Trading failures numbered 85, with liabilities of $547,963, against only 62 defaults for $269,476 a year ago. Last month's total was swelled by a large hardware suspension, and the losses in general stores were exceptionally heavy. Other commercial failures numbered only three, but provided $157,441 liabilities, owing to the suspension of a stock broker in Nova Scotia. Last year there were also three suspensions in this class, but the amount involved was only $3,588.

ANOTHER satisfactory half-yearly report has been issued by the Sovereign Bank of Canada. The statement shows an increase as compared with a year ago of $2,800,000 in deposits, $2,300,000 in loans and discounts ; an increase of $600,000 in cash and bank balances, or 100 per cent., and an increase in total assets of $3,000,000. The report states that the circulation of the bank is practically up to the legal limit, and the figures generally represent an unprecedented growth, which not only reflects credit on the management of the Sovereign Bank, but is an evidence of the prosperity of the country. The bank shows $3,375,000 of immediately available assets, or over 50 per cent. of its liability to depositors. The whole showing is a credit to the directors and management and must be very satisfactiry to the shareholders of the Sovereign Bank.

ON January 1 the First National Bank of Chicago will put into operation a new scheme of bank management, the working out of which will be watched with keen interest by bankers. The scheme contemplates the specialization of the various large branches of trade represented by its deposit item. Under the new system the various lines of business will be divided in the bank's classification into groups and divisions. There are to be seven groups and twenty-six divisions. One group will include such divisions as collateral stocks and bonds, grain, flour and feed, meat products, leather, wool, live stock commission and coal. Another group will include dry goods and all branches of the clothing trade, and still another will take in agricultural implements, iron and steel products, lumber and furniture and manufacturing sundries. The customers of the bank will be classified according to this grouping of the lines of business they follow. Under the present system the customers of the bank are classified in an arbitrary alphabetical way. The main object in making the change is to minimize the bank's losses. The second is to increase its business. There will be a departmental system for handling the business of its customers with a view to making the official staff a group of specialists in the various lines of trade and industry that are followed by people who do business with the institution.

MOLSONS BANK annual statement is a satisfactory one. The net profits for the year were $457,290.72, affording dividends as usual, at 9 per cent. and $150,000 for the reserve fund, which is now equal to the whole paid-up capital of $3,000,000. Next year the Molsons Bank will reach its 50th anniversary. Its record in all the time of its existence has been one of conservative and careful management and sustained well doing for its shareholders.

NOTES.

The Sovereign Bank has opened a branch at Arkona, Ontario.

Mr. L. Bolster, formerly manager of the Toronto branch of the Sovereign Bank, is dead.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce is opening a branch in Brandon. This is the seventh chartered bank represented there.

Mr. C. A. Gray, manager of the Union Bank, Windsor, N.S., has been appointed manager of the branch at Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The Bank of British North America has started to keep its new St. John, N. B., branch open from eight to ten o'clock on Saturday nights.

Mr. D. R. Wilkie, vice-president and general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, has been elected as a director of the Confederation Life Assurance Company.

A rumor has gained currency that the Metropolitan Bank of Toronto, the People's Bank of Halifax, the People's Bank of New Brunswick and a Prince Edward Island bank will amalgamate under the name of the Alliance Bank of Canada, with a capital of $5,000,000.

The Standard Loan Company, of Toronto, has absorbed the Huron and Bruce Loan and Investment Company, the head offices of which are at Goderich, Ont. During the past year the Standard has effected amalgamation with two other companies, the Aids Savings and Loan Company, and the Ontario Loan and Investment Company, Limited, both of Toronto.

At its meeting in Toronto on November 11 the Canadian Bankers' Association re-elected the following executive :—President, E. S. Clouston, of Montreal ; vice-presidents, Duncan Coulson, Toronto ; Geo. Burns, Ottawa ; H. Stikeman, Montreal ; M. J. A. Prendergast, Montreal. Council : B. E. Walker, Toronto ; Thomas Fyshe, Montreal ; D. R. Wilkie, Toronto ; Thos. McDougall, Quebec ; James McKinnon, Sherbrooke ; W. E. Staven, St. John, N.B.; G. N. Balfour, Quebec ; P. A. Lafrance, Quebec ; S. P. Reid, Toronto ; T. G. Brough, Toronto ; E. L. Pease, Halifax ; D. R. Clarke, Halifax ; H. S. Strathy, Toronto.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

NAVIGATION for ocean traffic from Montreal has ended for the season, and now the attention of shippers will be devoted almost exclusively to St. John, N. B., Halifax, N. S., and Portland, Me. While there is great rivalry as to the steamers there is a uniformity of rate from these three terminal points. The rates quoted herewith include all three ports. The rates for South Africa are appended also, which shows an awakened interest in the new colony. It may be noticed that the prices of shipping canned meats to Capetown and Port Elizabeth are precisely the same as to Dublin, while for flour they are only 6d per sack more. Thus with two lines subsidized, namely the Furness Withy and the Elder Dempster, a monthly service will be managed to South Africa. This should tend to stimulate exports and business men should be aroused to the actual and possible outcome of trade with South Africa. Canadians, it is believed, have neglected this point for freight, and only recently The Canadian Grocer was informed by a well known merchant of Capetown, a Mr. Jaggers, that an immense trade could be done if only more commission agents were appointed to act for Canadian manufacturers. In quoting South African rates the abbreviation "MT" means measurement, and "C.S." cold storage. Butter and cheese are quoted at 80 shillings, which would appear remarkably cheap when the distance to be covered is remembered. It may further be added that there is no primage on shipments to South Africa, such as is noted on West St. John goods.

At the several large shipping offices there is jubilation as grain rates have advanced slightly, and the amount coming forward is becoming encouragingly large; rates are, however, very much the same as they were last season at the corresponding period. In fact, notwithstanding the dull Summer, the different companies have taken precautions to suit their service to the demands, and as soon as the demand increases steamers will be available.

New charters have been rare this week but some special boats are promised for St. John in a couple of weeks. In connection with the G. T. R. from Portland six steamers will keep up a weekly service to London; three to Glasgow; two to Bristol and Avonmouth dock; seven with Liverpool.

The St. John service promises to be exceedingly prompt and efficient, and an excellent Winter freight business is anticipated.

Freight via C. P. R.

Assistant Freight Traffic Manager Bulling, of the C. P. R., has issued a circular to the effect that on and after December 1, freight for Prince Edward Island via Point du Chene and Pictou, will be accepted only subject to delay, though it will be handled from these points as long as weather permits. As navigation from Pictou is usually open longer than from Point du Chene, freight may be re-shipped from this latter point subject to additional charge, and any freight on hand after the close of navigation will be forwarded by Government steamer.

A New Cartage Co.

The Lilley & Cameron Cartage Co., Montreal, has been organized, with the following board of directors: R. A. Brock, W. A. Lilley, D. E. Cameron, J. J. Riley, jr., and W. L. Bond. W. A. Lilley is president; R. A. Brock, vice-president; and D. E. Cameron, secretary-treasurer.

The only real value of money lies in making use of it.

The money that lies there in your safe from day to day doesn't do you any good until you commence to use it.

Then its value to you depends on how you use it.

Now, if you would only invest some of it in advertising space in THE GROCER and then use the space right you'd have a valuable assistant, working to increase your trade with grocers and to make yourself and your goods better known among them.

Some folks would sooner save (?) the money—but they are "penny wise and pound foolish."

But you're not.

If You Have Money to Burn

Why! Go burn it. There is 10 times more satisfaction in burning money than in losing it in driblets, through carelessness of clerks, or disputed accounts. Who that has "pass-book" customers, has not had accounts disputed and partially repudiated? The best way to avoid all complications and misunderstandings is as follows:

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? OUR NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

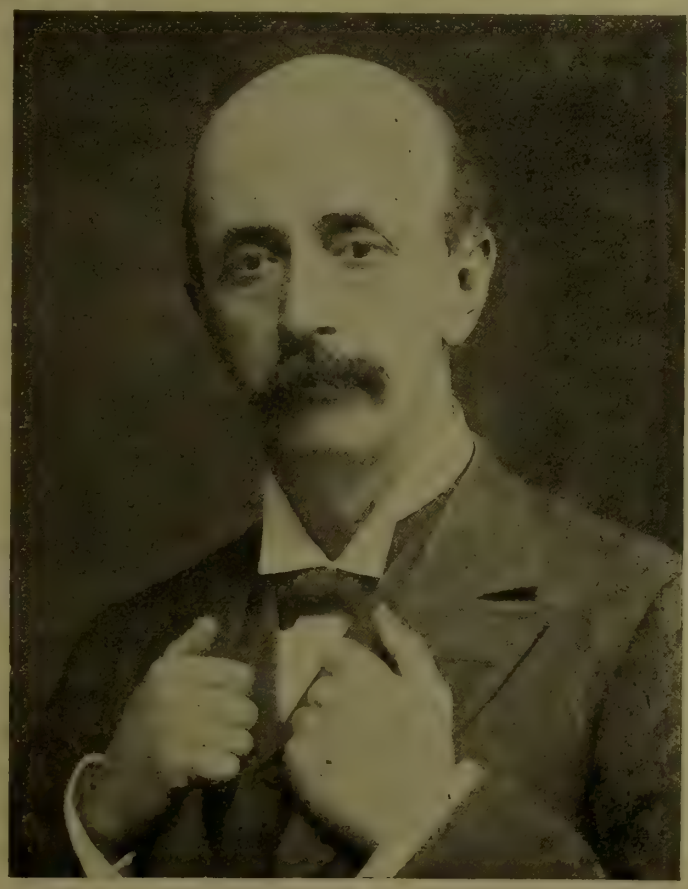
A STRENUOUS BUSINESS MAN

By W. T. STEAD in Review of Reviews.

ALBERT HENRY GEORGE GREY, the fourth earl, was born on November 28, 1851. He came of notable lineage. His father, General Sir Charles Grey, had been for over 20 years more closely and confidentially connected with the British court than any other man, courtier or statesman. General Grey, second son of the great Lord Grey who carried the Reform Act of 1832, was private secretary to his father while he was Prime Minister of the Crown from 1830 to 1834. In 1849 he was appointed private secretary to the Prince Consort, a post which he held till Prince Albert's death. He was then appointed private secretary to the Queen, and this post he held to his death, in 1870. The private secretary to a king or queen is often a more important person than a Cabinet Minister. He is privy to all the business which a sovereign has to transact. He has access to all the papers. He knows all the secrets, and he is often much more than the private secretary. He is the trusted, confidential adviser of the sovereign. Unlike the official advisers of the Crown, he is appointed for life, and holds his position independent of popular caprice or changes of public opinion. General Sir Charles Grey stood high in the favor of his royal mistress. He was devoted to the memory of the Prince Consort, of whose early years he published a book in 1867.



Lord Grey.

The new Governor-General for Canada is, therefore, not only the grandson of one of the most famous Prime Ministers of the nineteenth century, he is the son of a man who from 1849 to 1870 occupied a position which made him the personal friend and trusted confidante of the Queen in all the business both of court and of state.

Lord Grey's chief interest in politics has been the maintenance, the extension, and the consolidation of the Empire. His ardent and enthusiastic temperament predisposed him to be a leading spirit among the young optimists who believed that in the union of the English-speaking race there might be discerned the dawn of a new heaven and a new earth. Mr. Rhodes found in Lord Grey a man after his own heart, full of passionate enthusiasm for the Empire, and keen to do his part in the revival of the old Elizabethan tradition of adventure and romance. He became one of the founders of the chartered company, and was thereby committed to a close connection with the destinies of central South Africa. He became a Rhodesian, and he is a Rhodesian to this day.

His Record in Rhodesia.

The task which Lord Grey attempted as administrator of Rhodesia in 1896-1898—years of native war and of profound political unrest—did not afford him much experience likely to be helpful to him as Governor-General of the Dominion. The Rhodesians, a handful of white men, were fighting for their lives against overwhelming numbers of savage Matabele. Lord Grey was a novice in South African affairs, and he was necessarily overshadowed by the colossal personality of Cecil Rhodes. He had a divided allegiance. He was the representative of the Crown, as well as a founder and leading spirit of the chartered company. He was an English noble, bearing a name that is famous in the annals of Liberalism. Yet he was Mr. Chamberlain's agent in South Africa. After he returned home, he became a director of the South African Company and a trustee and a joint heir of the Rhodes estate under Mr. Rhodes' will.

As a Peace Crusader.

When the Russian Czar launched the Peace Rescript, Lord Grey threw himself heartily into the popular agitation which secured the meeting of the Hague conference. As Lord-Lieutenant of Northumberland, he presided over the peace meeting in Newcastle Town Hall at the beginning of 1899. That this did not stand in the way of his presiding, a few months later, over a meeting in the same place clamoring for the dispatch of more troops to South Africa to compel Mr. Kruger to climb down, is a fact thoroughly in keeping with Lord Grey's impulsive enthusiasm for every cause that seems to represent a struggle toward a loftier ideal. Lord Grey, as is now well known, took little part in the annexation of the republics. Nor beyond supporting the importation of the Chinese has he interfered much in the settlement of the conquered territories. He has been chiefly interested in the affairs of the vast territories acquired and still administered under the charter. He has taken and still takes a keen interest in the development of the latent wealth of this great estate. His hopeful disposition enables him to labor on cheerfully where others would be apt to abandon their task in sheer despair.

Co-operation and Temperance.

In home politics, Lord Grey has devoted himself with untiring enthusiasm to two great causes—the cause of co-operation and the cause of temperance reform. He has for many years been the most brilliant and highly placed of the advocates of co-operation. Co-operation in all its forms, as the practical method of realizing voluntarily the ideals which the Socialists can only attain through legislation, has been always near his heart. Distributive co-operation, productive co-operation, co-partnership in every kind of industry, have always found in him a zealous and a sagacious supporter.

In the advocacy of co-operation, he was but one among many. In the work of converting the drink traffic from being a source of local demoralization into a source of local amelioration, he is the leading spirit. Many people, Mr. Chamberlain not excepted, had, from time to time, been fascinated by the working of what was at first known as the Gothenburg system of dealing with the supply of intoxicating drink. The Bishop of Chester had formed a small company to manage a public house for the public good, and not for private profit. At this stage of the discussion Lord Grey came into the field. A personal experience, by which he found that a licensing authority gave away for nothing monopolies which were salable the day after the grant for £10,000 ($50,000) opened his eyes to the frightful extravagance and waste of the existing system of licensing. He becaume the apostle of "The Bishop of Chester's Trust." What might have been a mere local experiment was taken up all over the kingdom. Everywhere Lord Grey was to the fore. He argued, pleaded, persuaded, until at this moment public house trusts have been formed in nearly every English county, and every month sees an addition to their number.

Public Conduct of the Liquor Business.

The essential principle of Lord Grey's trust public house is that the profits arising from the monopoly created by the public authority should be devoted to purposes of public usefulness, and not to build up fortunes of private individuals. The modus operandi is as follows: A number of the most influential and public-spirited persons in a given district meet together and agree to form themselves into a trust for the purpose of acquiring a license for the sale of intoxicants and the supply of refreshments. They subscribe the capital needed, the maximum dividend on which is 5 per cent. Then they either buy an old license or get a new one, and set up in business on the following lines: The public house is placed under the management of an agent of the trust, whose salary is not affected by the increase of intoxicants sold. He receives, however, a commission on all non-intoxicants supplied to the public, whether in beverages or in food. He has, therefore, a personal interest in pushing the non-alcoholic side of the business, and he has no inducement to construe liberally the law against supplying intoxicants to the intoxicated. Further, the trust being more intent upon social improvement than upon earning a dividend, the trust public house is more of a local club house and less of a liquor bar than any other licensed house. When the year's balance sheet is presented, a dividend not exceeding 5 per cent. is paid to the shareholders, and the balance is then devoted to the various local improvements. A footpath may need to be repaired, a public playground secured, books may be wanted for the library, a water fountain may be needed, a hospital may require assistance. The surplus profits of the trust public house form a modern Fortunatus' purse from which grants can be made to all manner of deserving objects of public utility and public charity.

An Opportunist Idealist.

Lord Grey, as sufficiently appears from this brief and rapid survey of his public career, is a man of great public spirit, of keen intelligence and of passionate patriotism. No man is less of a fanatic either in church or state. He is a Liberal who supports the Conservatives, a temperance reformer who runs public houses, a free-trader who takes the chair for Mr. Chamberlain, a peace crusader who promoted the South African War. In his mind there is room for many antinomes or apparent contradictions. Yet he is consciously consistent even in his greatest apparent inconsistency. He is an opportunist-idealist of the first magnitude. There is no danger that he will fall foul of the somewhat pronounced prejudices of race and religion which he will find in Canada. He will be tolerant even to the intolerant, and in his broad philosophic survey the Ultramontanes of Quebec and the Orangemen of Toronto are all members of the universal Catholic Church which in its essence is a society for doing good. He is no stranger to Canada. He has twice visited the Dominion and the fact that his sister was the wife of his predecessor at Government House will make him feel at home in his new position.

AWARD IN GUESSING COMPETITION.

Readers of The Canadian Grocer who visited the London and Ottawa Fairs this Fall will remember the interesting guessing competitions provided by the Richards Pure Soap Co., of Woodstock. The handsome horse that was the object of the guessing competition at London became the property of Mr. Moore, of Pugsley, Dingman & Co., manufacturers of "Comfort" soap. No better evidence surely could be given of the fairness with which the competition was conducted by the Richards Co. than the fact that the prize was awarded to a gentleman connected with the firm that are their keenest competitors.

NO CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Editor Canadian Grocer—We have heard with satisfaction that the wholesale grocers of Canada have agreed not to give any Christmas presents to their customers.

We think this a very good move on the part of the wholesale grocers and hope that the retail grocers will follow their example.

The giving of Christmas presents to customers has always been a very unbusiness-like and much abused custom.

Thanking you in advance for your space, we are,

Yours faithfully.

A. J. McCORMICK.

A Good Repeater

A prominent grocer, when recently asked what kind of goods he liked to sell best, replied:—

"Give me a good repeater like Royal Baking Powder; an established article of undisputed merit which housekeepers repeatedly buy and are always satisfied with."

NEW baking powders and new foods, like new fads, come and go but Royal goes on forever. Grocers are always sure of a steady sale of Royal Baking Powder, which never fails to please their customers, and in the end yields to them a larger profit than cheaper and inferior brands.

AN APPRECIATION.

The Canadian Grocer of October 21st presents to its readers a special holiday edition of 170 pages filled from cover to cover with the elaborately displayed and beautifully printed announcements (many of them in colors) of the representative wholesale and manufacturing interests of Canada, as well as varied and well selected special articles of news and information to all merchants in our sister country. This edition is in every particular a credit to The Grocer and clearly demonstrates its popularity with Canadian advertisers.—St. Paul Trade.

PREFERENCE AND RAW SUGAR.

ACCORDING to official returns the general trade of the port of Montreal has shown a satisfactory increase during the season just closed. A decrease in the revenue as compared with last year, however, is noted, caused by a falling off in importations of locomotives and by the preferential duty on raw sugar.

In regard to the first item, the value of locomotives formerly imported by the Canadian railways totalled $1,198,240, while this year they have been getting practically all their locomotives in this country with the result that importations for 1904 have amounted to only $105,799.

The preferential duty on raw sugar has made a difference of $250,000. Last year the amount brought in under the preferential tariff in three months was 51,265,904 lbs.; this year's importations show an increase of nearly 13,000,000 lbs. Under the general tariff last year the amount of raw sugar brought in during three months was 38,998,880 lbs. while this year it has amounted to only 24,034,450 lbs.

WEST INDIAN STEAMSHIP LINES.

It is learned that the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. propose to tender for the steamship service from Halifax and St. John to the West Indies. The existing contract is with Pickford & Black, of Halifax, but this expires at an early date, when the service will be thrown open to public competition. The Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. has been doing business among the West Indies for 65 years, its boats at present running from Southampton to nearly all the principal ports in the West Indies and the Isthmus of Panama. Mr. Baker, representative of the Packet Company, was in Ottawa last week in communication with the Department of Trade and Commerce.

TO PROHIBIT TRADING STAMPS.

Another effort is to be made to have a by-law passed in Ottawa prohibiting the use of trading stamps. The agitation was taken up a year ago by the grocers but fell through. Since then a branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada has been established in Ottawa and its officers are energetic in the renewal of the agitation for the purpose of the abolishment of trading stamps. While the membership of the association is confined mostly to the grocers, it is believed that the support of retailers in other lines of business can also be secured. It is the intention to bring the matter before the council backed up by the support of the majority of the retail dealers in Ottawa representing every line of business.

Mr. R. McDonald, of MacLaren's Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, has been touring the Western States in search of new ideas.

ENLARGEMENT OF GROCERY FIRM

F. X. ST. CHARLES & Co., grocers, Montreal, have gone out of the retail business and will in future devote their attention entirely to the wholesale trade.

This firm is one of the oldest and most widely known in Montreal, having been founded in 1860 by Dufresne & McGarrity. Up to 1876 both partners carried on business with success. The company was then dissolved and Mr. Dufresne became the partner of Mr. Mongenais. This firm continued until 1892, at which time Mr. F. X. St. Charles became a partner. The partnership of Dufresne, Mongenais & St. Charles lasted till 1895, when Mr. St. Charles became sole proprietor of the concern, doing business under the style of F. X. St. Charles & Co.

Until that time the business had been confined to the retail trade. Under the new management, however, the firm began to pay some attention to the wholesale trade, and little by little this increased until it became necessary to provide larger accommodation and was finally thought advisable to retire from the retail grocery business altogether.

The new premises of F. X. St. Charles & Co., at 39-43 St. Gabriel street, are among the largest and most completely equipped in Canada. They were constructed as early as 1793 and are of considerable historic interest in so far as the site was at one time the property of Maisonneuve and Chevalier de la Salle. In remodelling the old premises the architects have preserved very little of the old warehouse except the four walls and have not only enlarged but thoroughly modernized one of the oldest buildings in Montreal.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

Salmon Industry in Northern B. C.

THOUGH the Fraser River is the great spawning ground for salmon, there are certain inlets and rivers in the north enjoying a run which is smaller but neither so various nor uncertain as that on the Fraser. Here nature itself seems to have provided a means which enables the salmon to escape the nets of the fishermen, and pass on to their natural hatchery.

The mighty Fraser, after plunging through abyss and canyon, passes over many miles of soft, sandy bottom, which it stirs up in its rapid career, and causes the waters to become muddy and impenetrable. The nets of the fishermen are so hidden in its murky currents that when the salmon arrive they plunge helplessly into the meshes.

In the north, however, the waters are clearer, and the success of fishing depends upon late snow from the mountains causing a freshet at fishing time. It is also necessary to have warm weather and a stiff west wind, which stirs up the waters on their approach to the sea.

In cold, rainy weather the fish swim deep and thereby escape the shallow nets which the fishermen are compelled to use. The tide also aids the fish in their evasion. Especially is this so on the Skeena and Naas Rivers, where there is a big rise and fall. So violent are the currents and so narrow, and full of snags are the channels, that it is impossible to fish much except at the slack time of high and low water. In the intervening time the fish have an opportunity to pass, and hence the interference with their spawning is not so continuous as on the Fraser.

These many causes, coupled with the absence of traps in adjoining waters, have the effect that, although reducing the size of the northern catch, a steadier propagation and a steadier run are permitted.

On Rivers Inlet and the Skeena and Naas Rivers there are quite a number of canneries, enough and more probably than the capacity of the supply would warrant, although it is not so much overdone as in other places. Among the troubles of the canners the chief one is in securing enough good fishermen, and keeping down the cost of the pack to allow for the excessive freight rates that make canning more expensive than on the Fraser. So far the canners have stood together well, notwithstanding some foolish bonusing of fishermen by the more venturesome. At any rate, there has not been that insane and disastrous competition that took place on the Fraser in its palmy days.

In the struggle to secure fish the fidelity to agreement is sorely tried, and the individuality of those in charge is put to the test, and the fear is that they will think more of their own reputation for cleverness than of the interest of the stockholders.

There are ominous threatenings of a strike in the north again next year, but there is every reason to hope that if a policy of conciliation and compromise toward the fishermen is carried out the danger may be averted. The situation demands that the cannerymen take early action and that a settlement be made so as to insure a peaceful season in advance. One reason why northern canneries have more hopes of a permanent future is that the vicinity of the mouths of the rivers is not hedged about with traps as is the case with the Fraser. There is said to be some likelihood, however, that traps will be granted in the north. Even so it is improbable that they will operate so disastrously as on the Fraser. The formation of the openings to the sea, the depth of the water, and the large rise and fall of tides, seem to be features which would make their operation a doubtful proposition.

The quality of all kinds of salmon caught in the north are, in the opinion of many, superior to those caught in southern waters. The coldness of the water and the atmosphere, and the fact that all fish are caught in salt water, seem to make them more firm, solid, and to take on a greater proportion of fat. True, the sockeye has not the bright red color that it has on the Fraser, but it contains more oil. At any rate there is no disputing the fact that the cohoe, Spring salmon, steelhead and humpback, are superior to those of their kind caught in southern waters.

The price of salmon at the present time is regulated by the English market. Only the sockeye is sold there in large quantities. Every one knows that this market is a very fastidious one and that English dealers insist on fish being a bright red color.

However, British Columbia fish are pushing themselves into Australia and other countries, and the market is extending every day.

As to the qualities of the cheaper grades of fish mentioned above, a great number of people consider them quite as palatable as the sockeye. In fact many prefer them. Even the much slandered humpback, in the north at least, is considered a delicious dish. Their color alone is what makes them less saleable. There is reasonable hope however that they will gradually force themselves into general favor. This will operate to enhance their price and make the packing of them more profitable, and in fact open up a new field of enterprise in the canning line. Of course many of these kinds of fish are being packed at present, but it is not a very profitable operation, and only carried on as a side issue to the sockeye industry.

Attention might also be called to the practice of labeling salmon, which is often detrimental to the best brands. Puget Sound salmon are labeled Fraser River, Rivers Inlet are labeled Skeena River, Skeena River labeled Fraser River, and even cohoes and springs have been known to be labeled as sockeyes. All this goes against the reputation of the best kinds of fish.—Vancouver Province.

"Prepared Boneless Codfish."

WHY is it that the grocery trade has not in the past done a fair share of this business? The answer is given that the retail grocer has not given it the attention it should have, which is very largely true; but the grocer must have the very best stock to look forward to a steady trade.

Think of the way in which so-called boneless cod was packed and prepared up to within the last year or two. It was sent to the trade in the old fashioned dry cure, and hung outside a store which alone was enough to turn a customer against it. To make matters worse these goods were sold as "boneless," when as a matter of fact all the smaller pin bones were left in the fish, and it was positively dangerous for people to eat.

We are glad to be able to report a steady advancement in this industry in Canada, and we can now get our own Nova Scotia cod (which is considered to be the finest flavored codfish in the world) packed in attractive boxes and cardboard cartons, shredded and in other forms and absolutely boneless.

The best parts of selected codfish are used for these packages, which are most certainly a luxury. Does the grocery trade fully realize that the codfishing industry in Canada almost equals the salmon industry amounting in dollars to over four millions, or an average of over one million hundredweight? From the year 1869 to 1902 inclusive the five principal commercial fishes have yielded the following enormous values: Cod, $125,200,083; salmon, $74,552,814; lobster, $68,645,095; herring, $66,106,645; mackerel, $43,444,702.

A Model Fish Warehouse.

LEONARD BROS., wholesale fish dealers, Youville square, Montreal, have recently re-altered and enlarged their offices and warehouses, and now occupy the whole of the large building on the south corner of Youville square and Fort street, opposite the offices of the Ogilvie Milling Co., having one of the most complete and up-to-date fish and oyster warehouse in Canada. Their receiving and shipping facilities have also been improved and they are now in a better position than ever to fill orders promptly.

A special department is set aside for handling oysters in bulk, of which this firm are one of the largest handlers in the Dominion. Representatives are sent out all over the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, as well as Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Their large packing houses are situated at St. John, N.B., where they also own wharves and vessels operating along the coast of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. They have fishing stations on the Gaspe coast and the famous Baie des Chaleurs, where at various points fish are taken and cured for their large business which includes a healthy volume of export trade to the West Indies and Mediterranean ports. The firm is composed of Walter F. Leonard, manager of the business in the Maritime Provinces at St. John, and D. J. Byrne, Montreal, who has been with the firm for the past 19 years, and for the past 10 years has had sole control of the Montreal house.

The introduction of the system of fresh fish shipments by express during the Summer months is one to which Mr. Byrne has devoted considerable time and close attention, with the natural result that this business has now become a very important one. During the Winter months, frozen fish can be shipped by freight, the same as salt fish, owing to the rigorous climate of our Canadian Winters, and it is an acknowledged fact that fresh frozen fish of first class quality can now be procured by dealers in the smaller towns and villages throughout the country in the same first-class condition, and at as reasonable prices as from dealers in the larger cities. Leonard Bros. have large cold storage accommodation in their extensive warehouse where the fish are carried without risk of deterioration, and owing to the large volume of trade handled by this firm, supplies are always fresh and in good condition, Leonard Bros'. well-known brands being known, handled and appreciated by the jobbing and retail trade throughout Canada.

and Cold Storage News.

Conditions in Montreal.

IT is understood that quite a line of cheese has left Montreal city for export via Winter ports and as holders are not pushing business very little is going on locally. The prevailing range still seems to be 10 to 10 1-4c for October cheese and 10 1-4 to 10 1-2c for September, although it is very unlikely that the higher figure in either case has been paid. Shipments of cheese from the port of Montreal for the season are about 280,000 boxes short of the preceding season. This decrease however, hardly accounts for the decrease in United Kingdom imports as affected by the figures from New York, Portland and Boston. These will be some 362,000 boxes short of 1903.

Thus the large stocks of cheese held in Great Britain at the beginning and for some time in the season of 1904 seem to be more than offset by shortage in shipments. Then it being generally conceded that there was a very large November make and quite a little in December of 1903, whereas there is practically nothing this year, inspires holders with confidence in their stocks.

A slump similar to last year's is considered quite impossible. Some of the large retail combination stores abroad have put their retail cutting price down to five pence or say 10c per pound, and while this cheapness at first appearance would look as if conducive to larger sales, on second thought it hardly seems likely that retailers will push the sale of an article that shows them no profit. The trade abroad, however, is not brisk and it may take some time yet for improvement in price to take place. On the whole the season for the farmer has been one of a normal fair figure, although when compared to the abnormally high prices prevalent for the two preceding years it looks unprofitable.

There seems to be a good local demand for butter at from 20 1-2 to 21c and evidently the home trade are beginning to feel a little anxious about their Winter requirements being supplied as freely as was thought probable a little while since. However, the quality of most of the butter now coming in will hardly meet the standard for export and after a season which in shipments exceeded that of 1903 by almost 150,000 packages and established a very good record for choicest quality, it were foolish to try for more export orders.

Special Feature.

The Canadian Grocer will publish in next week's issue a full report of the Guelph Winter Fair and Fat Stock Show which is in progress as we go to press.

Value of Strict Dairy Laws.

THERE has been some opposition to such stringent legislation as the Dominion of Canada Dairy Products Act of 1893, and the Butter Act of 1903, which forbid the manufacture and sale in Canada of adulterated dairy goods, including filled cheese and process butter. The Hastings cheese case, recently reported in the press, has shown that if these dairy laws had been one whit less strict, the Canadian cheese trade might have received a blow from which it would have required years to recover.

The case has attracted almost universal attention in Great Britain and the triumphant vindication of the purity of Canadian dairy products will prove a great advertisement of Canadian goods.

Big Price Paid for Cheese and Butter.

At Huntingdon is located one of the strongest dairy boards in the Province of Quebec, as is emphasized by the fact that the large sum of $117,000 was paid to patrons of that institution during the past season. Mr. Charles Dewick, secretary-treasurer of the board, has furnished the following figures:

Cheese—White, 2,673 boxes; colored, 3,894 boxes. Total, 6,567 boxes, or 525,360 pounds, which realized $42,226, an average price of 8.03c per pound.

Butter—Fresh, 4,205 packages; salted, 8,399. Total, 12,604 packages, or 705,824 pounds, which realized $129,439.54, an average price of 18.33c per pound.

The total sales of butter and cheese amounted to $117,665.54. The produce was all sold f.o.b. at Huntingdon, the buyers paying freight charges.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

The shareholders of the Harriston Pork Packing Co. have ratified the sale of their packing house and plant to the William Davies Co., of Toronto.

The Cobb Dairy Co., Guelph, have sold their plant.

The egg emporium and produce building in Wingham, Ont., owned by Gunns, Limited, Toronto, was destroyed by fire on Dec. 3.

Lethbridge, Alberta, capitalists have incorporated under what is called the Alberta Sheep Co., with authorized capital of $40,000.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—During the week prices of long clear bacon, medium hams and lard in tierces, tubs and pails have declined. Hogs are scarce and prices are firm with indications pointing to an advance. Trade conditions in other fresh meats continue unchanged. We quote the following prices:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 08	$0 08½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 12½	0 13
Roll bacon, per lb	....	0 09½
Small hams per lb	0 12½	0 13

Mutton	5 50	6 50
Lamb, spring	6 75	7 75
Veal	6 00	8 50
Hogs, light	....	6 75

Poultry—The demand for all poultry, with the exception of chickens and hens, is stronger than the supply, and the general belief is that the farmer is holding off till a later period, when a like action by all will flood the market and cause prices to decline, contrary to present expectations. On account of the scarcity prices have advanced. Owing to the poor condition of some consignments of dressed chickens and hens arriving, prices as quoted below could not be expected by the shipper. Well-dressed chickens and hens are scarce and prices have accordingly advanced. Our quotations are:

Chickens, spring	0 09	0 10
Hens	0 07	0 08
Geese	0 08	0 09
Turkeys	0 13	0 16
Ducks	0 10	0 11

Butter—Owing to the shortness of the season just started the Winter factories are not in a position to handle as large an output as they will at a later period, therefore the supply of creamery butter is limited and prices of creamery prints and solids have advanced 1c per pound. A good trade is being transacted in prints and rolls, and for the best quality of the last mentioned as high as 17 1-2 cents has been received. We quote the following prices:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 22	0 23
" solids, fresh	0 20	0 21
Dairy prints	0 17	0 19
" in tubs	0 14	0 17
" large rolls	0 16	0 17

Cheese—Trade in cheese is quiet. Some dealers report an advance in large cheese and quote it at 10 1-2 to 10 3-4c per pound, while others favor present quotation, namely, 10 1-4 to 10 1-2c per pound. The price of twins continues unchanged.

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10¼	0 10½
" twins	0 10¾	0 11

Montreal.

Provisions—The feature of the market this week is the advance of live hogs, as owing to the scarcity of supplies and the good demand prices rose to $5.40 per cwt. weighed off cars. There naturally followed a stronger feeling for dressed hogs and sales of fresh killed abattoir dressed were made at $7 to $7.25 and country dressed at $6 to $6.75 per cwt. A steady market ruled for cured meats and lard and considerable business in lard was done both on local and country account. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 00	$18 00
American short cut clear	16 50	17 00
American fat back	17 00	17 50
Bacon, per lb	0 11½	0 12½

Cheese—The local dealers in cheese are busy counting up their losses for the year and on paper they appear a good deal more than they are actually. The point is that the prices have been lower than they were during the season of 1903, but then immense quantities of good cheese are in storage in Montreal now. Before the new season opens there will be some compensation coming to the big exporters as prices will be higher before they are lower. It is confidently expected that importers in England will want a great deal more cheese this Winter than they ever did before and when they get Canadian cheese they will certainly pay what the Englishman calls a "long price." Little is doing just now, although some small quantities are changing hands. There is so much disagreement between buyers and sellers that it is almost impossible to give a reliable quotation on Fall cheese. Buyers do not want to pay within half a cent of what the holders deem the article worth and so the business is nullified. Goods obtainable around ten cents is the order. Local holders decline to believe that any low offers have been made for Ontario makes of cheese.

Butter—Cable advices report the butter market very firm and active and this

CHINA FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS —ITS DURABILITY.

Attention has recently been called to the durability of china and crockery in general. Many people are apt to think that because it will break easily, if it meets with an accident, that it does not last a long time. As a matter of fact a dinner set or more particularly a toilet set or piece of fancy pottery remains in its owner's possession for many years after a piece of silverware or an article of clothing would be worn out. If a moment's thought is given to this matter, it will be admitted to be true.

It is worth the while of the retailer to call his customers' attention to this feature and to recommend a nice piece of fancy pottery or even a chamber set or dinner set for a Christmas present on account of its durability.

ENTERPRISING FIRM.

The firm of Armour Limited, which is a Canadian branch of Armour & Company, of Chicago, have recently undertaken an active advertising campaign in Canada. Not only are they advertising in all the principal papers but they are doing some attractive poster work in connection with their extract of beef, etc. The posters, which are artistically colored, represent a young boy dressed in typical cowboy uniform, partly hidden behind a cup of Armour's Beef Tea and he exclaims, after having tasted, "That's it." After an interview with D. Rattray & Sons, Armour & Co.'s agents for the Province of Quebec and Eastern Ontario, we learn that owing to a heavy demand for Armour's products Armour Limited have felt justified in doing even more advertising than they have been accustomed to.

OFF FOR THE OLD COUNTRY.

Mr. J. H. Magor, of Frank Magor & Co., Montreal, leaves for England the early part of next week to be gone about six weeks. Mr. Magor, who represents such well-known firms as Keen's and Cadburys', pays an annual visit to his principals abroad. While away Mr. Magor will visit relatives in Devonshire.

GRADING AND BRANDING VALENCIAS.

DURING the past few seasons more or less disatisfaction has been expressed by importers of Denia fruit, with the manner in which Valencia raisins have been graded and marked for the Canadian market, and it seems that the only safe and reliable way to secure confidence in shippers is to have the fruit bought and sold only by sample, as is the case in England, and not by designation of "Fine Off Stalk," "Selected," or "Layers," etc. Certain jobbing houses in purchasing their fruit rely exclusively on the established reputation of the Spanish packers. The experience of years confirms them in their loyalty to certain brands, and when their salesmen take orders from the retailers, the latter are sure of getting properly graded fruit. A great deal of dissatisfaction, however, has resulted from time to time, through competing travelers offering similarly graded fruit simultaneously with the other at from 1-2 to 1 1-2c per pound less. The traveler selling properly graded and branded fruit as "Fine Off Stalk," meets the competition of improperly graded stock continually, and the retailer does not hesitate to say that he is quoting "Fine Off Stalk" at considerably less money, whether he knows or not the difference in actual quality of the two brands offered.

The Grocer's attention was called to this matter last week by a wholesale grocery house of Montreal, and in such a manner that the opinion to be expressed could not be other than impartial. Three boxes of Valencia raisins were wrapped about with paper so as to hide every distinguishing feature, packers' name, branded grades, etc. On removing the lids and examining the fruit it was not difficult to pick out the best fruit—in fact the difference was so striking in one case as to lead one to suppose that the wrong box had been opened. The difference between the poorest and the highest grade was fully 1 1-2 to 2c per pound; when the wrappers were removed it was seen that all three were branded "Fine Off Stalk." The poorest box branded "Fine Off Stalk" was the veriest trash, full of stems, sticks and small pebbles, and small and shrivelled fruit, and any retailer receiving the same would be justified in promptly returning the goods.

In the opinion of The Grocer, who is not merely a newspaper man but an experienced grocer of nearly twenty years in the trade, it seems that this system of selling fruit should be terminated. Its continuance must result in dissatisfaction, not only between the packer and importer, but also, and to a greater extent, between the wholesale grocer and the retail trade.

It would be in the interest of the trade if the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild would take up this question and formulate some scheme for the abolition of this improper system of grading and branding. The consuming public must be longsuffering to put up with such goods, and as the guild collectively are the largest importers, they should see that this poor stuff is kept off the market. Is it to be wondered at that the public are using California raisins, seeded, more and more, and that Denia is losing trade? There is a certain wholesale grocery house in Montreal that absolutely forbids its travelers to meet the competition of the "grade" and sells only one line and that the best, notwithstanding the higher price. This firm's action was based on the uncertainty of doing business satisfactorily against improper grading, but since its exclusion of second grade "Fine Off Stalk" there are no complaints from its customers. The all-important question is: Will the guild protect the retailer, and the retailer the public?

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

THE crop of 1904 appears to have ushered in a new level of higher prices of wheat, and although it is yet premature to even suggest that the dollar mark is likely to be the level of prices for a any great length of time, it would appear certain that we have left behind permanently the low range of values which existed some ten years ago, and will never again see, at least in this generation, the price of wheat established at 50c or even 60c.

Wheat around a dollar a bushel is really not a high priced article of food when its feeding value and commercial usefulness are compared with other foodstuffs, such as oats and corn, and the prices these have been selling at for the past two or three years.

In fact it has been a great surprise to many in the grain trade that the price of wheat did not advance last year in sympathy with the high prices ruling for oats around 40c, and for corn between 50c and 60c, in spite of the enormous crop of the latter in 1903. No doubt it would have been on a higher level sooner were it not that Australia had thirty or thirty-five million bushels of wheat for export, although the previous year she had to import wheat and flour to feed her own people. What is more, both India and the Argentine had a large exportable surplus, approaching 200,000,000 bush. between them, and Russia was again in a position to contribute in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 bush. of wheat per week to the food supplies of other European countries.

English statisticians predicted several years ago that before 1910 the United States would not only cease to be a source of food supply for Great Britain, but would probably be an importer of wheat, and thus become an active competitor against England for the surplus wheat crop of the great Canadian Northwest. This time has arrived sooner than any one expected, and already a couple of million bushels in the shape of wheat and flour has been purchased in Canada by U. S. mills and flour dealers for shipment to that country, on part of which it is known the duty has been paid for local consumption, and the indications are that this will amount to several million bushels before the end of the crop year. As late as Dec. 7 Toronto exporters had bids for a cargo of Manitoba wheat that could have been worked at a fair profit for shipment from Fort William to a Lake Erie port near Cleveland, had a vessel been available to load before the close of navigation.

That this was not caused by the wheat crop of the U. S. this year being an unusually small one, although it is the smallest in the last three or four years, is shown by the Government estimate, namely, 572,000,000 bush. for 1904, as against a ten years average of 587,000,000 bush. As the estimate of home consumption for all purposes is 480,000,000 bush., it is apparent that there is a small exportable surplus according to the measured bushels. Thus it is doubtful if any Canadian wheat would have gone into United States if the Spring wheat crops of Minnesota and Dakotas has not been badly damaged by rust, with the usual result that the crop reaped was of poor quality, compelling U. S. millers to secure some of the high-grade wheat of Manitoba to enable them to maintain the quality of their best grades of flour for local consumption.

Indications are that with the rapidly growing population of the United States without a corresponding increase in the yield, owing to there being no more vast reserves of prairie lands to be brought under cultivation, the forecast of the English statistician referred to will be fully realized before the end of this decade.

IS THE PREFERENCE A MISTAKE?

SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN in a speech delivered at Manchester, Eng., the other day, made the surprising statement that "the rise in the price of sugar is nothing more nor less that the first fruits of retaliation and of colonial preference; that the people of the West Indies have gained a few thousands while Great Britain has lost millions, the consumer, the manufacturer and his employes being the chief losers; and that Mr. Chamberlain has made a big mistake in treating Imperial sentiment as a marketable article."

This statement serves admirably to illustrate the truth of the maxim that "a little truth is a dangerous thing." There is no denying that the sugar industry of the British colonies is in a prosperous condition, the increase in importations of sugar into the United Kingdom from the British West Indies alone being 166,000 cwts. during the fiscal year of 1903-04. The statistical position of sugar at the present time is very strong, not only in Great Britain but all over Europe and America. It would, however, be strange to single out the British preference as a cause.. The advance is largely, if not entirely, owing to natural conditions, namely, shortage in the European beet crop and increased consumption.

OPENED A BRANCH AT TORONTO.

The Southern California Fruit Exchange, Los Angeles, California, who have been doing the Ontario business through their representative at Detroit, have opened a branch office in Toronto under the direction of C. H. Moe, brother of the representative at Detroit.

DEATH OF MR. E. W. CARTER.

On Wednesday, Nov. 30, in Toronto, occurred the death of Mr. E. W. Carter, well known among the younger business men of Toronto. Some time ago Mr Carter went into business with his father, the late E. T. Carter, and his brother, H. J. Carter, who bought out the COMBINE OF NOVA SCOTIA GROCERS.

Twenty wholesale grocers in Nova Scotia have formed a combine on selling terms and given notice to their customers by circular. The terms on general groceries are one per cent. discount for cash in ten days or net thirty days. Flour and meal net thirty days, no discount. Interest at six per cent. per annum to be charged on all accounts not settled in thirty days. The agreement is signed by H. W. Wentzell & Co., J. P. Wambolt, John Tobin & Co., R. J. Sweet & Co., A. & W. Smith, R. B. Seeton & Co., Payzant & Co., Chas. H. Harvey, J. W. Gorham & Co., J. F. Crowe & Co., Billman & Chisholm and Bauld Bros. & Co., Halifax; Black & Co., Truro; E. D. Allen, Wm. Law & Co., Lovitt & Lovitt and Parkin, Eakins & Co., Yarmouth; Fillmore & Morris, Amherst, and R. McGregor & Sons, New Glasgow.

PERSIAN DATES ON HAND.

Great interest is being shown in the large Canadian cities in the arrival in New York of the second direct cargo of Persian dates. These dates, though several days overdue, have come direct and will reach the big markets long ahead of stocks from London. There were landed about 52,600 boxes of Hallowee, 21,800 boxes of Khadrawee, and 23,200 boxes of Sair dates, and some 1,500 cases and 800 boxes of Fard. It is reported from New York by special mail advice that most of the latter and about half of the Persian dates were sold while afloat, and the balance arrived on a bare market as the first cargo had been completely sold out. Importers reported ready sales of Hallowees at 3½c; Khadrawees at 3¼c, and Sairs at 3c.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. H. Macklin, of the British Columbia Packers' Association, will shortly assume the management of the branch business interests of Simon Leiser & Co., Victoria, B.C., at Ladysmith and Wellington.

Mr. A. M. Piper, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., Toronto, was a caller upon the trade in Montreal and Quebec during the past and present weeks.

Mr. J. Rose, of Rose & Laflamme, Montreal, has been confined to his house through illness during the past week, but expects to be able to return to his office in a few days.

Mr. A. H. J. Baass, London, Eng., of the Sydney Meat Preserving Co., was a caller on the Toronto trade last week en route from Australia to London. Mr. Baass is visiting the principal cities of Canada and also Niagara Falls, and is sizing up the opening for canned Australian mutton in Canada.

The death occurred on Wednesday of this week, at Guelph, of Mr. John Goldie, vice-president of the James Goldie Mfg. Co. The deceased was 54 years of age.

Mr. F. M. Moffat, of Gunns Limited, pork packers and provision merchants, Toronto, is in Wingham this week on business.

Mr. R. MacDonald, of the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto, has been traveling through the Western States in search of new ideas for the grocery trade. En route he visited St. Louis, St. Paul and Detroit.

The Ontario Cereal Co. Singhampton, have been incorporated with a share capital of $15,000, to manufacture and deal in cereal foods. Provisional directors: C. Russell, Toronto; J. R. Hamilton and A. J. Sprott, both of Singhampton; J. Hamilton, Glen Huron, and A. Taylor, of the Township of Osprey.

"Scotch ripens wit, exhilarates the mind;

Mitchell Scotch and Irish whiskeys are thus classified:

"Special Old"	"Cruiskeen Lawn"	"Old Irish"
"Special Reserve"	"Extra Special Liqueur"	"Heather Dew"

Every grade enjoys a world-wide reputation of quality and purity, and has reached the zenith of success.

AN ADEQUATE COMPARISON!

There exists between the ever-increasing sale of the above brands compared to that of any ordinary Scotch, exactly the same difference there is between a large river that carries its waters to the sea and a sinuous little brook which loses itself in the swamps.

The most catching advertisement is the constant demand of the consumer for Brandies like the Ph. Richard, of Cognac, France, graded:—

on the purchase of which no one will ever tolerate a substitution of a brand said to be "just as good."

Richard Brandy Has a Dual Merit.

For ordinary use, there is none so good; for medical purposes, there is none so pure.

LAPORTE, MARTIN & CIE., LIMITED, AGENTS, Montreal

THERE IS AN OLD MAXIM, WHICH SAYS:

"There are None so Blind as Those who Won't See."

The foregoing very aptly applies to the remarks of our Japan Tea friends in their claims that "SALADA" Ceylon Green Teas can never displace Japans in public favor —Yes, they will, and are already doing so, and rapidly too, wherever they have come in competition, and our opponents will pardon our remarking the fact that they are only too well aware of it—denials and disclaimers do not alter the situation one iota—as while they are arguing to the contrary, we are being kept busy filling repeat orders—and have yet to learn of a single instance where once stocked they have been discarded.

This is evidence conclusive strong enough for us, but if not for others, they must be sleeping in a fool's paradise, and will get a rude awakening one of these days.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 8, 1904.

Groceries.

MORE snow has fallen and with it has arrived more business all around. Groceries generally are very active. The big wholesale houses report enormous turnovers for the past month, greater in some cases by hundreds of thousands of dollars. Once more sugar is a feature. This time there has been a decline of five cents per hundred for all barrelled sugar, making refined granulated sell to-day at $5.15 per cwt. There will be no change in the price of sugar in bags and boxes. All branches of the trade seem to be alive and the demand for sugar especially has never been curtailed even though the price was high. Molasses has met with considerable demand during the past week and jobbers have been busy making offers around 28 cents. Spices are reported to be firm and in good demand. Black pepper, both spot and forward is firm and in good demand. From Singapore it is learned that stiff prices are likely to last for the next two or three months. Nutmegs are cheaper and prices are very low for some sizes. The advance in caraways has attracted considerable attention in all countries where they are used for distilling purposes. Green corn in barrels is exceedingly scarce and prices are as high at $7.50 to $8 per barrel. There is a fine demand for dried fruit and nuts of all descriptions just as there always is about a couple of weeks before Christmas. New Persian dates are on hand and are of excellent quality. The coffee market is exceedingly quiet. There has been some trouble in Rio and offerings there have been disturbed as well as at Santos, where the holidays are in full swing. Prices are easier all around. Tea is brightening up a little and things are looking better all over the trade. A better market has been reported for all kinds of medium teas and the demand has been fair, all things considered. Green fruits are very much alive. California navels are attracting attention inasmuch as the lots received by Hart & Tuckwell were noticeable for their high color and excellent quality, in fact Mr. Hart thought they were as fine as any usual February arrivals. Their first car of California celery has arrived and all these comparative luxuries give the trade a Christmasy air. Business is very good in these lines. Fish of all kinds are selling well and fine frozen stock is now available. Tom cods are on sale in good variety. Eggs are strong with a tendency to advance and the market may jump up any minute. Butter is likely to advance. Poultry is away up and every day will see an advance.

SUGAR.

A drop of five cents in barrelled sugar per hundred again brands the market as speculative. The fluctuating course of sugar has been notable for the past two months. There is a good demand and the supplies are reported to be limited, so that while the facts appear easy to understand, speculative values exist which are propped up partly by the strong statistical position of sugar and also by the wild rumors which are current in the foreign markets.

It is learned that cane sugar has held the advance caused recently in sympathy with the advance in beet. Americans are evidently impressed with the truth of the situation because they are paying big prices for raw material from Cuba while new crop Cuban sugar will soon be on hand. The local market is strong and active. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Quite a steady demand has been noticed for molasses all the week and the prices are firm to the advance. Country orders have increased and the local trade has seen certain good sized lots change hands at the advance of two cents reported three weeks ago. There may be some ecitement in molasses before February. We quote:

COFFEE.

The past two weeks have been holiday time at Santos while in Rio there has been an imitation of a rebellion. These two forces have tended to make offers sag and little has been doing in any of the terminal markets. Prices are inclined to easiness and the demand is principally for lower grades. Certain of the finest sorts have found extensive sale, and steady prices have ruled. We quote:

SPICES.

The activity in all kinds of spices has not abated. Spot black pepper is in strong demand and the prices are firm with a tendency to advance. Nutmegs are very low and perhaps have not been as low during the past year. Medium sago is in rather better supply and is slightly cheaper. Arrowroot is inclined to easiness and the expected advance did not take place. The Russian and Dutch crops of caraways are said to be short and as the present prices are ridiculously low a heavy advance is certain to follow. Big distillers who have not laid in a stock will no doubt be compelled to pay large advances. Creat of tartar is advancing and manufacturers are unable to offer. We quote:

TEA.

The tea market is firm although the trading has been quite limited during the week. Medium grades of Indian teas have ruled the market and what sales have been made have been at reasonably good prices. Good terms are now obtainable and it is the opinion of experts that no more favorable chances for buyers are likely to appear. The Autumn pickings from the countries of production will be embraced in the next imports, so that present stock should be watched. Teas generally of both Indian and Ceylon have improved in quality. The market was strong for better grades of Ceylons and good prices have been obtained. For Congou and China teas little demand has been recorded. Japan tea has been in better demand lately and the quality of the medium grades which are increasing in popularity was never better. A steadily increasing activity is expected from now on to the end of the year. We quote:

salmon is not available in abundance, and there is usually a good demand for it at this time of the year. High prices are expected to continue for the remainder of the year. Alaska salmon is selling cheaper than Fraser River and it is the general tendency of the trade to turn its attention to the article which is not only in good quality but in good supply. Lobsters are selling slightly cheaper and the demand is increasing. Canned meats, fruits and vegetables are selling slowly and prices are unchanged. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

The shart advance in the currant market in Greece has been maintained. Experts report that the decline was caused by a sharp drop in exchange. From Greece it is stated that buying has been better from consuming countries and holders have taken some encouragement from a revival of demand. The position of currants is considered very strong when the principal markets of the world are noted. English holders are not carrying as large stock as usual and the demand over here has increased lately. Increased consumption has lessened the holdings to a very small quantity.

Valencias—The Denia Valencia market has touched a very low point on the stock remaining in Spain, which, according to mail advices, is considerable. Marks of fair reputation have been quoted as low as 14s c. and f. Montreal for selected grade. It was even at the time expected that this limit will be further shaded, but, on the contrary, owing to the stronger position in California, the market has reacted to the extent of 4s.

Stoned raisins are in good demand and they usually are sought later than the whole fruit. New machinery has been employed for the stoning work and it is declared that it would be difficult for experts to tell that the raisins had been touched. It is thought that a method has been discovered that will prevent the stoned fruit from sugaring so rapidly as formerly. The whole raisin trade would be helped very much if some such improvement could be devised. New sultanas seem to be a little short and while the old stock may be just as good, the trade demands the new for Christmas. Prices are a little stiffer. Muscatels are now on hand in abundance the stock is of good quality and prices are not high considering all things.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 8, 1904

Groceries.

ORDERS for the holiday trade are being rushed through and will in all probability be completed by December 19 or 20. The biggest item unquestionably is foreign nuts, a most satisfactory volume of business for the season being reported. Importations are now practically complete and prices from now on need not be expected to show much variation. Importations of foreign dried fruits, particularly of Spanish fruit, have not been on as large a scale as last year and trade is behind the standard of former years owing to the fact that wholesalers, in view of reports from primary markets advising dullness and easier prices, have been anxious to work off holiday stock at any price and have cut accordingly. At the close there are advices from abroad saying that the markets are showing a firmer tendency. Peels are scarce and firm in price and prunes are exhibiting a similar tendency.

The last boat for the close of navigation sailed for northern ports on Friday, Dec. 2, and there is reported to have been considerable scrambling on the part of the wholesale trade at the last to send the remainder of their orders via water route.

Sugar continues very firm; canned goods are quiet, although a brisk and improving demand in canned vegetables is reported by the retail trade. Increased importations of West Indian molasses are reported, pointing to a healthy future for this article. Trade in dried fish is improving since cold weather set in, while green fruits are moving freely and in big volume as usual at this season.

There has been a reduction in all refined sugar prices of 5c per 100 lbs. applicable to sugars packed in barrels only, with the exception of Berlin granulated, which remains practially unchanged.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods have given place to foreign dried fruits and nuts, the requirements of the trade in the former article being pretty well met for the season. Only small stray orders are reported for the week at the high prices prevailing. At the same time a brisk and increasing trade in canned vegetables is reported throughout the retail trade. Canned fruits and fish are quiet. Very little of special interest in salmon need be expected from now on: this week's news consists in reported arrivals of "Sunflower" brand pink salmon on the market. Our quotations are as follows:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A seasonable business in syrups and molasses is reported for the week, the trade noticing a slight improvement in consumption which is in all probability due to the unprecedented firmness of the sugar market; 1904 crop New Orleans may be expected on this market within the next month. Several shipments of West Indian molasses are due to arrive shortly, indications pointing to the preference being ultimately given to it over medium grades of New Orleans. COFFEES.

Locally the trade are buying sparingly and only for immediate requirements on account of the firm situation prevailing in Rios. The market continues to fluctuate up and down, no change in prices being noticeable, however, on the whole. The estimate of the growing Rio crop indicates a larger yield than the present Rio crop, but this is offset by a growing belief that owing to the poor flowering the prospects for the growing Santos crop are for a smaller yield than for the present Santos crop, so that together the growing Rio and Santos crops are expected to yield about the same as the present Rio and Santos crops, which are generally placed at about 9,500,000 bags.

Buyers in Canada and the United States stocked up more or less heavily with Japan tea before the war broke out; this, together with import orders, has enabled them to go along without placing frseh orders or buying from stocks to any extent. Consequently prices are abnormally low, although early fine grades have maintained their value throughout the season and are getting firmer every day. Low grades are also advancing, mediums being relatively the cheapest teas on the market at the present time. Chicago houses say they will be open to buy in January and similar conditions prevail throughout the United States.

Following are the exports from Japan for the present season to Oct. 31, 1904: New York and east, 14,854,066 lbs.; Chicago and west, 13,324,847 lbs.; Canada, 5,017,241 lbs.; San Francisco, 3,906,974 lbs.; total, 37,103,128 lbs., being a decrease of 4,518,244 lbs. as compared with importations to an even date last year. SUGAR.

Just as we went to press last week the local market was disturbed by a reduction in all refined prices of 5c per 100 lbs., applicable to sugars packed in bbls. only. As there was no apparent reason, judging from conditions in outside markets, the trade were at a loss to understand the move. Since then the Ontario Sugar Co. has advanced granulated in bbls. 5c per 100 lbs., until the differential in favor of that make is now only 5c per 100 lbs., whether in bags or bbls.

The course of the raw market was deranged during the early part of the week under review, developing considerable dullness, and in Europe there were some reactions, 88 per cent. beet declining to 13s 8½d per cwt. f.o.b. Hamburg. Since then there has been a rapid recovery, beets rapidly recovering to 14s, and as we go to press the market is very firm at 14s 3d per cwt., f.o.b. Hamburg, equal to full parity of 5.07c for 96 test centrifugals.

European advices indicate a very active market, based upon F. O. Licht's latest report, which reads: "Weather unfavorable; a reduction in estimates Germany, Austria, France and Russia necessary." The full effect of this will be seen in the near future, when Mr. Licht publishes his next estimate. Meanwhile speculation is rampant in Europe as a result of which United Kingdom refiners are devoting their attention to cane sugars and are formidable competitors of American refiners for these descriptions. A cargo of Java sugar afloat just sold to United Kingdom buyers at 14s 6¾d c.i.f. New York, or say 4⅞c landed, duty paid, which is fully ⅛c advance on U. S. refiners purchases of nearby sugars, such as Cubans and other West Indian sugars.

Large buying of raws is reported in New York, where refiners have purchased within the last day or two fully 100,000 bags Cubans at 3 3-8c c. and f., San Domingo at 3 1-16c c. and f., as well as Porto Ricos, all equivalent to 4.75c duty paid except San Domingos, which cost fractionally higher. The New York refined market is firmer in sympathy with raws, and on Tuesday, Dec. 6, the Federal Refinery advanced its entire list 10 points to basis of 5.45c net, while others are selling at 5.35c and 5.30c net, f.o.b. New York. However, buying from refiners is restricted owing to competition from secondhand holders of cheaper sugars, but there are indications that these holdings are becoming exhausted.

Stocks in Cuba have been reduced almost to the vanishing point, say 1250 tons, against 122,000 tons last year. Work on the new crop is under way, there being now 3 centrals grinding, as against none at the same time last year.

Receipts at U. S. Atlantic ports for the week ending Nov. 30 were considerably above meltings, say 44,546 tons, as against 27,000 tons, the reduced meltings being attributed to Thanksgiving holidays. Total stock was 129,055 tons, compared with 100,387 tons last year, an increase of 28,668 tons, while Cuban and U. S. stocks together show a decrease of 92,082 tons from last year. Total stock of Europe and America at latest uneven dates was 1,569,305 tons, against 2,121,250 tons in 1903, the decrease being 551,945 tons.

It will be observed that the American markets have not responded to the excited speculative movement in Europe; but there has been a strong undertone based on natural conditions, and the indications are that as refiners' wants make themselves felt later in the season, higher values must rule. It will not do, moreover, to lose sight of the fact that American refiners will have to compete with British refiners for available supplies of cane sugars, which promise to be less than was originally anticipated. Foreign Dried Fruits

The holiday trade in foreign dried fruits, which has kept the trade busy for the last fortnight, will be over a week before Christmas. A reliable authority states that the volume of business this year will be considerably below that of 1903. Importations, especially of Spanish fruit, were smaller than usual, and wholesalers in their anxiety to dispose of holiday stock on account of an easier tendency in foreign markets, have been selling at prices which leave a very narrow margin of profit. Latest advices, however, indicate a reaction in Valencia raisins, higher prices being reported in primary markets as well as in London.

The situation in prunes promises to become interesting in the near future on account of a shortage at the Pacific coast. Private advices agree that stocks remaining are not more than half the quantity held there last year with the added difference that at this date in 1903 the consuming markets were well supplied, while at the present time they are believed to be lightly stocked.

Candied peels are in light supply, the bulk being considerably under that of a year ago and the market is firm accordingly. It is authoritatively stated that there will be no further importations of Fard dates this year. Our quotations are as follows:

Old stock is practically cleaned up and present quotations are on new crop. New arrivals are from 1 to 1 1-2 cents higher than previous years. Owing to a scarcity of supplies, Brazils, fine stock, have advanced 1-2 cent per pound. Italian chestnuts are selling at from 11 to 12 cents per pound; the crop is reported poor on the whole, mould being prevalent in many cases.

New shelled walnuts are expected to arrive in the course of the next fortnight. Walnuts as a whole are inclined to be firmer, chiefly on account of scarcity in Bordeaux and Marbots; 1904 crop Grenobles received are the finest quality seen on this market for years. Importations of foreign nuts are practically complete for the season and the holiday trade is now at its height. We quote the following prices:

EVAPORATED APPLES.

The price of evaporated apples has advanced during the week, quotations now being from 5 to 6c. Trade is reported dull to fair and a decided improvement need not be expected until after the new year.

Country Produce.

EGGS.

Prices of this week are firmer than heretofore. New laid are very scarce, but shippers persist in sending in eggs classed as new laid when in reality they are no better than fresh. To meet this difficulty dealers have to grade these goods as second class. Storage stock is being used freely. Owing to high prices this Spring comparatively few eggs were pickled; large quantities, however, were stocked in cold storage, which will in all probability hold prices from advancing. We quote the following:

" fresh	0 20	0 21

HONEY.

Trade is quiet. Indications point to a continuation of the present steady market with an unchanged price list. We quote the following:

" prime, No. 1	....	1 45½
" prime, No. 2	....	1 35
" Lima, per lb	0 07	0 07

SEEDS.

Foreign buyers are indisposed to buy on account of the high prices, which are from 50 to 75c per bushel above the level of previous years. After the first of the year, when a correct idea of the output of the Russian market can be ascertained, a freer movement is expected. Prices continue unchanged. We quote the following:

Alsike clover, per bush	3 50	6 75
Red clover	5 00	6 75
Mammoth clover, per bush	5 00	6 75
Timothy	1 00	1 35

Green Fruits.

On account of the approaching Christmas season and cool weather, which has stimulated buying, a stronger demand for fruit is noted on the local market. Imported fruit is arriving earlier than usual, especially California navel oranges, which are two weeks in advance of previous years.

All varieties of oranges are ariving in large quantities, excepting Jamaicas, the season for them being practically over. The quality of California navels has never been better, it being equal to those proviously shown as late as February. Valencias have arrived and are selling at from $4.75 to $5.25 per case. Lemons have arrived in large quantities and prices are easier. Owing to the large supplies of fancy fruits on the market to meet the demands of Christmas trade, trade in bananas is very quiet and no change is expected until after the holiday season. The unusually strong demand for Almeria grapes continues unabated.

The cranberry market is firm. Owing to shortage in the crop on account of the unfavorable weather conditions, the trade will have to depend on Budd's Long Keepers, which are arriving in large quantities and first-class quality. Owing to prevailing conditions, prices of the last mentioned cranberry have advanced. Trade in figs is reported slow.

Large quantities of North Carolina and Delaware holly have arrived, and is selling at from $4 to $4.50 per case. We quote the following prices:

Vegetables.

Red and white cabbage is reported scarce and prices are firm. Beets, parsnips and carrots are causing a good inquiry. The domestic supply of onions is diminishing very rapidly, andin some sections the trade has to rely on Spanish stock which is being imported in large quantities. Cables received state an advance of sixpence in the price due to the fact that the crops in Spain have been damaged by unfavorable weather. California vegetables consisting of celery, egg-plants, tomatoes and cauliflower are expected to arrive on the local market shortly. We quote the following prices:

Fish and Oysters.

A brisk trade is reported in frozen stock. Prices of whitefish, trout, herring and finnan haddie have declined owing to keen competition on the local market. Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

Red and white Winter wheat have declined 1 cent per bushel. The price of these two varieties has been relatively high all season, but is now beginning to find its normal level. Owing to the strong American demand, Manitoba Northern No. 1 has advanced 2 1-2c, No. 2, 3c and No. 3, 2 1-2c per bushel. Oats have declined 1-2c; buckwheat 1c, and rye 2c per bushel. Trade is brisk, especially in wheat. Our quotations are:

FLOUR.

There is a strong foreign demand, large quantities being exported via New York to South Africa and the West Indies. A good demand is noticeable in the local market and prices generally are firm, although no material change has taken place. Our quotations are as follows:

BREAKFAST FOODS.

Owing to the low price of American oatmeal for export, our foreign demand has eased to a certain extent. Cool weather has caused an increase in home consumption and manufacturers are busily engaged supplying home trade. Comparative lack of rolled wheat on the American market owing to the insufficient wheat crop, has enabled our manufacturers to export larger quantities to foreign buyers formerly supplied by United States exporters. Prices continue unchanged. We quote the following:

LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, Dec. 8, 12.30 p.m.

(By telegraph.)

BUTTER—Firm market, tendency to advance. Old Country offers are less by ¼ cent than local selling prices.

CHEESE—Some cheese changed hands to-day at 10⅞ cts. Holders and buyers still bickering. No prices quoted for best Ontario but offers are about 10½ cts. Some inferior cheese has sold at 9¾ cts. Little export trade is being done as the British buyers want cheap cheese just now.

EGGS—No change in prices, a strong market is ruling. 24 cts. still holds for seletced stock but higher prices are expected any day. Receipts are small and the demand is good. 22 cts. holds for ordinary stock.

PROVISIONS—Receipts were heavy to-day. Advance in live hogs well maintained. Demand fine. Dressed stock active. Cured meats and lard steady. Good volume of business being done.

CHEESE AND BUTTER EXPORTS.

At present there is little indication of a large export trade in cheese. Old Country buyers want cheese at 9⅜ cts. instead of the best at 10½ cts. Spot stock seems to be in better enquiry and big dealers are hopeful for better prices. They argue this way—that if the big importers are willing to pay 9⅜ cts. for inferior stuff it follows that a considerable advance may be expected shortly for first class cheese. While little stock is actually changing hands there is an undertone of sound optimism that looks well for the trade.

The exports from Portland and St. John West, N.B., since Nov. 26 to date were as follows:

	CHEESE	BUTTER
Liverpool	11,164	2,086
London	34,300	1,502
Bristol	2,280	.....
	47,774	2,588

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax, Dec. 5, 1904.

TRADE continues fair, wholesale houses reporting a good demand. There has been a good deal of open weather and country roads have not been as good as they would have been had there been a little more frost. The leading importer of Porto Rico molasses at this port advanced prices to the trade about 2c per gallon on the first of December. This brings wholesalers' prices up to 39c. With the high cost of sugar the demand for molasses is increasing, and it is only natural that holders should try to get as much as possible out of their stocks. It is probable that the supply of molasses may be lessened, as when the planters can get good prices for their raw sugars the tendency is to convert as much of the juice as possible into sugar, rather than molasses. A combine of interests at Barbadoes is in course of formation, the object being to put up prices on the primary market. A number of New Brunswick grocers have entered into an arrangement with a St. John firm for the purpose of making direct importations at that port and putting that part of the business on a better basis than prevailed a few years ago.

Flour is now costing dealers one dollar and thirty cents per barrel more than it did one year ago. There has been a good deal of complaint on the part of consumers regarding the quality but this seems very unreasonable. In the Ontario patents a greater proportion of Manitoba wheat is being used than usual, and users complain that they do not get the results from this flour that they have been accustomed to. The larger admixture of Manitoba wheat requires more kneading of the dough, and where this is borne in mind bread of the highest quality results. Cornmeal has advanced ten cents on the local market. Millfeeds are also up 50c. Hay has advanced 50c per ton, and oats are very firm owing to scarcity.

The Halifax and Dartmouth Retail Grocers' Association, which was formed some two years ago, seems to be nearing the verge of extinction. No meeting has been held for upwards of a year, and so far as can be learned there is no probability of any being held in the near future. A good many who compose the Grocers' Association are also members of the Retail Merchants' Association, which has lately affiliated with the Board of Trade as a special committee thereof. Mr. G. A. Cook, who was an active member of the Retail Grocers' Association, thinks the trade are standing in their own light in allowing their organization to lapse. The screws are being put on the retail trade in the matter of credits and prices, and he thinks there never was a time when a union of retail interests was as much needed as to-day. In fact he hopes to see the day when the retail grocers will have an aggressive association covering the entire Province of Nova Scotia, with a paid secretary to look after their interests. In the city of Halifax there are over 300 retail grocers, large and small, and it would seem that there was ample room for an active local association.

The Dominion Packing Co., Limited, with head office in Charlottetown, is in liquidation, and it is thought the bondholders will take possession and carry on the business. The company has been in operation two years, each of which showed a heavy loss. Some Halifax capitalists are interested.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, December 8th, 1904.

BUSINESS continues exceptionally brisk, orders for Christmas trade being received in good number. The market throughout appears to be firm and active. The only change of importance is a drop of 5c per cwt. in sugar in barrels, the price in sacks remaining the same. This is a change which merely alters the relations between the prices of sugar in barrels and in sacks and does not as yet indicate any downward tendency of the general sugar market. In canned goods interest centres for the moment in the small supply of tomatoes and jobbers state their intention of importing United States goods as Canadian supplies appear to be exhausted. Dried fruits, peels, nuts, etc., are in brisk demand and good supply for Christmas trade.

Sugar.

As was noted above, there has been a decline of 5c per cwt. in the price of barrel sugar, but there has been no similar decline in the price of sugar in sacks. This is not taken as indicating any general decline in the price of sugar. We quote as follows:

Montreal granulated, in barrels	5 80
" " in sacks	5 75
" yellow	5 20
" " in sacks	5 15
Wallaceburg, in barrels	5 70

Canned Goods.

Below will be found a number of additional quotations. Supplies of nearly all classes of canned goods are fairly ample, with the exception of tomatoes, which it is almost impossible to obtain. In spite of the handicap of duty and freight, local jobbers expect to import the U. S. goods as the Canadian supplies seem to be entirely exhausted. We quote:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 1, 1904.

HOLIDAY trade is now beginning, with good demand for fancy groceries, and a couple of advances. The feature in groceries is the increase in the price of sugar, 1-4 of a cent per pound on all grades having been added by the local refinery. In fruit, lemons are up $1 per case, and 10c per dozen retail. From indications the Christmas trade this year promises to be brisk, and collections are fairly prompt notwithstanding some shortage in the circulation consequent upon the failure of the fishing last Summer, and the continual depression in the lumber industry, which latter is alleviating slightly.

Hams are down a 1-2 cent, shoulder hams also having a similar reduction. Butter and eggs are unchanged, demand and supply continuing even. In flour, there is an advance in Graham and Wheat Sheaf, which did not rise when other grades were put up.

The quality of the Japanese oranges, the first large shipment of which arrived last Sunday on the Tartar, is the best for years. They are arriving in fine condition, and will continue until the middle of January. During that time they will be the preferred article over any other kind of orange. The flavor is unsurpassed, the skin comes off very easily, and they are of a more convenient size. They are going at 40c per box. Navels are lower, being $3.50 to $4, and California seedlings $2.50 per box. The rise in lemons has brought that fruit to $3.75 to $4.50 per case, the cause being a temporary shortage, the crop being good. Bananas are also of good quality, and holding the same. The first full car of Bell & Bugle's cranberries imported into Vancouver arrived this week, and are excellent. They are going at $14 per barrel, while the early variety is worth $12. California grapes are about over, but a few shipments are on hand worth $2.50. Persimmons, $2.25. Apples this year are plentiful and cheap. Local grown sell for 50c to 75c; Okanagan, $1 to $1.50, and some of the fancy highly colored specimens, $1.75.

Mr. W. H. Cushing, a well known man of Calgary, was in Vancouver this week, and expressed himself as very hopeful regarding the prospects of the development of trade between that portion of the Territories and the Pacific coast. He said the merchants there were in favor of this, but the trade is prevented by reason of the high rates charged by the C.P.R. While this schedule remains in force it will be impossible to do much business, and there is little probability of alteration, as the railway prefers bringing the goods from the east.

There is considerable of interest in connection with the salmon fishing industry, and the future prospects are bright. When the hatcheries are in operation, and the fish conserved and assisted in their propagation, there is every reason to believe that in a few years there will be a good run every season, instead of only one in every four. At the meeting of the Fraser River Canners' Association, held on Tuesday, it was announced by Mr. John T. Williams, Dominion Government inspector in northern waters, that directions had been issued for the erection of two hatcheries, one at Rivers Inlet and the other on the Skeena, each to have capacity of 20,000,000 eggs. There is already one in the north, at Lakelse, with capacity of 4,500,000. Further, three officers in uniform are to be stationed in the north to prevent the wholesale destruction of salmon on their way to spawn by the Indians. The appointment of the commission, suggested by Hon. Raymond Prefontaine when in the west last Summer, has been postponed until the opportunity offers of consultation with the newly elected M.P.'s from this province. Some of the local cannerymen regard this move as one to shelve the matter.

Dawson markets are steady and unchanged, according to latest advices, and show a marked contrast to the markets of Tanana, to where the rush took place last Fall. Extreme high prices prevail, and there is a shortage in many lines. The movement of freight from Dawson to the creeks is almost nothing owing to the lack of snow. Cold weather is needed to freeze the ground so that the miners may work to better advantage and snow is needed to facilitate freighting.

While after herring, Nanaimo fishermen caught a big net full of pilchards, a choice food fish found on the Cornish coast. They had to be discarded, as there is no method employed for curing them. It is interesting to know, however that there is a new and valuable food fish to be found in local waters.

Mr. Maxwell Smith, Dominion inspector for the Fruit Marks Act, has returned from a trip as far east as Medicine Hat. Some violations of the law were discovered. He stated that the shipments of Ontario and British Columbia apples into the Territories this season were about even, although the latter commanded a better price because of superior packing and better grading and

Timely Hints and Suggestions

FROSTED WINDOWS.

IN all parts of Canada and the Northern States the window dresser has a foe to fight, which may deprive fully one-half of his displays during the three Winter months of their value. Without precautions, he need not be surprised at this proportion of useless arrangements, but it is a curious fact that some stores are almost free from frosted windows, even though no preventives are used.

The cause of the frost is the collection of moisture on the inside of the glass brought about by the contact of the warm air of the interior on the glass kept very cold by the atmosphere outside. The simplest plan, then, seems to be to prevent the warm air reaching the glass. This is easily done in such stores as those handling dry goods, boots and shoes, hardware, etc., which do not display goods injured by a low temperature, by enclosing the window space. In a grocery store, however, this is not as easy, since many of the lines carried must not be frozen. In spite of this fact many grocers prefer to restrict the range that can be displayed, in order to be assured of clear glass. The number of lines offering themselves for the enclosed window is much greater than the window dresser thinks, since in almost all his ordinary window displays he includes liquids or other goods injured by frost.

The Enclosed Window.

After the window is enclosed in the back, the air must be allowed in some way to circulate inside, or the frost will gather as surely as before. Above the glass, in the sash, bore small holes about half an inch in diameter and six inches apart. In the window floor, and as close as possible to the glass, bore more holes, and from these have tin pipes connecting them with a cold air box in the centre under the floor. This box is open to the outside air through a slit under the casing of the window. The cold air enters the box and is carried through the pipes to the interior of the window, and up the glass to the overhead holes, making a draft that keeps the inside of the glass at the same temperature as the outside, dries any moisture, and so cools the window space that there is little probability of the formation of moisture.

As more or less dust will enter holes opening directly into the window, the cold air box is used. A further preventive is to have a small slide door on the outside over the slit, which can be closed when dust is blowing, or to place a door in the cold air box itself which can be closed from under the window on the inside.

To make this plan of any avail care must be taken that the doors of the windows are kept constantly closed. The window dresser will thus have to do his work in the cold window.

The backing which encloses the window is often no aid to the appearance, and for this reason it is built so that it can be removed in the warmer weather, leaving only a medium height background of good finish. If allowed to remain, it, however, keeps out the flies—a great consideration in any store.

Other Preventives.

Where the window is not enclosed, there are several plans open to the window dresser, each possessing more or less value. Some prevent the formation of frost by a super-heated atmosphere next the glass on the inside. To secure this coils of pipe running around the base of the glass are heated from the furnace. A coil of gas pipe with small outlets thickly scattered over it is sometimes seen. But these are only local in their effect and are not of neat appearance.

Apart from these, there are liquids which have considerable merit, especially when the temperature is not very low. Some of these are sulphuric acid, glycerine, aqua ammonia, hydrochloric acid, alcohol, nitric acid, cabalb nitrate or benzine. Sulphuric acid and glycerine are two of the best, the former working quickly, while the latter is a good preventive, although it leaves a somewhat greasy glass. The effect of aqua ammonia is of short duration, unless the moisture is thoroughly dried off the glass after it has melted the frost. This is sometimes done by running a spirit flame over the glass, a scheme in itself for melting the frost. A preparation that has been used with some success is: Equal parts of water and glycerine, with a few drows of cumarin (which must be dissolved in warm water) added. Rub the glass with this and the frost will not gather for some time.

These liquids are of temporary value only, and may not affect the frost which has gathered, but in every case will delay its re-formation after it has been removed in some way. The spirit lamp wil tdiho l rth-l'ifl zkmasgNo hiuedr will do this but a far simpler method is to rub salt water over the glass, allowing the liquid to run into a cloth resting on the floor at the bottom. When the frost is thus removed and the glass wiped dry, the liquid mentioned before can be applied.

The Electric Fan.

A plan which is coming more and more into favor is the use of the electric fan. This fan, which is also employed in the Summer time to keep the window free of flies, is placed three or four feet from the glass and directs a constant current of air against it at an angle. It dries up the moisture, only in very cold weather it will not keep the entire glass clear. It is simple, however, and as a rule satisfactory.

This Week's Illustration.

The special Christmas window used by Mowat & Wallace, Victoria, B. C., is simply made but effective. Branches taken from lemon and orange trees with the fruit attached, specially imported from Southern California with a shipment of fruit, are hung along the background. These are an attraction to those who have never been in California to see the fruit. One would think the fruit had simply been tied on. One branch has blossoms as well as oranges.

The front is filled up with special Christmas delicacies. Mowat & Wallace report that this window is one of the best paying windows they ever had. On the upper part of the background are cards trimmed with ivy, holly and chrysanthemums.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Proceedings at Eighty-Seventh Annual Meeting of Shareholders — A Satisfactory Report — Past Year has Been Prosperous one for Dominion — Election of Directors.

The eighty-seventh annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in the Board Room of the institution, at noon, December 5.

There were present: Hon. Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G., vice-president; Sir William C. Macdonald, R. G. Reid, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. G. F. C. Smith, George Durnford, James Skeoch, Henry Dobell, C. J. Fleet, K.C., George Filer, Henry Morton, R. B. Angus, M. S. Foley, B. A. Boas, F. S. Lyman, K.C., Angus W. Hooper, Percy R. Gault, Thomas Irving, J. Scott and John Morrison.

On the motion of Mr. R. G. Reid, Sir George A. Drummond, vice-president, was unanimously voted to the chair, in the absence of the president, the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal.

On the motion of Mr. C. J. Fleet, K.C., seconded by Mr. Henry Dobell, it was agreed: "That the following gentlemen be appointed to act as scrutineers: Messrs. F. S. Lyman, K.C., and G. F. C. Smith, and that Mr. James Aird be secretary of the meeting."

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The report of the directors to the shareholders, at their eighty-seventh annual general meeting, was then read by Mr. E. S. Clouston, general manager, as follows:

The directors have pleasure in presenting the report, showing the result of the bank's business for the year ended 31st October, 1904.

Balance of profit and Loss Account 31st October, 1903		$ 373,988.06
Profits for the year ended 31st October. 1904, after deducting charges of management, and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts		1,609,207.95
		$1,983,196.01
Dividend 5 per cent. paid 1st June. 1904	$700,000.00
Dividend 5 per cent., payable 1st December, 1904	700,000.00
		1,400,000 00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$ 583,196.01

Since the last annual meeting of the shareholders, a branch of the bank has been opened at Portage La Prairie, Man., and sub-agencies at Armstrong and Kelowna, B. C., and Papineau avenue (Montreal), and Westmount. Sub-agencies at Hochelaga (Montreal), Enderby, B. C., and two at Winnipeg have been arranged for, and will be opened shortly.

The reconstruction of the headquarters building on St. James street is now proceeding, and will be completed in a few months.

All the offices of the bank, including the head office, have been inspected during the past year.

STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL,
President.

Head Office,
31st October, 1904.

THE GENERAL MANAGER.

The general manager then spoke as follows:

Referring to the statement laid before you, the principal changes as compared with last year are, an increase in the deposits bearing interest of $13,265,000, in the call loans of $9,143,000, in the current loans of $6,699,000, and a decrease in the balance due by our own agencies and other banks outside Canada of $4,114,000.

There is nothing that calls for any special remark in connection with these amounts, except that in the case of the loans and deposits a certain amount of the increase is of a temporary nature and will disappear shortly, but there will still be a sufficient amount to show that our business is steadily progressing. The diminution in our profits is largely accounted for by the low rate of interest ruling in the foreign markets, where we have to loan most of the money we desire to hold readily available. I saw a statement the other hay, that in New York not in a quarter of a century has money fallen so low as it did a portion of this Autumn.

On the whole, it may be said that the past year has been a prosperous one for Canada, though there have been special industries which did not participate. Lumber markets have been very disappointing, and the prices for dairy products unsatisfactory. Certain industri-

General Manager,

Montreal, 31st October. 1904.

als have suffered from foreign competition, but on the other hand, some of our important industries are now reviving under more experienced and intelligent management.

The trade of the past year, both domestic and foreign, has been well maintained. Domestic trade shows a slight increase, while foreign trade, omitting specie, reached a value of $454,642,000, as compared with $450,040,000 in 1903. One feature of foreign trade may be noted. Exports of domestic products declined in value $16,000,000, while imports for consumption rose $18,776,000, making a loss in balance of trade of nearly $35,000,000 from the preceding year. In the seven year period, 1896-1902, inclusive, the very exceptional condition existed of an excess of domestic exports over imports for consumption, the actual balance in favor of Canada in this period having been $1,428,000; but in the last two years the condition has changed, and since 1902 imports have outrun domestic exports by $55,600,000. In itself this excess may be of small concern. It has probably been much more than overcome by the introduction of capital brought by an increasing volume of immigration, by investments of foreign capital, largely from the United States, in our virgin lands, water powers, forests, and in many other ways. Yet the fact remains that considered alone, the foreign trade balance has turned against us, and to this cause the somewhat less abounding activity of domestic trade may, perhaps, be traced. In the two months of the current fiscal year, for which returns were available, July and August, domestic exports were less in volume by $4,200,000 than in the corresponding period last year; imports for consumption show a decline of about $530,000.

Taking a broad view of Canadian commerce, the future is bright with promise. Our population is fed now by an immigration of upwards of 100,000 people annually, and the stream appears to be well turned towards Canada. Production in the Northwest grows apace, the railways are prosperous, a second transcontinental line is on the eve of construction, the reports from the mining districts of British Columbia are more encouraging, a spirit of abiding confidence in Canada pervades our people; and despite temporary checks in the progress of material developments, there is increasing belief that this country has entered upon an era of great and enduring prosperity.

VICE-PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The vice-president, in moving the adoption of the directors' report, said :

The statements submitted by the general manager and in the directors' report, so fully place before you the position of the bank that it is unnecessary I should trespass on your patience for more than a few moments with some general remarks.

The handsome and commodious premises in which we are now assembled, and which are now close to completion, have, I am sure, met with your approval as furnishing a worthy and convenient home for the headquarters of the bank for many years to come.

The general manager has referred to one cause of diminished profits, to which may be added the fact that to earn divi-

On the other hand, goods that are well known and appreciated for their quality have a turnover that is rapid and easily made. On such goods no money can be lost or tied up for any length of time. With our Pickles the care necessary to turn out a quality product is taken from the time the seed is planted, followed by every improvement in handling that will tend to bettering them in any way. For instance, we make a Vinegar specially for our own Pickles that is everything experience has taught us a Pickling Vinegar should be. dends now-a-days a much larger volume of business must be done, though that is only another way of stating the great reduction in the rates for money, and in the charge for banking services which has been going on.

I may again draw your attention to the fact that in 1847, when the bank first occupied the premises on this site, its total assets amounted to $7,110,000, and this year they reach $131,160,000.

In reviewing the general condition of the country, it may be noted that the Stock Exchange, reflecting as it does the views of investors, has apparently entered on a period of revival; securities have now a higher range of value, and confidence in the lasting character of this improvement appears to be spreading.

It is evident that any marked increase in immigration, or in the production of cereals, must come from the Northwest. We have there an immense territory, of which the area stated in figures conveys no adequate idea; but taking only that portion to the south of the fifty-fifth parallel of latitude, which, as you know, passes through the north of England, the Government expert estimates that the portion "suitable for cultivation," in Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta, that is from Manitoba to the mountains, reaches an extent considerably exceeding the total area of the Empire of Germany, while referring to the much larger extent to the north of the fifty-fifth parallel he says: "What proportion of these vast districts will be capable of the profitable growing of crops is as yet a matter of conjecture."

You are all aware, of course, that the isothermal lines do not necessarily coincide with the parallels of latitude, and these latter only approximately denote the climate, but the fact of the production of the finest qualities of wheat in our territory, as above defined, is established beyond question. You will be able to form some estimate of the possibilities of the future, when I add that as yet less than 4 per cent. of this land has been brought under crop. It is worthy of note, also, that the yield per acre in Manitoba and the Territories exceeds that of every one of the Northwestern states of the American Union, Montana alone excepted.

Striking proofs of progress in this part of the Dominion are everywhere visible. The population of Manitoba and the Territories, which in 1901 was 422,000, became in 1904 870,000.

The homestead entries, which in 1901 numbered 8,157, and represented 1,305,120 acres taken up for cultivation, had, in 1904, reached the number of 31,383, and covered an acreage of 5,021,291; and to this may be added land sold for settlement by companies, bringing the total up to 9,387,501 acres.

The number of immigrants, which ten years ago, in 1895, was 25,788, and for years made little progress over this figure, last year reached 130,329, and is believed during the present year to have largely exceeded that number; but statistics are not yet attainable.

While the evidences of progress are, as already said, most marked in our western territories, the rest of the Dominion has not been standing still. One feature is noteworthy, the number of new manufacturing enterprises springing up all over the country; some of them are essentially Canadian, others are branches of important American industries. It is impossible to give data, even approximately correct, of their extent or number, but I hold in my hand a list of over thirty in Ontario and Quebec, and may say that for three only in this city and neighborhood, sites have been secured averaging about fifty acres each.

OLDER PROVINCES.

Of trade in general I submit the following brief summary, which, taken in conjunction with the remarks of the general manager, may be useful:

DRY GOODS—A fairly good year's business, the woolen industry somewhat better, collections good.

LUMBER—Not so good; the production this year will be reduced, and better prices expected.

PROVISIONS—The export of bacon shows large increase, and considerable quantity of provisions is going to South Africa.

LIVE STOCK—Exports show large decline, prices of cattle being very low.

LEATHER—Good year's business at fair prices.

BOOTS AND SHOES—A very unsatisfactory year, consequent on labor troubles and high prices of material.

GROCERIES—Business reported good and fairly profitable; the farmers reported prosperous everywhere.

DAIRY PRODUCE—Cheese has been disappointing, but butter has been satisfactory; upon the whole fairly good.

The grain trade of the port shows a marked falling off.

The hay crop of this province has been exceptionally good, and exports fetched remunerative prices.

IRON AND HARDWARE — Not so good as last year, which was phenomenal.

The construction of another line of railway across the continent, about to be undertaken for the Grand Trunk Railway Co., is an event of the first importance.

TRADE OF THE PORT.

The steamship lines have suffered from various causes, the reaction due to the close of the South African war, and the keen competition in rates inaugurated by the continental lines, which largely reduced earnings. This warfare is believed to be over.

The import trade and the passenger business to this port have been up to the average in volume.

The exports of grain and timber show a reduction of one-third to one-half.

The inland craft coming to this port show a heavy decline.

Ship-owners, however, look for better trade next season.

It ought to be noted that importers complain that, considering higher freights and insurance and port charges in the St. Lawrence, as compared with Atlantic ports, there is little inducement to bring goods this way.

The prompt completion of the long-talked-about harbor improvements, with modern facilities for handling goods, the reform of the pilotage and improvement of lighting, are urgently called for, if the advantages due to our geographical position are to yield their due results. In this connection, a point of interest is the announcement of the construction of one or more ice-breaking steamers. About these comparatively little is known, but any experiment bearing on the prolongation of the season of navigation, if seriously entered on, will be watched with an interest commensurate with its importance to the country.

The continuance of the sanguinary struggle in the Far East is, of course, a menace to the general prosperity, but as regards our own country, surveying the whole field, I can see no reason to doubt that, given normal conditions and favorable weather, we are about to enter on a prosperous year.

I beg, in accordance with custom, to move:

"That the report of the directors now read, be adopted and printed for distribution among the shareholders."

The motion was seconded by Mr. R. B. Angus, and after some remarks by Mr. John Morrison, it was unanimously adopted.

Mr. B. A. Boas moved:

"That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the president, vice-president and directors for their attention to the interests of the bank."

This was seconded by Mr. George Durnford, and was unanimously concurred in.

The vice-president having acknowledged the compliment, Hon. Robert Mackay moved:

"That the thanks of this meeting be given to the general manager, the assistant general manager, the inspector, the managers and other officers of the bank, for their services during the past year."

This was seconded by Mr. R. G. Reid, and was unanimously carried, the general manager acknowledging the same.

Mr. Angus W. Hooper moved, seconded by Mr. James Skeoch:

"That the ballot now open for the election of directors, be kept open until 2 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time, and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued."

This was unanimously concurred in.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following directors:

THE CANDY DEPARMENT IN A COUNTRY STORE

THE candy department of a country store is another of the side lines which, in most instances, does not receive the proper amount of attention from clerks and proprietors. We are not going to argue with the grocer or general storekeeper that a candy department can be made as profitable as some of the other departments or that a larger amount of space should be devoted to it; that would be nonsense and the country storekeeper would have reason to think that we did not know what we are talking about. But we are going to argufy somewhat in behalf of the candy as a profitable side line and trade bringer.

The candy department, as a matter of fact, can be made into a natural advertiser for the store. When John Jones, of Hay Corners, accompanied by Mrs. Jones and the little Joneses, come into the store to buy a bill of goods it would be mighty good advertising during the course of their shopping to unostentatiously go behind the candy case, when they reach that part of the store, pick out a few nice pieces of candy, suitable to the standing of the customers, put them up in a neat paper sack and hand it to the eldest Jones child.

There is nothing that so warms the cockles of a parent's heart to the storekeeper as to witness this little act on his part. I know a grocer who lost a valuable customer once because he failed to recognize the good advertising that lies in the distribution of a half dozen pieces of candy in this manner. This particular parent had traded at the store for years and, on its changing hands, traded with the new proprietor the first month. Previous to that time the old proprietor had always sent a little bag of candy home to the children of the family when the monthly bill had been settled or else gave it direct to the child when it happened to accompany its parent. The new proprietor, however, entirely overlooked this procedure and the upshot of it was that the man got to trading at other stores and finally lost interest in the old store altogether and traded at another place where he found a more thoughtful proprietor.

We went out of our way to illustrate the above point, because it was a true happening, and because it well serves to bring out the point that we are trying to make about the advertising value of the candy case. While we do not approve of the giving of premiums to draw trade we do not consider this little kindly act as in the nature of giving premiums. Of course, we realize that candy costs money and that it cannot be given away indiscriminately to every family that may come along, but where the family trades steadily at the store we believe it a good plan.

If the country storekeeper will pay more attention to the candy department he will realize that the demand for confectionery from his country patrons is larger than he thinks. It may be difficult for him to try to get the village trade for his candy department, especially if there is a regular candy shop in the immediate vicinity. The former, however, is a sure customer; his family, in most instances, has not had its taste cultivated for the more costly grades of chocolates, bonbons, etc., but its gnawing desire is for the good, old-fashioned stick candy and cheaper sugar candies. If he could see the little toddlers in the country home urging "papa not to forget to bring home some candy," and the happy smiles with which they welcome the candy bag on its arrival home, the country storekeeper would realize more keenly that the candy department is one that he should have in his store and one that he cannot afford to neglect when he has it, because the chances are ten to one that the parent will do his trading where he can buy the sack of candy.

The question is: How to make the candy case more profitable? In the first place we would suggest that candies known through the reputation of the maker to be as nearly pure as possible be purchased. It will pay best to lay in the stick and sugar candies, peppermint hearts, licorice, etc., for the country trade, with a few trays of higher grade chocolates for the class of trade that will demand them. It will pay to get a neat and attractive glass case in which to display the candies. Keep the bulk candy in an attractive looking pile, and the higher grades neatly arranged on their trays. Have the interior of the case as inviting as possible. Use some soft tinted, crinkly paper on the floor of the case and be careful to keep flies out of it and any other extraneous matter that might accidentally get inside the case. Have the case where it can be seen to advantage, and it would not be a bad idea to run in your ad now and then a paragraph calling attention to your line of candies.—Exchange.

The Yeast of Quality

JERSEY CREAM YEAST CAKES

The constantly increasing demand for these Yeast Cakes is deservedly due to their very high quality and uniform excellence; it being our aim to make them and keep them the best in Canada and the favorite of Canadians, reliable at all times. We have doubled our trade each year and next year we intend to treble it. Our Mr. J. J. Jones has just come in with our waggon after a nine months' trip advertising and replacing any old Yeast in every store between Ottawa and Toronto. He found everything most satisfactory as far as the merits and appreciation of Jersey Cream Yeast Cakes were concerned. BUT he found also that every advertising sign which had been nailed up with so much care and expense had been systematically torn down. Who had any interest in doing this most contemptible work? We know! You know! More to follow.

To show how anxious we are to insure every customer getting Jersey Cream Yeast always in perfect condition, each package for the future will have a band round it as follows:

Keep In Dry Cool Place
GUARANTEED FULL STRENGTH UNTIL
MAY 1st, 1905
If bought after this date use larger quantity.

All Dry Yeasts become WEAKER through atmospheric or other influences, therefore carefully read date at the end of package and see that you get it fresh. Always use good flour as it is as necessary for good bread as good yeast.
Keep the Sponge warm

Keep In Dry Cool Place
GUARANTEED FULL STRENGTH UNTIL
MAY 1st, 1905
If bought after this date use larger quantity.

Jersey Cream Yeast Cakes are the best made and if used correctly will make the most delicious bread. We want every customer to get it in perfect condition and will spare no expense to enable them to do so.
Directions under Band.

So that there will be no excuse for the customer or grocer not having at all times Jersey Cream Yeast Cakes in the freshest state.

Fruit Packing.

BY way of further supplementing certain observations in a recent issue of The Canadian Grocer on the subject of "Fruit Packing," the following article from the O. A. C. Review ought to be of special interest to the trade:

Fruit as now packed and shipped in the Province of Ontario is a very poor advertisement for Canada, and just so long as we continue a haphazard method of packing, so long will our fruit be outclassed by sections which pay particular attention to careful selection and grading of their products. Let us, therefore, grade our fruit so that it cannot be surpassed by competitors and make it a credit to Ontario. Steps towards this end are being taken in some districts. Co-operative shipping companies have been organized by means of which fruits are handled without the agency of the local buyer. A step farther is necessary, however, before even such corporations can be ultimately successful, namely, the establishment of a central packing and grading house. To this house all the fruit is brought as picked by the growers and sorted by unprejudiced hands. Each member's fruit is graded, separated, and credit given for the quantity of each grade. In this way the grower who furnishes good fruit will get more for his product than the one who supplies only an inferior grade.

By following this plan of packing, a uniform grade may be established which in a very short time will make a name for itself in addition to finding ready sales.

As an example of what uniformity in grading and careful selection of individual fruits will do, compare fruit shipped from California with that from Ontario. We never need to admit that Californians can surpass us in the quality of our fruit, but when it comes to packing and marketing they are far in advance.

For those living in sections where large quantities of fruit are grown the question of erecting a central packing house need excite no adverse criticism. The cost of having the work done by skilled workmen all under one management is much less than of having it done in a less efficient manner on individual farms where each foreman has his own ideals. Although many men consider that they are following closely the instructions of the Fruit Marks Act, they may be putting up an entirely different grade from that of their neighbors who think they are following the Act to the letter.

Uniformity in grading and packing is necessary to success in fruit marketing. Closely connected with these is uniformity of the package containing the fruit. Each class of fruit requires a special form of package. Let the package be of whatever style you wish, but have some definite size for each form. At present each factory has a shape and size of its own. When these odd sizes are placed on the market the general appearance is ruined and much confusion results from the misunderstanding between buyer and seller. With a uniform size of package this trouble will be avoided. Let us have a uniform standard and compel all factories to make that size and not something "about the same."

With the establishment of a uniform size of box will come some definite system of packing. The old method of facing the top of the box or barrel and then filling up in a promiscuous manner with fruit of various grades and sizes must soon become obsolete. In order to secure the best result each fruit should be placed in the box separately and in some definite order. Notice the way the fancy fruits on our markets are arranged in cups and boxes. Compare these with the shiftless mass in the boxes and baskets alongside. Which attracts the eye of the buyer? The answer is too evident to require explanation. Now if this fruit can be so carefully packed and shipped long distances at a profit, how much more would it pay to carefully pack and grade the fruit which is near the market. The great needs in successful packing are uniformity, neatness, good quality and honest work.

Fruit Notes.

The Dominion fruit inspector for the west who has just paid an official visit to Nelson, B.C., reports a satisfactory improvement in the fruit packages on the market at the present time as compared with those of a year ago. He also reports a large increase in importations of Ontario apples into Alberta.

Through the courtesy of White & Co., Toronto, The Canadian Grocer is in receipt of a handsome illustrated booklet issued by the United Fruit Co., Boston, Mass., on "Banana Culture." The frontispiece has a large bunch of bananas embossed in gold while the make-up of the reading matter is rendered specially attractive by means of artistic colored and half-tone illustrations. Not the least interesting feature is a collection of valuable recipes for the use of the banana.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Grain Situation.

A DECIDED firmness has ruled in the Canadian wheat market for the week under review, an advance being reported in Manitoba wheat, while Ontario grades have shown a corresponding decline. Millers show a decided preference for western wheat, and very little of the Ontario product is being ground. The export of low grade Manitoba wheat continues, and it is reported that some of the better grades have been sold to millers in the United Kingdom.

On account of the decline in the price of Ontario wheat, which makes Ontario flour 25c per bbl. cheaper than it was three weeks ago, 1904 crop flour is being exported in considerable quantities, quite an unusual occurrence in the Canadian flour trade. Last year a very large amount of Ontario flour was exported; this year, however, exports are entirely of Manitoba wheat as milled in the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec and the west.

The visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States on Dec. 5, 1904, was 36,860,000 bush., an increase of 1,265,000 bush. as compared with 32,539,000 bush. in sight on Dec. 7, 1903. The visible supply of corn totalled 3,180,000 bush., an increase of 1,328,000 bush. over last week, as compared with a visible supply of 5,584,000 bush. at an even date last year. Oats show an increase of 265,000 bushels for the week, being 24,497,000 bushels on December 4, 1904, as compared with 8,115,000 bushels on December 7, 1903. Wheat on passage to the United Kingdom and Europe aggregated 38,560,000 bushels as compared with 36,960,000 bushels the previous week and 24,800,000 bushels at an even date last year. Corn on passage totalled 15,440,000 bushels as compared with 14,720,000 a week ago and 13,200,000 bushels at the same date in 1903.

The total amount of wheat in sight on December 5, 1904, consisting of the visible supply and the quantity on passage, is 75,420,000 bushels, against 72,555,000 bushels last week, 57,339,000 last year, and 74,980,000 in 1902. The total amount of corn in sight is 18,620,000 bushels, as against 16,572,000 last week, 18,784,000 this week last year, and 10,775,000 in 1902.

A comparison of the world's wheat shipments for the week ending December 5, 1904, shows a total of 10,774,000 bushels, as compared with 7,785,000 bushels on December 7, 1904, and distributed as follows: United States and Canada, 2,112,000 bushels; Argentine, 688,000 bushels; Australia, 104,000 bushels; Danube, 280,000 bushels; Russia, 4,456,000 bushels; India, 3,144,000 bushels.

According to Bradstreet's wheat in the United States has been rather reactionary during the week. Liquidation, based upon absence of export business, reduced demand from millers, and a movement at interior points fully equal to a year ago, has proceeded, checked only temporarily by reports of damage by drought and Hessian fly in the United States and by advices of bad weather in Argentina. Corn is rather easy on clear, cold weather in the west, but declines have met a good export demand for late December and January on which considerable business has been booked.

Cereal Premium Plan Modified.

THE Canadian retail grocery trade will doubtless be interested in knowing the outcome of continued opposition on the part of their fellow tradesmen across the line to a plan adopted and now in growing use by manufacturers of cereals and other food products in the United States, namely advertising their goods by means of premiums.

On November 15 the president of the American Cereal Co. notified the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States that his company had gone into the business unwillingly—had in fact been forced into it as a matter of self-preservation by its competitors. In view of this condition he formally offered to abandon the entire premium business if all other large manufacturers would also simultaneously abandon it.

Continued agitation on the part of the retail grocers has brought a statement from the Great Western Cereal Co. which in outline is as follows: It does not regard the total abandonment of the premium plan as a practicable proposition, having hitherto taken the position that the premium plan as employed by the Great Western Cereal Co. has been legitimate, owing to the fact that part of the premiums have been given free to the consumer and the retail grocer. Inasmuch, however, as the matter has been agitated with a view to discontinuing the objectionable feature of all premium plans, namely, the part requiring coupons and cash from the consumer, and especially as a rival company has made a conditional proposition to discontinue the giving of premiums, the Great Western Cereal Co. proposes to discontinue the coupon and cash plan of their premium system, provided the American Cereal Co. and the H. O. Co. are willing to do likewise.

Evidently the largest users of premiums are beginning to find out that this policy of robbing Peter to pay Paul is anything but an ideal way of bonusing trade, thereby fulfilling the prediction of The Canadian Grocer that the system, if allowed to run its course, would eventually die out of its own acord.

Shortage in Grain Cargoes.

Eastern Canadian grain men report a shortage in cargoes of wheat arriving from upper lake ports during the last few days. In endeavoring to get an expression from grain men on this ticklish subject The Canadian Grocer has succeeded in eliciting nothing more than the statement that the weighing of grain cargoes into boats at Fort William has always been done by competent weighmen on perfectly adjusted scales, correct weighing being done in every instance.

IN THE BORDER TOWN

Significant Statement by a Prominent Amherst Business Man.

The following interview, which appeared first in the Amherst "TELEGRAM," is reproduced here, for the benefit of people who are interested in flour :

Our readers have no doubt observed that for some months the "TELEGRAM" has carried large advertisements of "Royal Household" flour. If they have read these advertisements even casually they have also observed the various claims made for the quality of "Royal Household." This week it was suggested to us that a few paragraphs of special information about the sale of the flour in the local field would perchance be of interest to our readers, so we straightway sent to Fillmore & Morris, Limited, one of the largest flour dealers in the town and therefore competent to speak on any question connected with the flour business. We asked them to tell us about it.

We found Mr. Fillmore at his desk and to him we stated the object of our visit. He said he would be very glad indeed to give as much information as he could, as his firm is having very large sales of "Royal Household" at present and he thought everybody should know how good a flour it is.

"How long have you been selling 'Royal Household' Mr. Fillmore?"

"I have just forgotten for the minute, but I think we were the first people in this county to give it a trial."

"Are your sales larger or smaller than six months ago?"

"Very much larger. At the present time we are selling at least 200 barrels a week. This is probably double what we were selling six months ago."

"Have you found the quality of the flour to run uniform, or have you any chance of telling this?"

"We have the very best chance in the world, because the millers authorize us to take back any flour that is complained of and give the purchaser his money or a new barrel of 'Royal Household' in its place. To show you, therefore, how uniformly good the flour must be, I may tell you that we have not had a single barrel returned to us yet and in the past nine months we have sold over six thousand barrels. Both Mr. Morris and myself use 'Royal Household' in our own homes and we find it A1 for bread and excellent for pastry, in fact it is my belief there is no such flour made in Canada and we intend to keep on handling it as long as it remains at its present standard."

Fillmore & Morris, Limited, inform the "TELEGRAM" that general business with them is exceedingly good. They were making shipments of flour and groceries to points on the I. C. R. as far east as Londonderry at the time of our visit and expressed the greatest confidence in the business outlook as far as their trade is concerned. Asked as to whether the sale of "Royal Household" had affected that of other flour, Fillmore & Morris stated that they thought it has, as they now sell five barrels of "Royal Household" to one of any other kind.

Oriental Flour Trade.

FOR some stime past the prospect of the wheat fields of Western Canada participating in the Oriental flour trade has been under discussion in wheat and flour circles.

Some years ago representaives of an eastern milling firm went to Vancouver with a view to establishing mills and elevators on the Pacific coast. They looked the ground over but decided not to go on with the enterprise, presumably because either the market was not then large enough to warrant the expenditure involved, or the distance to haul the wheat too great to enable them to compete with Pacific coast mills. Recently, however, a trade over the C.P.R. has sprung up, flour from Edmonton and the more westerly part of the prairies being routed through to Japan via the C.P.R. steamers.

The Northwest is peculiarly well adapted to supply the needs of the Orient. The wheat is hard, and, therefore, superior in quality to the wheats of Washington, Oregon and California. In Japan the people are changing from rice to wheat, and are using the latter for various culinary purposes. They also use the cheapest quality of wheat flour for making paste, which they utilize in the manufacture of fans, screens, etc. The present war, unfortunate in many other respects, is fortunate in increasing the demand for our flour products and opening up a market in Japan. The following table showing our exports to that country is encouraging:

	Pounds.
1901	84,157,485
1902	96,387,477
1903	279,413,953

When the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific shall have reached the coast, the wheat fields of the Northwest will be brought more directly in connection with the Oriental markets, and then we may confidently look forward to seeing large elevators and flour mills being erected at the terminals wherever those may be, and the building up of a large industry similar to what exists at Tacoma and Portland.

Irish Milling Industry Reviving.

According to an Irish exchange an unusual occurrence was noted in Dublin recently, namely, a fleet of grain ships discharging cargoes of wheat, barley and corn. It is predicted that the arrival of grain ships at this port heralds the permanent revival of the milling industry in Ireland which has been on the decline for the past quarter of a century.

German Milling Industry.

ACCORDING to statistical reports, the number of mills in the German empire is shrinking rapidly, in spite of the attempts to preserve the industry from outside competition and to protect the small mills from the competition of the big mills. On January 1, 1903, there were, altogether, 32,678 mills in Germany, while on the first of December, 1903, eleven months later, the unmber had shrunk to 31,856, a decrease of 822, of which over 600 were water mills.

The mills that remain would seem to be more than enough for all purposes, as Germany is only about the size of the State of Texas or Louisiana. Of course, mills depend on population and not on area for support, but as the number in Germany would average four to an American township, it is inevitable that they crowd each other pretty hard for markets as well as for grain.

The classification of the mills is interesting. Of the total number existing a year ago, 9,786 were windmills, 18,706 water mills, 841 steam mills and 1,849 steam and water mills. In the total number were included 540 oil mills, 119 fodder and barley mills, 12 rice mills. The employes number 68,039. This, compared with our 25,285 mills and 37,073 employes, ought to convince pessimists that things in milling in this country might be a good deal worse.—American miller.

Cereal Notes.

The Ogilvie Milling Co. intend building an elevator at Cartwright next Summer.

The annual meeting of the Northwest Territorial Grain Growers' Association will be held at Regina, December 13 and 14.

The Finance Minister of Spain has prepared a tax on foodstuffs, namely 80c duty on imported corn (per 100 kilos), and $1.40 on imported flour (per 100 kilos), wherever the price of Spanish wheat exceeds $5.60 per 100 kilos.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Tobacco and Christmas.

NO store is more popular at Christmas time as far as men are concerned than that of the first-class tobacconist. Everywhere the windows are laden with oddities in tobacco pouches, cigar and pipe cases, pipe racks, jars for tobacco, in short every imaginable accessory to tempt the Christmas buyer. In every large city where there happens to be a university a remarkable amount of labor and ingenuity is expended each year designing a special coat of arms of the college upon various smoking accessories, which sell like hot cakes. It seems proverbial that students must smoke and the fragrant weed seems part and parcel of study of all kinds. Mark Twain is said to smoke as many as 1,000 cigars in a month when he has a working fit on. Charles Kingsley has immortalized smoking by saying such nice things as this:

"When all things were made, none was made better than tobacco; to be a lone man's companion, a bachelor's friend, a hungry man's food, a sad man's cordial, a wakeful man's sleep and a chilly man's fire, while for staunching of wounds, purging of rheum, and settling a man's stomach, there's no herb like it under the canopy of heaven."

The gift craze has run riot this year and the tobacco shops are alive with decoration. Nearly all the big manufacturers including Bruce Payne, of Granby, the American Tobacco Co., with their inimitable Sweet Caporal cigarettes, Tuckett's with their famous Marguerites, Fortier with his excellent selling Royal Egyption cigarettes and Chamberlain cigars, have been making a special run for Christmas trade. Neat packets are being specially made to catch the gift buyer, especially small lots costing a dollar, which are attractively arranged in small boxes. The Manhattan cigar is put up in dress suit case packages, while the North American Cigar Co. is keeping well up in the front rank. Near Montreal the Webster Cigar Co., of Sherbrooke, and the Sherbrooke Cigar Co. are thoroughly up-to-date with Christmas boxes. These firms are growing every year, their stock being considered among the first of domestic cigars. The Emporium Cigar Co., of Ste. Hyacinthe, have also made a hit with their Emporium cigar as well as their five-cent lines, and all are hustling after the dollars. The Harris Harkness Co., of Montreal, report an excellent year's business and expect to open out with many novel plans for the coming campaign. Their latest advertising novelty is to give a handsome golden oak show case to druggists who sell a certain number of their Colonel Steele or Van Horne cigars. They simply present it to the customer who orders so many cigars, retaining only one stipulation, namely, that in the case the top shelf must be reserved exclusively for Harris Harkness goods. The McAlpin Consumers' Tobacco Co., of Toronto, are no whit behind the rest in their enterprise and efforts to secure a fair slice of the holiday trade.

Probably nothing more original has been noted in the Autumn tobacco trade than the American Tobacco Co.'s plan of advertising their well known cigarettes. Appreciating the fact that all eyes at present are more or less fixed upon Japan and her efforts to fight Russia, they have published a picture of a Jap smoking a cigarette. At great length they tell how Jap soldiers at the front are almost dying for a smoke. In fact privates sauntering around the tents of the officers are reported to have picked up stubs of cigarettes that have been thrown away. They then conclude that the soldier who does the best fighting is the one who smokes cigarettes and that presumably the world-wide known Sweet Caporal will be the cigarette of the universe.

U. S. Imports of Cuban Leaf.

Importations of leaf tobacco into the United States from Cuba for the first nine months of 1904, as given by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, were 11,043,-862 lbs., valued at $6,703,106. This shows a decrease from the importations of the same period of 1903, which aggregated 16,190,400 lbs., valued at $7,423,-508. There is reason to believe that the falling off in the value of importations of leaf tobacco during these nine months is partially offset by an increase in importations of cigars, namely, 170,- however, to rest with present achievements. There is yet much to be done in some directions—new men entering the grocery business, for example—in teaching dealers that no tobacco excels—or equals—

No Free Trade With the Philippines.

According to the U. S. Tobacco Journal Secretary Taft's hobby of free trade in cigars and tobacco with the Philippines is not likely to materialize. Judging from authoritative information obtained during the recent campaign President Roosevelt is unwilling to sanction the policy owing to certain strong representations made by the trade, and as a result Secretary Taft has dropped his advocacy of free trade.

Taste Tells.

The secret in making a combination seed-and-Havana cigar does not lie alone in the Havana used, says an exchange, but in the fermentation and curing of the seed tobacco which is used in the combination. It stands to reason that if a fine piece of Havana is put up against a piece of seed tobacco, which is not especially cured for the purpose, the strength of the seed tobacco will overcome the high taste of the Havana. The result is that the smoker never gets the benefit of the Havana because the seed tobacco has overpowered the fine aroma of the Havana.

Should be in the mouth of every smoker. What?

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

THE first week of navigation to the Winter port of St. John, N.B., has stirred things up somewhat. Freights are better and trade is picking up nicely with the snow which has brought out sleighs and added to the activity of business. Shippers in Montreal are complaining of grain shortage from western points. A prominent man interested in shipping from the great lakes stated that he had had complaints of shortage of grain cargoes loaded at Port Arthur and Fort William. The story goes that certain vessels loaded portions of the cargoes at Fort William and at Port Arthur and when they came to unload they found a great shortage when the amounts of the waybills were compared with the actual cargo. Complications arise when it is remembered that at Fort William the grain is taken from the elevators of the C.P.R. and at Port Arthur from those of the Canada Northern Railway. Thus there is no possible way of getting at the culpable parties. According to usage the owners of the vessels are responsible and in one case the owners had to pay up the full market price of the wheat missing which amounted to $2,000. Not only has one instance occurred but numerous ones so that the situation has become serious.

A prominent freight man explained that as all grain from railway elevators was weighed in the presence of a Government inspector as well as of competent men the responsibility rested with the captain of the steamer when he signed the manifest. Any shortage that might subsequently exist must be made good by the owners of the vessels.

Plenty of grain is being shipped from the three terminals, Halifax, St. John and Portland, and business is improving every day. S.S. Etolia of the Elder-Dempster line, was the last ocean vessel to leave Montreal, sailing on Monday, November 28 for St. John, N.B., to complete cargo. She will then sail for South Africa direct. The cargo comprises a large quantity of general merchandise and full freight rates have been obtained.

The C.P.R. has issued a circular announcing that all goods and live stock shipped for exhibition purposes to the Ontario Winter Provincial Live Stock Fair at Guelph which is being held from December 5 to 9, will be carried back to its destination by the company free of charge if shipped within ten days from the close of the fair.

DEVOTED TO THE OFFICE STAFFS OF BUSINESS ESTABLISHMENTS

FORMING A JOINT STOCK COMPANY.

A few items of general interest to the bookkeeper employed by an industrial concern which has amalgamated or formed into a joint stock company.

By H. R. W.

AN amalgamation is usually formed for the purpose of self defence against unjust competition, with a tendency, if anything, to lower rather than raise prices. The object of an amalgamation is primarily to concentrate interests, the entire business being under one executive head and management, hence the policy governing the business is the same; to reduce expenses, such as managers' and foremen's salaries; traveling expenses, one traveler carrying one set of samples covering the same or almost the same ground as was previously covered by two or three salesmen from the different companies before amalgamating, who crossed and re-crossed each other's ground continuously; and lastly, a very important feature to the shareholders, to increase profits, which need not necessarily arise out of increased selling prices but by purchasing raw materials in larger quantities at lower prices and discounts, and turning out larger quantities of goods at less cost of manufacture.

A promoter is one who brings about the incorporation and organization of a company, brings together the persons who become interested in the enterprise, and aids in procuring subscriptions and in the formation of the company.

The prospectus issued when public capital is solicited is very often inserted in the daily papers, and should contain the proposed operations, prospects and advantages of the new company, names of directors, which very often influence the investor even more than the auditor's certificate; the number of shares, and anything else which may bring the company favorably before the public.

A prospectus should contain the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Subscriptions have been set aside for the misrepresentation of material effects. As to the manner in which the profits of the amalgamating companies should be set forth in the prospectus there is a difference of opinion.

The most satisfactory way to the investor would be to show the annual net profits for each company separately for a period of say five years previous to the amalgamation, in this way showing the earning power of the individual company each year.

Unissued stock is sometimes called treasury stock. A trust company will very often underwrite the stock of a company, i. e., will for a commission agree to take such shares as the public has not applied for.

The paid-up capital is the money which the company has on hand; the subscribed capital the amount which is pledged by shareholders, subject to call at any time; the nominal capital that to which it is entitled according to the charter.

Goodwill or general public patronage, reputation of goods, special brands and trade marks recognized by the public, sometimes said to be simply the sale of a mere chance which vests in the purchaser nothing but a possibility that a preference, which has generally been extended, may continue, sometimes considered a property, forms a part, and sometimes a very large item in an amalgamation. It depends largely upon the nature of the business and its length of operation, and is arrived at simply by an agreement between the vendors, the parties transferring their respective businesses.

In some cases all assets, both fixed and moveable, are transferred to the new company, as well as all liabilities, but the method of effecting a transfer which meets with general favor to-day is to arrange to have the individual companies collect all accounts receivable contracted prior to the transfer of the business, and also pay all accounts payable, and other liabilities, the new company taking over the plant, stock, etc., only.

The course of procedure with companies intending amalgamation depends largely upon the agreement with the vendors and the circumstances of each case. Probably the first step after the documents necessary to the transfer are completed, would be for each concern to take stock of all merchandise, and value the plant and equipment, goodwill and other assets, which, after being audited by an accountant, would be transferred to the new company and stock given in payment of same.

Should the estimated value prove to be less than the actual value when ascertained, the new company would either pay cash for the amount transferred over and above the estimate, or give additional shares for such, but if the estimate prove to be more than the actual value of the stock, the vendors would, of course, pay the company the difference. If the value may be readily ascertained, the stock being small or consisting of only a few lines, no such course would be necessary, the individual companies simply receiving shares in the new company in payment of amount transferred.

When an Apple Drops

from a tree it always falls faster the last second than it does the first—and the farther it falls the more speed it acquires and the harder it hits the ground.

And the longer your ad runs in THE CANADIAN GROCER the more force it acquires and the harder it hits.

In these days of keen competition it is usually necessary to hit hard to make an impression.

Which means that you must often keep your ad running a long time before it "hits" some readers.

Every ad that appears in these columns has the force of all previous ads behind it—and with each consecutive insertion YOUR ad hits harder.

The first time your ad appears it does not do as much good as the second time—and the second time it is not so effective as the third time.

"Appearances" count for a great deal in advertising.

The Ontario Provincial Winter Fair

Guelph, Dec. 5 to 9, 1904.

ONTARIO has won an enviable reputation among the provinces of the Dominion of Canada for two things, namely, her Industrial Exhibition, better known as the Canadian National Exhibition, and her Provincial Winter Fair and Fat Stock Show, the latter of which has just closed its twenty-first season and is justly considered unique among Canadian agriculturists and stockmen.

Prize poultry.

As its name indicates the Guelph Winter Fair is primarily an exhibition of fat stock and poultry, live and dressed, and this year may be said to have far surpassed the efforts of previous years in almost every respect, the entries being more numerous, while the quality of stuff shown was undoubtedly the very best Canadian farmers and stock raisers can produce—a statement that carries considerable weight when it is remembered that Canadian farm products occupy a premier position in the world's markets.

Educational Aspect.

The business man is principally interested in the educational aspect of the Fair, which has become especially prominent during the past few years and was made an outstanding feature this year.

Among the novelties provided was an exhibit of hand-selected seed grain, made with a view to interesting the farmer in a more careful selection of seed. This move is one which is especially to be commended in view of the fact that Canada seems destined to become shortly a leader among the grain-producing and flour milling countries of the world and the necessity of exercising extreme care in selecting none but first-class seed grain cannot be too strongly impressed upon our farming community.

Lectures and practical demonstrations by leading authorities in the various branches of agriculture were given daily to audiences comprised for the most part of farmers and stock raisers from all parts of Canada, including Manitoba and the Northwest, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island. It goes without saying that the ordinary layman should be interested in the latest achievements in the science of agriculture and stock raising; the writer has no hesitation in saying he never spent time more profitably than in listening to the lectures delivered during the Fair on such subjects as the "Ideal Weight of the Bacon Hog," "Canadian Beef on the British Markets," and "Shipping Fruit in Cold Storage." To farmers these topics are of vital importance and it was nothing short of an eye-opener to see the enthusiasm and intelligent grasp shown by them in the general discussions which followed every lecture.

There are two kinds of problems which confront the Canadian farmer now that agriculture in this country has been placed on a scientific basis, namely the experimental, having to do with new developments in agriculture, and the utilitarian, which are concerned with the improvement of present conditions, in other words, with making the most out of products of the farm. Such questions as "What class of animals the farmer should raise," "What breeds are most in demand" and "How they should be marketted to bring the highest price," face the farmer every day, and just in so far as he finds a satisfactory solution the standard of Canadian agriculture will be raised and the material prosperity of the country increased. One would not be going too far in saying that the meeting together of practical and theoretical agriculturists in discussion on such vital topics as "How are we to improve the position of Canadian bacon in the British market," "The bringing about of closer relations between the meat packer and the producer," and "Co-operation in marketing the product of the farm," is bound to have tremendous significance in shaping the future course of Canadian agriculture. There is only one way to keep agriculture in its merited high place among the sciences, a necessity by the way, if the best interests of Canada are to be best served, and that is for farmers to assume a scientific attitude, eliminating as far as possible the time-serving type. This end bids fair to be soon consummated in Canadian agricultural circles if one is to draw conclusions from the Guelph Winter Fair.

Production of Bacon.

Among the most interesting lectures given were those on the humble pig, in which farmers throughout the country are interested just now because they have been successful in making a little more out of their hogs. The production of bacon in Canada has been multiplied many times within the last few years, the annual value of exports having grown from one million to seventeen million dollars. Professor Day, of the Ontario Agricultural College, showed that Canadian farmers had a whole lot to learn about producing the right kind of hog before they could hope to catch up with their Danish competitors; at the same time there was no apparent reason why Canada should not eventually supersede Denmark in the British market. One reason for the preference given to the Danish bacon was its uniformity. It had a large proportion of lean to fat and the sides were neat and well trimmed. In comparison Canadian bacon had too many short sides, heavy shoulders and thick necks. Factories in Denmark were run on the co-operative plan. Hogs were graded and the farmer paid accordingly.

Denmark had another advantage in being a dairy farming country in so far as the Danish farmer fed his hogs with skim-milk.

Denmark, however, was not likely to enlarge her output, it being thought that her supremacy in hog production had about reached its limit. Canada had a big advantage in being able to feed hogs much more cheaply and on this account was in a position to compete successfully with Denmark for first place. Canadian farmers would need, however, to be in earnest about building up a high grade of product if they expected to get the benefit of the 4 or 5 cents advantage per pound now possessed by the Danes.

In answer to the question asked as to why pork packers did not discriminate in price in favor of the best bred pork, the packers said that keen competition compelled them to adopt a flat rate. and that it made a difference of fully twenty-five cents a hundred where there was any large quantity of undesirable stock.

A resume of experiments conducted during the past year at the Ontario Agricultural College with by-products from the slaughter houses as feed for hogs instead of skim-milk was given and the value of tankage for domestic use pointed out. Heretofore it has been the rule to export such by-products to the United States at a low figure, thus losing to the country a valuable asset.

Weight Limits of the Ideal Hog.

Dr. F. J. Smale, of the Wm. Davies Co., Toronto, discussed this important phase of the Canadian bacon trade in a comprehensive manner. The farmers of Canada were prone to err on the side of holding over hogs after they were ready for the market in the hope of realizing a higher price, and in so far as they did this they were hindering the success of the bacon producing industry in this country, the total loss to the farming community and Canadian trade in 1904 owing to the lack of sizable bacon being $500,000. If the export bacon trade was to be further built up the Canadian would have to keep a closer eye on the requirements of foreign markets, as to quality of product, kind of package, etc., than he had in the past and adapt his product accordingly.

The trouble so far had been that he had supplied an article suiting his own convenience rather than meeting the requirements of the trade.

In Canada, and particularly in the Province of Ontario, the farmer had sufficient knowledge of breeding and feeding to produce the packers' ideal and as a matter of fact was producing an average type of bacon hog at the present time. The difficulty was that he was not suiting his package to the requirements of the English market.

For years Canada had been gradually creeping up on Denmark. Within the last 18 months, however, the Danes had increased their exports of bacon by nearly 50 per cent. while the production of Canadian hogs had remained practically stationary. There could be only one reason for this, and that was because Danish bacon was better suited as far as package (weight, etc.,) was concerned to the requirements of the English market. It was estimated that not more than 60 per cent. of Canadian exports at the present time graded sizable hogs, either because they were too lean or fat, or bruised, or soft.

The anomalous part of it was that it did not cost a cent more to produce a sizable hog about 185 pounds weight than one which would not answer the packer's ideal. If the proportion of sizable bacon was to be increased to 100 per cent. and if Canadian bacon was ever to have a premier place in foreign markets like Canadian cheese, the co-operation of farmers was necessary in producing exclusively the proper type of hog. The farmer and the trade ought to remember that the price of bacon would be raised in proportion as the quantity of sizable bacon produced increased.

Canadian Beef on the British Market.

The Hon. John Dryden pointed out that there would be a steady market England for all the cattle which Canada could produce for many years to come. There was in England absolutely no sentiment at all in regard to where the meat came from; Canada and the United States were all practically America to the British public; if the Canadian shipper placed beef of equal quality on the British market, they would be assured of receiving an equally good price as was paid for animals from Chicago.

As to the question of live meat and dead meat trade with the Old Country, he would like to see the dead meat trade started as a second string to Canadian farmers' and shippers' bow. The demand for Canadian beef in Great Britain was increasing. At present the British market was supplied with fresh beef from Europe, frozen meat from Australia and New Zealand, and chilled meat from the United States. There was no reason why Canada should not do as well or better than the United States, if only proper facilities were provided, which the Government should be urged to provide. The quality of beef sent from Canada might be improved, and every effort should be made to have the embargo on cattle removed.

Mr. Wheaton, editor of Farming World, made the point that the Canadian export beef trade had not increased during the past ten years in anything like the same proportion as that of the United States, because Canada had not taken pains to develop her dead meat trade.

The advantages that would accrue through the establishment of a dead meat trade instead of a live meat trade he enumerated as follows: The obviating of loss in weight sustained in transportation and of the need for slaughter and sale within ten days after arrival in Great Britain, a considerable saving in the freight rates, two carloads of cattle being reduced to one carload when killed and dressed, the saving of the cost of feeding, loading and caring for the live stock on shipboard; on last year's trade at least two million dollars could have been saved by converting the cattle into dead meat before shipping. By slaughtering on this side and centralizing the business the by-products would be retained at home, and would realize a further profit to producer and packer. Allied industries for converting the by-products into salable merchandise would be established, the dead meat trade would give a steadier and more reliable market for the Canadian stock raiser, as the product could be held for a rise in case there was a slump in the market.

Utility in Sheep Breeding.

The consensus of opinion among experts in sheep breeding was that there was not enough attention paid to environment in the breeds of sheep commonly seen in this country. The main point to be remembered in selecting sheep was to get the greatest possible percentage of first-class wool and mutton for the amount of food consumed. This branch of industry was coming to the front in Canada, and prospects were brilliant. Canada had already some of the finest flocks in the world, and what was more the country was eminently suited to sheep raising.

TRADE AND TIME.

HAD the big timepiece in the observatory of McGill University, Montreal, any idea of its own importance, or the trouble which would be caused should it cease to perform its duties, it would probably go on strike and demand an eight-hour day or a two weeks vacation, or some other concession. The big clock never strikes, however, not being that kind of a clock, but with an expressionless face continues its monotonous labor year in and year out, without bothering its mechanical brain with strikes or lockouts.

The McGill observatory clock supplies the correct time daily to all the stations on the Grand Trunk system, and to points on the C. P. R. and I. C. R. from St. John, N. B., and Louisburg, Cape Breton, to Bamfield, B. C. The McGill time is automatically repeated at Canso, N. S.; to the Azores Islands; the inhabitants of Bermuda and Jamaica receive it from Halifax, where it is repeated by hand; the British warships correct their chronometers by it at Halifax and Victoria, and the German fleet does the same at the Azores; the operators at the islands in the Pacific, (the Australia cable hands), set their watches by it, and it also regulates automatically a large number of electric clocks in the city of Montreal.

The C. P. R. has an official timekeeper at all its terminal points, who corrects the watches of the trainmen on his division by means of the daily messages received from Montreal. This message is sent through at 11.54 a. m., and the seconds are ticked off until 11.56 a. m., when the message closes. When the time message is being transmitted all lines have to be clear of all other business. This is one of the laws of the telegraph department, and is on no account allowed to be broken.

At the C. P. R. telegraph office there is a special circuit connected with the clock in the McGill observatory. Signals are continuously sent over this circuit by the clock. At 11.54 these signals are repeated to all points on the line by hand, the clock arrangement not having been originally designed for transmitting the signals over long distances. The operator stands beside an electrical instrument on the clock circuit so that the signals are practically instantaneous with those received from the clock. Commencing at 11.54 the operator sends a single "click" each second for one minute. For the second minute a double "click" is sent each second, and at 11.56 the dots and dashes representing a period or full stop in the Morse code are sent. The operators at all points on the system then set their watches and clocks in accordance with the last signal. These signals are received at the western terminus of the railway through automatic repeaters at Fort William, Winnipeg and Swift Current. About 3-100 of a second is occupied in passing through each repeater, and the time occupied on the wire itself is about 2-100 of a second. Thus the actual time consumed between Montreal and Victoria is about 15-100 of a second. The signal arrives at Victoria at 8.54 to 8.56 Victoria time.

At Canso, N. S., the time signals are automatically repeated to the Azores Islands in the Atlantic. Here the vessels of the German fleet receive the time by signals from the land. The time is also signalled to the British warships at Halifax and Victoria frequently. The warships at Esquimalt used to take their own time by observation, but having found that the McGill time was always right they now receive it from the C. P. R. An operator at Halifax also sends the time signals to the Islands of Jamaica and Bermuda, and from Victoria it is sent to the islands in the Pacific, where the Australia cable lands.

Mr. A. Souter.

On the G. T. R. system the time is signalled daily direct from the McGill observatory. The signals are sent from 11.57 until noon, "clicks" being sounded every second. As in the C. P. R., the lines are kept clear of all other business while the time signals are being sent.

The clock at McGill is frequently compared with the clocks at Toronto and Washington, D. C., observatory, by means of telegraphic communication. As a general thing the signals from Washington are slightly behind Montreal, owing to the distance between the two cities. There have been practically only about six occasions during the last five years on which there was a difference of over one second between the two clocks. On checking up on these occasions it has generally been found that the Washington timepiece was in error.

TORONTO TRAVELER CELEBRATES

THE CANADIAN GROCER has pleasure in extending hearty congratulations to Mr. A. Souter, of Toronto, who a fortnight ago celebrated the 25th anniversary of his admission to the ranks of the Canadian drummer fraternity.

Mr. Souter has spent practically his whole life in the pursuit of trade, having been formerly in business in Newmarket on his own account. For the past twenty-five years he has been in the employ of Christie, Brown & Co. as traveling salesman, covering territory in Western Ontario. He is well and favorably known throughout the retail trade and in addition has been signally successful in winning a firm place in the esteem of his fellow travelers.

Mr. Souter is Canadian to the backbone. He inherits a fondness for the strenuous life that has often imperilled his life in railroad and trolley smash-ups. Happily Mr. Souter seems to be the possessor of "nine lives" and we hope to see him live out every one of them.

MARKET NOTES FROM TRINIDAD.

Under date of Nov. 30, Gordon, Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, report as follows :

Split peas in bags are wanted, although corn is neglected and oats are selling very slowly. The consumption of fishstuffs has not been normally good during the past fortnight. For small and medium Newfoundland cure there is not much inquiry at the moment, an exception being made in the case of large. Good split herring are wanted, although demand for other descriptions of pickled fish is restricted. Stocks of potatoes in dealers' hands are considerable, but importations are now likely to fall off, and the position should shortly improve.

Supplies of Trinidad cocoa are coming in quite slowly, no important increase being expected during the next few months. Small planters will doubtless market all they possibly can before the Christmas holidays, but from the principal districts all reports indicate that there will be no pickings of consequence until February or March. Considerable fruit has been lost by the change of leaves, and fears are entertained for pods now on the trees on account of unseasonable weather, which makes crop prospects still somewhat uncertain. The crop of Venequelan cocoa is very backward, and only small supplies are expected during the next two months.

IMPROVED PREMISES.

Mr. Jos. McFarland, Fenelon Falls, Ont., has moved into premises more suited to his increasing trade. The new building is conveniently arranged, its equipment in every way being now among the best in the district.

THE "ROARIN'" GAME.

THE curling season is now just at hand, and the enthusiastic curler, as is customary, will start the season with his favorite stone and also no doubt will continue with the same old broom. A few practices will, no doubt, convince him that his broom has seen its best days, as after it lies around for a whole season it loses the much needed firmness and elasticity required for this purpose. A broom which is made especially to overcome this defect is the Boevkh bamboo handled curling brooms, a most reliable and superior broom. It will be found first-rate value by all dealers in curlers' supplies. It is manufactured by the United Factories, Limited, Toronto.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Colson, Montreal, Canadian agent for Crosse & Blackwell, Epps and Cox, is visiting his principals across the water. Mr. Colson will be absent about four or five weeks.

Mr. A. J. Williams, Montreal, representing Crossfield, Lampord, Clark & Co., London and Colombo, is making a trip through Western Ontario as far as Sarnia and Windsor.

J. T. Leary & Co., Montreal, manufacturers of high-grade chocolates, have placed their goods freely in the Maritime Provinces through their special agent, Mr. Jas. R. Greig, who has just finished his eastern trip.

Mr. Jos. Irving, Toronto, special representative for Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, reports good business from Hamilton for Babbitt's 1776 Soap Powder. Mr. Irving made a special year-end trip to Hamilton with most satisfactory results.

Mr. D. L. Lockerby, of Lockerby Bros., Montreal, is at Massena Springs, N. Y., for a few weeks' rest and recuperation. Mr. Lockerby had just returned from a trying business trip through New Ontario and the Manitoulin Islands and Georgian Bay district, and felt the need of a holiday.

Mr. Joseph Irving, 92 Wellesley street, Toronto, has been appointed sole agent for Mr. Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal. Mr. Irving will act as special representative in Toronto for Borden's Condensed Milk, Babbitt's Soap Powder and Enameline Stove Polish.

Mr. J. T. Going, representing J. A. Mathewson & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, in the district east and north of Toronto, reports business in his territory as satisfactory. The absence of snow in the country is, however, felt, and its arrival before the holidays will materially add to the business doing.

Mr. James R. Greig, Canadian representative for Kkovah brand jellies, plum puddings, etc., has returned from a three weeks' trip through the Maritime Provinces. "Sales for Kkovah are coming easier," said Mr. Greig, "as the goods become known to the trade and public."

TOILET SOAP CATALOGUE.

The handling of fancy toilet soaps by grocery stores is a feature that is becoming quite general, at least in the better class of stores. This is but natural and as it should be since ladies, who are the principal buyers of household and toilet accessories, are also the shoppers and money spenders of the family. There is nothing that will rivet the attention of shoppers so much as a handsome showcase filled with high-class toilet soaps, and the up-to-date grocer knows this to his advantage. Colgate & Co., 53 to 55 John street, New York, have issued a most complete and conveniently arranged catalogue of toilet soaps and perfumery. The catalogue gives full information as to Canadian duties on the articles, and application to them at New York, or their Canadian agent, Mr. W. G. M. Shepherd, Coristine Building, Montreal, will bring catalogue by mentioning The Canadian Grocer.

COCOA BUTTER.

The recent advance occasioned by the active demand for Christmas supplies has receded to the previous level, owing to the urgent demands having been supplied and a somewhat larger output from factories being offered on the London market.

The beet sugar factory at Raymond, Alberta, will close down in a few days. The season's run will amount to about 3,000,000 pounds of sugar, which is four times as much as last year.

Canadian Bacon Industry.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has secured the following timely information bearing on the Canadian bacon industry, which may be of interest to its readers :

The United States sends to England weekly 60,000 to 70,000 hogs; Denmark, 30,000 to 40,000; Ireland, 20,000 to 30,000, and Canada, 20,000 to 25,000. In other words, Canada supplies about one-fifth and the United States about two-fifths of the bacon consumed in Great Britain. American and Canadian bacon, however, are not strictly competitive, the former being consumed principally in the north of England, while the latter goes mainly to the south of England. The two types differ markedly in cut and quality. The first is sent in the form of hams, backs, bellies, and shoulders, and is fat, while the second goes principally as whole or Wiltshire sides, Cumberlands, etc.

The difficulty with Canadian farmers is that they do not produce a large enough percentage of sizable bacon, the percentage varying with the season. In Winter time there is a tendency to hold hogs until they are over weight. In Summer time, when feed is scarce and prices high, hogs are usually marketed slightly underweight. It may be a surprise to the provision trade to know that in Ontario an average of 1¼c per lb. is lost on light weight hogs, and from ½ to 1½c on heavy weight hogs, which means a total annual loss of nearly $185,000, judging from the statistics of one factory alone. Owing to the percentage of bruised hogs and soft sides marketed, there is a further loss of $150,000, which, taken with the former and statistics from other packing industries, means an annual loss of $550,000 to the farmers and the trade of Ontario. This is too large an item to lose when it is remembered that the annual bacon production of the province is valued at $13,500,000.

The packer's advice to the producer, as a means of securing steady and high prices, is to produce none but sizable bacon, which will market at between 160 and 200 lbs., and to market at the right season. On the whole it is wiser to market a certain quantity every month, at any rate when the hog is ready, thus saving a glut on the market and the risk of a consequent drop in prices. At this season of the year it is a matter of from 3-8 to ½c extra per lb. to the packer if 100 per cent. of the bacon marketed is sizable, the difference being even greater at other seasons.

The objection is often raised that where one man has a No. 1 quality hog, another brings in a bruised animal and another an over or under sized hog, they all get the same price. Packers contend that with present conditions this abnormality cannot be overcome. At the same time, however, they claim that every farmer who produces sizable bacon helps to raise the average price, while unfortunately the farmer who produces poor quality profits at the expense of his neighbor.

From time to time the question has arisen whether American packers are not sending altogether too much bacon to Canada, particularly British Columbia and the Northwest. Eastern packers, however, do not appear to be alarmed, claiming that they do not want this class of trade, which consists almost entirely of short cut pork for lumber and rough trade. They have come to the conclusion that there is more money for themselves and for the producer in catering to the British market.

Developing Markets for Butter.

THE Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, has again this year operated a number of creameries in the Northwest Territories so that farmers in districts adapted to dairying might be able to obtain a cash income from their cows until such time as they are able to carry on the work for themselves. Considerable attention has recently been devoted to developing new markets for the butter produced, and the results have been quite satisfactory. In spite of the fact that the price of butter in Eastern Canada has been lower this year than last the patrons of the Northwest creameries have received an average net price of 20.98 cents a pound for the butter manufactured from the cream supplied by them, over a cent a pound more than in 1903, and the highest price ever obtained for the season's output of the Government creameries.

British Columbia has naturally been the chief market for Territorial butter in the past and still continues to take the bulk of the shipments. Freight rates and other expenses are so heavy that a satisfactory trade with Great Britain cannot be carried on at present, but a considerable export trade is being developed with Japan and other Oriental countries. Before the Osaka Exposition there was scarcely any Canadian butter sold to Japan, but in spite of the war some 34,000 pounds have been shipped to that country from the Government creameries during the first ten months of this year. The total consumption of butter in Japan is not large, but there are indications of a decided increase in demand for the Canadian article at the close of the war.

The Yukon butter trade is also being recovered for Canada. The total amount consumed in that territory annually is over 500,000 pounds, of which nearly 200,000 pounds has this year been contributed by the Government creameries in the Northwest Territories. When the country was first opened several shipments of tinned butter sent up by Canadian firms were found to be very inferior in quality, and, consequently, the Canadian article got a bad name and the market was practically monopolised by the United States. Indeed, until 1903 about the only Canadian butter used in the Yukon was that sent to the Mounted Police. Meanwhile the Dairy Division had been testing various styles of tins and other packages, and had found that a first class article, properly packed, could be shipped there at a profit. Orders for 90,000 pounds were received last year and the amount has been more than doubled this season.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

W. Tallers of Kobe, Japan, who is at present on a visit to Canada, says increasingly large quantities of Canadian butter are being consumed in Japan, although there is little or no market there for Canadian cheese.

Poultry—A better inquiry is noted on this week's market for poultry. On account of such a large percentage of plucked Spring chickens arriving in a poor condition we are obliged to quote prices on dry plucked fowl only. Fowls that are scalded when plucked will not bring nearly as high a price and shippers cannot expect more than from 5 to 6c per lb. A lack of first-class Christmas fowl is easily noted on the market this week, and although this lack is causing a depression merchants are confident in their belief that there is a large amount of fowl in the country, but that the farmers are holding off till a later date expecting higher prices. The indications are that the conditions of this market from now until Christmas will be a repetition of former years, namely, farmers of one accord will hold their supplies till within a few days of the holiday when the market will be flooded causing a glutting of the market and a depreciating effect on prices. Geese, Spring chickens and turkeys have advanced in price. All prices are firm. We quote the following:

Chickens, spring, dry plucked	0 10	0 11
Hens	0 07	0 08
Geese	0 09	0 10
Turkeys	0 14	0 16
Ducks	0 10	0 11

Butter—Trade is more active and conditions are firmer. A rumor is current to the effect that a number of the factories manufacturing creamery butter are closing up, being unable to get a large enough supply of cream. Farmers blame these conditions on the drought this Fall which dried up the pastures and left animals in a poor condition for giving milk. Some wholesale dealers report an increase of one cent on all varieties of butter, but the majority are satisfied to leave present quotations unchanged. Prices are firm. We quote the following:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 22	0 23
" solids, fresh	0 20	0 21
Dairy prints	0 17	0 19
" in tubs	0 14	0 17
" large rolls	0 16	0 17

Cheese—Trade is nominal, although an advance of 1-4c is noted on large cheese. Small quantities are being exported to England, owing to hard times amongst the class of people that are the principal consumers of cheese. Our quotations are as follows.

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10½	0 10¾
" twins	0 10¾	0 11

Montreal.

Provisions—The advance reported in last issue continues and a good demand for live hogs exists. Dressed hogs are firmer and a good demand rules. Sales at $7 to $7.25 for fresh abattoir killed took place, and $6 to $6.75 for country killed. The cold and steady hard weather has acted in favor of demand and firmer prices. A good undertone obtains in the provision market. The smoked meat trade shows an improvement owing to the approaching holiday trade and buyers are placing their orders. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$17 50	$18 00
American short cut clear	16 50	17 00

Butter—There has been a good demand for local requirements in butter, and it is expected that some of the local dealers will be hard put to fill their orders this Winter, as owing to the low prices ruling for cheese, a very much larger sale of butter was expected than seems to have been produced. It is stated that orders have been received from Toronto for butter, and it is thought that they will have a hard time this Winter to get all they want. Prices may be mentioned as in the neighborhood of 21c realised in this market, and there is no likelihood of anything but an advance in prices from now on.

Cheese—The market for the past week has been very quiet and very little doing until Monday of this week, when on export demand some ten thousand to fifteen thousand boxes were bought, and a good portion of this consisting of late made stuff for which less than 10c was supposed to have been paid, in fact in some cases 9 3-4c is mentioned; the rest of it will no doubt be October goods, for which up to 10 1-4c was paid. The holders now have their ideas fixed at 10 1-2c and it is expected that when the United Kingdom find that the cheaper grades, of which they think there is a great quantity here still held back, is not in existence, they will have to come on to the better grades of goods, and therefore an improvement is expected after the turn of the year. It will naturally take some time for merchants in the

HAS the Competition in the Tea Business ever been as Keen as it is To-day?

I think not.

How important it is, then, for the retail merchant to be as sure as possible that the tea he recommends is the very best that he can procure.

Some of his customers will insist on getting certain brands, which the merchant doubtless knows are not as good as some other one: but some of these customers have very decided opinions and must be humored. The great majority, however, of any merchant's customers are influenced by his opinion, and these are the very ones whose trade he is most likely to hold, providing they find that the goods he recommends are always to be relied on.

Tea is one of the most important of the many things sold in a grocery or general store. You know from experience, probably, that a customer who complains about tea soon complains about other things and is dissatisfied all round.

To come right down to the point. Do you think it pays to push or recommend any tea until you are satisfied yourself that it is the best tea on the market?

Nothing but the best is good enough for your customers.

Now, I believe Red Rose Tea is the best tea on the Canadian market, and any expert judge of tea who is not interested in some other brand will back up this opinion.

If you are not selling Red Rose Tea and feel that the best is none too good, order a sample case. Then form your own opinion. Don't be persuaded one way or the other by my travellers or anyone else. Judge for yourself.

If it is the best you will buy it; if it isn't, you won't.

The Wm. Davies Co., of Toronto, are about to begin business in Montreal on an extensive scale. The firm have made arrangements with the Union Stock Yards Co., of Montreal, for a site covering about three and a half to four acres, on which a packing house will be erected similar to the one the firm have in Toronto, but not quite so large. Along with the erection of this packing house the firm will open numerous branch establishments in Montreal and suburbs.

GLUTEN FLOUR

A brain, nerve and muscle-building flour especially prepared for invalids, and particularly that large class who suffer from weak digestion, acidity of the stomach, etc.

Invaluable for Diabetes

It contians all the nutritive elements of the wheat, and is as nearly free from starch as it is practicable to make a flour suited to general daily use.

All grocers have more or less call for this. No need now to pay fancy prices for foreign flours when the same can be obtained at home, and at half the cost.

Greig's Gluten Flour is put up in nice white cotton sacks. Trial size, 5 lbs. Regular size, 49 lbs. Also in barrels. Inquiries carefully responded to.

Salt Sense

The ordinary Salt of ordinary trade must not be confounded with Windsor Salt, which is sifted, not ground. Think of the goodness that slips away from the Salt crystal that is mangled, bruised, ground—think of the impurities that must creep in. Windsor Salt contains nothing but pure, white, dry, whole Salt crystals—no matter that they are fine and small crystals, they are whole crystals all the time.

Windsor Salt

is prepared in the only safe, sure way, by the Vacuum process. Every particle of moisture is dried out, which prevents the "caking" of the Salt. If you will stop to consider you will quickly see why Windsor Salt is best. Any man of intelligence and sense will agree to that.

THE COUNTRY MERCHANT AND THE FARMER.

CANADA is an agricultural country and to the farming community the trader must look for hope and encouragement and profit. The merchants of the larger cities do not have the same occasion to reflect upon this fact because the large manufactories pour out their hundreds and thousands of patrons who are all of them buyers and none sellers. The country merchant, however, has it impressed upon him every business day in the year that without the farmer he could not do business. While in a general way the merchant acknowledges this dependence he does not pay enough attention to the farming business and its vast possibilities. He does not sufficiently encourage his country patrons in matters tending to improve the quality and to increase the quantity of their butter, eggs, cheese, etc., and thus to bring them better financial returns.

The more farmers deliver and the better the quality the more money will naturally be put into circulation over the store counters of the land. All merchants, particularly those in districts devoted to dairying and stock raising, should reflect upon this phase of their business and when, for example, it is noted that no less than $500,000 is lost yearly to the farmers of the Province of Ontario because out of $15,000,000 worth of bacon produced annually the percentage of sizable bacon is forty instead of zero, it should impress itself indelibly upon the trade that the greatest possible benefit must result to all parties concerned from encouraging the farmer to improve the quality of farm products.

PROLONGING NAVIGATION.

HERETOFORE a serious drawback to the shipping interests of Canada and her commerce has been the forced closing of the Port of Montreal about the middle of November, just at a time of considerable commercial activity. Although during many seasons the river is open even until the first of the year, the uncertainty of climatic conditions has created an uneasiness that renders ship owners unwilling to take any risk, by having out-going boats in the harbor after that date. Any assurance that the ice would be broken, in case of necessity, would change the view point of shippers to a degree of confidence regarding later boats. There is every likelihood of this assurance being merited, as the Canadian Government has provided two ice-breakers, the Champlain and the Montcalm, the latter having arrived at Sydney from the Clyde only this week. They are built after the style of the well-known Russian ice-breaker, the Ermack, operating in the Baltic Sea. The result of their operation is of unusual importance to the commerce of Canada.

A unique experiment is now under way, the outcome of which will be watched with the deepest interest in this country. It is none other than the sending of a coal boat up the St. Lawrence to Montreal after the 1st of December, to return when its cargo is discharged. The steamship St. Helen, with twelve hundred tons of soft coal, left Sydney early in the week and is being escorted from Quebec by the ice-breaker Champlain. Although the weather is not unusually cold at present, there is considerable frost, and it is conjectured that the Champlain will have ample opportunity of testing its worth before the St. Helen has cleared and is safely dawn stream past Quebec. The successful outcome of the experiment means that Fall navigation will be prolonged a month at least. If this is effected it follows that the ice-breakers will be able to open up the river a month earlier than if it were left to nature, and by clearing a channel early will prevent ice jams and incidentally remove any danger of floods in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence.

Two months additional commerce to the Port of Montreal is worthy of more than a passing thought. Not only will the city be directly affected by the prolonged season of trade, but the whole of Canada westward. Another month will be granted for shipping grain and other produce from this Canadian port, and a month earlier than usual trade will resume activity. It is a little early to speculate until after the feasibility of the experiment has been proven beyond doubt. However, the prospects for success in this direction are bright enough to discredit failure, so that it is safe to prophesy that Canada is about to benefit by what is possibly the greatest physical aid to her commerce that could be devised.

FROZEN CANNED GOODS.

A SUBJECT of interest to the grocery trade at this season of the years is that of frozen canned goods. The setting in of the cold weather is always accompanied by extra activity in the shipping of canned products such as corn, peas, tomatoes, etc., and from the packer down to the retailer there is more or less of disquietude until stocks are safely housed. Why this should be so does not appear to be reasonable of explanation. No doubt Canadian merchants dealing in this class of goods have been so long accustomed to dreading possible damage by frost that they have accepted without close investigation, the reports of damage as incontrovertible.

It seems, however, that there is not so much cause for fear as is generally entertained by the trade, and some of the largest jobbers in Canada who have studied the question closely are of the confirmed opinion that there is nothing in this frost question and that in actual experience frozen canned goods are just as good and salable as those not affected. There is no doubt that "frozen canned goods" are very often put forward as an excuse for the cancellation of orders or for the obtaining of rebate on price due to the dealer having either purchased too heavily or at too high a figure. The packers primarily are guilty of using it as a subterfuge to clear out contracts and unload on the jobber, and the jobber on the retailer ne c'est pas? It is a well-known fact that nearly every jobber, and for that matter every retailer in the country, either stores his canned goods in the cellar or in warehouses where there never is the slightest degree of heat from one year's end to the other and where in many cases the temperature is always at freezing point. In the northern and western portions of Canada one would suppose that the warehouse temperature during the Winter months is continuously below freezing point, and yet it is a fact that fewer complaints come from the trade in those sections than from Ontario and Southern Quebec points.

The freezing of the goods is rather a preservative of their quality and if proper care in handling is exercised, the retailer need not worry about any damage. It is often the case that the sudden transition from an extremely cold warehouse to the hot temperature of the store will produce an expansion in the tin through the loosening of the gases in the product, and cause trouble, but if the goods are handled with proper care, and temperature be considered, there will be fewer complaints of frozen goods. If the goods are properly packed and air-tight there need be no fear of damage from frost, it is rather the heat that should be dreaded.

ST. JOHN AS WINTER PORT.

NOW that navigation has closed on the St. Lawrence it is interesting to note the volume of trade finding outlet through our Canadian Winter ports.

It has been the delight of croakers at home and abroad to assume that Canada is dependent upon the United States as an outlet for her products during five months in the year. Nothing could be farther from the truth. There are no better harbors in the world than St. John and Halifax, while with slight difficulty Sydney could also be kept open 365 days in the year.

St. John is inconvenienced to some degree owing to the extreme rise and fall of the tide there, but even this fact is not altogether without its advantages for at the market slip St. John has practically a dry dock. A vessel can run in here at high tide, discharge her cargo, have her hull cleaned while the tide is out and get off with the next high tide. The huge C.P.R. elevator at St. John has drawn large quantities of grain to this port of late years and the value of goods exported through the port of St. John during the Winter season of 1903-4 reached the gratifying sum of $15,745,301.

A Winter port statement issued by the St. John Board of Trade covering the season 1903-4 gives the following interesting details:

A WARNING TO THE TRADE.

IT does not often fall to the lot of The Canadian Grocer to warn its readers against individuals seeking to prey upon legitimate trade. Such "sharpers" have been the exception so far in Canadian business circles, and in order that their existence even yet may be attended with a maximum of risk we lose no time in giving publicity to a case in point which has arisen in the Province of Quebec.

It is alleged that a man going by the name of McKenzie, under pretence of carrying on a general mercantile business in New Richmond, has for years been in the habit of ordering goods wherever credit was procurable, and of having the same shipped either to himself or his son. On arrival the goods are turned into a store under the management of Mrs. McKenzie. No one of the three is liable for a cent according to law, which makes it practically impossible for creditors to obtain justice or satisfaction once goods have been turned over into second hands.

Several claims have been filed but it has been found that the expense of taking proceedings and forcing the matter to an issue was greater than the claims would warrant. The attitude of wholesale houses that have been "gouged" seems to be to let the thing go by default, at the same time resolving not to be "gouged" again. It hardly seems fair, however, that the trade press of Canada should not seize the opportunity of giving publicity to a practice which if allowed to continue must be prejudicial to the trade and commerce of the nation.

THE LATE ADAM WEIR.

The Canadian Grocer is indebted to Col. Weir of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., Port Credit, Ont., for the accompanying biographical sketch and portrait of his uncle, the late Adam Weir, whose death occurred in Toronto several weeks ago:

Mr. Weir was a son of the late Adam Weir, Sr., of Puslinch, Ont., and is survived by four brothers, Thomas and John, both residing at Puslinch; Charles, now in the General Hospital, Guelph; William, living at Galt: and two sisters, Mrs. Little, of Teeswater, and Mrs. Harper, of Markham. When quite a young man Mr. Weir entered mercantile life in Guelph with the Osborne Sewing Machine Co., and later became a member of the late firm of Massey, Weir & Bryce, wholesale confectionery and biscuit manufacturers. He subsequently became a partner in the grocery business with Mr. H. Loch, under the name of Loch, Weir & Galbraith. His next business connection was with the Christie, Brown Co., Toronto, for whom he traveled twenty-five years, until 1900, when he was compelled to retire owing to ill-health. Mr. Weir will be much missed in retail grocery circles as he was widely and favorably known all over Canada.

WHY SUGAR IS DEAR.

In last week's issue The Canadian Grocer referred editorially to a speech delivered in England by Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, in which he said the colonial preference was to be blamed for the present abnormally high price of sugar. Those of our readers who are making a study of the sugar situation will be interested in the following statement taken from Czarnikow's London, Eng., weekly sugar report, dated Dec. 1, 1904.

The very large shortage in the European beet sugar crop and the quite natural increase in prices has given rise in our newspapers to a great deal of adverse comment against the Brussels convention; people who disregarded all warnings about the exceptional drought in Europe, which made the rivers run dry, are now blaming the Brussels gentlemen for it, and affect to think that the rise is all the work of a ring of speculators who hold up the limited supply in convention countries, whilst the non-convention states are brimful of sugar, and prevented from selling it to us at pre-convention prices. It is possible that these people in the trade honestly believe in their fallacies, though they might know better from statistics and quotations accessible to them every day, but when outsiders, who apparently know nothing about it, take up the cry and authoritatively write to the papers in ignorance and wrath, attacking persons, measures and situations which they do not understand, then the farce becomes grotesque. They say Russia is full of sugar, whereas she has a deficiency in production of 250,000 tons, and including accumulated old stocks, has not as much as last year; she is supposed to have sold at 9s 7d in Switzerland, which was at a time when German sugar was to be had at very little more, and at the present moment her export prices are within a moderate fraction of convention countries. Everybody in the trade knows that since Russia passed the law giving each fabricant a share in the home trade proportionate to its production plus old stock, the Russian export trade was not worth running after, as old stocks were kept back to obtain a larger allotment; the production is expensive, as the yield per acre is barely half of that of Germany or Austria, the distance is great, and the factories ridiculed the idea of providing our confectioners at pre-convention prices; they principally sent some consignments just before our door closed, because they expected a big rise here, which did not take place.

Since then they have, notwithstanding their stocks, only moderately supplied their Mediterranean and eastern customers at almost convention prices, allowing other sugars to come here, and they are doing so still. If anybody tried to buy fair quantities below the world's prices he would soon find out the impossibility of succeeding. Argentine, too, sends sugar to Canada, and causes other sugar to come here; besides, the crop there is barely sufficient this year to cover home requirements. The convention raised raw beet from 6s to 9s, but as soon as root contracts for present crop were debated, the quotation for October-December, 1904, ranged from 9s 6d to 10s. There was thus more inducement to sow after the convention than before, the sowings in fact were within a few per cent. of last season, and it is on wind and weather only that angry critics will have to empty their ink pots. What they overlook entirely in their contemptuous references to cane and to the West Indies, is that the convention has given up this season 400,000 tons more cane, and but for a bad season in Mauritius—not yet traced to the convention—the excess might have been nearer 500,000 tons. Without these we might be, Heaven knows where; production is thus more evenly distributed over the world, including our own colonies, freeing us from the bondage of temporary state-made supplies, and if the continental working man is able to get sugar at a more natural price, thus increasing its consumption, that is a remedy which was loudly called for in this country during the severe pre-convention crisis. The convention itself need not be ashamed of it, though it did not touch the excise duties, and the old system, which led to prices for home consumption in countries of production on the Continent of 300 per cent. of its natural value, would not have lasted much longer, anyhow; on the other hand, French operators already hope the agitation for abolition of English duties will succeed, and that they will reap the benefit.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 15, 1904.

Groceries.

BUSINESS among the jobbers during the week has been on the quiet side. Retailers have in a large measure stocked themselves with their requirements, and it is not expected that much active business will be done between now and the end of the year. Orders will be mainly for such lines of fruits and holiday requirements as have been insufficiently ordered. Moreover, as is always the case now, buyers are looking forward to stock-taking time, and closing up of books for the year. Jobbers are also doing little heavy buying for similar reasons, and trade consequently is tapering off. Comparisons with last year's trade are in favor of better Fall and Winter orders, and as reports from travelers are optimistic as regards the coming year the trade has a confident tone.

The feature of the week is the strong position of sugar, and the advance of 20c per 100 lbs. since last issue is accepted as a precursor of still higher prices in the near future. The statistical position is certainly a strong one, and warrants careful consideration on the part of the trade. Coffees are also showing a strong front, and reports from Brazil and Santos would indicate an advance. Spices maintain their firm position and tone, though locally there is not much activity noticeable. Foreign dried fruits are unchanged. Valencias seem to be weakening, and low quotations are being offered on certain grades. California navel oranges are arriving more freely, are in excellent condition both as regards color and maturity, and are meeting with ready sale. In fact it is stated that they are in better condition in every respect than has ever been the case in this market. Sorrento oranges and Jamacias are also in good favor with the trade. Almeria grapes are in good demand. The condition of the fish trade is most satisfactory, the cold weather and the special fast days of this and next week are stimulating trade. Syrups and molasses, particularly the former, are showing good demand. A slight advance is noted in Barbadoes molasses. Maple products are in increasing favor, and more attention is being paid to these goods than appears to have been the case in former years. The tea market shows a quiet condition, little heavy trading being done, though the general tone of the market is firm. Ceylon and Indian greens are given out as stronger, and cable advices from Calcutta note an advance of a farthing. Some trading has been done in low grade Japans, presumably on a speculative basis. Christmas goods, such as figs, dates, nuts, layer raisins, are interesting and fair demand prevails. Butter and cheese are showing some little better tone, and the former particularly seems to warrant following. Export orders are comparatively light, and the foreign buyers are still somewhat chary in paying demands of holders on this side, but it is expected that when the conditions are thoroughly judged a resumption of a more pronounced character will result abroad. Poultry is coming in fairly well though the high price asked by country dealers for Christmas turkeys in restricting orders. Ordinary stock is in fair supply and selling well.

SUGAR.

The sugar market still continues interesting, and prices have been advanced 20c per 100 lbs. since last issue, making extra granulated $5.35. St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery is asking $5.45. The tone of the foreign market is decidedly strong, and from the statistical position it may be assumed that a still further advance may be looked for.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Barbadoes molasses is reported somewhat higher this week. Stocks are not moving rapidly, as most of the orders have been filled before the close of navigation. In sugar syrups there seems to be a better demand going among the trade, as is usual at this season of the year.

COFFEE.

Local trade maintains a firm tone. New York markets are reported as continuing active. Some strong speculative buying was noticed, mostly on account of interests looking to supply themselves with their future requirements. Santos advises the crop was growing irregular, and that picking will be difficult without a heavy loss. Receipts also show diminution. This has had a tendency to hold up the market.

SPICES.

Business has been very quiet in all kinds of spices during the week. The market is firm. In New York the market is reported fairly active. Indications are that peppers, particularly white pepper, may advance shortly. Nutmegs are in fair demand, and prices somewhat higher. Cassias are dull.

TEA.

There has been an improved tone noted in the local market during the week, and firmer prices are asked for Ceylon and India green, as local stocks are getting to be exhausted. Young Hysons and Gunpowders are firm, with some inquiries. Cables at hand from Calcutta report an advance of a farthing in India greens. There has been but little doing in Japans, though in one quarter it is reported that some speculative buying has been done.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods business is in a very quiescent condition at present, and there is practically very little of importance to note. Some 2,000 cases of American pack tomatoes have been sold on the market through brokers, at prices anging from $1.12½ to $1.20. Canned fruits are not in such demand as might be expected. Reports from British Columbia to brokers show firm prices for salmon. Some B. C. fresh herrings are being offered in cases of four dozen, which could be retailed at 10c. These goods are very handsomely put up, and it is altogether likely that a good trade will be built up for same.

Green Fruits.

The market generally is fair. California navel oranges are selling very well on account of the good condition in which the fruit is arriving. It was remarked by an importer that his firm had never seen California oranges arriving in this market in such good condition, both as regards color and mature fruit. Three thousand boxes or Sorrento oranges were sold at the fruit auction on Monday, prices ranging from $1.40 to $1.90. Two cars of Mexican oranges brought from $1.65 to $1.90, and several cars of Jamacias from $1.90 to $2.10. Valencia oranges for the Christmas trade are expected this week. Prices will range for ordinary 420s, from $3.75 to $4; large 420s, from $4.50 to $4.75; 714s, from $4.75 to $5. Malaga grapes are selling quite freely and are in good demand at $5.50 to $6.50. Second tide dates are selling at 4c, and a good trade is being done. Cranberries advanced 50c during the week, and higher prices are looked for. Cocoanuts advanced 60c per bag, and higher prices will undoubtedly follow on account of the small crop in Jamaica, and a good demand for same in the U. S.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Currants—No change to report this week.

Valencias—Stocks have been fairly well distributed, and there has been some inquiry for spot stock of layers, which appear to be about exhausted.

Nuts—The only change noted is a slight easiness in shelled walnuts.

French Peanuts—The demand is still maintained, and has the effect of keeping the French market in its previous firm condition.

Dates—Recent London cables quote Hallowees slightly easier for second tide. The quality is reported to be fine.

Figs—Comadras—The market is almost bare of this article, which can now be imported at about the last quotation, notwithstanding the increased trade, the reduction in f.o.b. prices being about equivalent to the increased freight. Stocks generally of all kinds of dried fruits are in small compass, buying this season having been smaller than usual.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups and molasses have been quiet during the week under review. New Orleans is steady at an advance in quotations, which extending over the last two months has meant an item of from 1 to 2c. Trade on the whole is expected to be quiet until after the holidays. No West India molasses is to be had in primary markets at the present time, and samples of new crop Barbadoes will not be available until March, 1905. Our quotations are as follows :

COFFEES.

A satisfactory volume of trade in coffee is reported for the week. The firm price of Rios continues, with indications pointing to an advance, and at the same time retailers report a steady trade. Prices in New York advanced from ½ to ¾c within the week. Jobbers report business quiet with buying spasmodic and comparatively small in volume.

According to the views of some of the trade Europe has allowed herself to drift into rather a delicate position by her comparatively light purchases thus far this season of Brazil coffee. The stock of coffee in sight for Europe on December 1 was about 1,500,000 bags smaller than on the same date last year, and about 1,000,000 bags less than on opening of the crop year. Europe for the crop year from July 1st to December 1st had delivered for consumption 4,120,000 bags. The total consumption of Europe for the last two previous years was 9,280,651 bags in 1903-04 and 9,118,621 in 1902-03. Conditional that Europe will take the same amount of coffee for consumption this year as in the past two, there remains 5,000,000 bags to be delivered for the remaining seven months of the crop year December 1st, 1904, to July 1st, 1905. The amount of Rio and Santos coffee marketed to December 1st was about 7,000,000 bags, and taking the estimate of 9,500,000 bags as the total yield of the present Rio and Santos crop, this leaves only 2,500,000 bags to come forward for the seven remaining months of the crop year. The amount of other kinds of coffee received in the United States and Europe from July 1st, 1904, to December 1st, 1904, was 1,800,000 bags. The yield of the coffee crops of the world other than Rio and Santos for the present crop year is estimated at 4,500,000 bags; therefore, leaving 2,700,000 bags to come forward for the balance of the crop, and with the remaining supply of 2,500,000 bags Rio and Santos coffee estimated to be received the balance of the crop year, makes a total supply of 5,200,000 bags, or an excess of only 200,000 bags over Europe's indicated requirements for the same period. As the American market will continue a buyer of coffee, indications are that Europe will have to make further inroads into her stock to meet her requirements. This well-informed members of the trade are inclined to believe she cannot do without advancing prices to a higher basis.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There is nothing of special interest in rice and tapioca unless it be the fact that large quantities of U. S. rice will probably find a market here during the next few months on account of overproduction in that country. Our quotations are as follows :

SUGAR.

The course of the market during the week has been variable. Shortly after we went to press last week the anticipated reduction in European beet estimates was received, viz.: Germany, 45,000 tons; Austria, 40,000 tons; France, 70,000 tons; Russia, 60,000 tons; a total of 215,000 tons, which with the reduction of 20,000 tons in estimate of Belgian crop made December 2nd, brings Mr. F. O. Licht's estimate of all Europe to 4,715,000 tons, against the actual outturn last campaign 5,852,043 tons. The effect of this reduction in estimates of 235,000 tons was soon evident, beets jumping from 14s 3d to 14s 6d for December shipment, 14s 7 1-2d for January. New York also responded promptly, large sales of Cuban centrifugals transpiring at a full eighth advance on previous transactions. On the 8th, 50,000 boxes Cubans for January-February shipment were purchased at 3 3-8 c. and f. Since then fully 275,000 bags for January, Janury-February, and January-March shipments were placed with U. S. refiners at 3 1-2c c. and f., equal to 4 7-8c duty paid.

We also note further sale on the 8th of 2,500 tons Demerara centrifugals to Canadian refiners at 3 1-4c c. and f. New York, which was 3-16 above New York parity for these goods on that date.

Since the above large transactions, the market has taken an easier turn, and Europe is reported weak, with business at lower prices, beets declining to 14s 5 1-4d to 14s 4 1-2d and 14s. There was no apparent reason for the break in Europe, unless it was that the market expected a further reduction in the factory estimates of 100,000 tons, or say from 4,630,000 tons to 4,530,000 tons; but as the fabricants have made no change in their previous figure, the bulls seem to have been disappointed, and as they had fully discounted the possible effect of a further decrease, which has not materialized, it will be readily understood why the decline has taken place. In addition to this, cables from Cuba report that there are now 45 central factories in operation, indicating that the making of the crop is in full swing, fully two weeks ahead of last season, and reports say that there is cane enough in the fields for 1,400,000 tons sugar. These factors combined have had a depressing effect on the market, and at the moment all buyers are withdrawn. The opinion is expressed, however, that there need be no change in Willett & Grey's estimate of the Cuban crop of 1,200,000 tons, as it is well known that Cuba never grinds all the cane in the fields, the work usually being interrupted by unfavorable weather conditions.

The earlier advices had their effect upon refined prices, both here and in the U. S., two advances of 10c per 100 lbs each taking place, and New York net basis is now $5.50 for granulated, while here quotations are firm on basis of $5.43 Toronto for extra standard granulated.

Receipts at three Atlantic ports for week ending December 6th were light, viz., 9,159 tons, with meltings of 27,000 tons, and total stock in all hands of 111,214 tons.

Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 1,805,464 tons, against 2,431,612 tons last year, decrease now being 626,148 tons.

Foreign Dried Fruits

The Christmas trade in foreign dried fruits continues to be the chief item in the grocery trade. Owing to lateness in arrival of fruit, the shipping of orders for the holiday trade will not be completed until the middle of next week. On the whole the fruit trade this year has been satisfactory with the exception of Valencia raisins and other fancy table fruit such as dates and figs. In ordinary varieties of dried fruit, however, the volume of trade was never better.

A cable from Denia, dated Tuesday, Dec. 13, says that stocks of Valencia raisins in Spain have been reduced to about 80,000 boxes. As the average crop of Valencias is estimated at 2,300,000 boxes, it will be seen that there is only a very small percentage left. The cable also states that an advance in the market is expected, and that the low price of Valencias has resulted in a lively demand in Spain. The feeling locally is decidedly easier, and although there has not been any cut so far for immediate delivery The Canadian Grocer predicts that fine select Valencia raisins will be obtainable after the new year as cheap as 5¼c.

The currant market continues strong. During the past week trade has been more or less inconvenienced owing to the late arrival of the steamer Jennie in New York with Christmas supplies, a thing almost without precedent in the history of the trade at this season of the year, when stocks are usually plentiful.

California prunes, large and small sizes, are reported scarce. Apricots and evaporated peaches are scaree and high in price. The rumor as to shortage in candied peels last week has been confirmed. It appears that the trade was overloaded last season, and on that account did not buy so freely this year, with the result that the requirements of the market were underestimated. FOREIGN NUTS.

There is a strong demand for all varieties of nuts. Shelled almonds, Marbot walnuts and filberts are scarce. Shelled walnuts are quoted low in comparison with nuts in shell. Next arrivals of almonds are expected about the first of the year. Cocoanuts are scarce, and there is a fair inquiry for peanuts. During the week English cobnuts have arrived on the market and are selling at 20c per lb. Prices are firm, and although they are not expected to advance no decline is anticipated. Green Fruits.

Trade has improved during the last week, all orders now calling for Christmas goods. Oranges are causing the best inquiry. During the week four cars of Southern California navels have arrived in Toronto. Florida oranges arriving are showing considerable waste and are undesirable for holding any length of time. The season for Jamaica oranges is drawing to a close. Valencia oranges are pale in color and receipts are considerably lighter than in previous years.

Lemons are reported scarce and have advanced. The banana trade is quiet, it being a bad season for this fruit. The cold weather is affecting the fruit. Unusually large supplies of grape fruit are arriving, a good trade having been worked up as this article becomes better known.

The demand for Almeria grapes continues active. Shipments arriving show some waste, the first reported this season.

A good inquiry for cranberries is noted. Early blacks have been removed from the list as their season has ended. Budd's long keepers, although higher in price, have the preference over Late Howes. Seven cars of holly have arrived on the market during the last week, which it is thought will be enough to supply the trade this season. Prices are firm and are expected to remain so till after the holiday season. We quote the following prices :

Vegetables.

During the week greenhouse lettuce, mushrooms and carrots have advanced in price. As the majority of purchasers have stocked their Winter's supply, conditions of trade are inclined to be quiet. (By telegraph.)

BUTTER — Market active. Prices firm. Local price quoted 21c., and if quality fine same figure can be obtained for export.

CHEESE—Strong feeling still obtains. Holders asking 10½c. for fine Ontario, and expect importers to come around to their view as market is firm.

EGGS — No change. Market strong and prices firm. Cold storage selects quoted at 24c. and straights, 18½ to 20½c., according to quality. Montreal limed 19c., and western about 18 to 18½c.

PROVISIONS—Barrel pork and provisions easier. Live hogs firm, selects, 5¼ to 5½c.; mixed, 5 to 5¼c., and sows, 4½ to 4¾c. Dressed hogs steady.

Fish and Oysters.

Trade in fish is quiet, owing to the holiday goods receiving more attention. A better trade, however, is expected after Christmas. The cold weather has caused a brisk trade in oysters. Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

During the week peas have advanced 1c per bush. Manitoba wheat, Northern No. 1 has advanced ½ to 1c per bush., No. 2 1 to 1½c, and No. 3, ½c per bush. Red and white wheat have declined 2c per bush. This change in wheat is due, as far as can be learned, to speculation. Our quotations are :

BREAKFAST FOODS.

During the week pot barley in bags and in wood has advanced 25c. This advance is owing to the lack of keen competition, the result of one of the larger manufacturing plants being damaged by fire, which has caused a delay in operations. Oats are firm and an advance is expected in oatmeal and rolled oats. Our quotations are :

SEASON'S REMINDERS.

One of the most attractive of the season's reminders is the Fairy calendar sent out by the N. K. Fairbanks Co., of Montreal. It is a most artistic and delicate piece of lithographing in a series of five large separate panels; the first a calendar, the others representing Morning, Evening, Noon and Night. The series is well worth framing and will add materially to the appearance of any store, and for that matter they are far superior to the pictures often found in many drawing rooms. They are being sent out to the trade and if any readers of The Grocer have not yet received one no doubt a request on their business heading will be efficacious.

NEW CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.

The Department of Customs, Ottawa, last week issued a circular advising collectors that the free entry of catalogues and price lists is to apply when they are imported for wholesale purposes only. These would usually be addressed to dealers or traders. Duty at the rate of 15 cents per pound under tariff item 120 is to be collected on circulars, fly sheets and other advertising matter (except catalogues and price lists for wholesale only), when imported by mail addressed to individuals or otherwise. The distribution of advertising matter being ordinarily of interest to the sender, collectors are advised in respect of quantities of advertising matter, weighing over one pound in the aggregate from the same exporter, that they may notify the sender as to the amount of duty payable thereon and state that the advertising matter will be forwarded as addressed on prompt remittance of duty. When the duty remains unpaid for sixty days, the matter is to be treated as unclaimed and a special notation made thereof without entry on the usual "unclaimed list of uncustomed goods." At the expiration of six months the inspector may direct the matter to be destroyed in default of payment of duty, if the same cannot be sold for a sufficient sum to pay duty and charges as provided in section 37 of the Customs Act.

A BEAUTIFUL CALENDAR.

The Dominion Canister Co., of Dundas, Ont., have got out a 1905 calendar which even surpasses their very fine one of a year ago. On a background of dark grey is a splendid lithographic production of E. Irving Couse's painting, "The Historian." The picture shows an Indian warrior seated on a wolf skin recording old wars on a well-tanned deer skin for canvas. Seated on the ground beside him is an Indian lad of some 12 years, equally absorbed in the art of the painter and the tale of the historian. The coloring is rich, and the calendar most creditable to the Dominion Canister Co. If any of the readers of The Grocer want one of these calendars they should apply early, for they won't last long.

COMMERCIAL SAGACITY.

Vice-President Juhring informs The Canadian Grocer that Francis H. Leggett & Co., brought to New York during the Summer and Fall of 1904 no less than two thousand buyers, entertaining them at luncheon and treating their guests to a revelation of the commercial supremacy of New York. Many of the visitors had not been in New York for years and so interested were they that many have come again and keep coming and purchase liberally. If every great firm in New York would follow the example of Francis H. Leggett & Co., the trade of the city would increase more rapidly than it does. Theirs was a movement which was a blessing to others as well as themselves.

DRESSED BEEF TRADE.

Mr. Nelson Bickerdike has re-opened his commission business for the season at 196 St. Paul street, Montreal, dealing in dressed meats, poultry, hogs, etc. Mr. Bickerdike has been connected with the live stock export and butcher trade for many years and is well-known throughout the city and district. He reports receipt of some large consignments of dressed beef, hogs, etc.

NO CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

Editor Canadian Grocer:

I was pleased to note a letter from London, Ont., the other day commending the action of the Wholesale Grocers' Guild at their last meeting, held in Toronto, namely, to do away with the Christmas present business. For years it has been a nuisance from start to finish, and I feel satisfied that retailers all over the country will join hands with their wholesale friends in a move of this kind. Why either wholesale or retail grocers should give presents has been always a mystery to me. The profits are smaller and the time longer in these trades than any other in Canada, but the public seem to have used them as a sort of milk cow. Every year even the corner grocery has to throw away dozens of dollars in this sort of thing, and put on his books bread, potatoes, meat, etc., for which he has had to pay cash, while the big departmental stores who sell everything for cash would as soon think of cutting their throats as giving their customers something for nothing. This move of the wholesale grocers all over the Province of Ontario is a move in the right direction.

(Signed,) RETAILER.

CLERKS' MONTHLY MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers Clerks' Association was held at their rooms in the Temple Building, Toronto, on Tuesday evening, December 13. On account of it being a busy month the attendance was not as large as was expected.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. C. St. Clair Balfour, of Balfour & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, was a visitor to Montreal during the week and paid friendly visits to his confreres and friends in the trade.

Mr. W. H. Sutton, president of the Orme & Sutton Rice Co., of New Orleans, New York and Chicago, was a caller on the Toronto grocery trade this week and favored The Canadian Grocer with a friendly visit.

Mr. John Campbell, of the Acme Can Works, Montreal, was a caller upon the Toronto trade this week. His firm have lately installed a new system of gas lighting in the Montreal factory which he claims is one of the most complete and unique on the continent.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are making special offers to the trade in Smyrna figs. Layers, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 crown—10 and 15 lb. boxes; finest quality.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, have just received shipment of Valencia raisins, best quality, at exceedingly low prices. These should have arrived end of November, but on account of delay will be sold at bargain prices.

For the Christmas and holiday trade Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are making inducements to the trade in Blandy Bros. (London) fine porto sherry, Madeira and Malaga wines.

Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, report large sales of their "Red Shield" brand maple syrup.

Warren Bros. & Co., Toronto, are offering peels at exceptionally low prices to clear out stock.

Making Mistakes

is a common experience. We have found grocers reject Blue Ribbon Tea because some other package tea turned out a failure. And some who began with Blue Ribbon switched off for a time to a package tea that cost less. But experience has taught them the goodness of and they sell it now with unshaken faith.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, December 15th, 1904.

SUGAR continues to be the centre of attention in local grocery circles, and it is still advancing to unusual figures. Its probable course is very hard to predict. It was expected after the close of navigation that there would be an advance, as the extra cost of bringing sugar to Winnipeg by an all-rail route is about 10c per cwt. But, contrary to expectation, the first change after navigation closed was a decline of 5c per cwt. in the price in barrels, and this was in effect only a few days when it was followed by a sharp advance. Other price changes are not numerous this week. Foreign dried fruits are moving faster perhaps than any other class of groceries, and prices this week are unchanged. In canned goods the feature of the market is still the scarcity of tomatoes, and new supplies are being imported from the United States. Duty and freight amount to a very considerable item, but no further supplies of Canadian goods appear to be available. There has been a slight advance in Rangoon rice quotations, which will be found below. The Christmas trade appears to be up to expectations, and all the wholesale houses appear to be very busy. Collections are reported to show an improvement.

Sugar.

As noted above, the strong position of sugar is the feature of the market this week. Sharp advances in price have taken place, and it seems likely sugar will continue to be held at an unusually high figure. It should be noted, however, that as yet the recent advances apply only in the west to the Winnipeg market. For shipments from Brandon west of Portage La Prairie, the old prices still apply. We quote as follows :

Montreal granulated, in bbls	6 00

Canned Goods.

There is an active trade in canned goods, but prices are stationary at present. As noted above, canned tomatoes are still in very scant supply, and importations from the United States are commencing. We quote :

Apples, 3's, 2 doz. cases, per case	2 45
Cherries, red pitted, 2's, 2 doz.	4 40
Currants, red, 2 doz. cases, per case	3 35

Spices.

No changes have been made this week in the spice market. The holiday demand has stimulated trade slightly, but business is not very active. We quote as before :

Pepper, black, per lb	0 18
" white, "	0 25
Cayenne, "	0 21
Cloves, ground "	0 25
Cassia, "	0 16

Rice, Tapioca, Etc.

The market is quite firm, with a recent slight advance in Rangoon rice. We quote as follows :

Rangoon rice, per lb	0 04
Patna " "	0 04⅝
Tapioca, per lb	0 03¾
Sago, "	0 03¾

Syrups and Molasses.

In sympathy with the increasing strength of the sugar market, syrups and molasses occupy a particularly firm position. No advance has been made, but prices are undoubtedly very firm. Business continues to be of seasonable proportions. We quote :

Syrup "Crown Brand," 2-lb tins, per 2 doz. case	2 40
" " 5-lb tins, per 1 "	2 70
" " 10-lb tins, per ½ "	2 50

Coffee.

The coffee market continues quiet but strong, in sympathy with advices from foreign markets, which seem to indicate a stiffening of prices. We quote as before :

Green Rio, per lb	0 10½ 0 11
Roasted, per lb	0 14

Nuts.

Christmas trade in nuts continues very active, but supplies seem to be ample. We quote :

Green Fruit.

An active holiday trade in many lines of green fruits, domestic and foreign, is reported. Snow apples are now practically off the market, and quotations are omitted below. Spys and other high-grade Winter apples are in active demand, and in not very large supply. Oranges and lemons are firm in price. Washington pears (Winter Nellis) are now off the market, their place being taken by the California variety, which sells at an advance of $1 per case. We quote :

ORANGES.

Washington navels, 126's	4 25

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Special Correspondence of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 8th, 1904.

IF conditions were the same as last year outside the grocery and provision trade, the business this year would be considerably ahead of last season. This year the absolute failure of the fishing prevented the distribution of large amounts of money among people who perforce have to spend it and has been one factor in keeping trade at the normal. Following, is the closing down of almost all the big lumber manufacturing mills in the city, and the throwing out of employment many men, just at the season of the year when all should be at work. This latter is the result of the depression caused by the flooding of the only market in Canada, namely, that of the Territories, by the rough lumber from the State of Washington, owing to the absence of a duty. As it is, the merchants have hopes, based on present indications, that business this year will exceed that of last.

Butter, both creamery and dairy, has stiffened, and advanced one cent in price. Further raises are not improbable as the figure is very firm, and the demand is very good. Eggs, cheese and lard remain steady. There is no further movement in the price of flour, which has taken so many jumps of late, that the price is nearly $1 ahead per barrel than what it was before the raises commenced. An advance is looked for in canned tomatoes. Orders are being filled very slowly, and present prices are very firm. Sugar is unchanged since the raise last week. The tea business has been stimulated by the advance of about two cents per pound in the primary markets of Ceylons and Assams. Coffees are firm, and several shipments have recently been made from this side to the United States.

There may be an advance also in Japanese oranges. There is a shortage now, as this popular fruit is in great demand, and the consignments which arrived on the Tartar are about exhausted. The Empress liner arrived this morning, but it is not expected that she has many on board, her cargo space having been otherwise taken up. What are on, are mostly consigned to Winnipeg, and unless they are too ripe for shipment further east, this market will be unsupplied until the arrival of the Pleiades, about the 21st or 22nd. If these conditions prevail, prices will go up to-morrow. At present they are selling retail for 50c per box, which holds about six dozen.

That is about the only feature in fruit. There was a glut in the banana market in the first part of the week, and dealers could not get rid of their stock. The fruit was of especially fine flavor and size and was well ripened. Potatoes are very firm, and an advance is not unlikely. In fact, there seems to be a general rise in all the necessary foodstuffs here this season, first one thing and then another, until the prices of household articles are all very high.

Trade with Mexico was discussed at the meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening, when there was present Mr. C. E. Harvey, agent of Andrew Weir & Co., of Glasgow, who is out looking over the ground. Mr. Harvey expressed disappointment that there was not already some trade existing that might be developed, and the members present who knew something of the situation were rather pessimistic in the discussion of the prospects. Nearly all the dealers here have already undertaken to secure information regarding the demand in that country for what British Columbia has to offer, with the result that there is nothing doing, and little in sight. They regard the visit of Mr. E. E. Sheppard as entirely without results, as he was not posted, and erroneous impressions have followed. Mr. C. M. Beecher, vice-president of the British Columbia Mills Timber and Trading Co., gave an instance of this. On his return, Mr. Sheppard called at their office and told the manager that some trade might be done with Peru and Chili, naming some of the large firms there. He suggested that prompt action be taken, so that the fruits of his labors might be taken advantage of, and was surprised when the manager told him that the B. C. M. T. & T. Co. had done business there for thirty years. Names of firms dealt with were given, of which Mr. Sheppard had never heard.

The trade with Mexico is mainly held by Americans, who have business connection in that country, where Americans are the principal people engaged in the enterprises. It was suggested that if the Government wanted to bonus a line for the development of trade it should have looked around. North China offered the best field in the world. There were abundant resources, return cargoes were in sight, and British Columbia and Canadian firms already had business connection there.

Canada has the reputation of being slow, and certainly conditions in the west do not indicate her zealous enterprise. The last instance is the capturing of the trade of Fernie, and the increasing business of the Crow's Nest mining towns by Spokane merchants. The Great Northern line into Fernie has been completed, and no sooner is the last rail laid, than the first carload of general goods enters from Spokane. There is considerable jubilation in Fernie, as it is felt if goods are bought there, a market will be opened up for coal and coke in the mining towns of Montana, Idaho and Northern Washington. The Great Northern will extend its line right into the heart of the best district in British Columbia in 1905, the Similkameen and Nicola, and it is only reasonable to suppose that the trade will deviate south. There is a route for a direct line from the coast cities, but the Government is inactive and as a result will see the business of these districts go to the States. It was the same with the Yukon, and the cream of the trade was gone before Canada woke up to its possibilities. The present Provincial Government, while not altogether incompetent, is either afraid or unable to take any decisive step for the progress of the province.

A mackerel, closely resembling the Atlantic coast variety, was caught at Nanaimo last week, and the general belief is that this fish abounds in local waters. Since the fact was made known, W. Christie, manager of the C.P.R. telegraphs at Victoria, has received word from Bamfield, the land terminus of the Pacific cable, that large numbers of fish resembling the Atlantic mackerel have been caught on the west coast this Summer. Some of the operators are from Nova Scotia, having seen service at the terminus of the Atlantic cable, and are familiar with the species.

Prices are sky high at Fairbanks, in the Tanana—pepper, $2.50 per pound; sugar, 50c per pound; candles, $15; coal oil, $20 a case; canned oysters, $5; fresh steays, $3.50 per pound, and eggs $75 a case.

Halibut has been very scarce during the past few weeks, brought about by continual bad weather in the north, and the inexperience of the new crews shipped by the fishing companies here.

Another effort is being made to have a market established in this city, and a strong recommendation to this effect will be made to the incoming City Council.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Dec. 1904.

OUR local Board of Trade held its annual meeting during the past week and Mr. H. B. Schofield, of the firm of Schofield Bros., wholesale paper dealers and local agents for E. B. Eddy Co., was elected president. Mr. Schofield is one of our successful young business men and for several years has taken an active interest in the work of the board. Mr. Alex. Macauley, of Macauley Bros. & Co., dry goods merchants, is vice-president.

As yet we have no snow in St. John, but in other parts of the province there is enough for good going. The weather is cold. Christmas business is active, retail business being particularly good. Wholesale business is rather quiet. Markets show little change. Sugar is again higher and very firm.

Oil.

In burning oil there is considerable competition and prices are reported rather lower. The price is off again from half to one cent, depending upon the locality. Sales are large. The oil wagons do the city business. Linseed oil is unsteady; prices for later delivery are well below present prices. Turpentine is unchanged. Lubricating oils have much attention and a good business is being booked. Cod oil is higher; supply is not large.

Salt.

There are but light arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt. The Winter port boats are charging high freights and the dealers will not make contracts. There are fair stocks held and the demand is not active at this season. The salt people think the steamer people will meet them with a lower rate. If they do not, it will mean higher prices for salt.

Canned Goods.

Dealers are getting larger quantities of corn and tomatoes than they expected, but even so stocks will not be large. Already quite a quantity of American corn is here: full prices are asked. Peas are full stock. Salmon is unchanged. Fruits, except gallon apples, are held firm. Lobsters are high and few sold. In domestic fish, sardines have been an average pack and in finnan haddies and kippers there is a fair supply. Clams are but a light stock.

Green Fruits.

In apples there is a fair sale. Best quality brings a fairly full price. Ontario spies are quite freely sold. In oranges some nice Florida fruit is offered. Jamaica oranges are particularly nice. Valencias are now here; it is yet early for good stock. Lemons are low. Cranberries are higher and there is a good demand. Malaga grapes are higher and quality is good.

Dried Fruit.

Business is active. The demand for raisins is in seeded. It is difficult to tell the difference between the freshly seeded and the new. Many who paid the extra price for new doubt if they got them. Those who bought the freshly seeded are well pleased. In loose, few are sold. The stock of Valencias is very small. Dates are holding quite firm. The early ones come from New York. Figs have a fair sale. Peels are reasonable this year. Currants sell freely and prices are low. Evaporated apples keep low. Onions are rather higher. Some Valencias still offered.

Sugar.

Prices are again higher and the market is firm. Our dealers have confidence in the situation and have this week bought for January shipment. As noted before the guild is very popular, dealers knowing they could not otherwise get their full profit.

Molasses.

There is no change in price, market is firm. Sale is chiefly for Porto Rico. Fair stocks are held.

Fish.

With the cold weather there is increased business in fresh fish. Frozen fish trade is a large factor in the fish business here in the Winter season. In dry codfish the very high price is still asked. There is but a fair sale. Pickled herring are high. Smoked herring show a good sale. This is the one cheap line.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

In flour, Manitobas are lower, but as yet there is no change in Ontarios. Oats are lower and oatmeal is not as firm though little change has yet been made here. Market is quite well stocked at the full figure. Cornmeal is high. Beans, unchanged. Barley in very light demand. Peas scarce.

MOLASSES COMBINE.

THE Canadian grocery trade will be interested in the following article which appeared in a recent issue of the Barbadoes Advocate:

"The Agricultural Society has for some considerable time been engaged in considering what means should be employed to restore Barbadoes molasses to the high position it once occupied; and some progress seems to have been made towards achieving this desirable object. At the meeting of the Agricultural Society held recently the molasses question was again brought up and some important statements made.

"The suggestion made some time ago that steps should be taken to arrange for some agreement between the molasses producers of Porto Rico and those of this island, with a view to fixing prices, has so far progressed that a committee has been appointed to handle the matter. The result of its labors will be anxiously awaited. If it succeeds in effecting a combine with Porto Rico, the future of our molasses will be secured in more ways than one. Such a combination would, of course, assure our planters of a legitimate price for their produce."

Anything savoring of a molasses combine would meet with the unanimous disapproval of wholesaler as well as retailer in this country, who think that the price of molasses ruling to-day is quite high enough and a fair enough figure for the producer. The history of combines in food products everywhere has been to boost prices to an abnormal height, but apart from this consideration it is stated in influential circles that any endeavor to manipulate the molasses market must have the effect of blocking trade in this article between Barbadoes and Canada, which can hardly be in the best interests of the producer in that island.

S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, are quoting whole leaf sage, savory and thyme, in 400-lb. bale lots; also barrels of rubbed and powdered sage, etc., at very interesting prices to the trade.

Always

When any article appeals for your patronage for any other reason than genuine worth it may be depended upon that there is something the matter somewhere. On the other hand, goods that are well known and appreciated for their quality have a turnover that is rapid and easily made. On such goods no money can be lost or tied up for any length of time. With our Pickles the care necessary to turn out a quality product is taken from the time the seed is planted, followed by every improvement in handling that will tend to bettering them in any way. For instance, we make a Vinegar specially for our own Pickles that is everything experience has taught us a Pickling Vinegar should be. We show two lines: "Lion," 20-oz. bottle, 3 doz. to case, $2.00 per dozen; "Premier," in bbls, 6 doz., $1.00 per doz., or in cases of 3 doz., $1.05 per doz.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions

Seasonable Display.

IT is probable that the initial recognition of the value of window dressing arose from the demand of the moment, rather than from any abstract impression that profit and good reputation would result from an attractive arrangement. Based on this idea the window was found to pay. To-day the same class of display is just as profitable.

The window dresser who acts with the settled opinion that all that is necessary to give the window its greatest importance is to decorate it in such a way as to attract the public, even though it may be filled with lines carried in stock, is missing the main mission of the display space. An elaborate, artistic window is a good thing, but if it advertises canned goods in the fruit season it will sell nothing.

A window dresser must first of all grasp the knowledge that much of the attractiveness of any display depends upon the demand or the use there may be for the articles shown. His main task, and his most difficult one, is to discover the line that should be specialized each week, or each change of arrangement. He must keep his eyes open to the stock, he must see what is "sticking," he must consider the season's requirement; and when this is accomplished, and not till then, he must work out the design for the display.

It is not what window will be profitable? but what window will be most profitable? Certain lines sell all the year round, but every line has a season when it is most in demand, and just at the approach of this is when that line should be seen in the window. Don't wait until the demand is on in full blast. Anticipate it a little; be the first in town to show the line, if by so doing the display is not too premature. A window may sell some goods now, but two weeks sooner or later the same window might sell much more. It is in the clear comprehension of seasons that the superiority of one dresser over another is noticeable, as much as in the ingenuity of the arrangement. This superiority may not be so evident to the careless outsider, but it is certainly important in the business.

In this task of determining the best line for the coming display, the fellow clerks and the employer can greatly assist the window dresser, as they know perhaps better than he the things that are in demand, or the lines that are overstocked or spoiling in their own department. To sell goods in season and thus prevent their overstock or spoiling is much better business than to sell the same amount of other lines out of season, and have the seasonable goods deteriorate in value by remaining on the shelves.

This Week's Illustration.

This window is a special New Year display with color scheme in white and green. The window is triangular in shape with a base of 14 feet and background 5 feet high. The background is white canton flannel, hanging from a rafter running the whole length of base with a railing of wood covered with white paper, and on the outside covered with moss. White paper is stretched at the back of this to throw out the effect of the railing.

A 12 inch plank 10 feet long is covered with white canton flannel and placed across the front of the background and 8 inches from the same, resting on two pillars (of three sides) also covered with white canton flannel and crossed and re-crossed with green ribbon. The edge of the board is 11-2 inch royal purple silk ribbon shirred by a machine and the words "Ring out the old, ring in the new" are cut out of white and dark purple paper and pasted on the flannel.

In the centre at the back is a half circle of gold cardboard from which strips of purple crape paper form a sunburst.

The railing is painted dead white. The clocks are drawn on oak veneer cardboard, the one on the left showing 5 minutes to 12 and the other 12 o'clock. The bell is cut out of 1-2 inch lumber, padded with cotton batting, covered with purple velvet and edged with small electric lights. This bell is connected with a motor which keeps it moving back and forth. The floor is covered with white cheese cloth.

APPLES FROM WOLVILLE, N.S.

Wolfville, N. S., is the centre of a large apple buying and shipping section, and European buyers are frequently met during the harvesting of the crop. The question of direct shipments from Wolfville to England has for some time been under consideration by shippers, and on Monday last the Barquentine Scotia, Capt. Lee master, sailed from that port with a cargo of 8,517 barrels of apples. As this is the pioneer shipment of fruit from Wolfville to England, its outcome will be watched with interest by the fruit growers of the province. R. E. Harris and E. M. Vaughn accompanied the shipment to London, in the interests of the shippers.

Art Pottery Decoration in Canada

THE potter's art reaches away back into ancient history, its very origin being shrouded in the misty past. For instance there is every reason to believe the Chinese understood how to make pottery long before a line of their national history had been written. Thousands of years ago Egypt was famous for its pottery; from the Egyptians the Greeks learned the art, and from the Greeks the knowledge passed into Italy, Etruria in Tuscany, and on to Rome. Speciments of Etruscan pottery are the delight of collectors, and it was from some admirable specimens preserved in the British Museum that Wedgewood evolved his scheme of rivalling in England the product of the Etrurians. In 1763 he invented the new ware known to the trade and the world as Wedgewood, or Queen's ware, and the extensive works throughout Staffordshire are today a monument to the genius of this Britis hworkman.

The art of manufacturing china as its name implies is supposed to have come from China, though the common commercial term is porcelain, a Portugese word meaning a cup. Porcelain means something finer in the earthenware line, not only as regards texture but semi-transparency and beauty of color. Pottery and stoneware are opaque; glass is extremely transparent, while porcelain seems to come between the two. The Japanese are noted for the excellence of their porcelain, the secret of which they keep to themselves.

It is not the purport of this article to go into the various details of the manufacture of china, porcelain, earthen or other ware handled by crockery and glassware houses, but to draw the attention of readers of The Grocer to an establishment in the city of Montreal so closely allied to these industries as to make it the subject of a short sketch. The decorating of china ware has become as much, if not more, of an art than the manufacture of the goods itself, and to anyone examining the beautiful work displayed in any crockery store, particularly those in larger centres, it must be evident that the work requires skill and talent of no mean order. Germany, France, Belgium and England for instance in the several districts where china, porcelain and glassware are made, employ thousands of expert artists to produce the beautiful ornaments seen in our stores. But to readers of The Grocer's crockery department it may come as news that in Canada we have works turning out work that compares favorably with anything on the continent. We refer to the Montreal China and Glass Decorating Co., 50 St. Paul street, under the proprietorship of Jacob Gelz, and when it is stated that Mr. Gelz is a master in every branch of the art from ordinary plain glazing to the finest genre and landscape painting, raised parte work, gilding and firing in its every detail, Canada may well be proud to number among its artisans such finished workers as Mr. Gelz.

Mr. Gelz is a German, trained and brought up in the works of Villeroy & Boch, Dresden, the largest china manufacturers and decorators in the world. Here he served an apprenticeship of eleven years, then attended the Dresden Art School. After finishing this course he entered in turn the various factories of Villeroy & Boch, acquiring a thorough knowledge of every branch of the business, "unter" and "ober" glazing and decorating all kinds of ware. There are so many different branches of this art of decorating that it is unusual for a single artisan to take them all up, the plan being for one man to confine his attention to one or other of the many phases. Mr. Gelz's desire, however, was to acquire thorough knowledge and consequently he has devoted many years to the study of his chosen art.

Eighteen years ago Mr. Gelz came to America and for seven years was employed in potteries and decorating establishments located at Trenton, N.J., in West Virginia, and Liverpool, Ohio. Eleven years ago McDonald's of St. Johns, P.Q., engaged him and after remaining with that firm for a year he decided to open up on his own account at 559 St. Paul street, Montreal. Here he built his ovens and plant. The business from the start was one that received encouragement from the trade; it has grown steadily from year to year. About five months ago a new set of ovens was installed under his own supervision, which are, according to Mr. Gelz, as fine as anything of the kind in America. Mr. Gelz employs a considerable number of artists for certain branches of the work, but the most critical attention is given to every detail by himself. During a visit of a representative of The Grocer to the works Mr. Gelz explained the system of glazing, decorating and firing and exhibited samples of art work turned out by him. One specialty in which Mr. Gelz has won distinction is in decorating crests, monograms, etc., for club, hotel and family ware, some of Canada's leading clubs and families possessing tableware of his decorating. In tinted toilet sets and raised paste work, burnished gold and lettering work, as well as glass decorating Mr. Gelz is an artist and the work turned out is invariably of the highest merit. His operations are confined strictly to the jobbing trade and it speaks well for his workmanship when it is stated that for years the most critical houses in the trade have honored him with their custom.

Canadians when buying handsomely decorated dinner sets, toilet ware, glass ornaments, etc., may reflect with pride upon the knowledge that the motto "Made in Canada" can aptly be applied to the finished work of a goodly share of such ware, and certainly a branch of trade of which there are so few exponents in Canada deserves the best of encouragement. With his new plant and equipment it may be expected that Mr. Gelz will bring the reputation for high class work of the Montreal China and Glass Decorating Co. still more to the front in Canada.

BUSINESS MEN IN PARLIAMENT.

W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., Brantford.

AMONG Canadian industrial cities, Brantford occupies a foremost position, and it is seemly that her representative in Parliament should be a business man, possessing those level-headed, far-seeing and practical characteristics especially evident in men whose lives are devoted to commerce. Mr. Cockshutt, just such a man of business, is well fitted to discharge the duties of a member of Parliament, and to represent his native city at Ottawa.

Mr. Cockshutt is the second son of the late Ignatius Cockshutt, and was born in Brantford in 1855. He attended school at Brantford and at Galt, later proceeding to England, where he entered the produce firm of Thomas Furness & Co., Hartlepool, Durham.

Following this he spent some time in the tea warehouse of Bates, Evans & Co., London, where he completed his business training. On returning to Canada Mr. Cockshutt managed his father's business, which had been founded by his grandfather in 1829, until March 15, 1882, when he bought out the stock and completely refitted the double store — one devoted to hardware and the other to groceries. The former he recently sold, but the latter he still continues. His largest interests are, however, centered in the Cockshutt Plow Co., a firm engaged in the manufacture of plows and other agricultural implements.

Mr. Cockshutt has always been a strong supporter of the Board of Trade both in Brantford and Toronto. He has twice held the presidency of the Brantford board, in 1889 and in 1904, and is a member of the council of the Toronto board. He has three times been selected by the latter board as their representative at the congresses of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire. Mr. Cockshutt is an eloquent speaker, and his entry into Parliament will add one more to the ranks of the orators.

GERMAN SURTAX AND CANADIAN TRADE.

THE following interesting figures regarding the effect of the German surtax on the raw and refined sugar trade of Canada have been submitted by the authorities at Ottawa:

In 1903 we imported for consumption from Germany raw beet sugar to the amount of 74,000,000 pounds of the value of $235,716. Of refined sugar we imported 13,286,374 pounds of the value of $456,528. Since the surtax went into operation Canada has bought scarcely a pound of either raw or refined sugar from Germany, the trade having been completely lost. The trade in raw sugar, which Germany formerly enjoyed with Canada, has been diverted to the British West Indies, while Great Britain chiefly supplies the demand for refined. This diversion of trade is well illustrated by the following figures: Whereas in 1902-3 our importations of raw sugar from the British West Indies amounted to 98,000,000 pounds of the value of $1,681,525, in 1903-4 they amounted to 279,000,000 pounds of the value of $3,350,745. As to refined sugar we took 4,097,077 pounds from Great Britain in 1902-3, an amount which last year increased to 9,445,912 pounds. Germany's trade with Canada has been completely wiped out, not only in sugar, but in cement also. Of the latter we formerly took immense quantities. There has also been a great decrease in importations from Germany of brushes, buttons, collars, combs, cotton and woolen goods, iron and steel manufactures, fur skins, gloves and mitts, and glass and china-ware. The surtax not only applies to goods the growth, produce and manufacture of Germany, but to goods, the chief value of which was produced in Germany, although they may have been improved in value in another country. During the fiscal year 1903-4 $683,000 of goods from Great Britain was entered under the surtax. The increase of duty under the surtax on German goods for the last fiscal year amounted to $381,761.

GREEN FRUITS

Robbing Canadian Apple Shippers.

THE New York Journal of Commerce makes the following interesting statement: "The produce trade—export and domestic—of this city is much wrought up just now regarding the cable quotations for American apples in the English market. George A. Cochran, of Boston, a recognized authority on the fruit trade, who receives quotations by cable, and to whose attention the matter was brought, insists that a coterie in England has systematically banded together for several years past to get the product of the apple growers of the United States and Canada for little or nothing. He says: "They resort to different tactics each year to accomplish this purpose, and this year, fortunately for them, they had fairly good crops of apples in Europe to harp on. This they magnified to such an extent that it made many growers in this country feel as if they were going to get little or nothing for their fruit."

Mr. Cochran declares that these particular dealers have agents in Boston, Montreal, Toronto and Nova Scotia, and he continues: "They consist of fruit merchants in Liverpool especially, where the worst of them hold forth, but they are in Glasgow, London, Manchester and other markets. They advertise freely through the papers here as receivers of apples on the other side. They put their consignments into the fruit auctioneers' hands for realization, and here is where the iniquitous work comes in. The fruit auctioneers are fair, but these dealers manage at the auctions to secure the most desirable lots, and re-sell the apples at private sale at high prices. They return to the shippers on this side account sales based on the auctioneers' returns."

This is a matter that merits thorough and immediate investigation by the Canadian Commissioner in Great Britain. The majority of English commission merchants doing business in Canada are known to be entirely above suspicion in this particular. At the same time, for their own protection, as well as for the protection of Canadian shippers of produce to Great Britain, an exposure of the guilty parties is necessary.

Electricity and the Fruit Store.

We are amongst those who believe, says Fruit Grower, that to no section of the trading community is the electric light more essential than that of the up-to-date retail fruiterer. A large share of the loss incurred by the fruiterer and green grocer is due to gas lighting and the heat and fumes caused thereby. This is especially the case where the shop and store premises are enclosed, or partly enclosed, during the day, which is the case with many shops both large and small, especially in the cooler and shorter days which are now upon us. The action of the gas and the heat immediately affects ripe and ripening fruit, setting up a state of decay which speedily affects the appearance and condition of the fruit.

New Fruit Warehouse.

DURING the past week a representative of The Canadian Grocer had the pleasure of visiting the fine new wholesale fruit warehouse recently erected by H. Walker & Son, Guelph, Ont., for which it is claimed there is nothing more complete in equipment on the North American Continent. This firm have every reason to be proud of their new quarters; as far as floor space, light, and conveniences are concerned the warehouse is unique for its kind. The exterior is of red pressed brick two stories high with basement, double plate glass front, and covered passage ways for loading and unloading in stormy weather, besides lane running the whole length of the building which will be utilized as a private railway siding.

The interior is finished throughout in natural wood, the business offices of the front being particularly bright and attractive, while the storage rooms proper finished in Georgia pine present an appearance not often seen in fruit warehouses. The plant is supplied with large fruit curing rooms, electric hoists, and an up-to-date steam heating and flue ventilation system. The chief impression, however, one gets in wandering over the warehouse is that of spaciousness, although the comparatively large floor area does not seem to be a whit too large for the accommodation of the firm. Everywhere were to be seen piles of fruit boxes, packages, etc., ready to be shipped for the holiday trade.

Mr. Walker says the Christmas trade in fruit has been more than satisfactory this year. California navel oranges are arriving in excellent condition and fully a fortnight earlier than in previous years. The market for grape-fruit is growing steadily in Western and Northern Ontario and Mr. Walker thinks it will not be long before this article goes into general consumption. Business conditions in Western Ontario generally are promising; the consumer is apparently enjoying good times, the volume of trade done by the wholesaler as well as the retailer being decidedly on the increase.

Mummy Nuts.

In passing the commission house of Batch & Linders, in Fulton Market, New York, a few days ago, a representative of The Grocer noted a bag containing nuts that resembled large pine cones and labelled "African Mummy nuts from the Bekee Islands." Upon inquiry he learned that they retailed at 5 cents each.

Mummy nuts when placed in the oven and subjected to heat open revealing an almond shaped nut of good flavor on each leaf of the cone. Wishing to obtain further information for the benefit of the readers of The Grocer, the question was asked, "Where are the Bekee Islands" He was politely informed they are twenty-two miles due south of the Shekee Islands.

Christmas Price List.

The trade seem to be vieing with one another at this season in distributing descriptive literature, the most recent offering being that of McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit and commission merchants, Toronto, in the form of a complete holiday price list of green and foreign dried fruit, foreign nuts, produce, holly, etc. Retailers should write for this list at once; it will assist them materially in filling Christmas orders.

Fruit Notes.

It is rumored that a fruit growers' association will shortly be organized in New Brunswick.

T. S. Armstrong opened up a fruit and confectionery store in Kincardine, Ont., on Dec. 10.

W. L. Dewar, of Milltown, N. B., has started in the grocery, fruit and confectionery business.

The T. Upton Co., Hamilton, wish to announce that all orders for Upton's Orange Marmalade are now being filled with new season's goods. Also, that they are putting on the market for the first time grape-fruit marmalade.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Flour Trade of Japan.

SPECIMEN views regarding the flour trade of Japan have been submitted by A. MacLean, Canadian Commercial Agent to Japan, under the heads A., B. and C., as leading importers residing in that country.

A., with general reference to the flour trade, says that their firm, wherever they are located, in Britain, in India, in China, and Japan, are always disposed to prefer British and colonial products. They would especially prefer Canadian flour, for both sentiment and quality, but unfortunately circumstances operate against its extensive importation. The high price which it commands at the place of growth and manufacture makes it too expensive for the larger Japanese market, notwithstanding which there is enough marketed to show what could be done if there were enterprise and energy behind it. This firm say that they share in the expectation of demand probable when the war is over and Corea and Manchuria come under Japanese influence; but that even then, if the Canadian exporters don't support their product with business energy, it may be distanced by that from the United States and Australia. Some system, they thought, should be adopted of keeping Canadian flour on the Japanese market, for it was going to be worth making preparation for its ultimate supply.

The firm represented by B. say that Washington and California flour, otherwise "American," has its place in Japan. It is mainly presented in certain brands, of which the well known "Gold Drop" is the chief; the trade have come to know the brand, and feel that they are well served by it, and therefore it is called for. The importer has no prejudices, only he has a preference for what the market has come to want and to call for. Under these circumstances, B. thinks that it is the part of the Canadian exporter to place his brands on the market, and to stand behind them until, like "Gold Drop" and others, they are able to stand alone. In short, B. says Canadian trade wants pushing. It does not matter to his firm whose goods they sell; inducement is everything.

C.'s firm in flour and butter deal mostly with Australia, but would like to do business in like lines of Canadian goods if they could. They quote the difficulty of the higher price, the unaccustomed color, and the fact that American flour has secured a foothold, which Canadian flour has not. American flour gave satisfaction to its users, and had full possession of the market; therefore, new competitors coming in would require for a time to adopt exceptional means to get a share of the trade. When people were satisfied with what they were using, they would yield slowly to a higher priced article, even although it might be better beyond dispute.

These firms, thus expressing themselves, have dealt and are dealing betimes in Canadian produce, and they may be said to have correspondents in Canada, who are pressing Canadian produce upon them; but those correspondents are thousands of miles away; and as has appeared in some deterrent cases, are not in any way assured to be of the requisite personal responsibility. The conclusion, therefore, is that, by some responsible medium right on the spot, Canadian trade in flour, butter, condensed milk, lumber, and so on, should be represented in order that progress may be accelerated beyond the progress of drift.

Concessions to U. S. Millers.

AS a direct result of recent agitation on the part of leading milling interests in the United States, the drawback system, which remits the duty on raw materials imported for manufacture for the export trade, is about to be extended to cover Canadian wheat mixed with American wheat in the production of flour designed for foreign markets. The Administration has virtually decided to adopt this course, though the formal order will not be issued for several days.

As the drawback law has been applied, Canadian wheat could be brought into this country in bond, ground into flour, and the flour exported without the payment of any duty on the wheat, provided the identical flour and by products were exported. Under another plan the duty was paid when the wheat was imported, and when it was shown that an equal amount of flour had been exported the duty was refunded. The millers complained that neither plan worked to their best advantage, as they were forced to keep the Canadian wheat separate, and to export the by-products, while the best results are obtained by mixing hard Canadian wheat with the soft wheat from Kansas and other western states. Hard wheat can be secured in the northwestern states, but it costs 17c a bushel more than the Canadian hard, and the millers contended that they could not pay the higher price and export flour at a profit. They are willing to pay the American price for flour made for American consumption.

The decision is a distinct concession to American flour manufacturers and will, it is thought, enable them to hold their own in European markets, which has been more or less problematical during the past few months on account of the shortage and high price of wheat in the United States.

Quaker Oats Mills Closed Down.

The American Cereal Co. have closed down their mills at Peterboro, Ont. It is stated that the reason is the recent advance in Canadian freight rates, which practically prohibits this firm from putting their products down at the seaboard on the same basis as those manufactured in their U. S. mills. It is well known that the American Cereal Co.'s products are largely exported to foreign countries, and that freight rates are a material consideration in connection with the cost of delivery and competition.

The shutting down of this industry is a serious set-back to Peterboro, particularly at this season of the year. As to when the mills will resume in all departments depends solely on an early adjustment of freight rates. It is thought, however, that they may be operated to meet the domestic trade.

Growing Milling Industry.

IN conversation with a representative of The Canadian Grocer the other day, Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., stated that fully fifty per cent. of the flour going into consumption in Newfoundland at the present time was Royal Household. He did not think the people anywhere could be too enthusiastic about this brand, and it was his unalterable purpose to maintain and, if possible, improve it, no matter what the cost might be.

The demand for Royal Household was such as to tax the present milling capacity of the Ogilvie firm to its very utmost. Work was being rushed on their large plant at Fort William, which when completed would be one of the largest milling plants in the world, with a capacity of three thousand barrels per day, to be run in connection with their three-quarters of a million bushel fireproof elevator recently erected at Fort William. This would make six mills owned and operated by the Ogilvie Milling Co., located as follows: Two in Winnipeg, one in Fort William, and three in Montreal. The largest single mill in the Empire was their "Royal Mills" in Montreal, with daily capacity of four thousand five hundred barrels.

Death of Mr. John Goldie.

On Dec. 8, in Guelph, occurred the death of Mr. John Goldie, second son of Mr. James Goldie, Sr., president of the Goldie Milling Co. Deceased had been suffering from nervous prostration for the past four years. He was born in Paterson, N. J., nearly fifty-three years ago. At the age of 9 he came to Guelph, and while still a young man connected himself with the Goldie Milling Co., in whose interests he labored untiringly and successfully up to the time of his fatal illness.

The New Process Flour.

MOST women have learned the disadvantage of having two different kinds of flour in the house, one for bread the other for pastry. At last a leading company has been successful in inventing a process by which flour can be milled equally good for bread, cake, and pastry, and the many housewives and cooks who have tried it can substantiate this fact. The flour that goes the farthest is the cheapest, and when you can buy fine, pure, white and healthful flour why buy poorly milled flour, that will not bake into as much food product as the flour that your grocer will ask a few more cents for? In the long run a man eating seven pounds of the best flour would get as much nourishment therefrom, and be free from existing impurities, as a man eating ten pounds of ordinary flour which will not bake bread and pastry equally well.

In this new process the interior of the kernel of the wheat is reached, affording more gluten, less starch, more bran and shorts for the miller, but pure, nourishing, and invigorating food purified by electricity for the people.

It is every housewife's ambition to have the best for her table, the most for her money, and therefore she must see that the grocer supplies the family with the best flour.

Cereal Notes.

Mr. J. Black has joined the firm of Bruce, McBean & Co., grain brokers, Winnipeg.

The Frontenac Cereal Co., Kingston, have received an order for two carloads of their breakfast food products, to be shipped to Australia.

The Diamond Mills, formerly owned by Watt Bros., Ridgetown, Ont., have been purchased by Messrs. Buckborough & Simpson, and will be known in future as the Ridgetown Milling Co.

Navigation on the Upper Lakes for the season 1904 was closed on Dec. 11, when the steamship Huronic left Fort William for Sarnia laden with 60,000 bushels of grain and 850 tons of flour.

Official figures of Great Britain's wheat crop are given as 36,880,000 bushels, as against 47,624,000 bushels last year, and are rather less than expected. The oat crop is given at 159,260,000 bushels, against 155,850,000 bushels last year.

CANNED GOODS AGENCY.

The Grocer has an inquiry from a Liverpool commission man of experience and connection who is anxious to secure the agency of a Canadian canned goods house to sell on commission. Particulars may be had by addressing the Advertising Manager of The Canadian Grocer.

FUTURE OF JAPAN TEA.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has received the following communication from P. C. Larkin, of the Salada Tea Co., Toronto:

Editor Canadian Grocer:

The letter of Mr. Bernard, agent for Bernard & Co., of Japan, re Ceylon and India green tea, in your issue of December 2 was most interesting reading to me. In it we have a letter from one of our opponents telling us that our business is "going to the dogs." Well, there are very few "live" merchants who have not heard like stories about their affairs from their opponents, and therefore, we can look with equanimity at Mr. Bernard's assertion. By a strange coincidence though, the same morning of your issue we received a circular letter notifying us that Hunt & Co., of Yokohama, "have now established branches of their business in Colombo and Calcutta," therefore another Japan firm has taken up the Ceylon and India green tea trade. Will any of your readers presume that Hunt & Co. would go into the Ceylon and India green tea trade if they saw it declining? or will not every reasonable person suppose that it is because they have great faith in the Ceylon and India green tea trade? However, figures speak better than any inferences.

The imports of Japan tea into Canada in 1899 amounted to 11,666,757 lbs. During that year, 1899, we put Ceylon green tea on the Canadian market. In 1903 the imports of Japans had fallen off to 4,879,078 lbs; showing that nearly two-thirds of the entire Japan tea imports into Canada had disappeared. During the same period the imports of Ceylon and India green tea into the United States and Canada amounted to over 20,000,000 lbs.

Any person engaged in the Japan tea trade alone, who can look with the optimism that Mr. Bernard does at those Government figures showing such a rapid decline every year in the imports of Japan teas, and a correspondingly rapid increase in imports of Ceylon and India green tea, has certainly the courage of a "Mark Tapley." I am not afraid to put on record my prediction, and it is, that in a very few years Japan tea will have entirely disappeared from the Canadian market just as China blacks have, and the downfall of the latter I foretold twelve years ago when there were few believers. Cup quality tells in the long run, and it will tell in favor of Ceylon and India greens just as it has in blacks.

(Signed) P. C. LARKIN.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Make More of Cigar Department.

RETAIL grocers might make more of the cigar and tobacco department which some of them maintain than they do now. It is merely a matter of knowing how and of trying the proper quality of goods. No smoker, no matter how little experience he may have had with rather low grade cigars, is going to buy freely of poor stock if it is possible to get better, and most towns of any size now have some place, if it is only a barber shop, where cigars can be bought.

If retail grocers would put in a small stock of good, but moderate priced cigars, choosing good brands and always keeping the stock up to the standard, they would speedily built up a profitable trade. While it might not be a large department it would add its proportion to the general profits and be another reason why customers should visit a grocery store. It is said that the only men who buy cigars from grocers are the hired men who come off the farms on holidays and Saturday nights, but that isn't quite true, even if grocers have few cigars that are satisfactory to anyone else. The thing to do is to make the department attractive and undertake to compel customers to buy more freely of better goods.

A small stock of five-cent cigars, some good smoking tobacco, some good plug tobacco and some pipes and smokers' articles would not require much investment, nor much space, but they would add their quota to the business of the store and cause smokers to patronize it more freely.

There are many country villages where there is no regular cigar or tobacco store. These villages ought to be good places to establish such departments and place them upon a profitable basis immediately.

It would be well to advertise the department as freely as its size and importance appeared to warrant, in that way attracting attention to it at the opening. In some instances it might be possible to secure samples of tobacco or little cigars to distribute to such persons as might come in for the first time.

It would always be comparatively easy to replenish stocks, for wholesale grocers nearly all have large cigar departments. Many of them even sell to regular cigar stores that do a big business. It is not conceivable that they can't supply a small grocer. This matter can be looked up very easily, and if you haven't such a department it would be a good thing to establish one as soon as you can make arrangements.—New England Grocer.

Smokers' Presents.

If a retail grocer or general merchant thinking of sending a Christmas present to customers, friends or employes in remembrance of valued orders or services rendered, nothing is more suitable than a box of cigars, a meerschaum pipe, a cigar case, cigar holder, or a tobacco pouch.

This is the season when the public are disposed to invest freely in holiday gifts for their friends, and the retailer will do well to make the most of his tobacco department in this connection. He will find it well worth his while to talk tobacco to customers, particularly if they have friends who are partial to a pipe or good cigar, and if he be a smoker himself he will be able to add from his own experience the persuasive information that there is nothing in the world so thoroughly appreciated at Christmas time by men who indulge in a smoke as a box of dainty cigars, a pipe or some other of the numerous smokers' accessories.

Ontario Tobacco Crop.

RECENT reports from correspondents on the tobacco situation in Ontario speak well of the tobacco crop, both in regard to quality of leaf and character of curing. Others state that the lateness of the season at planting rendered it impossible to raise a first-class brand of leaf in certain sections. Some of the crop got nipped by the frost, but as regards both yield per acre and quality the return is about average.

The farmers of Essex County are well satisfied with the season's crop; the amount of tobacco raised was not as great as in other years, but the price realized was larger. The Empire Tobacco Co. alone is said to have purchased three hundred thousand dollars worth of Essex tobacco, and other tobacco manufacturers bought equally largely.

Sumatra and Borneo Tobacco.

"STATISTICS for the year 1903-04 crop of tobacco from Sumatra and Borneo are now to hand. Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the general situation is that although the crop is the largest on record, exceeding last year's record by between 6 and 7 per cent., not one bale of leaf remains unsold," says the London Financial News. "This fact, coupled with the firmness shown at all the Autumn sales and with an advance of about 8 per cent. in the price of the Sumatra crop, and of about 18 per cent. in that of the Borneo crop, points to a very large increase in consumption and augurs will for next season. The combined crops of 1903 sold this year amounted to 271,211 bales, against 256,102 last year. Sumatra and Borneo figure respectively for the two years, in bales, as follows:

	1903.	1904.
Sumatra	241,238	254 168
Borneo	14,864	17,043
Total	266,102	271,221

At the same time the dividend records prove that, given a good estate and good management, the yield on an investment spread over a series of years is usually a very handsome one."

Tobacco Notes.

N. T. Kreig, of Hespeler, Ont., has opened up a tobacco store at Preston.

Thousands of pounds of tobacco leaf of excellent quality were raised during the last season at Kelowna, B.C., and it is thought the experiment will result in a large industry springing up in British Columbia in tobacco culture and the manufacture of cigars and plug tobacco.

Mr. Louis Jacobs, representing Levi, Blumenstiel & Co., 147 Water Street, New York, dealers in leaf tobaccos, was a caller upon the trade in Montreal last week. DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by John C. Kirkwood, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

GETTING INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR SUBJECT.

By E. St. Elmo Lewis.

THE very first thing that an ad-writer must do is to understand his subject. It is not necessary, however, that an ad-writer should know how to build an engine in order to advertise one. Some people seem to think that because an advertising man cannot make an article he cannot advertise that article. I venture to say that Mr. John Wanamaker cannot go into a silk factory and make a piece of silk; but Mr. Wanamaker can sell it.

The principal thing that you want to know about goods is the selling point; therefore, instead of going to the fellow that makes the goods, go to the salesman who sells it. The salesman who sells the article learns early in his experience to judge his people. The only difference between the salesman and the ad-writer is that the ad-writer appeals to a number of men at one time, where the salesman appeals to but one or two. Therefore, before you write an advertisement, go to the man who sells the goods and who knows how to sell them, and get him to talk to you just as if you were going to buy the goods, only you must impress upon him that you are supposed to be a man who knows a great deal about them, therefore he has to put some very strong arguments to convince you that his goods are superior. If you have a proposition where you have low-priced goods, your salesman will talk to you very strongly upon the great bargain quality. If you have a proposition where quality is the consideration, the salesman will tell very little about prices, but a great deal about quality, and the character of his establishment.

Understand that you must write your advertisements to meet the kind of people to which the store or business caters. The higher class of society doesn't make so much point of price as it does of quality. The lower classes, having less money, must look more to price and less to quality.

It is not necessary for me to go into any discussion as to which is the better way of buying, any more than to show that these are the conditions which the advertising writer must solve; therefore, he has no choice in the matter, but he must write his advertisements to interest the class of people. This principle applies to a retail business in a small country town as well as it does in a big city. It applies to manufacturers large or small. It applies to general advertisers everywhere.

I want to impress upon you one thing. Don't write smart advertisements which contain nothing but a catchy phrase and some glittering generalities about the business. For instance, to start out an advertisement, "Is John Smith Crazy?" and then go on to say, "We don't care if he is, but you will think we are crazy when we tell you that we are selling our $1.50 shoes for $1.25."

Now, if you analyze that advertisement carefully, you will see that the advertiser has been so bent upon getting a bright idea into his advertisement, that he has utterly failed to note that he hasn't said what he intended to say. He hasn't said that he sells the $1.50 shoes for $1.25, but he has simply said that the buyer would think he was crazy when he said it.

I think you will admit, with me, that such an advertisement would generally be considered evidence of insanity, yet how often do we see advertisements exactly like this in the quality of its foolishness?

Don't try to be smart, but rather try with all your powers to keep from being smart. The smart man generally takes up 95 per cent. of his time in living up to his reputation for smartness, and the other five per cent. in devising some manner by which his advertisements can be made to sell goods.

The thing that sells goods in an advertisement is an argument. I don't tell you to make your argument cut and dried, but have some information in your advertisement; therefore, get information. Get hold of the man who sells the goods, as I told you before, and get all you can out of him—pump him dry. Ask such people as you may know, who buy his class of goods, how he stands; what kind of goods he sells, and find out what they would want to know about the goods before they would buy them. Remember that is the principal thing. It is not what the seller likes to talk about, but what the buyer must know which should go into an advertisement. Remember, people want facts told in an interesting and attractive way. Then apply your own good sense to the information you get. Study human nature, and especially the kind of human nature to which you are going to appeal.

As you go along you will have a bright idea now and then. Carry a little book with you. Jot it down. Keep that little book with you all the time. Don't put a bright idea into an advertisement right away. Possibly it will be a great deal like an advertisement I mentioned in the forepart of this lecture. It will sound different when you come to look at it next day.

If you are going to advertise a subject which has been advertised before, get the other people's advertisements. Read them carefully. See wherein they are strong or weak. Criticise them; place your own advertisements alongside of them and see if yours are any better.—Reproduced from Impressions.

The Ultimate Gain.

MANY a man in considering the question of advertising looks only at the immediate outlay he is called upon to make if he begins to advertise, and neglects to give due consideration to the ultimate gain. Why the conditions surrounding an advertising venture should be regarded as being different from the conditions attendant upon the opening up of a new store or a new department, is hard to understand, but it is a fact that many a man who has decided to advertise looks for immediate and equivalent returns. Suppose, for example, that John Smith goes to Edmonton to open up a general store there, what right has he to expect to do a profitable trade from the very first day? If he is a man of sound judgment he is content to do business at a downright loss for a period of many months in the confidence that the future will recompense him for the unprofitable beginning. He does not reckon present loss but regards only the future gain. Suppose, again, that William Brown, of Kingston, decides to add to his general dry goods business a men's ready-to-wear clothing department. It is clear as day that he will have to invest a good deal of money and wait and work a good many months before the new department can be made to show an adequate return.

So is it with beginning to advertise. There must be investment covering possibly months before the merchant will find the new influence he has set at work yielding the desired returns. To look for magic results is so manifestly out of the true order of things that it would seem necessary only to point out the folly to make a man see things in their right light.

The truth remains, however, that some men find it almost impossible to face the question of advertising sanely and resolutely, leaving to the future the sure reward. It is with them a form of gambling, legitimate of course, but the issue is altogether doubtful.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

RATES in Canada have been advanced to the all-rail basis now that river navigation inland has closed. Mr. G. M. Bosworth, fourth vice-president of the C.P.R., has issued the following circular: "In order to provide the stiffening for the early steamers from West St. John, the C.P.R. Co. was obliged to haul, before the close of navigation, a certain quantity of wheat from Fort William to West St. John at a figure greatly below cost, or otherwise the steamers would have been unable to sail. After the close of navigation on the lakes, the rates were advanced to an all-rail basis."

A slight advance in freight rates from Toronto east to the coast has taken effect in wheat and other grain, namely 4c per hundred to the Maritime Provinces and 1 1-2c to the seaboard. Quotations on oats showed an easier tendency early in the week in view of the increased rate, but in other grain little effect was noticeable.

Ship owners are not over jubilant regarding the St. John shipping and it is certain that the C.P.R. having their own railway as a feeder to the steamship lines on the Atlantic as well as the Pacific have a marked advantage over the other lines. For instance the Allan Line claim that they run to St. John because of their mail contract, not because they get the best cargoes there. The Government compels them to make a Canadian port their terminal with all mail boats.

Rates are exceedingly low and the amount of cargo going forward to the different ports is not large. Some slight stimulation for the Christmas import trade has taken place in the way of dried fruit cargoes, etc., but inland buyers state that such lines as Persian dates and currants and raisins have principally come by New York. Not one new charter has been recorded.

BERTH QUOTATIONS--St. John, Halifax and Portland

The undernoted rates from West St. John are subjected to 5 per cent. primage additional.

TROUBLE IN CALIFORNIA.

Considerable excitement has been occasioned in large American cities regarding delay in deliveries of seeded raisins from California. Private advices attribute the difficulty to short crops and bad drying weather. Another suggestion is to the effect that new goods are being held back to stimulate the sale of old stock. This latter statement, however, is said by experts having first-class connections in the west to be unfounded.

Mr. A. P. Tippet, a leading broker in Montreal, makes the following statement to The Canadian Grocer regarding the situation: "All Griffin & Skelley's contracts for raisins in the district have been filled and no supplies were shipped later than November. As regards the present position we have no opinion to offer, but our impression is that the fruit situation in California is pretty much an unknown quantity at the present time and will continue so until all contracts have been completed. No reliable new fancy seeded are now being quoted and old fancy seeded are unobtainable; in regard to old seeded, the danger is much exaggerated as old raisins will not deteriorate for many months if made from sound stock."

None so Blind As Those Who Won't See.

THE CANADIAN GROCER can prove of valuable assistance to the selling end of any business which seeks trade among the grocery and general storekeepers of Canada.

We advance many plain, indisputable arguments to this effect.

And still there are some folks who can't see it.

Some who can't see how it's going to pay them.

And won't even invest a few dollars to find out.

Very few folks like thi , but we would like to convince even them.

If we only could, we'd get a good deal of satisfaction out of it—and we know they would, too.

Don't you think they're blind to their own interests ?

Here's a paper that finds a welcome in every worth-while grocery store from Halifax to Vancouver once every week—so can't you see that an announcement of any interest must surely command some attention ?

The advertising columns of THE CANADIAN GROCER provide about the best way we know of keeping in close touch with all the grocers of Canada all the time.

You can see value in a paper like this—

Can't you ?

Don't amount to much in any business, but the striking point is that a clerk is just as liable to make a mistake of $2.00 as he is of two cents, and a few mistakes like this would pay for enough of Allison's Coupon Books to last a year or more. With these books mistakes are impossible.

IF A MAN WANTS CREDIT

for $10, give him a $10 Allison Coupon Book, charge him with $10, and there you are. No trouble at all. If he buys a plug of tobacco for ten cents, just tear off a ten-cent coupon—that's all. And so on for all his purchases up to limit of the book. NO PASS BOOK. NO WRITING. NO TIME LOST. NO KICKING. There are other Coupon Books, of course, but why not have the best? MY CHRISTMAS VISITORS or The Grocer's Conscience Awakened

By W. H. SEYLER

THE clock in the store below had just buzzed out the hour of two a.m., December 25th, '99. I say buzzed, because the active verb "strike" was not applicable to the store clock of Johnson's grocery, if we except the periods of cessation from labor which at uncertain and unexpected times overtook this old relic of the early part of the century. As the last wheeze died out on the night air, I woke up with a start and a shiver; the start occasioned by an undefinable and unnatural feeling of uneasiness, something suggestive more of mental perturbation than physical discomfort; the shiver caused by a sudden rush of cold air up the stairway and through the open door of my room.

At first everything seemed still in the house, nothing breaking the thickness of silence that surrounded me save the gusts of wind against the window, and the jerky ticky-ty-tock-tock of the old clock down below. As the silence was becoming too oppressive and unbearable, I threw back the coverlet and was on the point of jumping out of bed to strike a light, when I felt a noise. Yes, I distinctly felt it, strange as this may sound, and it was more painful to me than a blow on the head. My heart stopped beating for a moment, and I had near fainted. I endeavored to rise, but found I couldn't stir an inch. All my faculties, physical and mental, had "struck."

Once more I felt the noise. This time it was taking character to itself; it sounded like the subdued hum of many voices, and seemed to be directly below me in the shop, near the foot of the stairs. I could not locate any particular sound in the hum, and my first thought naturally was of burglars; but surely burglars could find but little ready cash in our till, and Johnson's hospitality was so well known in the neighborhood that not even the light-fingered gentry had ever attempted to take what was free to every poor and deserving person on inquiry. If not burglars, what then? Ghosts? That thought made me smile even in my anxious position. Ghosts in this 19th century, and the latter end of the century at that! Besides, I took no stock in these intangible visitors from the Beyond, and my attempts at spiritualistic meetings to provoke the presence of the departed (one Smith who owed me a trifle over $10) had resulted in nothing more than the arrival of a long-haired and long-whiskered artist dressed in a sheet, and who betrayed his earthy substance by demanding of me an additional dollar for extra services, as the said Smith had taken up his permanent residence in the most southerly and torrid portion of the Unknown regions, and the labor of the medium was consequently more exhausting than in ordinary seances.

Suddenly I heard a distant and undoubted sound of moving bodies in the store, accompanied by the most peculiar conglomeration of noises, rattling of tins, banging of boxes, rustling of paper and tramp, tramp of feet on the stairs. Great Caesar's ghost! they were coming upstairs. I tried once more to jump out of bed towards the match-box near the dresser, but found myself held down as if by iron hands. My eyes turned towards the door, were paining me with their tension, and were ready to burst with trying to pierce the darkness.

The noises approached nearer and clearer and, I judged, were now at the turn of the stairs over the back warehouse. Another minute and they must reach the door, when another element, and certainly a very comforting one, entered into affairs; a light—faint at first, then growing stronger as the noises approached nearer—shone up the stairway and lit up a zig-zag crack in the panel of the door, opposite the foot of my bed. With a more comfortable feeling stealing through me, I awaited the arrival of the midnight intruders. Tramp, rattle, rustle, clang, bang, they came up the stairs, the bright light at last bursting into the room and dazzling my eyes with its brilliancy. Involuntarily I put up my hands before my face, the glare was so strong and bright. By the time I had accustomed myself to the light the whole band had entered the room and scattered themselves in every direction.

Great heavens! One look at my visitors and reason nearly left me. Who was that halting in front of the bed? Who but myself! Now, friends, don't run away with the idea that this was all a dream, a myth. It was too real, the whole event too protracted, too painful to be a vagary of a tired brain. Was I dead, and this my spirit come to visit its earthy shell again? Evidently not, for I was sitting none too comfortably in my bed, and could plainly hear the wind howling and blustering up and down the street at intervals, and the window rattling frightfully. Then, if not "I," who was this other self, this "dead" image of myself? We have all at some time, or various times in our lives, been taken for someone else, mistaken for someone else and put to no end of trouble and inconvenience by this "someone else" without being able to satisfactorily locate this personage. I remember, when residing in Detroit some years ago, having to pay for this "someone else's" shaves at the barber shop in Fort street, which I, or rather "we," patronized, but hard and long as I endeavored to meet this individual I never succeeded. But here at last I was face to face with myself. Eureka! I must confess, however, that I did not feel flattered at the picture I presented—to myself. True, outwardly I was the same; same hat, boots and clothes, the same piebald spot on the off side of my moustache, yet there was a something in the expression of my features which seemed at variance with my wonted countenance. There was a look in my face I had never seen before, nor ever imagined could be there—a look betokening inward dissatisfaction and disgust, a look of remorse and sadness, a sort of "mene-mene-tekel" look of accusation and doom. What could it mean? I studied myself carefully for a few moments, then seeking for an excuse of my presence here before myself, I turned my attention to my, or rather my alter ego's, companions.

I stated before that I was shocked beyond measure to see myself before myself, but the effect produced on myself (that is the self that was sitting up in bed) on viewing the motley crowd scattered through the room, was the opposite of serious. I burst out laughing, and laughed till I thought every bone in my body was disjointed. I fairly rolled over the bed in my uncontrollable mirth, and my other self even seemed to be affected by the hilarity. He smiled faintly, reminiscently as it were, thinking perhaps for a moment of some enjoyable time long gone by when we were very intimate. Laugh! why, a tombstone would have waltzed with the footboards.

Have you ever witnessed a calithumpian or carnival procession? Yes? Well, you are then aware of the variegated crew that usually form for parade. This crew before me was the most unique, diversified, nondescript and ridiculous assemblage that ever met human gaze. To describe all the peculiarities and oddities of my visitors would take up too much time and space, but one feature they all had, or rather did not have in common; they had no heads, yet were able to speak and laugh. They all had legs and arms, and but for their heads acted like human beings. Among, and most noticeable among, the gang, were two tin gallon measures, one a trifle shorter than the other, two wooden vinegar measures, same dimensions as the tin ones, two sacks of tapioca, several boxes of Valencia raisins, one somewhat aged in appearance, a couple of old tomato cans, each with a hole in the top, a can of baking powder with a glass dish hanging to its side, a chest of Assam tea and a half chest of new season's (sic) Congou, a sack of imported salt, a caddy of Canadian grown tobacco, a bale of nuts labelled Grenoble, and an array of spice tins branded "Pure" cassia, ginger, cloves, and so on through the list of condiments, and a dozen or so other different commodities of the trade. Leaning up against the washstand near the window, were two long narrow bundles of paper in the form of rolls tied with a blue ribbon at one end. One bundle was a little the longer, and was tied with a scarlet ribbon, and pasted all over with bank bills of the larger denomination and branded "Wholesale Grocers' Guild;" the other bundle bore the legend "Retail Grocers' Association." These last named articles attracted my attention more particularly, and—but I anticipate.

Having taken note of the company as hastily as I could, I ceased my laughter and turned my attention again to myself, or rather my "double-ganger," with a puzzled and inquiring look. Interpreting the same correctly, he turned slightly aside and made a step towards the bed and whispered, "You wish to know who I am and what all this means (indicating with a jerk of the thumb over the left shoulder, the other visitors). I am your Conscience, and these are a few of the victims of your double-dealing and treachery, deceit and fraud. I am come this night of good will towards all men with the very best of intentions to save you from yourself, to show you the iniquity of your business transactions, to point out to you that the respectability of your trade is but a sham, and that at bottom, you who are considered a paragon of uprightness in business dealing, who hold a leading position in a prominent church in this town, whose very name is a gaurantee of the good quality of your groceries who—"

"Hold on a minute there, not so fast," I ventured to break in. "Reserve your invectives and reproaches. Why should you single me out for such uncalled for and cruel reprimands and disturbances? I do not see the force of it all. I am only a salesman. What's the matter with ringing up Johnson himself? Telephone 036. You don't see the force of it, eh? Sorry for you my worthy self." To which came the answer. "I have nothing to do with Johnson. You see, I have a sort of family interest in you, for we are old friends (nodding familiarly to me), and though you have at various times endeavored to drown me and my still small voice, I am bound to have it out with you tonight, and in order to more clearly impress upon you the truthfulness of my statements I have brought a few arguments along" (pointing around to the company). "Cover yourself up closely, you might take a chill before I am through with you."

"But my dear sir," I hazarded to say, "I didn't ask you to enlighten me on my own affairs, and can but stigmatize your uncalled for intermeddling as a deliberate insult to my business integrity. I—"

"Cant' help it, old boy, you've got to hear it, and as the glorious dawn will soon be breaking and my companions have a few more of your stripe to visit I must get through—"

"I wish you'd get out," I yelled.

"Oh I know you don't like me to trouble you—"

"A conscience you know is a very unpleasant thing to carry about with oneself, especially if engaged in the retail grocery trade. It won't mix like sand and sugar—"

"Chestnuts! sand and sugar," I remarked. Thinking to put an end to this talk I turned my attention from myself, that is my other self, and surveyed the "horrible examples" scattered about the room. My Conscience, divining my intention, emitted a short, sharp whistle, and the four gallon measures trotted up before the bed and bowed gravely.

"Well," I asked, "who and what are these?" "These," said the other I pointing to the two smaller measures, are known as wine measures, the larger ones are the Imperial. Now how often have you forced the contents of the larger into the smaller measures, and sold them as a standard Imperial gallon? Come now."

I tried to reply, but a look from my Conscience—and the words remained unsaid.

Next, with a bumpity-bump that fairly shook the whole building, came the two sacks of tapioca.

"What's this?" I inquired.

"Ah, how innocent! You know very well that this one to the right is the genuine article, the cassava of Brazil, while the other is a child of old London, and never crossed the equator—northwards. How many sacks have you sold as the genuine article, or mixed the inferior with the better?"

Again I hung my head. Conscience was correct.

The two boxes of Valencia raisins were next marshalled before me, one of them limping badly as if with rheumatism or old age—"These said my Conscience, observing that my head was bent shamefully on my bosom, "these speak for themselves. I need not comment on how many thousand pounds of the old ones you have dressed up and syrupped up and sold as new goods. Ah! we know it."

The tomato cans followed the raisins, but rolled towards the bed very slowly, as though loaded with dynamite. "You know us of course," they chorused together. "We've been here some years now, and although the wind has been taken out of us once, we're very much afraid we can't last much longer. Most of our kinsmen have gone over the counter as new goods, fresh, full weight 3 lbs. when you know that—"

I held up my hands deprecatingly, and cast a pitiful look towards my accuser, but I could see no forgiveness in his face, and I was self-condemned.

The Prize Baking Powder can, with its glass dish, and the two chests of tea, followed by the imported salt and the caddy of home grown tobacco, next obtruded themselves before me, and started an argument about frauds: superiority of ingredients, and such words as terra alba, ad lib., starch and cabbage leaves, seemed to be bandied about freely, and I don't know how long they would have kept up the discussion had not my Conscience admitted my guilt to them and they withdrew to make room for the Grenoble walnuts—This foreigner complained grievously of treatment he had received at my hands, said he was being called on to bolster up the reputation of some of his friends from Boredaux, and his own reputation had been seriously damaged. I also acknowledged the fault, and seeing my

He Pleased the Drummer.

A Drummer sat in a big hotel,
He was off his feed, not feeling well ;
As he looked over the bill of fare
He said to the waiter "Roast Beef rare."

He further remarked "I don't feel right
And I'll have to tempt my appetite."
Then he ordered dessert with grace and ease,
"Pass the MacLaren Imperial Cheese."

The waiter winked with a knowing eye.
"Our Landlord is of Imperial shy.
You see boss, he's a Landlord new
And thinks most any old cheese will do."

The host was a man of fertile brain
The drummers who quit came back again ;
He got next with the food to please
And laid in a stock of MacLaren's Cheese.

Now, this Landlord drives a four-in-hand
And puts on style to beat the band.
He's money to burn and takes his ease,
And he owes it all to Imperial Cheese.

"Nothing Better."

genuine contrition and shame, my Conscience turned to me with the remark: "Do not be afraid of this exposure, it will mark a turning point in your life, will lead you to a conception of true salesmanship, to sell goods on their merits, and to the knowledge and belief that good goods and fair prices will pay in the end. You may consider that I have been severe on you to-night. I have let you down easy, so to speak. I might call to witness what you know and I know is the greatest fraud in the trade, the adulteration of spices, but I think that ground cocoanut shells, peas, starch, terra alba, and other articles will hereafter be sold by you for what they are, and not as components of pure spices. What I have said to you to-night has been spoken with the best of motives and kindliest feelings towards you, and although I thought you case hardened I feel that you will learn wisdom, especially such wisdom as will stand you in good stead in your calling. Good morning to you, and a very Merry Christmas and Bright and Happy New Year."

THE CULTIVATION OF TEA.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has pleasure in publishing in this week's issue an interview with P. C. Larkin of the Salada Tea Co., Toronto, on "The Cultivation of Tea."

Tea is indigenous to India, not to China or Japan, therefore, tea must have originally been brought from India to China, and thence probably to Japan.

The difference in the methods of cultivation practised in the respective countries is a difference that is likely to come from cultivation as a side issue by the ordinary farmer in China and Japan, and by important companies with large capital invested and whose only business is the cultivation of tea in India and Ceylon.

In China or Japan the bush does not attain anything like the size or vigor it does in Ceylon or India. In fact, in China and Japan the bush is of stunted growth with a very small leaf, whereas, in India and Ceylon the growth is most vigorous and the bush has to be pruned severely and often. In China and Japan the leaf is plucked by the farmer or his family, rolled by hand, and fired in copper pans over charcoal fires, very small quantities being made at a time. This is afterwards purchased by traveling merchants who bring it down to the seaport, and there dispose of it to European buyers, who mix or blend large quantities, which are boxed, matted, labeled and shipped to European countries.

In India and Ceylon every garden has its own brand or name, under which monthly shipments are made. This is stamped on every chest leaving that garden, along with the name of the grade, Orange Pekoe, Pekoe, or Pekoe Souchong.

These gardens are conducted by European overseers, who employ large numbers of natives to do the plucking. The rolling is done entirely by machinery, as well as the firing of the tea, in fact the packing into the boxes is also done by machinery.

In China and Japan the season is comparatively short, namely, about three months at the utmost, during which tea is plucked, the very earliest teas (those plucked in April or May) being the best. In India the season is much longer, being spread over six or seven months, and some of the very finest and most expensive teas are made at the very end of the season, there seeming to be no material difference in quality. In Ceylon the tea is literally plucked the whole year around, as there is no Winter in that country, and equally good tea is produced in evry month except during the rainy season, when the bush flushes so quickly that the labor at hand is sometimes not enough to handle the tea properly. Therefore the gardens during these couple of months produce generally tea inferior to their average output.

Everything depends in all tea-growing countries on the elevation at which the tea is grown. Tea is grown in India and Ceylon at a sea elevation, and also at an elevation of 7,000 ft. At the higher elevation the amount of leaf per acre is very small compared with that plucked at the lower elevation, but on the other hand the flavor is infinitely better, the leaf appearing to possess more of that essential oil in which the flavor of tea consists.

As to the appearance of tea, this counts for nothing, because at the very lowest elevation the same appearance of leaf is plucked as at the very highest, but the finest leaf at the lowest elevation would be infinitely inferior to the very coarsest leaf grown at an elevation of six or seven thousand feet.

Tea has been grown in North Carolina for very many years back, the garden there being assisted by considerable donations from the American Board of Agriculture, but the quality of tea is probably the worst produced in all the world. A considerable quantity of tea is grown in Java every year, but this also seems to possess a peculiar distinctive and objectionable flavor that any tea man can tell the first moment of infusion. Java teas bring a very low price in the market. Natal has of late years also produced some teas that are a grade or two better than Java's. Indeed the shrub is a hardy one and could be cultivated in nearly any country in the world.

The whole question is one of labor, and any country not possessing very cheap labor could not afford to grow tea.

MET WITH AN ACCIDENT.

Mr. A. P. Tippet, of A. P. Tippet & Co., Montreal, had the misfortune some three weeks ago of meeting with an accident which has seriously affected one of his eyes. A false step in leaving the house jarred the eye in a most singular manner, and burst a blood vessel. It was thought by his medical attendant that a few days rest and attention would restore the blur, but progress has been slow towards clear vision. Mr. Tippet is trying to attend to business at the office, but finds it difficult to satisfactorily attend to his duties and it may be necessary in order to restore the eye to its natural strength to undergo an operation.

The Toronto Wholesale Grocers' Hockey League have elected the following officers for the season 1904-05: Patrons, H. P. Eckardt, F. W. Humphrey, T. Kinnear, W. A. Warren, and J. L. Watt; hon. president, J. I. Davidson; hon. vice-president, Fred. Date; president, W. H. Millman; vice-president, T. Kinnear, Jr.; secretary-treasurer, B. R. Brown, 19 Front street east.

The league is now composed of four teams, but it is expected other teams will fall in line.

FRESH AND CURED FISH

To Improve Halibut Fisheries.

AS a means to the improvement of the halibut and other deep sea fisheries on the Pacific coast which are considered to be of even greater importance to the Dominion of Canada than even the salmon industry, the Victoria, B.C., Board of Trade is recommending the Federal Government to appoint a practical expert who will make a complete study and survey of the fisheries, and of available markets and means of transportation.

There is a strong sentiment in British Columbia in favor of a co-operative system of receiving, storing, preparing and marketing fish products and of establishing cold storage plants and central offices in telegraphic touch with market points from which shipments can be systematically directed on a similar plan to that of the Fruit Growers' Association of California.

In view of alleged discrimination in favor of an alien company which is driving Canadian fishermen out of the halibut and other deep sea fisheries the Victoria board will also urge upon the Government the necessity of at once removing any existing discrimination in favor of any company or individuals and to do all in its power to place all engaged in the fishing industry on a footing of equality.

Shortage in Salmon.

Writing from Seattle, Wash., Brady & Co. say: "The world's canned salmon pack for 1904 apparently will be 1,750,000 cases short of the average pack for the previous three years. This shortage, the lower prices prevailing over 1903, and the unlooked for demand from Japan for the cheaper grades, are the three important factors bearing on this year's history of canned salmon. The principal item of note in connection with salt fish was the sensational jump on red Alaska pickled salmon from $7 to $10 per barrel. With this stock well sold up, pink whole fish will probably advance after the holidays. Stock on hand is fair."

Prospects for Smelt Fisheries.

The prospects for a successful smelt fishing season in the Maritime Provinces are not very encouraging, says the Moncton Times. Thus far weather conditions have been good, but the catch is small and the fish are even smaller, more than half these brought to the market being blinks, and the proportion of extras very small. Unless there is an improvement the fishing in and around Richibucto will be a failure. In Buctouche, where the heavy catch usually takes place at the beginning of the season, very few have been caught up to the present time and these very small. Reports from Miramichi are to the same effect.

Salmon for Japan.

It is expected that 32,000 tons of dog salmon will be shipped from Vancouver to Japan during the next few months, and one firm alone is declared to have orders on hand for 16,000 tons, the remainder of the total being divided up between the smaller companies doing business there. The largest portion of these consignments will have to be shipped on steamers departing from Seattle, as there is not enough space available on the regular transpacific liners from the British port. At present dog salmon is jobbing at about $30.50, and if 30,000 tons is taken as a fair estimate of what will leave the other side this season it will mean total purchases at Vancouver aggregating $750,000.

Japanese Fisheries.

The National Geographic Magazine describes Japan as the leading fishing nation of the world. Its principal fisheries are: Herring, worth $4,000,000 annually; sardine, $3,700,000; bonito, $2,000,000; red snapper, $2,000,000; mackerel, $1,000,000; horse mackerel, $900,000; yellow tail, $1,000,000; cuttlefish, $1,500,000; anchovies, $800,00; prawn, $700,000, and salmon, $600,000. These values are obtained from the actual sales in Japan, where the purchasing power of money is much greater than in the United States, consequently they cannot be fairly used for purposes of comparison with the values of our own fisheries. Moreover, all of the products of the fisheries of Japan are consumed at home.

Manitoba Fish Trade.

Messrs. W. W. Fryer and M. Ewing, of the Ewing & Fryer Fish Co., of Selkirk, Man., were in Winnipeg last week, guests at the Mariaggi. In the course of an interview regarding the condition of the fish trade they stated that the catch of whitefish and pickerel has not been equal to expectations during the past season because of the storms that prevailed on the lakes. Prices are fair, however, and there is a good demand, which favorable conditions are expected to compensate the members of the fish trade for the diminished catch. The supply from Lake Winnipeg has been particularly good, amounting, it is said to 6,000,000 lbs. This is undoubtedly a "fish story" for it is told about fish, but the figures are said to be quite authentic. In view of the diminished supply from other sources, the Lake Winnipeg fishermen are to be congratulated.

Failure of Bank Fisheries.

According to the St. John's Herald, Newfoundland, there were nineteen vessels engaged in the bank fishing this year, the total catch amounting to 16,922 quintals, a reduction of 5,000 quintals from 1903. Even with the extraordinarily high prices now ruling there does not appear to be any money in the trade and some are thinking of ceasing operations permanently.

From the south coast comes the news that St. Pierre is in a state of destitution. The fisheries this season have been worse than ever and people are leaving the island in scores at every opportunity.

Fish Notes.

Mackerel has been discovered on the coast of British Columbia.

The fisheries of Nova Scotia will, it is anticipated, be again in decline when the official figures are out. Their value in 1902 was $7,351,753, as against $7,950,548 for the previous year.

A fish-curing industry has been started at Barbadoes and is already shipping its products to Demerara and Trinidad. Scandinavian and other vessels are reported to be purchasing the fish freely.

The H. E. Baker Co., has been organized with share capital of $31,000 to operate the lobster fisheries on the southern shore of Cape Breton and carry on an extensive canned goods business.

A special general meeting of the British Columbia Packers' Association has been called for December 19 to discuss the advisability of raising additional working capital for the season of 1905.

It is reported that the total production of French sardines this season will not exceed 610,000 cases, and that the Portuguese pack is an utter failure. As a result of scarcity of labor and high prices demanded by the fishermen, the manufacturers have been compelled to fix proportionately high prices for the manufactured product.

The Canadian season for lobsters opened on December 15 and supplies from now on will arrive from the Maritime Provinces. During the past five months dealers have had to procure supplies from Portland and other United States markets, paying an unusually high price.

There is reason to believe the action recently taken by the Ontario Fisheries Department with the American States bordering on the great lakes to secure uniform laws and regulations for the better preservation of the lake fisheries will be fruitful of good results. During the past week the department has received communications from four of the States anxious to co-operate, namely, New York, Ohio, Minnesota and Michigan.

Canadian Beef in Great Britain.

THE farmers of Great Britain cannot produce more than 60 per cent. of the meat required for domestic consumption, according to the Hon. Mr. Dryden, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Imports of meat into Great Britain will increase, moreover, because its population is growing at the rate of 400,000 a year, and in addition to this the consumption of meat per head of the population is steadily increasing. Twenty years ago the annual consumption of meat per capita in Britain was 77.4 lbs.; to-day consumption is 88.4 lbs. per capita annually. In 1903 the total importation of live cattle was 546,000 head, an increase of 103,000 as compared with the year preceding.

Imports of dead meat come under three heads: Fresh, supplied from nearby European ports; and chilled and frozen. About half the chilled meats is supplied from the United States, while the other half of the chilled and all the frozen comes from Australasia and Argentine. In this trade there is no sentiment whatever. Quality is the first consideration. For the best there is always a good sale, while poor stuff is never anything but a drug on the market. The opinion of the trade in Great Britain is that the quality of Canadian beef has greatly improved in the last few years. If this improvement is to continue certain things are necessary: First, the entire separation of beef production and dairying. Second, an export trade in dressed meats should be established in Canada, because among other things there is always danger of an outbreak of disease in this country that will render impossible the landing of a single live bullock in England from Canada, thus temporarily paralyzing our beef industry. In connection with the live beef trade the facilities at Birkenhead, where Canadian cattle are slaughtered, are badly in need of improvement.

Clover and Butter Making Industry.

The failure of the clover crop is telling seriously on the butter making industry, and one creamery at least in Western Ontario is about to shut down for a few months. The manager informed a representative of The Grocer that he was not getting enough cream from the neighboring farmers to pay the wages of the man who drove his wagon and team round the farms.

Will Can Meats.

Park, Blackwell & Co., Toronto, have decided to engage in canning meats, principally beef and pork, and are now installing the necessary machinery. Their meat canning plant will be in operation in the course of two months.

What John Bull Buys From Uncle Sam.

Figures just compiled by the Department of Commerce and Labor show that the exports of meats and provisions to the United Kingdom from the United States for ten months of the present year, 1904, are as follows:

	Quantity, lbs.	Value.
Fresh beef	219,335,357	$20,171,257
Fresh and salted pork	59,928,847	5,093,354
Bacon	171,847,800	17,166,921
Hams	137,318,321	15,099,694
Salted and cured beef	13,920,384	774,520
Canned beef	24,956,106	2,506,870
Lard	169,799,154	13,116,622
Oleo oil and oleomargarine	17,426,779	566,663
Total provisions, meat and dairy products, value		$137,117,466

The same classification shows the total exports of meat and dairy products from the United States to Great Britain for the ten months of 1903 to have been $150,109,880, which indicates a serious falling off in the total for this year as compared with 1903.

Benefit of Cool Curing Cheese.

Letters received from dealers in Great Britain who have received consignments of cool cured cheese from the Dominion Government curing stations, are unanimous in their approval of the excellent quality of the article, and go so far as to advise the general adoption of similar methods in the handling of the Canadian product. They say that cool cured cheese is far superior in keeping qualities, flavor, etc., to that handled after the ordinary fashion and that it brings on an average 1-2c per pound more. It is a simple matter of arithmetic to figure out that if Canada's entire output of cheese were handled as it is in the Government cool curing stations its value in the British market would be increased by approximately $800,000, by no means an inconsiderable item.

Beef Trust War.

Five of the largest packing houses in the United States, namely, Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Cudahy & Co., the Hammond Packing Co. of Chicago, and the Hammond Packing Co., of Pueblo, Col., have been attacked by the authorities of the State of Montana, on the ground that they are blocking the stock raising industry of the state, and that they have practically a monopoly of the sale of meat products, which is detrimental alike to individual shipper and consumer.

The attorney-general has not only asked that these companies be prevented from doing business in Montana, but that their property be forfeited as well as their franchises to do business, and that a fine be imposed.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

The fourth Maritime Winter Fair was held last week at Amherst, N.S.

The Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry Show will be held at Ottawa on March 6—10, 1905.

Professor Robertson retires from the office of Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying on December 31.

The dairymen of Eastern Ontario will hold their twenty-eighth annual convention at Brockville, Ont., on Jan. 5, 6 and 7, 1905.

In spite of the rapidly growing meat exports of Argentina, that country exports nothing in the line of provisions but imports all her hog products amounting to $110,000 yearly.

The Wm. Ryan Co., Toronto, have bought J. B. Ogilvie's pork packing establishment in Aylmer, Ont., and will enlarge it to the capacity of 400 hogs per week.

The cheese and butter factory at Harrietsville, Ont., will be enlarged and improved, the alterations including among other things a new cold curing room modelled after the Government cold curing stations.

Provisions—Owing to the fact that the trade is inquiring more freely for poultry and holiday necessities, business in cured and smoked meats is quiet. A continuation of present conditions is expected until after the holiday season. In fresh meats lamb has advanced and is now selling at from $8 to $9.50. Light hogs, owing to a larger supply, have declined in price, and are now selling at $6.25. Our quotations are as follows:

Cheese—Although times are hard in England the masses find that cheese is about the cheapest food they can buy and a large amount of business is being transacted. Some reports state that cheese advanced sixpence during the week. Owing to the increase in exports large cheese and twins have advanced 1-4c per pound. Our quotations are:

	Per lb.

Butter—Many factories report difficulty in securing a proper grade of milk for manufacturing creamery butter. As a result creamery prints and solids have advanced 1c per pound. The cool weather has caused a better inquiry for large rolls of dairy butter, which has resulted in an advance of 1c per pound. A larger amount of dairy butter for export is noticeable. Creamery is expected to remain scarce with firm prices ruling. Owing to the high prices it is difficult to obtain a foreign market for creamery. We quote the following:

Poultry—Some dealers claim that receipts are fully equal to the demand, which means a better supply than last week, while other dealers complain still of shortage in supplies. Everyone fears the market will be flooded with trukeys, geese and ducks during the next few days which will cause a big decline in prices. Although opinion varies as to the amount arriving, everybody agrees to the changes which have taken place in the price list. A wide range has been quoted on dry plucked Spring chickens, hens, and ducks. Geese have advanced 1-2c per pound. Everywhere is noted a good inquiry for fowl. On account of the high price of cranberries many of the poorer class of people are purchasing geese or ducks. Large numbers of poorly plucked fowl continue to arrive which bring an inferior price. Considerable quantities of Canadian poultry, consisting of turkeys and geese, have gone forward to the Christmas market of England. Our quotations are:

Provisions—A fair amount of business is being done in all lines of provisions, and the demand is good from both local and country buyers. Smoked meats appear to be on the increase, on account of the approaching Christmas holidays. Dressed hogs are in good demand for small lots, and sales of fresh killed abattoir have been made at $7 to $7.25, and country dressed at $6 to $6.75 per hundred lbs.

Cheese—There has been some trading done the past week at prices ranging from 10 1-4c for eastern goods to 10 1-2c for western cheese. It is understood that cable orders also have been more in evidence and at limits which would tend to show that merchants in the United Kingdom expect their markets to materiallv improve, for in most cases the prices paid c.i.f. were higher than the prices that are reported as ruling in their home markets. As Quebec, owing to the increased make of butter, has undoubtedly produced less cheese this season than for many seasons past, and as the bulk of this province's make consists of white, there are some holders who expect that before long white cheese will rule a premium over colored. The receipts of cheese since close of navigation are less than half of those of the corresponding period of 1903, which proves conclusively that very little cheese has been made during November, whereas during the last ten months of the preceding year the make was exceptionally large.

Butter—There has been a brisk trade done for home trade and a larger export business has been put through than ever before for the quality of goods that are now being sold. Prices have run from 21 to 22c as to grade and quality seems to have given satisfaction to United Kingdom importers.

Provisions—Business is very quiet, particularly in barrelled pork and beef. Prices remain unchanged. In lard, quite full stocks are held, price is rather unsettled. This is a busy season in fresh meats and poultry. Our market is looking its best. There is a fine display of beef. While western beef holds firm light local beef is low. Lamb is plentiful and unchanged. Except by the steamers mutton has little demand. Veal is scarce. Pork is rather higher. All lines of poultry are high.

CHANGING HIS FOOD.

AT a meeting of the insurance experts of New York the other day, we were told that the span of life in America is growing longer, that the average American of to-day lives to be about five years older than the American of fifty years ago. That is, we have been gaining a year in every ten. Statistics also show that the race is producing larger, stronger, finer men and women. We are taller, weigh more, do more work than our grandfathers.

Why? Many influences are, of course, at work in producing these interesting changes; advanced medical science has practically conquered the contagious diseases and has largely decreased infant mortality; improved sanitary and hygienic science has saved the lives of thousands of city dwellers; but, after all, no single influence is so important to the welfare of our physical being as the food we take into our bodies. "As the coal is, so is the engine."

No study, then, could be more interesting and important, as bearing on this question, than an investigation of the changes in our food fashions. Do we eat the same things that our grandfathers did? If not, what is the trend of our diet—toward the food of the vegetarian, which includes the much advertised modern food products, the "cereals," or toward the old diet of the meat-eater?

Upon this point the last census gives us striking and conclusive information. It shows, indeed, the most extraordinary changes in our diet, and changes that point to a single, consistent tendency.

In short, we are becoming more and more a nation of vegetarians.

In the matter of mutton, for instance, every 100 Americans in 1850 consumed 94 sheep, nearly a sheep to each man, woman, and child; in 1900 the consumption had been reduced to 50 sheep to every 100 persons—a reduction of almost half. More remarkable still has been our turning from pork. 118 hogs to every 100 persons in 1850—more than one hog for each man, woman and child—to 43 hogs in 1900. We are still large eaters of beef, however, though here, too, there is a reduction of 20 per cent. from 25 beeves to 100 persons in 1850, to 20 beeves in 1900.

But what of milk, butter, cheese, eggs and poultry, which must be considered as meat foods in contradistinction to those which are strictly vegetarian. Here, too, though the statistics do not cover the whole period of 50 years, we find interesting changes; mostly large increases. For example: In 1880 the supply of eggs was 920 dozen for each 100 persons, and in 1900 it reached 1,700 dozen. In the same period the supply of dairy products increased by more than threefold. The only dairy product showing a decrease is cheese: 50 years ago each person ate 4½ pounds annually; in 1900 the amount had dropped to one-half pound.

Reducing all these various meat products to a common denomination—dollars and cents—we find that our meat diet as a nation has decreased in 50 years by about 36 per cent.

To make up for the decreased meat diet there is but one way to turn. Have we increased our vegetable food—our wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, garden vegetables, fruits, sugar?

The census gives interesting results. In 1850 Americans consumed 430 bushels of wheat for each 100 persons; in 1900, 623 bushels—a very marked rise. Corn and potatoes give very similar percentages of increase. But the most surprising change is in the consumption of oats, presumably on account of the improved methods of the manufacture of oatmeal; 90 bushels in 1850 to 386 in 1890—over four-fold in forty years. During the last decade, however, the consumption of oatmeal has lost ground relatively, dropping to 361 bushels for each 100 persons. This decrease is probably due to the substitution of other "cereal" and "breakfast" foods, which have in some families wholly taken the place of oatmeal.

Now, take the market garden products, fruits and sugar. Any one who will stop to think of the present-day grocery store with its rows upon rows of inviting canned goods—tomatoes, corn, peas, beans, and all manner of fruits, and of the excellent displays of green vegetables and fresh fruits, from huckleberries to watermelons, will find himself convinced of the important part these foods play in our common diet. And then our candy item, our preserves item; no one whose memory can supply a comparison of the candy stores of thirty years ago with those of to-day can fail to be impressed with the increase of sugar consumption. Here, indeed, the figures tell a striking story: in 1850 each man, woman and child in America ate 23 pounds of sugar; in 1900, 65 pounds of sugar. And in the 20 years since 1880 the consumption of market garden products and fruits has increased more than threefold.

And here is another interesting point: Ten years ago potatoes outranked market garden products more than two to one. The last census put them in the opposite relation, potatoes falling behind by nearly ten million dollars. One of the most striking features of this increased eating of market garden products is indicated by the remarkable increase of land covered by glass to supply our modern bills of fare with early and late "green stuff."—Pearson's Magazine.

A LOYAL SOUVENIR.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, are sending out to their friends and patrons two large lithographs of His Majesty, King Edward, and Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra. These two lithos are splendid representations of their majesties, and Hudon, Hebert & Co. will be pleased to mail a set free to the trade, provided The Canadian Grocer is mentioned in application.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. C. Richardson, formerly of Edward Adams & Co., wholesale grocers, London, is dead.

Mr. W. P. Downey, Montreal, has returned from New York where he had been during the past week.

Mr. W. H. Halford, representing S. H. Ewing & Sons, Montreal, is calling upon the trade in Toronto and the west this week.

Mr. C. L. Wallace, of Wallace Bros., general merchants, Woodbridge, Ont., was seriously injured by an accidental discharge from a gun last week.

Mr. W. J. Fraser, an old and well-known retired merchant of Halifax, N.S., died on Dec. 16. Mr. Fraser was at one time the principal member of the commission firm of Fraser, Paint & Co.

Mr. Geo. Lindsay, representing Hudon, Hebert & Co. in Manitoba, is at present in Montreal. Mr. Lindsay reports business as very good and prospects encouraging for the future. His stay will be a brief one, as he expects to be on the stamping ground by the first of the year.

Mr. Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, left for New York on Monday to spend his Christmas holidays. This has been his customary vacation for fifteen years, and coming as it does at the end of the business year Mr. Dunn combines a little business with pleasure.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

Husband Bros., Toronto, have received two cars navel oranges grown in the Redland district, one car northern California navels, one car Florida oranges, and one car St. Nicholas brand new Messina lemons.

In store with J. H. Maiden, Montreal, shipment of Diamond Crystal Salt, Shaker brand. Mr. Maiden reports increasing sales for these goods.

A fine line for holiday selling is "Sweetheart" soap. The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are agents.

Dawson Bros. Commission Co., Toronto, have received one car Mexican oranges and one car navels. They have also received a consignment of figs which they will offer at a very low figure to parties inquiring for quotations.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, are offering Fard dates at specially low prices.

Wm. H. Dunn, Montreal, has received a carload of Cornes (French) walnuts, which he will close out to the trade at tempting prices. A post card will bing prompt quotation.

The Eby-Blain Co., Toronto, have a snap in mixed pickles in 5 gallon pails.

N. & M. Smith & Co., Halifax, advise a temporary scarcity of Nova Scotia fish, and in consequence an advance of 25c has been made on Labradors.

Hudon, Hebert & Co., Montreal, draw the attention of the trade to the patent wax butter boxes for which they are selling agents for Eastern Canada. These are offered at very close prices. Inquiries from the trade will receive prompt attention.

A. G. McNabb, Barrie, Ont., has enlarged and redecorated his grocery store and has now one of the neatest and most up-to-date stores in Barrie.

XMAS ..1904..

Business Review and Changes for 1905.

Xmas is right with us and the rush will be over next week—you will then doubtless review your year's business.

The results on the whole will probably be satisfactory, but most of us will likely discover that certain lines have not moved just enough—their sales have been below the mark.

A good reason for this condition will likely be found in the goods and now is the time to switch over to a popular line.

We have improved a good many lines for next year—have studied all our goods—and those which are not up to the Gorman & Eckert standard will be replaced by better lines. New lines will also be handled to meet new conditions.

It won't cost you anything to consult us on your slow-moving lines—you don't have to handle our lines because you do, but we may be able to help you out.

We hope your 1905 trade will show an increase over 1904, and we think we can help you to do it.

HOLIDAY GREETING.

SEVENTEEN years ago The Canadian Grocer extended its first holiday greeting to friends and patrons of the trade. During the rather long interval there have been many changes, which, however, only serve to intensify the pleasure we experience in once more wishing well to thousands of readers at home and abroad.

Christmas week is generally acknowledged to be the biggest week of the year not only by the retail grocer but by the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker the world over. It is peculiar, however, in this respect—that a poor or indifferent Christmas week's trade cannot be made up afterwards, it being straight profit or loss. For this reason it particularly behooves the retail grocer to fortify himself beforehand against sure and certain disappointment holiday week, and in these days of competition it is absolutely necessary for him to bestir himself if he wishes to reap anything like the harvest to which he is entitled.

It is here that we hope the reading columns of The Canadian Grocer have been serviceable to our readers. In the departments of window dressing, advertising, progressive retailing, etc., we have worked with one object in view, namely to assist the retailer in planning how to attract trade in general and holiday trade in particular, and the purpose intended will have been served if our suggestions have in any way assisted the retailer in reaping a bountiful Christmas harvest or in paving the way for a successful year's trade beginning January 1, 1905.

PATENT MEDICINES AND PROPRIETARY ARTICLES.

TO suggest to the average grocer the advisability of stocking patent medicines and proprietary articles of a similar character would sound to him as derogatory to the dignity of his trade, but a few moments' reflection and a study of the conditions of modern trade and the habits and customs of his patrons should convince him that the introduction of these lines will materially add to his revenue and profit. The department stores in the larger cities and towns are large dealers in and distributors of well-advertised and meritorious patent medicines, and what after all is the general store in the country town but a department store on a smaller scale? It is safe to say that there is not a general store of any pretensions in the land but handles proprietary articles, and the merchant does not in any degree feel it beneath him to deal in such.

It may be said that this would be encroaching upon the domain of the druggist, but does the druggist not sell baking soda, borax, cream of tartar, castile, laundry and toilet soaps, and a multitude of lines distinctly associated with the grocer's business? Why, then, is it not proper for the grocer to sell Radway's Ready Relief, sarsaparillas, tooth powders, and fancy toilet soaps? The best patrons of the drug stores are the women; the grocer's customers are the housekeepers, and with any article of well-known and well-advertised merit the grocer is in as good a position as the druggist to supply the wants of his female customers.

That this idea is being acted upon by the live grocer is observable in some of the best retail stores of the larger cities, where departments are being introduced for this express purpose. The thinking grocer knows it for a certainty that prices are higher in the drug stores than in any other business, and his own experience will have taught him that he can sell as cheap, if not cheaper, than the druggist. Take for example the case of fancy toilet soaps. Why should the grocer not carry these for his female customers? Women buy their laundry and ordinary toilet soaps from the grocer. Why should he not put forward the best lines as well and please his patrons? A trial of the venture with some special attention on the grocer's part in drawing his patrons' notice to his new lines, will be a revelation to him and a profitable adjunct to his business.

A COMPLAINT FROM THE WOOL MEN.

A FEATURE of the Canadian market which is attracting considerable interest at the present time is the price of skeepskins in Canada, which, according to dealers, is out of all reason with the price of wool and pickled pelts. At the same time sales are very active, and American buyers pride themselves on the fact that they have practically a corner on the Canadian market.

The trade are interested in knowing how their fellow tradesmen across the line are able to outbid them in their own markets, and can only account for it on the supposition that by some means or other the import duty on skins is in part evaded by American buyers. The duty on combings going into the United States is 12c per lb., or 11c on the skin, while on fine, extra and super wool it is considerably higher.

Canadian dealers are of the opinion that American buyers get around the higher duty by listing all their wool so as to come within the lower tariff. Skins cost the puller $1.25 on the Canadian market; at this price he must get 26c for his super wool to clear himself. U. S. buyers, however, are paying from $1.35 to $1.40 for the same skins, and yet the biggest dealers in Boston will not buy this wool at 26½c. In other words, prices realized in the United States do not differ materially from those ruling in the domestic market, and conditions of labor being equal, there does not seem to be any reason why the cost to the American dealer should be less than 26c plus the duty (12c or upwards per lb.)'

As a result the leading pullers in this country are at a standstill, or next thing to it, and supplies are hard to get on account of the inability of Canadian dealers to pay the same price as Americans. Dealers, pullers and manufacturers feel that they have a grievance, and that if the anomaly is due to the connivance of the customs authorities at the various ports of entry to the United States it is worth investigating on the part of the Dominion Government.

WINNIPEG BANK CLEARINGS.

PERHAPS there is no more reliable indication of the business prosperity of any city than is afforded by the amount of its bank clearings. Although the proportion which these figures bear to the total amount of business transacted is not fixed yet they give some indication of the volume of trade as nearly all transactions involving more than small amounts of money are effected through the banks and some proportion of them is reflected in the bank clearings. Special causes operate now and then to effect great fluctuations in the gross amount of bank clearings in any city, but when, from week to week, and from year to year, a steady increase is shown it may safely be taken as a reliable index of the growth of a city's business.

Statistics are not required to prove the prosperity of Winnipeg. It is to be seen in the magnificent warehouses and imposing business blocks which have recently been erected. Every citizen and every visitor is impressed with the fact that the business interests of the western metropolis are rapidly expanding and that her business men are making money. But additional, albeit unnecessary, proof is afforded by the steady increase in bank clearings. The figures for any week would serve to illustrate a steady and healthy growth as compared with former years and those quoted below are nothing out of the ordinary. The same story has been told week after week for a long time, and it is a story of a healthy growth, for there is no evidence of a "boom" which may be expected to collapse to the confusion of investors. An old but pleasing story is told by these figures:

Winnipeg Bank Clearings—

Week ending Dec. 15, 1904	$7,980,150
Corresponding week, 1903	6,024,337
Corresponding week, 1902	5,102,593

PHOTOGRAPH YOUR HOLIDAY WINDOWS.

Before you take to pieces that holiday window display, on which you have lavished so much time and labor, have a photograph taken of it. Next Fall we will publish a series of these photographs. You will thus be able to exchange ideas with window dressers all over the country and have something new to work on for next year. Write us about it.

A HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

IN a recent speech at a banquet to Dr. Roche, M.P., Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, outlined a scheme for the construction of a railway from Winnipeg to Hudson Bay. With the Territories about to be given provincial status, the Manitoba Government consider that, unless their province is to be completely overshadowed in area and population by the new province or provinces about to be formed, the boundaries of Manitoba should at the same time be extended northward to Hudson Bay. Whether the Dominion Government will comply with the wishes of the Manitoba Government in this respect remains to be seen, but it can scarcely be doubted that the extension of Manitoba's boundaries northward would mean much for the development of this vast hinterland as yet so little known.

It is true that, as the Manitoba Free Press has remarked, this Hudson Bay railway scheme has a familiar sound, but what was not practicable ten or fifteen years ago may be quite possible of accomplishment in these years of prosperity. The project seems likely to be pushed if Manitoba's boundaries are extended. Premier Roblin's plan, which as yet is probably merely tentative, is that the Province of Manitoba and the new province or provinces to be formed in the Territories should unite in building to a Hudson Bay port a Government railway.

We take it that before any such project is entered into a thorough investigation will be made of its possibilities. As yet we have no absolutely reliable information as to the length of time during which navigation is practicable in Hudson Bay. Account must also be taken of the dangers of navigation during certain seasons of the year in order that there may be some certainty that the cheapening of transportation by that route to Europe be not more than counterbalanced by increased insurance charges.

It must be admitted that the scheme has great attractions, offering as it does a much shorter route for the transportation of western wheat to Liverpool. Every mile saved on the overland route means a great cheapening in transportation charges and the idea of giving the Northwest an ocean port suggests possibilities which are worth striving after. Not only would the overland journey be shortened, but the total distance from the western wheat fields to Europe would be considerably reduced. A considerable carrying trade from the United States might be expected to result if the route should prove satisfactory. The west has a right to expect a thorough investigation of the possibilities of the route.

The following table of distances tells the whole story:

	Miles.
Winnipeg via Hudson Bay to Liverpool	3,626
Winnipeg via Montreal to Liverpool	4,228
Duluth via Hudson Bay to Liverpool	3,728
Duluth via New York to Liverpool	4,201
St. Paul via Hudson Bay to Liverpool	4,096
St. Paul via New York to Liverpool	4,240

LOSS TO CANADIAN FRUIT GROWERS.

REFERRING to the letter of the Canadian Canners, in this issue of The Canadian Grocer, no small amount of credit is due them for the part they have taken since consolidation in placing the Canadian fruit growing industry upon a commercial basis.

At the same time the fact remains that there is practically no market for a large percentage of our apple crop every year, and fruit growing in Canada is effectually hindered on this account from assuming anything like its proper proportions. The possibilities of this industry in Canada are very great, and surely $5,000,000 is a conservative estimate of the volume of trade lost to the country annually because fruit growing is only in its infancy instead of realizing its fullest possibilities at the present time.

There is no reason why the Canadian export trade in fresh and canned fruits should not become quite as important an item as her foreign trade in bacon and cheese, especially when the resources of the country are considered, as well as the fact that the quality of Canadian fruit is second to none. It cannot be gainsaid that foreign markets must be prepared to receive Canadian goods, and that very creditable efforts have already been made in this direction. At the same time it is apparent that increased activity among the fruit growers is out of the question as long as thousands of bushels of fruit are allowed to go to waste or to be practically sacrificed yearly for lack of a market. The Canadian Grocer is speaking of the fruit growing industry in its widest sense, and contends that millions of dollars are lost to the trade of the country every year because its fruit growing resources are not being fully utilized.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

THE letter in last week's issue of The Grocer by "Retailer" calling attention to the custom of grocers giving presents to their customers, is a timely one, and well worth discussion and reflection. As stated by "Retailer" the custom is a most pernicious one and it is somewhat hard to realize why it is continued. The only half reasonable excuse put forward is that this is the season of "good will towards all men." This apology may be acceptable in cases of private families tendering to their members and more intimate friends some tangible remembrance for kindness and consideration shown during the year, but in the case of the merchant, and particularly of the hard-working and small-profit-making grocer, there is no possible excuse for its indulgence. The grocer's profits are at best none too large, his goods are more or less of a perishable or varying character according to the tastes and fads of his customers, he gives value dollar for dollar during the entire year and the closest possible attention to his trade, and he is practically forced to hand over in the shape of "Christmas Boxes," the better portion of his profits and that at a time of the year when settlement time with the jobber and the bank approaches. Some city grocers have considerably lessened the evil by publishing the fact that "No Christmas presents will be given" and in addition the Retail Grocers' Associations have called upon their members to refrain from continuing the custom.

The fear of offending their customers has kept many, however, from saying No and sticking to it. If the entire trade, however, were united on the subject it would require only a season or two to bring relief. The recipients of these "hold-up" presents would wax highly indignant were the grocer to offer them the goods as "charity." A pleasant and polite explanation by the grocer will, we think, in a majority of cases be satisfactory.

The wholesale grocer is not exempt from this evil. In his case it proves extremely costly, since dealing in larger parcels and receiving heavier orders, he feels he cannot consistently hand or send out a handful of candies, or nuts, etc., but must send out somewhat more valuable articles. Many retailers in soliciting and accepting presents from the jobber are as much to be blamed as their own customers, and in order to test the principle thoroughly and be consistent he should not expect, ask or accept the jobber's favors. The traveler is in a large measure responsible for keeping the custom alive, and every jobber knows from experience that there is hardly an order received during the four or five weeks preceding Christmas that doesn't bear some such foot note as: "1-4 flat Connoiseur Cluster raisins, compliments of the firm," or "Send along without charge, 1 box 10c cigars 50s, or 1 bottle Hennessy Three Star Brandy, compliments of the house." and the jobber must send it along. In this way several hundred dollars worth of goods are sent out gratis and at a loss to the house. A Montreal grocery house with whom the evil had assumed large and costly proportions got rid of this custom in a unique manner. They wrote their travelers that they would be pleased to send along the present to the travelers' friends in the trade, but that all such presents would be charged to the traveler and deducted from the salary. This caused the travelers to reflect, and when it was shown that all told it would take the profit on about $5,000 to $10,000 worth of goods to fill travelers' requests for presents, the evil was stopped.

Let the jobbers cease sending out presents, making no exceptions whatever, be the customers' account large or small, and let them impress upon their traveling staffs the necessity of judiciously refusing the retailers' solicitations. The latter will then be in a position to strengthen their own position with the consumer. The evil of the habit is recognized by every thinking man in the trade and requires only united action and a firm stand to stamp it out.

INQUIRY FOR CANADIAN TRADE.

An inquiry has been received from a firm in Liverpool, Eng., desirous of obtaining an agency for Canadian canned goods in Liverpool and surrounding towns. The name of the firm making this inquiry may be had by application to The Canadian Grocer.

To You—To All of our esteemed friends, customers and associates do we heartily extend the Season's Greetings, together with best wishes for good health and prosperity for the coming year 1905.

Sincerely yours,

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 22, 1904.

Groceries.

THE rush of the holiday trade is now practically over, having dwindled down to sorting-up orders, and wholesale grocers hope to begin their annual stocktaking operations within the next few days. Travelers are off the road between Dec. 23 and Jan. 3, and in the interval the retail trade is being left unmolested to reap the fruits of Christmas and New Year's week, the biggest harvest of the year.

The wholesale trade are as a whole optimistic about the grocery trade for the past year generally, and for the holiday season in particular, and report business as quite up to the level of former years.

Sugar continues very firm, indications pointing to a further advance. An increased demand for corn syrups is reported, as well as a probable advance in the near future in all tinned goods. Tea, coffee, canned goods, and the other staples, are steady and quiet, with reported advances in prunes and very low prices being quoted on Malaga raisins.

CANNED GOODS.

With the exception of vegetables, canned goods are quiet. The record movement for this season of the year in corn, tomatoes and peas continues, while canned fruits have given place temporarily to fancy fresh fruits for the Christmas trade. We quote the following prices :

COFFEES.

A freer movement in coffee is reported than for some weeks, notwithstanding the very firm and strengthening position of Rios.

Reports from New York state that the speculative activity in the market for coffee contracts has continued to steadily broaden until it is again assuming the excitement and proportions of the record-breaking trading of about one year ago. The speculative public appears to be quite generally favorably impressed with the future of the article, based on the theory that the production of coffee for the current season will fall considerably short of consumptive requirements and that a material inroad will be made into the world's surplus stocks. Another bull point is the reports now being received from Brazil that the outlook for the growing Santos crop is not promising, and that there are possibilities that the growing Santos crop, owing to unfavorable weather and the poor condition of the trees, will be a small one and more than offset the expected increase in the growing Rio over the present Rio crop.

TEAS.

Tea is without special feature this week. A steady and fair volume of trade is reported, although brokers say business with the wholesale grocers is very quiet.

A telegram from the India Tea Association, Calcutta, states that the tea season is now practically closed throughout Northern India. India crop returns indicate that the out-turn in Assam is behind last year's, though other districts, with the exception of a few gardens, show an increase. The quantity available for the United Kingdom is estimated at from 166 to 168 million lbs. Our quotations are as follows :

SUGAR.

Further deductions in the European beet estimate bring the total for all Europe to 4,685,000 tons, which would represent a shortage of 1,170,000 tons as compared with the actual out-turn last campaign. The course of the market in London and other European centres, however, indicates that the situation is in the hands of speculators, who are at present selling, with the result that 88 per cent. has made a further decline, going to as low as 13s 9¾d basis f.o.b. Hamburg, a decline of about 9d per cwt. from recent highest point, bringing beet sugar closer to parity of canes in New York markets than it has been for a long time. The equivalent of 13s 9¾d is 4.94c for 96 test centrifugals, recent sales of which were made at 4.87½c.

Private reports from Europe say that refiners there are nolding off, evidently waiting the issue when the market settles down. There can be no question as to the statistical strength of the situation, and general opinion is that the normal course of the market should be upward instead of downward.

In New York the tone of the market continues steady to firm, with buyers willing to go on at recent basis, and there were sales at the end of last week of about 25,000 bags Cubans for Dec., Jan. and Feb. shipment, at 3½c c. and f., equal to 4.78c duty paid.

Receipts at three Atlantic ports for the week ending Dec. 14 were 32,302 tons, with meltings 26,000 tons, leaving total stock in all hands 117,516 tons. As advised in last week's report, there are 45 central factories in operation in Cuba, but stock at shipping ports has not yet commenced to accumulate.

Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba on Dec. 14 were 121,476 tons, a decrease of 102,057 tons from last year. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,582,476 tons, compared with 3,200,707 at the same date last year, the deficiency being 618,231 tons.

The refined situation is without special feature either in American or Canadian markets. In New York the tone is quiet but firm, and dealers are no longer underselling refiners in local markets. Trade is normal for the season of the year, and there are no special indications for the immediate future. We quote the following prices:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

The bulk of orders for the holiday trade in foreign dried fruits have been filled, the attention of the trade being now directed to a few sorting up orders and orders sent in at the last moment. Currants are firm and moving freely, as well as Valencia raisins, which tend towards a lower level of values. Prunes have advanced materially and buyers are no longer showing anxiety to cut prices. Blue fruit is being offered at very low prices to clear out goods which will be a drag on the market after the holidays. The Grocer has heard of some low quotations on prunes, but discovers incidentally that they are on old goods. Our quotations are as follows:

FOREIGN NUTS.

Grenoble walnuts are ariving in fair quantities. Brazils and Marbots are reported scarce and filberts as hard to get for rush orders, although shipments which left Sicily some time ago are expected to arrive almost any day. Present arrivals indicate a lower market. The consumptive demand will undoubtly fall off after the holiday season. Italian chestnuts are arriving at their normal value, prices having declined from 1 to 2c during the past week. A good demand is noted on all lines, with the exception of peanuts. Hides, Tallow, Skins and Wool.

Hides in Chicago have declined from 1c to 10 per lb. It is expected by many dealers that a low market will rule before Spring, as the hide is not so valuable then as earlier in the year. QUEBEC MARKETS.

Groceries.

Montreal, Dec. 22, 1904.

AMONG the jobbing trade during the week an air of apathy has prevailed. Business is reported as "just so-so" with only filling orders for fruits and seasonable specialties. "Getting ready for stocktaking" is also the refrain of many a jobber. Sugar is firm and the advance of 20c last week has led to prognostigations of a 5 1-2c price in the near future. New York and foreign markets for beets and raw are very strong. Teas are quiet and little trading in any line is being done. Some offers have been made on India and Ceylon greens during the week. Molasses advanced 3c per gallon since last issue. Corn syrups are getting more attention. In canned goods there is little to report with trade dull. Some lines of fruits are inquired for and a few orders for tomatoes are being taken. Coffee shows a decidedly strong position both in New York and locally. Spices continue firm. Shelled almonds have recovered from their recent slight decline and are quoted 2c higher. Filberts are reported lower in Sicily and local prices are low in sympathy. Shelled walnuts are slightly easier. Green fruits are quiet, the most interesting feature being California navels which are in good demand. Red onions are very scarce and high. Fish business is good but will undoubtedly drop off during the holidays. Oysters are high as the recent heavy storms on the Atlantic have frozen over some of the beds. Malpecques shell are practically out of the market. Poultry is decidedly active, turkeys, geese and chickens being in heavy demand, especially turkeys. Provisions are active, country and city buyers keeping the interest up. Smoked meats are good sellers. Flour remains unchanged with strong market. Vegetables show fairly good business with California celery a leader and Canadian celery high.

SUGAR.

The local market maintains its strong tone since the advance of 20c noted last week. The price at present prevailing is the highest that has been reached in years, and in some quarters it is expected that a 5 1-2c figure is bound to rule. The foreign markets are decidedly strong, and the statistical position is such as to keep the trade interested and on the lookout for higher prices.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Barbadoes molasses has been advanced to 30c in puncheons, and a stronger feeling seems to prevail. Corn syrups are also receiving considerable attention at the hands of the trade, and the cold weather is a stimulant to better business in this line.

SPICES.

The spice market maintains its strong tone. There is locally nothing of any startling importance to note. Trade is quoted among the jobbers as quiet and the wholesale spice men report that, as usual at this time, business is on the quiet side.

TEA.

The condition of the local market is certainly a quiet one; it is almost an impossibility to get any encouraging or interesting news. Brokers, as well as jobbers, complain of poor business and say there is practically little doing. As this is natural at this season of the year, owing to the approaching stocktaking time, a philosophical view is taken of the situation. It is not expected that much trading will be done this side of January first. The recent advance of a farthing in Ceylon and Indian greens, does not seem to have created any stimulus among buyers though some offers have been transmitted. Japans seem to be also decidedly uninteresting and while some trading is done, the quantities are not large.

CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing much to report in the canned goods situation. The jobbing trade is quiet, and retailers are not looking for anything in this line just now, except it be for some special lines of fruits. Some more sales of American tomatoes have been put through, though the amount is not very large, several carloads covering the orders. There is a slight demand for British Columbia salmon on account of the strong position of this line.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Nuts—Shelled almonds have recovered from their recent slight decline and are quoted 2s higher than last report. Stocks of pure Mayette Grenoble walnuts are about exhausted in this market, and some attention is being turned to commercials, which have been sold at about one cent below the price of pure Mayettes. In shelled walnuts the market is slightly easier for prompt shipment, but futures maintain their price. Further reduction in price of filberts is reported from Sicily, and we hear that holders on spot have correspondingly reduced their prices, which are now something like one cent below the highest point.

Figs—Spot stocks of Comadre entirely cleaned out, and last shipments have been made from Portugal, so that these seem to be good property to anyone fortunate enough to have any on hand.

Dates—Shipments from London are expected about the end of the month, the quality of which is reported fine. Shipments from New York have not shown up as well, being reported as somewhat on the dry side.

Currants—Stocks of currants are in short supply, and further import orders are being given on basis of last quotations.

Vegetables.

There has been quite an active demand, no doubt due to the holiday season. California celery is nearly done; this will be the last of the white plume for this year. A car of golden celery will be in in about a week. There is a strong demand for these goods and prices will no doubt advance shortly. Red onions are very scarce and Spanish onions are also expected to be much higher in price.

Fish.

The business in fish of all kinds has been fairly good, but the demand will be quiet during the Christmas holidays. Dealers expect a lull in the rush which has been on since the beginning of Advent in November. There is, however, the usual heavy demand for oysters, but unfortunately the recent severe cold snap which reached along the Atlantic coast as far south as Virginia, had the effect of freezing over some of the oyster beds and stock has been scarce in consequence, with some advance in prices at producing points. Dealers here still maintain old prices, although if any further advance occurs it will be necessary to raise prices from present quotations. In shell oysters Malpecques are very scarce, in fact there are practically none to be had from first hands, but some of the restaurant keepers who put away stock for Winter trade, still have a fair supply, which, however, they are holding at high prices. Some sales are reported this week at from $10 to $11 per barrel for No. 1 hand picked Malpecques. Ordinary grades of oysters, such as Caraquets, are still in fairly good supply, and the demand is reverting to these owing to the scarcity of Malpecques. The prospects are that there will be no shell oysters in this market after January 1st. The prices of fish of all kinds remain about the same. There has not been much doing in salt fish and trade will be quiet in this line until after January 1st.

The market shows a firmer tendency and a good potato business is being done. Car prices, during the week, ran from 62 1-2 to 65c a bag for choice stock, and from the jobbing trade 70c to 75c a bag.

HONEY.

Comb honey is in good demand. Spot stocks are light and in consequence prices have firmed up. Extracted honey in tins has been coming in very freely and prices show a tendency to decline, though it is not expected any perceptible drop will occur.

REPRINT BULLETIN NO. 95.

Inland Revenue Department.

The Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, has issued a reprint of Bulletin No. 95, dealing with ground spices. This was found necessary on account of error that had been made in previous issue with samples of pepper supposed to have been sent out by S. H. & A. S. Ewing, Montreal, but which investigation proved were not supplied by this house. S. H. & A. S. Ewing drew the attention of the Minister of Inland Revenue, Hon. L. A. Brodeur, to the injustice that was being done their firm in attributing the manufacture of the condemned articles to them. Mr. Brodeur had the matter thoroughly investigated, and finding an error had been made ordered the bulletin withdrawn and a reprint, acknowledging the error, published. This action is deservedly appreciated, and gives confidence to the manufacturing interests and the trade that the Department of Inland Revenue, under Hon Mr. Brodeur's jurisdiction, will be controlled in an impartial and just manner. It is also gratifying to S. H. & A. S. Ewing to know that their protest was acknowledged and their contention allowed.

The Fishing Industries of Ceylon

By J. Hornell, Marine Biologist to the Ceylon Government.

THE fisheries of Ceylon at the present day are carried on, in the main, according to the primitive methods prescribed by the customs of bygone centuries; the trammels of the caste system do much to limit development. Little has yet been done to organize methods, to introduce improvements in the conduct of existing industries, or, until recently, to enlist the help of those scientific methods of control and culture which have proved so conspicuously successful in the United States in the improvement of old and in the creation of new fishing industries.

Yet, in spite of this absolute conservatism, the fisheries of the island furnish very great supplies of excellent fish. Over seventy-four thousand of the population depend thereon for their livelihood. The great majority of the fishermen are Roman Catholics, especially among the Singalese. Comparatively few Buddhists of the fisher caste follow this avocation now, but in the north and east a not inconsiderable number of Hindu Yamils and of Moormen (island-born Mohammedans) are engaged in sea fishing and in pearl and chank diving.

SEA FISHING.

Within certain limits much ingenuity is displayed in the devising of nets and traps and in their manufacture, but everything is of the past—stereotyped and become immutable. Nothing in the way of dredges or trawls has been evolved; the lines and nets at present find villagers of to-day capturing fish in precisely the same way as was described and figured in the middle of the seventeenth century by Robert Knox, an English sailor held captive for many years by the Kandyan king of that period.

Outrigger canoes are the favorite craft of the Singalese fishermen. In the larger ones men venture daily even so far as twenty miles from land in quest of the seer—most esteemed of Ceylon fishes—lining for it as fishers in English waters do for mackerel. These boats frequently attain a speed of eight knots in a favorable breeze, skimming lightly over the sea by the help of a single huge cotton sail. It is this brown-winged fleet which forms that picturesque vanguard of the island so often met by incoming steamers long before the coast is clearly distinguishable. Frail looking as they are, they are remarkably safe in reality, and it is wonderful what heavy weather they take in their daily routine. Nothing save the breaking of the outrigger is to be feared, and that need not occur if ordinary prudence be observed.

On all the coasts a certain amount of fishing goes on the whole year round to satisfy the local demand for fresh fish. Besides this settled industry, much of which is in-shore fishing, a large number of boats change their fishing grounds periodically, working off the west and south coasts during the north-east monsoon, and migrating to the eastern districts when the turbulent swell of the south-west monsoon renders fishing difficult and less prosperous in the former localities.

Comparatively little fish curing or salting is carried on, notwithstanding that the Government has done much to encourage the industry by establishing fish-curing yards, where facilities are given curers to procure the necessary supplies of salt on favorable terms—a failure, partly due to the supply of fish in the localities where some of these yards are established being inadequate to meet both the local demand for fresh fish and that of the curer. As a consequence the industry languishes; operations cannot be undertaken on a scale of magnitude sufficiently great to be profitable. More energy and capital than are at present available are required, and to be successful, curers must work on a foundation of well thought out organization, aided by the utilization of modern and improved methods of sea fishing and of curing Having relation to this question is the fact that "cured or salted fish" (from India chiefly) was imported in 1902 to the extent of 237,879 cwt., valued at Rs. 1,766,524, to which must be added Rs. 2,026,928 worth of dried fish from the Maldive Islands—a total of Rs. 1,-766,524—making a total of Rs. 3,793,452 ($1,264,484) worth of imported fish. Against this enormous import we have as offset the triviality of Rs. 17,706 worth of Ceylon cured fish exported during the same period.

A trade distinct from that of ordinary fish-curing is the preparation for the Chinese market of dried sharks' fins. In this article an extensive trade is done in the northern province, less, however, in recent years than formerly. Thus the exports for the two years 1900 and 1901 were collectively but of the value of Rs. 26,528, as against Rs. 30,398 in 1891 and Rs. 27,353 in 1892. Last year, 1903, exports amounted to Rs. 17,523.

Among the most valued of the fishes commonly taken are the seer (Cybium guttatum), a huge mackerel with flesh firm and white; mullet, sea-pike, bonitos, bream, sword-fish, and sharks, together with rays of many species, some of which often attain huge dimensions, fourteen feet from margin to margin across the body being recorded. Immense shoals of sardines and of "white-bait" frequent the coast at periodical seasons, and are caught sometimes by means of large seines, sometimes by means of the throw or casting net.

Other "fish" sent to market comprise turtle, dugong, crawfish (locally known as lobster), and a variety of prawns and crabs. Turtles are taken chiefly in the neighborhood of Hambantota in the south and in the waters of the Jaffna peninsula in the north. The usual modes of capture are either by means of large nets or by the use of a rude but effective harpoon. The Mannar district occasionally supplies dugong, which resort to the warm shallows of that locality to feed upon the abounding sea grass.

Crabs and crawfish of excellent quality are taken locally in some abundance in net traps of peculiar construction, differing utterly from the European idea of wicker lobster traps. A number of these when baited and placed in position are kept continually in view by the fisherman, who hauls up to examine whenever the agitation of a float signals interference with the bait.

On rocky parts of the coast the swiftly scurrying rock-crabs may sometimes be seen captured for bait by men using a tiny noose formed of a single coil fibre adjusted upon the slender tip of a fishing rod made from the highly elastic midrib of a leaf of the kitul palm. Cautiously the angler stalks his prey; when the crab is within striking distance the noose descends silently, the crab not really alarmed puts up an inquiring claw, thereon the noose slips suddenly, and lo! the crab is swung through the air into the fisher's hand.

Another rare form of angling is practised at Galle. There shoals of small fish so abound that crowds of men and boys, armed with rods, wade into the lagoon, and may often be seen hauling forth several fish a minute, even a couple at a time, without the superfluity of using a bait. A line armed

Although wicker traps are not used for catching crabs, such are in common use for taking the smaller fishes, both in the sea and in rivers. Three forms of fish traps are exhibited, together with two patterns of bottomless wicker baskets, employed to capture fish upon flooded land—often in paddy fields—when the waters begin to subside.

DEATH OF GEORGE LIGHTBOUND.

AFTER a protracted illness of about two and a half years, during which time he was periodically able to attend to business, Mr. George Lightbound died at his residence, 19 North street, Toronto, on December 18, 1904.

Mr. Lightbound came to Canada about 30 years ago from Liverpool, his native city. Settling in Montreal he identified himself with the wholesale grocery business conducted by the late Peter Robertson whose daughter he afterwards married. In those days there was the closest possible intimacy between Mr. Lightbound and his employer, which led to his being admitted to partnership. After the death of Mr. Robertson a new partnership was formed consisting of Mr. Lightbound, the late Mr. Ralston and Mr. Joseph Huxley, now of Winnipeg, under the name of Lightbound, Ralston & Co., a firm to be reckoned with in the grocery trade of Canada at that time.

Mr. Lightbound's reputation as a fearless operator was proverbial from coast to coast and his firm soon established a connection with the grocery trade from Halifax to Vancouver. After the liquidation of the firm of Lightbound, Ralston & Co., Mr. Lightbound carried on business in his own name as importer and commission merchant in Montreal and Toronto with headquarters in the latter city for the past six years. His connections, however, were so varied and extensive that he found it necessary to do much traveling in the interests of the houses he represented. His familiar face with its cheery smile was welcome wherever he went. In fact his visits were eagerly looked for by business friends and acquaintances and it was a matter of keen regret to them that during the past two and a half years these visits became less and less frequent. Mr. Lightbound was, however, a rare correspondent, and it was a cause for much admiration on the part of his friends to observe the manner in which he maintained his business connections by letter, wire, and through the medium of periodical circulars which were always read with keen interest.

A trip Mr. Lightbound made to the Pacific coast in the early Winter of 1898 seemed to precipitate the trouble which ultimately carried him off and in June of the following year it was evident that the disease had taken a serious hold upon him. It was then that the spirit of the man asserted itself, for, as he often said, it was "good to be alive," and there followed a protracted, and to his friends a painful struggle, between his masterful spirit and his failing physical strength. Even during the past two and a half years Mr. Lightbound made occasional business trips, going as far east as Quebec and as far west as London, but the strain was such that on each occasion he returned with lowered vitality. The end was anticipated any day during the past two weeks and came quite suddenly at the last.

Mr. Lightbound is survived by a widow, four daughters and two sons, the elder son being at present in South Africa, whither he went as a member of the first contingent R.C.R., returning later with a lieutenant's commission in the South African Constabulary.

After a funeral service at the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, on Tuesday, December 20, the remains were taken to Montreal for interment in Mount Royal Cemetery.

BUSINESS MEN IN PARLIAMENT.

D. W. Bole, M.P.

WINNIPEG'S new representative at Ottawa, Mr. D. W. Bole, is one of the prominent commercial figures of the western metropolis, being the president and managing director of the Bole Drug Co., wholesale druggists, with large warehouses in Regina and Calgary.

Mr. Bole is a native of Lambton County, Ontario, where he was born in 1856. He received his education at the common schools of Woodstock, and later studied at Woodstock College. He then proceeded to take the pharmacy course at Toronto, graduating in 1880.

In 1882 Mr. Bole, like many another young man, started out to the Northwest and established himself at Regina, where he launched out as a small drug jobber. His business grew until in 1889 he decided to move to Winnipeg, where he organized the firm of Bole, Wynne Co., which in 1893 amalgamated with the firm of E. D. Martin & Co.

The Bole Drug Co., as it now exists, was organized in 1898 with a capital of $300,000, of which $225,000 has been paid up. The company have a splendid warehouse at Nos. 66, 68 and 70 Princess street, Winnipeg, admirably equipped to meet the growing requirements of the Canadian west.

Mr. Bole's apprenticeship to the art of government was served on the Winnipeg City Council and the Winnipeg Board of Education. He was for two years a valued alderman of the city, and his period of service on the Board of Education extended over eight years, during three years of which time he acted as chairman. The Board of Trade has also been the scene of much of Mr. Bole's activity, and in 1898 he occupied the president's chair.

As president of the Wholesale Druggists' Association of Canada, Mr. Bole takes rank as the leader of the wholesale drug interests of the Dominion. He has always been enthusiastic in his work for this association, and his elevation to the presidency comes as a just reward for years of hard work on its behalf.

Mr. Bole's interests are by no means centred on business and politics. He has devoted himself also to benevolent works, and he has always been a champion of the cause of education. He is at present a distinguished member of the Board of Management and Senate of Manitoba College.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, December 22nd, 1904.

WINNIPEG wholesale grocery trade is principally of a sorting nature this week as the holiday trade is now over except for a few "rush" orders of a sorting nature. Christmas trade in city and country has been of large proportions, a sure indication of the general prosperity of the country. Sugar continues to be the centre of attention. Last week just as The Canadan Grocer went to press the local prices were advanced to $6 for Montreal granulated in barrels. At time of writing these prices still obtain, but as the sugar market continues very uncertain it may be necessary to record a further change by telegraph. Whether that change will be an advance or decline it is difficult in the present condition of the market to predict. The present abnormal advance seems to be speculative in character and many shrewd buyers are purchasing in small quantities in the belief that present conditions will not long obtain. In sympathy with the big advance in sugar all cane syrups are firmer, but corn syrups are likely to be easier in view of the immense western crop. Of course this is not yet available and it will be some time before the effect is felt.

Many travelers are now off the road and wholesale trade is quiet but a good January trade is expected. Collections are improving.

Sugar.

As noted above the sugar market continues to attract particular attention. At time of writing the market remains steady at the advance which took place just as The Grocer went to press last week. In the present state of the market changes are always to be expected and further changes may be telegraphed this week. Most shrewd buyers are of the opinion that the present advance is speculative in its character and in their opinion it is the part of wisdom to buy sparingly. We quote:

Canned Goods.

There has been a seasonable movement of canned goods, but no exceptional activity. Canned fruits have been selling, the holiday season having given business an added impetus. Vegetables are in fair demand and, except for tomatoes, in good supply. We quote:

Apples 3's, 2 doz. cases, per case	2 45

Syrups and Molasses.

In sympathy with the abnormal strength of the sugar market, all cane syrups are firm and likely to advance if the present prices for sugar are long maintained. But this is counterbalanced by a tendency to weakness in corn syrups, because of the immense western crop this year. Of course the effect of this large crop has not yet been directly felt and it may be some time before it effects any quotable change, but in well informed quarters it is expected that corn syrups will see a decline. We quote as before:

Coffee.

Rios continue firm in primary markets but local prices are quite unchanged. Trade is quiet. We quote:

Green Rio, per lb	0 10½ 0 11

Foreign Dried Fruits.

Trade is slakening as the holiday demand is nearly over, but a seasonable business is in progress. Valencias have been in particularly active demand and spot stocks are said to be low. We quote:

Green Fruits.

Holiday trade has been more than ordinarily active and spot stocks of some fruits are reported low. As noted last week, snow apples are now off the market and spies and other high grade Winter apples are only in moderate supply. Oranges and lemons continue firm at present high prices. We quote:

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 15th, 1904.

WHAT features there are this week are in connection with the fruit end of the business. As was anticipated there is a shortage of Japanese oranges, and it is expected that there will be none in the market by Christmas. The last shipments that arrived on the Empress of India went mostly to Winnipeg, though Oscar Brown & Co. received a thousand boxes. Prices have advanced 10 cents, and the outlook is that the supply will be exhausted this week, as there is a big demand for this excellent fruit. The next shipment will be here after Christmas, so it looks as if the California article will be patronized after all. In Victoria and Nanaimo the market was affected even greater than here.

New Malaga raisins are up 25c, and the tendency in California dried peaches and apricots is an advance of 1-2 to 1c. Lemons are a little lower, but there is room for this as prices went up 10c a dozen only on the local shortage. Malaga grapes have also declined slightly.

Teas are on the ascend, and coffees will likely go higher. Both black and Dawson markets are more absent from features this Winter than on previous occasions. The camp is well supplied with potatoes and eggs, the latter being cheap, as prices go in Dawson, and promise to continue so all Winter. Never before has the supply been better. There is now an abundant supply of fresh meat, the Indians bringing in game, and caribou sells for 25c pound by the quarter, and sheep at 30c. The weather is getting colder in the north, and this will facilitate shipment to the creeks. The market is also long on butter, and there is a heavy supply of feed. Ashcroft Burbank potatoes are selling, as low as 6 1-2c per pound, and choice Burbanks as low as 7c.

F. V. Moffet, manager of the Columbia Flouring Mills, Enderby, was in the city this week on business. The mills of the company are located at Enderby and Vernon, and constitute one of the principal industries of the interior. The extent of their trade and operations is large and is rapidly extending. In addition to making large shipments to the coast and interior cities, the product from these mills is used extensively in the camps of the Yukon and Atlin, and trade is now being opened up with the Orient. Two shipments of 5,000 barrels each have been sent out during the last month, and more orders are being filled. There is room for business in that quarter, American mills having heretofore done the greatest part of the business, shipping through the port of Vancouver. The capacity of the mill at Enderby is 300 barrels per day, and of the Vernon mill, 100 barrels per day. In providing a market for wheat in the Okanagan, a stimulus is given to agriculture. The firm has also a 30,000 bushel elevator at Lethbridge, and others are to be erected. Mr. Moffet has had considerable experience in eastern mills, and also with the Portland and Puget Sound flouring mills.

T. R. Kershaw, fishery commissioner for the State of Washington, in his annual report just issued, states that he believes the establishment of an international hatchery for the propagation of salmon would be an immense benefit to this fishing industry, and entertains the belief that a joint effort of the Puget Sound people and those of the Fraser River would accomplish this. He points out that the Americans have been derelict in the preservation of the fish, and lays equal blame on the Canadians for the present unfortunate conditions of scarcity. He does not mention the fact of the great depletion caused by American traps, nor of the incessant fishing by them, when Canadians were observing vs.

Expenses
Investments.

Some lines are in the way of a continual expense. You probably have in your store at the present time a dozen or more lines that have never been a success; to be short, they are "stickers." You have from time to time pushed sales of these goods. The customer takes the purchase home; sometimes keeps it; often returns it, asking for some other brand of the line that is well known to them. It stays on the shelves, decreasing in value steadily and taking up valuable room, a continual expense; while were it an article that was a product of a firm whose goods are generally known and liked, a "repeater," selling readily at a good profit, it would be a gilt-edge investment giving a big interest.

We show two lines that are satisfactory investments, they move easily and show a good margin of profit.

at least one day in the week as close season during the Summer.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer goes so far as to advocate an entire close season in 1905, which would give a great abundance of fish on the fourth years thereafter. It says it would be a fine thing if the Canadians would relinquish fishing next year, and from the article it is to be inferred that the Americans would open all their traps and take advantage of it. The proposition will not likely meet with the endorsation of the cannerymen on this side of the line, as they are all making preparations for the anticipated big run next year, and hope to recoup some of the losses of the past few seasons. The British Columbia Packers' Association is to authorize the issue of $500,000 worth of bonds to provide further capital for working expenses for 1905, with the big pack in view. These bonds will be given as security for money advanced by the banks, and if the season is a good one will not be taken up.

An instance in the decline of values of canneries, consequent upon existing conditions, may be seen in the big sale which took place at Bellingham on Saturday last. Considerably less than the upset price was realized on the assets of the Pacific Packing and Navigation Co., and it is not likely that the court will be asked to confirm the bids. The prices were the lowest ever bid on the coast, and the receivers present protested against such ridiculously low figures.

The Victoria Board of Trade has resolved to take action in bringing to the attention of the Dominion Government that the halibut fishing industry in Canadian Pacific waters was entirely in the hands of an alien company, the discrimination resulting in the excluding of Canadian fishermen. The board is to ask for an expert to make a thorough report of the Pacific coast fisheries, and all matters appertaining thereto, such as packing, transportation, etc.

The herring fishing industry in Nanaimo, which has developed only during the last couple of years, now employs 100 hands.

The article on "Fruit Growing in British Columbia" in the Special Fall Grocer was excellent enough to bring a request from R. M. Palmer, of the Provincial Department of Agriculture for permission to include it in the next bulletin issued by the Government.

The superior quality of British Columbia fruit is indicated in the report of Hon. Mr. Tatlow, who took a shipment of British Columbia pears among other fruit to the Royal Horticultural Show in London. The judges, after tasting the pears and awarding first prize, could not withstand the temptation to eat them, and demolished them all.

The plant of Brackman & Ker, in their mill at Victoria, which is being installed to manufacture a new cereal, will be in operation shortly after the first of the year.

Mr. E. Coe, of Canterbury, New Zealand, who was in the city last week en route home, expressed the opinion that a subsidized direct line to that country would develop a large trade. He is a prominent business man.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Dec., 1904.

CHRISTMAS means little business for the wholesaler, but active times for the retailer. It means stocktaking, which is always looked forward to as an unpleasant feature. It, of course, involves extra work, but it comes at a quiet time. Quite a number prefer the last of January, as it gives them a chance to get many accounts squared up before closing their books for the year.

We are still without snow in the city. Weather is very fine. In markets there is very little of interest. Prices as a rule are firm. There is general regret and sympathy expressed that Mr. S. S. DeForest was forced to suspend payment. While always a matter of great unpleasantness, it is particularly so at this season.

Oil.

In burning oil values are held at the lower prices quoted last week. The decline is due chiefly to local conditions in these lower provinces. The crude oil market is reported very firm. There is great competition in the northern part of the province, where the greater change in price has been. In lubricating oils, prices are firm. A good business is reported. Linseed oil, while low, is reported firmer. Turpentine is unchanged. Cod oil is quite firm and a fair stock is held. The oil delivered here by the Bay of Fundy fishermen is not as good as it should be, and needs further refining at the hands of the oil people. Because of this the price to the fishermen is lower than it ought to be.

Salt.

In Liverpool coarse salt a fair stock is held. Prices are very firm. Demand at this season is light. Fine salt also sells slowly.

Canned Goods.

There is little to report. American corn is now freely offered. This is the first American corn sold here for many years. There seems a fair stock of Canadian tomatoes held. Peas are plentiful. Those who carried salmon over make a good profit, but on salmon bought this Fall profit is small, at least where full prices were paid. Fruits, except apples, are firm. Oysters continue high. Domestic fish are not a large stock, particularly finnan haddies.

Green Fruits.

There is good Christmas business. In oranges there are Valencias, but these are but fair quality, it being early; price is firm. Jamaicas are good, but getting light supply. In Californias there is but a small business, these just coming on the market. Floridas have a good holiday demand. Prices are not high. Lemons are quite low. Apples are rather firmer, best goods bringing quite full prices. Cranberries are well below last year's price. Some good Malaga grapes are still offered.

Dried Fruit.

Sales have been good. Seeded raisins are cheap and have the chief sale. Stock of 4 cr. L. M. raisins is very small, there not being enough to go around. Valencias are in light supply, but there are enough. Currants are selling freely. Peels have had a large sale. Dates are rather lower. Figs have had a fair sale only. Prunes are cheap, with small sizes in demand. Evaporated apples remain unchanged and price is low. Onions are rather firmer.

Sugar.

There is some particularly nice granulated sugar being received by the dealers outside the guild, while in bags the package is attractive. The market is very firm, and the guild men are getting the full advantage of the advance.

Molasses.

There is but a fair sale. The market is held firm. Supply here is chiefly Porto Rico.

Fish.

There is now quite a business in frozen fish. Some herring have been received, but the fish are small. Fresh haddock are quite scarce, the supply being chiefly used to make finnan haddies. These are held at full prices. Dry fish are still very high. Pickled herring are rather easier. Smoked herring are quite low and sales have been large.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Flour is unchanged. There is a fair demand. While oatmeal is rather lower, prices here show little change. Cornmeal is rather easier. Sales in bags are quite large. Beans have a fair demand at even prices. Barley sells slowly. Hay is quite high this season. There is quite a trade here shipping to Nova Scotia.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Wholesale Grocers' Guild was held last Thursday, Dec. 15, in the council room of the Board of Trade, Montreal. The election of officers for the year 1905 resulted in re-election of the old board, consisting of the following: President, L. E. Geoffrion; vice-president, J. E. Quintal; treasurer, Alex. Orsali. Directors: H. A. Archambault, S. J. Carter and L. O. Demers.

As the guild's nominee for election to the Council of the Board of Trade, Albert Hebert was again chosen. The guild has had a very successful season, many matters of importance having been satisfactorily arranged, and the outlook for 1905 is bright.

AN EXCELLENT AD.

One of the best things in The Grocer this week is the advertisement of the A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Limited, and it should not be overlooked. It is not very often that we are favored with genuine "poetry," and the opportunity is one which may not often present itself; the grocery trade of the twentieth century is a subject which is seldom dealt with in "the music of the gods," and an article which will bear such exploitation must indeed be worthy of very close acquaintance.

THE NORTHWEST COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' ASSOCIATION

AT a meeting held in Winnipeg during the last week in November, the members of the Northwest Commercial Travelers' Association made their nominations for the executive for the year 1905. The president, vice-president and treasurer were elected by acclamation, but there was a close contest for the election of directors, fifteen names being placed in nomination for the eight seats. At a second meeting, held in the board room of the Grain Exchange on the evening of Saturday, Dec. 17, the result of the balloting, which had been in progress for more than two weeks, was announced. The new executive consists of the following members :

President—John Horne, of Campbell Bros. & Wilson. Elected by acclamation.

Vice-President—D. J. Dyson, of The Dyson Co. Elected by acclamation.

Treasurer—L. C. MacIntyre, of Paulin-Chambers Co. Elected by acclamation.

Past President—F. H. Agnew, of The James Robertson Co., becomes a director for 1905.

Directors—W. W. Bole, of The Bole Drug Co.; G. F. Bryan, of G. F. Bryan & Co.; A. Congdon, of A. Congdon & Co.; F. W. Drewry, of The Redwood Factories T. H. Murphy, of The Royal Crown, Limited; F. M. Morgan, of The Ames Holden Co.; J. E. McRobie, of The James Robertson Co.; R. Neve, of Codville & Co.

Board of Directors for British Columbia. All elected by acclamation.

Vice-President for Vancouver—E. W. Gerster, of Martin & Robertson.

Vice-President for Victoria—H. H. Welch, of B. C. Soap Works.

Directors for Vancouver—Thos. Parkinson, of F. T. Stewart & Co.; F. A. Richardson, of The Ames Holden Co.

Director for Victoria—F. J. Hall, jr., of Turner, Beeton & Co.

Director for New Westminster—T. A. Cunningham, of Cunningham Hardware Co.

Director for Kootenay. Geo. Nunn, of Alex. Macdonald & Co.

Mr. John Horne.

The newly elected president is a type of the modest, unassuming man whose good qualities, against his will perhaps, force him to the front and secure for him a well merited popularity among his associates. In his speech at the second meeting thanking the association for the honor they had conferred on him, he indulged in no rash promises as to his programme for 1905, but it was evident that the members were unanimously of the opinion that the interests of their association are safe in his hands. Mr. Horne is well known among the "knights of the grip," and also among the grocery trade of the Northwest. For nine years he was city traveler for Codville & Co., of Winnipeg, and during the last five years he has been connected with Campbell Bros. & Wilson, of the same city. He has traveled extensively through Manitoba and the Territories, and is thoroughly in sympathy with the troubles of his fellows.

Mr. D. J. Dyson.

Mr. D. J. Dyson, of the Dyson Co., is "one of the boys," having been an active traveler for many years, although for the last six months he has been steadily inside. His election as vice-president is a very popular one among the travelers. Like most successful business men of the west, Mr. Dyson is one of the wise men who knew enough to come from the east years ago. In 1891 he was a member of the London, Ont., firm of Gorman, Dyson & Co., now known as Gorman, Eckert & Co. In that year Mr. Dyson caught the western fever, and coming west he founded the firm known as the Dyson-Gibson Co., now the Dyson Co. In building up his present prosperous business he has covered the territory from Winnipeg to the coast many times, and he has a wide acquaintance among the western trade who will be glad to hear of the honor conferred on him. He has served the association during the last year as a director, and that experience, coupled with his three years' experience as a member of the Winnipeg City Council, should make him an efficient vice-president.

Mr. L. C. MacIntyre.

The treasurer of the association is now entering on the ninth year of his service in that most important office, and his long term and recent re-election by acclamation are sufficient testimony to the esteem in which he is held by the association. Among themselves, commercial men are always plain talkers, and they are frank in their criticisms. The only criticism of Mr. MacIntyre was that he is over zealous in his protection of the association's funds, and surely that criticism is the highest compliment which could be paid to a treasurer. Mr. MacIntyre came to Winnipeg from Victoria County, Ontario, in 1882. For ten years he was a traveler for Turner, McKeand & Co., wholesale grocers of Winnipeg, and for the last 12 years he has been manager of the Paulin-Chambers Co.

The President's Report.

For an association with 1,550 members the attendance at the meeting held on Saturday evening, Dec. 17, was disappointingly small. Evidently the members have confidence in their executive, or they would attend in larger numbers to receive their reports, but the officers are men who welcome criticism and discussion as always beneficial. The retiring president, F. H. Agnew, of the Jas. Robertson Co., presided, and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been confirmed he presented his annual report. It showed that the last year has been an increasingly prosperous one, both from a financial and numerical standpoint. The total membership is now 1,550, which is an increase for 1904 of 309 members. The membership is apportioned as follows : Winnipeg, active, 1,216; honorary, 26; life, 2. British Columbia, active members, 306.

The British Columbia branch was reported as flourishing. It shows an increase of 76 members for the year. The report announced that in accordance with a resolution passed at the general meeting, and in order to cement more firmly the bond between the head office and the British Columbia branch, a request had been sent to the B. C. board to appoint and send a delegate to the annual meeting and entertainment, at the general expense of the association.

The report called attention to the blank hotel reports which have been freely distributed this year and largely made use of by the members. It was gratifying to note the visible improvement in the condition of a large number of the hotels. There was still a good work to be done before all cause for complaint is removed in the Northwest.

The retiring president stated that an application had been received from some of the members resident in Calgary, asking for special representation, and for the appointment of a secretary in Calgary. The board find that the membership with headquarters in Calgary is not yet large, and they recommend, after careful consideration of the matter and examination into the facts in connection therewith, that the request be not granted.

The report showed that the association had lost twelve members by death, namely : Messrs. W. T. Walters, Moses Bamber, J. Schroeder, Hy. Atkinson, R. G. Gordon, Thos. Roney, S. Kirkpatrick, H. H. McLean, W. F. Irwin, and C. F. Hostler, Winnipeg members ; and Messrs. Jno. Ibbetson and H. Orchard, B. C. members. The several claims on the mortuary benefit fund were promptly paid.

This gratifying report, after some discussion, was adopted unanimously.

The Treasurer's Report.

Mr. MacIntyre's report showed the finances of the association to be flourishing. The increase in gross receipts over 1903 was $3,570.39, or over 26 per cent., whereas the expense account has increased only $342.90, or about $1.10 for each new member added to the roll. The assets amount to $62,288.22.

The treasurer's report, which was finally adopted, was naturally the subject of considerable discussion. It was suggested by some members that the association would save money by carrying its own accident insurance, but the general opinion of the meeting was evidently against this proposal.

The association own some real estate on Lombard street, Winnipeg, which was bought some years ago for the purpose of erecting on it a club for the members. The various executives have had the project under consideration for several years, and they have evidently come to the conclusion that the undertaking was too great. Treasurer MacIntyre favors the selling of the association's real estate. A motion by A. L. Johnson and seconded by the treasurer, expressed the opinion that it would be advisable for the executive to sell the property. This occasioned a long, spirited, and at times heated, discussion, and the motion was finally carried by a majority of only four. It was argued that it would be unwise to invest all the funds of the association in a building which might be profitable and again might not. Several members stated that the club rooms in the east were little used by the members of the association. There was evidently a strong feeling in favor of a social meeting place for the members, and a motion was passed asking the executive to take immediate steps. to rent suitable club rooms.

B. C. Representatives.

Mr. Gallagher, a representative from British Columbia, was present at the meeting, but owing to illness was unable to stay until its conclusion. He drew attention to a number of matters in which the B. C. members are most interested, and made suggestions which the president assured him would be considered by the executive.

Report of Scrutineers.

The last order of business was the report of the scrutineers. Some 420 ballots were cast. The result of the election was announced as above. After speeches from the officers elect, and various votes of thanks, the meeting adjourned.

COFFEE MEN OFF TO BOSTON.

The traveling staff of Chase & Sanborn, coffee importers and roasters, Montreal, have ceased taking orders for the balance of the year, and accompanied by Mr. D. Gillmor, of the firm, and Mr. J. Anderson, the accountant, left for Boston to attend the annual reunion of the firm's salesmen. About forty representatives from all parts of Canada and the United States will be present at the banquet tendered them by the company, at the Hotel Lenox. An exchange of ideas is always beneficial to business, and Chase & Sanborn have the happy faculty of getting close to their salesmen, and through them the trade.

FIRMS INCORPORATED.

The American Coffee & Spice Co., Toronto, have been incorporated with a share capital of $50,000, to manufacture and deal in spices, teas, coffees, etc. The directors are: M. M. Clancy, Jas. McKie, and L. W. S. Easton, all of Toronto.

9,000,000 POUNDS OF SUGAR.

The amount of sugar beets unloaded thus far this year at the Berlin Sugar Factory exceeds last year by 2,000 tons. Last year the amount was 28,000 tons, and there are about 5,000 tons still to come in this year, so the total will be 33,000 tons. Last year the output of granulated sugar was 7,000,000 pounds. This year, with the increased crop of beets, the output will be near 9,000,000 pounds. Farmers are now making arrangements for next year's acreage, and prospects are that it will be much greater than last year.—Berlin Telegraph.

THE "BOWSER."

The question of storing oils in such a manner as to prevent loss by leakage, accumulation of dust and dirt, oil soaked floors and consequent fire danger, has been successfully solved by the Bowser Self-Measuring Oil Tanks, manufactured by S. F. Bowser & Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Their tanks are fitted with pumps which, at one stroke, measure an accurate gallon, half gallon and quart. As oil, time and labor savers, and consequently money savers, the Bowser oil outfits represent a splendid investment which fact has already been appreciated by over 200,000 leading merchants and manufacturers.

SUGGESTIONS TO THE TRADE.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has received the following communication from "Commercial Traveler," containing a number of valuable suggestions to the grocery trade:

Editor of Canadian Grocer:

During the past month in their anxiety to sell, some travelers have been quoting goods without saying anything about the fact that they were to arrive. Goods are often quoted without reference to quality, whether old or new; this applies particularly to candied peels, some of which are excellent and others trash.

A large proportion of the California raisins which are sold in packages are old stock freshly seeded, which will soon be candied; at the same time there is very little discrimination made between these and absolutely new goods. In buying nuts the retailer often has snaps offered but if he would only look into the matter he would find that some of the old-fashioned houses give tare discount, etc., while others sell net cash gross weight. In many of the up-to-date stores this year are to be seen so-called new Grenoble walnuts which are nothing more or less than a mixture of old and new nuts with a large proportion of marbots.

A Most Merry Christmas

This is the time of year when peace is and should be in the hearts of men,—and happy is that man whose peace comes from the consciousness of having done well.

CATALOGUES, BOOKLETS, ETC.

THE Metallic Roofing Co., of Canada, Limited, Toronto, have issued an exceptionally fine catalogue descriptive of sheet metal building materials. This is probably the finest catalogue ever issued by a manufacturer of this class of goods. The catalogue is 12x9x1 1-2 inches, and is handsomely bound in cloth with silver designs. There are 439 pages.

It would be impossible to even attempt to run over the contents of this volume since everything in the sheet metal building materials line is illustrated and described. The descriptions are clear and comprehensive. Not only are the materials themselves described and illustrated, but in many cases an illustration is given of some building in the construction of which this special material is used. Thus accompanying the description of the "Hayes" Patent Steel Lathing, full page illustrations are given of the following buildings in which the "Hayes" lath was used: City Hall, Toronto; University of Toronto; Toronto University Library; St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto; Parliament Buildings, Ottawa; Union Station, Toronto; Head Office of Dominion Bank and Confederation Life Building, Toronto.

The typographical work is high-class and attractive. On the whole the production is something for the Metallic Roofing Co. to be proud of.

PEERLESS CHOCOLATES.

The Winnipeg office of The Canadian Grocer is in receipt of a Christmas box of assorted "Peerless" chocolates from Paulin-Chambers Co., and the editor wishes to bear testimony to the fact that in the manufacture of sweets as well as most other things the west need concede no superiority to the east.

PRACTICAL RESULTS OF CO-OPERATION

FOR the past three years the Fruit Division, Ottawa, has been earnestly advocating co-operation among fruit growers, not only in marketing their products, but in many other ways as well. It has been pointed out that beginners might co-operate to buy the trees best suited to their district at the lowest price; that uniform methods of orchard management might be adopted in order to ensure a uniform quality of fruit; that effective and systematic spraying might be secured by means of power outfits, serving a neighborhood in the same manner as the threshing machine; that cheaper supplies, such as implements, chemicals for spraying, and packages for shipping, might be obtained; and that by putting up co-operative packing houses at proper centres, uniform grading and packing, with consequent easier sale at better prices, might be secured. This season apple buyers have not been competing as usual for the farmer's crop, and the prices offered for apples have been unusually low. A good many farmers have not been able to sell their apples at all, and in consequence they are more or less disgusted with the fruit outlook. They have learned by bitter experience that it will not do to depend on the traveling buyer. They must co-operate in the packing and marketing of their apples if they desire to be reasonably sure of a fair return from their orchards.

The co-operative system of marketing has proved a great success in connection with the California fruit crop, the Texas tomato crop, and in many other cases in the United States. It is rapidly gaining ground in Canada, and the practical results of its operation at several Ontario points are worthy of consideration by every orchardist. The Walkerton association, which started in a small way three years ago, established this season a central co-operative packing house. To this central point the members brought their apples in barrels which had been purchased through the organization. The apples were delivered in hayracks, the bottoms of which were well covered with hay, or in spring wagons, and any found unfit for packing were returned. The various lots were not kept separate, but all the apples were graded as they came in and the proceeds were divided among the members according to the quantity of each grade they supplied. The expense of packing was from 10 to 15 cents a barrel, which was less than the cost of packing in the orchard. This year eight cars of fruit were sold, including soft apples like Duchess and Astrachan, and for the entire lot prices ranged from $1.75 to $2.20 a barrel on board cars at Walkerton. The cost of barrels, packing, etc., had to be deducted from this, but without co-operation the apples would have been left to rot on the ground.

The Forest Association was organized last Spring and has a membership of about one hundred. This Fall thirty-eight cars of apples were shipped to the west and realized an average of $1.90 for No. 1 and $1.55 for No. 2 on board cars at Forest. The apples shipped were mostly Baldwins, Kings and Greenings, but included all marketable varieties. The association appointed its own salesmen to handle the fruit in the west. At first, shipping from the orchards was tried, but it was soon found advisable to have two central packing houses. Instead of buying barrels the association bought the stock and had them made up, at a cost of about 28 to 30 cents, as compared with 45 cents charged by coopers. The railroad and steamship companies have been found much readier than formerly to give proper transportation facilities, and the results generally have been satisfactory to members. The cost of packing was about 14 cents per barrel, but about 6 cents of this was made up by the sale of culls, all of which were sent to the evaporator.

The St. Catharines Co-operative Association shipped during the past year 400 cars of tender fruit and apples. Members in one township bought a power sprayer for co-operative use. All their baskets, Paris green and bluestone were purchased in the same way and at a considerable saving.

One of the pioneer co-operative associations of Ontario is that at Chatham, which has been in operation for seven years. The practical benefits have been very much in evidence there as elsewhere. This season 43 cars of fruit were shipped to the west by the above organization.

These are by no means all the co-operative fruit associations, but the results achieved go to show that where farmers grapple intelligently with the problem of packing and marketing their fruit, there is no need for it to go to waste, and a fair profit may usually be secured.

American Date Industry.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture report that encouraging results have been secured from the establishment of the date growing industry in the Southwestern States. The date orchard at Tempe, Ariz., is progressing in a highly satisfactory way. Experiments in date culture are also being successfully carried on in Southern California.

Production of Olive Oil in Italy.

According to the Moniteur Officiel du Commerce, a leading French commercial journal, Italy produced 86,119,700 gallons of olive oil during the year 1903-4, or 37,248,000 gallons more than in 1902-3, 1,585,200 gallons more than in 1901-2, and 5,811,700 gallons more than the annual average.

Much of this year's olive crop has been abandoned because of its abundance. It has hardly paid to pick the fruit in some parts; besides, the drought from July to October ravaged Italy and seriously affected the quality. The fruit, though abundant, is small and poor, hence of little value for making oil. This is to be regretted, for it is otherwise free from disease and well skinned.

The cultivation of the olive is increasing constantly though slowly. The area devoted to olives increased from 2,673,666 acres in 1901 to 2,683,550 acres in 1902, and 2,690,963 acres in 1903. The oil yield per acre last year was 32 gallons, or 13.8 gallons more than the yield of 1902-3, 0.3 gallons more than the yield of 1901-2, and 2 gallons more than the average.

Possibilities of the British Market.

P. B. Ball, commercial agent for Canada at Birmingham, England, says regarding the apple markets of Great Britain, that as high as $3.25 to $4.25 a barrel is frequently paid for good apples such as greenings or spys, in Liverpool. He has, however, frequently seen Canadian apples, small, shrunken, and ill-packed, offered at auction not worth a dollar a barrel, and as one would expect, not bringing enough to pay charges. Canadian shippers ought to remember that apples are a luxury in England, and that it will pay to select the best fruit in the orchard, to pack it with extreme care, and to even wrap each apple in paper as Mediterranean merchants wrap their oranges.

THE NEW PROCESS FLOUR.

A 20th Century Improvement in the Milling of Flour.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Advance in Freights.

THE advance in freight rates, both for export and to the Maritime Provinces, has been a hard blow to the grain dealers and millers of Ontario, but as it is usual for an advance in freight rates to occur at this season of the year the trade cannot claim that they have been taken unawares in this respect. It is the amount of the advance, together with one or two other circumstances, which make it an especial hardship at this time, and besides the advance to the Maritime Provinces seems more onerous than in former years.

The advance in export rates of 1½c per 100 pounds does not appear excessive, yet the dispatch from Peterboro announcing the closing of the big mill of the American Cereal Co. at that point, attributes it solely to the advance in export freight rates. The advance of 1½c per 100 pounds, which is what export freight rates have been put up, would no doubt make a big difference in the year's profits in their large out-put, yet no one in the trade would credit the statement that their margin of profit on export business is so small that this advance in rates would put them out of the export business entirely. The real reason is that the price of oats in Ontario has been above an export basis, except for Newfoundland and the West India Islands, practically the whole of the season so far, and naturally oats are too high to make into oatmeal for export, but the slight advance in export freights may have proved the last straw.

When one considers that the advance in rates to the Maritime Provinces ranges from 4 to 6½c per 100 pounds at most points, and those the most important ones, one can understand, in view of the foregoing statement, what a serious matter this is to the grain and flour trade. While the rates now are no higher than a year ago, the advance is considerably heavier, owing to the fact that during the Summer season the rates were lower than in previous years, and for this reason the trade is harder hit, as the most they expected was that the same advance per 100 pounds would be made as in former years, leaving the special drop made in the Summer of 2c per 100 pounds as a permanent reduction.

Another fact that makes the advance at this time especially hard on these trades, is that during the past month or six weeks there has been a great shortage of car supply. So serious has this been that in almost every instance a delay of two or three weeks has taken place in supplying cars, and in many cases it has been four or five weeks from the time the purchase of grain was made before shipment could be got. The result is that, in numerous instances, orders that were taken early in November had not been shipped when the advance was made on Dec. 5, and as this advance amounts to from $16 to $26 on a 40,000 pound car, it more than wipes out any profit which the dealers or millers had on the sales unshipped. It would only seem fair for the railroads to bill out all sales made on a basis of the old rates that were unshipped at the time of the advance, on reasonable evidence being produced that the railroad was in any way responsible for its not being shipped earlier. The trade claim that they did not receive notice of the advance, in some cases until after it was in effect, and that the railroad did not give the ten days' notice required by the Railroad Act, of the change in freight rates, as tariffs only bear date of Dec. 1, effective on Dec. 5.

Another question which might fairly be considered in this connection, is whether there is any justification for such a heavy advance in rates as has been put into effect in the Maritime Provinces. If an advance of 1½c per 100 pounds on the export freight rates over the Summer rates is sufficient to cover the additional expense the railroads are put to in moving freight during the Winter season, a like advance in the local rates to the Maritime Provinces should be also sufficient to reimburse the railroad for the extra charges incurred. Instead of this, the local rates are advanced 200 to 400 per cent. more than the export rates. Why this should be, no one outside the railroad officials apparently can satisfactorily explain, but to laymen it would appear as if the railroads, having full control of the situation as far as the local business is concerned, put on the traffic all the tolls that it will bear. As the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. railways apparently work together in this respect, the public are the sufferers, and either the producer in Ontario or the consumer in the Maritime Provinces must pay it, as they are helpless.

Competition prevents export rates from being advanced beyond a reasonable limit, as otherwise competing lines would step in and take their trade, and it would appear as if the railway commission should be authorized, if they have not now the power to do so, to prevent a greater advance being made in domestic freight rates than in the export rates, especially where it can be shown that two railroads are working together to get out of the traffic all it will bear, as appears to be the case here.

Export Duty on Wheat Impossible.

A LIVELY interest has been aroused in Canadian cereal circles by the suggestion through the medium of the public press of an effective way for Canada to meet the rebate in duty which the United States authorities propose to allow on Manitoba wheat imported by American millers for export milling purposes, namely the placing of an export duty on all Manitoba wheat entering the United States, the professed object being to develop the milling industry in Canada instead of in the United States.

The unanimous opinion of the Canadian trade is that the agriculturists of Canada would never consent to have one of their grain markets closed. At the present time it is in their best interests to have as wide a market for their products as possible, and there can be little doubt that an export duty would have the immediate effect of depressing the prices paid to farmers in Manitoba and the Northwest. The export of wheat is unquestionably a benefit to the Canadian farming community. American millers are forced to pay a higher price than would be necessary could they secure supplies of high-grade milling wheat at home. Canadian millers themselves would be the only ones to gain from the imposition of an export duty on wheat.

The opinion expressed by the Hon. Clifford Sifton in this particular meets with the hearty approval of the majority of Canadian wheat growers and grain dealers. "Our best method of encouraging the milling of wheat is by improving our transportation and facilitating the finding of outside markets for the product of our mills. The increase in the number of milling establishments in the west is very greatly in the interest of the farmers, because the purchase of wheat by large milling companies acts as a most effective regulator of the price paid for wheat. We ought to be able to look for a very large increase in our milling business, but we cannot expect that the growth of that business will keep pace with the increase in the production of wheat, and our efforts should continue to be directed in the future, as they have been in the past, to bringing the export price of wheat up to the highest possible figure by a proper system of inspection, warehousing and transportation."

To Develop Canadian Barley Trade.

In expectation that Canada is destined to supply a large part of the enormous British imports of malting barley the Government of the Northwest Territories has enlisted the help of leading British experts. Lord Strathcona is now despatching to Regina via the Canadian Pacific Railway, who grant free freight experimental shipments of seed, the following four malting barleys of high quality, namely: Bohemian, which took the world's champion pize at the Brewers' Exhibition; goldthorp, ouchac from Smyrna, which has done well in California, and Chilian Chevalier, which has been grown in Manitoba to weigh over 60 lbs. per bushel. These will be tested in the Northwest Government co-operative field trials.

How Flour Should be Stored.

FEW grocers and general merchants seem to realize how easily flour absorbs foreign odors and that the loss on flour carelessly stored in unsuitable places is often very heavy. For instance flour in poorly ventilated, musty smelling storehouses, near kerosene, fish, oil, tar, rosin, oilcloths, fruits or any other article giving off an odor, will absorb that odor just as a sponge obsorbs water, and once absorbed it cannot be removed. Cases have been known where flour has taken up the odor of kerosene from warehouses where no kerosene had been previously stored for over two years.

Flour should also be kept in clean, dry, well ventilated rooms. If there is no circulation of air, the windows and doors should be opened often. Flour should never be allowed to stand in the rain or be stored where it can absorb moisture as it tends to become lumpy and sour.

Flour News From Japan.

THE duty on foreign flour entering Japan is now 70 sen (35c) per kin (133 pounds) instead of 60 sen (30c) as quoted by a previous Government report in error.

Importations of flour from Canada, although relatively small, are attaining a rate of arithmetical progression that is ominous of gratifying results in the near future, the quantity imported during the nine months of 1904, ending with September, being 5,554,435 lbs., a monthly average of 617,158 lbs. This average quantity multiplied by three will give the estimated quantity to be imported for the three remaining months of this year, which, added to the volume of importations for the preceding nine months, gives a total for the current year of 7,405,910 lbs.

Importations of flour from all countries for 1903 were so exceptionally large that there will appear a considerable falling off this year, Canada alone contributing a comparatively large increase. The quantity imported from Canada in 1903 was 4,826,452 lbs., or 727,910 lbs. less than the importations for nine months of this year.

New Cereal Company.

The Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., with headquarters at Niagara Falls, N.Y., are applying for incorporation. The patents and rights of the Natural Food Co., of Niagara Falls, N.Y., have been bought for the Dominion of Canada, and the necessary machinery will be removed from the Worcester plant of the Natural Food Co. A new building is being erected and it is thought the industry will be in working order by May 1, 1905.

Wheat Crop in Australia.

Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., has received a cable from their agents, Burns, Philips & Co., Sydney, Australia, reporting that the wheat crop of the Commonwealth has been severely damaged by bush fires and drought. This news has been further confirmed by the receipt of cables from correspondents in Liverpool, declaring that the exportable wheat surplus from Australia this year will hardly equal 50 per cent. of last year, and that this estimate might be largely wiped out by increased damage.

Mr. Thompson further said, in discussing the comments with respect to the Argentine crop, that he had received cables from their agents yesterday, reporting the wheat crop in the Province of Santa Fe as poor in quantity and quality to that of last year. In the Province of Buenos Ayres, however, the prospects are good at present.

Keewatin Water Power.

W. Kennedy, the well known hydraulic engineer of Montreal, returned east from Winnipeg last week. Mr. Kennedy has been for some time in the west inspecting the water power at Keewatin for the Keewatin Flour Mills Co., and he has returned east to make a complete report to the management regarding the new mill which that company purpose building at Keewatin next Spring. Mr. Kennedy was reticent as the nature of his report on this subject.

Cereal Notes.

The G. T. R. has increased the freight rate on corn between Chicago and Detroit 2½c per 100 lbs.

A new plant is being installed by Brackman & Ker in Victoria, B.C. for the production of a new cereal.

B. H. Haliday & Co., commission merchants and dealers in grain, provisions, etc., are about to establish a branch in Medicine Hat, N.W.T.

The Natural Food Co. has secured an option on certain buildings in Welland, Ont., with the object of establishing a Canadian branch of their business.

The Northwest Territories Grain Growers' Association in session at Regina last week favor the establishment of a sample grain market at Winnipeg.

A distribution of samples of the most productive varieties of grain is being made among Canadian farmers this season by the Agricultural Department, Ottawa.

FOR SALE BY ALL WHOLESALE GROCERS

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Tobacco Fads.

THINK of the great actors, soldiers, politicians, and in fact great men of almost any walk in life and see if you can recall a cigar named after them. You know the supposed to be greatest living actor, and immediately the "Irving" cigar crops up. It is a leading ten center and on the box and on a mass of very intelligent advertising may be seen not only a picture of the master of stage craft, but a facsimile of his signature.

The name, ah, what a magnetism there is in the name? One sees as in a vista Shylock with his long Jewish gaberdine and strong personality; then a glimpse of Louis XI. in the masterly death scene, or perhaps Mathias in 'The Bells" comes as a flitting ghost of thought, as the "Irving" cigar is being smoked or even thought about.

Thus it is wise of a cigarmaker to select a character of supreme merit, as well as great personal popularity. Hirsch & Co. who make the "Irving" are hustlers. They have made a big success, first because they make a good quality of goods and have backed it up by a campaign of strong, judiciously aimed advertising. Big firms sometimes forget the amazing cigar business that the reputable grocer does all through the flourishing towns of 5,000 to 7,000 inhabitants and even in the smaller places. These are the customers that should be educated into writing to the big jobbers and wholesalers insisting upon certain brands.

The Bruce Payne Co., of Granby, has been very successful with the grocery trade. Their "Pharaoh" cigar is a wholesome, clean smoke. The very stub is acceptable to the smoker and it is no "jolly" to say that it will take a lot of beating. There is something about the "Pharaoh" that invites the smoker to have another.

"Pebble" is a live selling five center and has an immense grocery trade. Take the "Chamberlain" cigar, it too is another very fine ten center. The Fortier Co. has taken advantage of the popular tide, reproducing the illustrious politician after whom the cigar is named. The very name Chamberlain stirs up enthusiasm and quickens the mind. It recalls the famous Punch cartoon which Mr. Fortier might use for advertising. There was a picture of Mr. Chamberlain leaning with arms akimbo over the balcony at a Naples hotel, looking at Mount Vesuvius which has just become active again, and remarking, "Humph, call yourself a volcano. Wait till I get back to England." Even our own "Col. Steel" is made famous by Harris Harkness of Montreal, and certainly they make a rattling good five center.

E. N. Cusson has become a leader in cigars by his "V.C." cigar, five center, which is sold widely all over the Dominion . He is a good advertiser and has won great popularity by delivering a high class cigar.

Porto Rico vs. Cuban Leaf.

ACCORDING to J. Van Leenhoff, a tobacco expert in the United States Department of Agriculture, the island of Porto Rico will in a few years be able to produce both wrapper and filler tobacco equal to the world famous Cuban grades, provided modern methods of cultivation are employed.

The best districts in Porto Rico for the growing of cigar leaf are the Provinces of Cayey, Comeiiro, Caguas, San Lorenzo, Juncos, Utuado and Jayuya, and the soil best suited for raising plug tobacco is to be found near the coast of the island of Porto Rico in the Provinces of Aeicibo and Yauco. As a general rule the soils all over the island are a trifle heavy, but the climate is extremely favorable for the growing of tobacco, in many cases producing a high grade both in aroma and texture.

The failure of the inhabitants of Porto Rico to produce a good quality of tobacco, is attributed to their lack of the most primitive knowledge of agriculture in general. Fertilizers are not known at all and their methods of cultivation are crude in the extreme. Previous to the American occupation the demand in Spain, to which most of the Porto Rico tobacco was exported, was for heavy, dark strong tobacco, so that the planters did everything possible in order to raise that kind. They took no note of the distance of planting, digging the plants too low and delaying their harvest to the detriment of the quality of the tobacco. Instead of planting the young sprouts of tobacco in a vertical position in the soil, the Porto Ricans put them in a horizontal position and turned the tops upward. Naturally, their tobacco contained a large amount of nicotine and made the cigars very dark. They also did nothing to prevent the ravages of insects and diseases to the tobacco. Insecticides and sprayers were practically unknown to the island prior to the work of the experiment station in this direction.

The yield of tobacco on the island is very low, and the quality not at all suited to the demands of the American market, for two reasons; first, the inferior quality of the seeds used and the poor methods of fermentation. Planters after harvesting the crops leave the stubbles to grow again for seed, and no selection of seeds whatsoever is made, with the result that the products of the good and bad seed are harvested together, causing a mixture both of quality and color. Each succeeding crop is handled the same way, which explains the difference in sizes, shapes, color and quality of the leaf produced in Porto Rico. Consequently when it is made up into cigars there is no uniformity about them. The curing sheds on the island are poorly constructed, resulting in bad ventilation. The old method of fermentation in boxes and cases is in vogue. The tobacco is often packed and stored away and no attention whatever given to it, with the result that in many instances half of it is lost through the process of rotting.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

BIG shippers in Canada are interested in the report that large quantities of Canadian wheat are being shipped via Boston. G. M. Bosworth of the C.P.R. stated that this wheat had not come east via their road, but had been carried to Buffalo by steamers and thence by rail on U. S. lines. It was another illustration of the excellent facilities possessed by Buffalo elevators for storing and handling grain at a time when the Georgian Bay elevators were full and could not take the whole crop. Then there is another fact which has been well discussed by the big steamship companies, especially those looking own railway. The other lines, however, namely the Allan, Furness-Withy, Elder-Dempster, and the various lines controlled by R. Reford & Co., have to do some scratching to get cargoes (at least that is what is gathered from the offices). Another reason is that rates are so low that firms take grain only in sufficient quantities for ballast.

Mail advices from New York state that the fine corn and cotton crops will make the steamship agents' Christmas very happy, in fact much more pleasant than those of 1902 and 1903. The steamship traders on the New York Produce Exchange are not in that humble mood of six weeks ago, and a partner in one January, 40 or 50 loads to Liverpool for December and January, 50 loads to London for shipment by December 31st, 7 loads to Glasgow for December and January, 15 loads to Copenhagen, December and early January, and 5 to 8 loads to Hull for December and January. It is estimated that about 45 loads of the above engagements are for Manitoba Spring wheat, and the balance for corn.

for grain cargoes at West St. John and Halifax. The Canadian who grows large quantities of grain in the Northwest can readily dispose of it to neighbors across the border who will pay better prices than can be obtained anywhere in Canada. It is only human that he should let his grain go. Then Canadians will say that Canadian grain is going out through American ports while in reality large quantities are being milled into western flour at Minneapolis and other places. Still the point at issue is that cargoes at St. John are difficult to find. The C.P.R. have abundance because of their excellent feeder, their

THE FAIRY CALENDAR.

In last week's issue of The Grocer, the statement was inadvertently made that the beautiful Fairy calendar issued by the Fairbanks Co., of Montreal, would be sent out to readers of The Grocer on request. This was hardly correct, though any reader of this paper can find out how to get one by addressing either the Montreal or Chicago offices of the Fairbanks Co.

CANADIAN FRUIT GOING TO WASTE.

FOLLOWING is a letter received by The Canadian Grocer from the Canadian Canners, Limited, Hamilton, in answer to a recent statement in its reading columns credited to Mr. A. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa, to the effect that a big percentage of the Canadian fruit crop of 1904 went to waste and that the fruit canning industries of Canada were to blame for the heavy financial loss resulting therefrom to Canadian trade as a whole. Editor of Canadian Grocer:

Will you favor us with space in your valuable paper to reply to the captious remarks you made in your issue of the 25th of November, in regard to "Canadian fruit going to waste," and the responsibility of Canadian canners (more especially the Canadian Canners, Limited,) for such waste.

If you had taken the trouble to inquire you could easily have ascertained that the Canadian Canners, Limited, in their desire to save as much as they possibly could of the large 1903 crop of apples, kept on packing for months longer than usual. By so doing they filled to overflowing every storehouse belonging to them, and a great many outside storehouses as well, and, although they have been offering these apples in many cases at "less than cost price," and have been making every effort in their power by sending special agents to outside countries, and, in other ways, to dispose of these apples, they have still on hand, including this season's pack, sufficient stocks to carry them through to next season.

It has usually been the case in Canada that for every year of a full crop, we have an alternate year of a small crop, and, occasionally a year of total failure of apples—but for the last three years, especially the present year, there have been superabundant crops, so much so, that if the canners' storehouses had been empty of canned apples, neither the canners nor evaporators could have obtained help enough to save more than a very small portion of the present year's crop. With their storehouses, as already stated, generally overflowing with the 1903 pack, it is difficult to understand, let the canners be ever so philanthropically inclined, how they could have saved the present year's crop, and, if you in the wisdom gathered in your editorial sanctum would only have the goodness to direct us how to accomplish this, we would certainly be glad to adopt any rational scheme you would suggest, besides feeling grateful to you for the same. This in our humble opinion would be more to the point, and very much fairer, than the course you have pursued, and, let us add with respect and kindness very much more creditable to The Canadian Grocer.

Just here it may be mentioned that one George A. Cochrane, in the New York Journal of Commerce of the 6th inst., holds certain buyers in England responsible for the large loss of apples this season. He maintains that there is a "gang in England systematically banded to get apples for nothing," as a consequence hundreds of thousands of barrels of apples were bought at ridiculously low prices, while other farmers would not pick their fruit, and allowed it to drop and rot on the ground, or fed it to their cattle, and the quantity that was thus allowed to go to waste was simply enormous.

It is not our purpose in writing this letter to defend the charge as to whether or not the Canadian Canners, Limited, are enterprising, suffice to say that as soon as this company were fully organized a special representative was sent over to England and the Continent to investigate the conditions and the possibilities for new business, and, as a result the company have opened permanent offices at London and Liverpool under the management of an experienced and enterprising manager, who has had long experience in the export business.

Our main object in writing is to correct the misleading statements credited to Mr. McNeill, chief of the Fruit Division, Ottawa, in the Toronto Globe's interview with him. Mr. McNeill is quoted as saying that if the Canadian Canners were more enterprising the volume of trade would be increased yearly by no less than "Five millions of dollars according to a conservative estimate." We are not so much surprised at Mr. McNeill making such a statement as we are at The Canadian Grocer publishing it in all seriousness. Such a grossly misleading statement is apt to do a great deal of harm, as some persons on the strength of Mr. McNeill's statement may be induced to go into the packing of apples under the impression that there is such a market as Mr. McNeill states there is, with the result that the entire industry may possibly be ruined for a number of years.

According to November reports Great Britain's imports of canned apples for ten months ending October 31st, 1904, were 78,187 cases, against 186,535 cases for the same period in 1903. For the month of October, 1904, the imports were 5,940 cases, against 21,820 cases in 1903. Great Britain's importations for 1904 may be approximated at 90,067 cases, against 230,175 cases in 1903, a falling off in imports of about 140,000 cases for the year 1904, or nearly 40 per cent. This is partly accounted for from the fact that the apple crops in Great Britain, as well as on the Continent, have been very large ones against a comparative failure the previous season. The total value of Great Britain's imports of apples for the year 1904, basing the price at about 85c per case (present market value) equals $75,556.-95. so that provided that the Canadian canners controlled the entire export trade of canned apples to Great Britain the maximum volume of business this season would be $75,000, against $5,-000,000 as stated by Mr. McNeill, but Canada has by no means the monopoly of the business, as it has to face the severest kind of competition from the United States, Australia, Tasmania, and other fruit producing countries.

We have made no mention of the domestic trade in canned apples, as it is so very small that it has little or no bearing on the situation. The export of gallon apples is probably lower this year than the general average, but taking the present year as a basis—supposing that Canadian canners were to pack five million dollars' worth of apples, it would take just about sixty-five years to dispose of their output.

It is quite patent from the statistics cited above that in view of the very limited demand abroad it would be commercial suicide for Canadian canners to put up large packs of apples. As we have had three very bountiful years, it is just probable that the crops next year may be a total failure, in which case canned apples will go very high in price, and as prices at present ruling are under actual cost of packing any person of a speculative nature might do well to purchase now, and hold for the rise.

To sum up, we consider we have proven conclusively:

First—That the canners cannot be held responsible for so much fruit going to waste, but that they have acted in the best interests of all concerned.

Second—That the export trade does not offer the splendid inducements for canned apples as stated by Mr. McNeill.

Third—That the export trade at best is a limited one. Great Britain being practically the only open market; other European markets being impossible owing to the high rates of duty.

Fourth—That the canners are leaving no stone unturned to develop all there is in the export trade.

(Signed)

CALENDARS, CATALOGUES, ETC.

The Old Homestead Canning Co., Picton, Ont., are issuing to the trade a very attractive calendar, which we have no doubt will be forthcoming to friends of The Canadian Grocer provided its name is mentioned in application. The calendar itself is on plum colored cardboard, with harmoniously tinted lithograph reproduction of that homely but well known picture, "Grace before meat."

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS MEET.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association last week in St. George's Hall, it was decided to move into new quarters in the Temple Building after Jan. 1, 1905. Owing to the difficulty experienced in securing convenient dates in January for the Pure Food Show, it was decided to postpone it until later in the year. The asociation will hold its annual at home in February.

Dominion Commercial Travelers' Annual Banquet

Montreal, December 22, 1904.

" The night shall be filled with music
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arab,
And as silently steal away."

THE quotation appended above never had a more apt illustration than that given last Thursday evening, December 22, at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, when the thirtieth annual banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association was held. From all parts of the Dominion and even beyond its confines from the land of Uncle Jonathan came the men of the grip and the sample trunks to join with their fellows in happy reunion and good fellowship around the festive board—and to cement closer those bonds of unity that strengthen their hands in the great work of building up the commercial greatness of the awakening giant of the Northern Zone. The thirtieth annual banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association was a grand success from every point of view, from the aspect of a splendid menu, a feature of life in which the traveling salesman justly claims some recognition as a critic; from the musical standpoint, for orchestra renderings and songs of some of Montreal's leading soloists were a treat not soon effaced from the memory; from the intellectual side, for the speeches of the distinguished and brilliant young orator the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Solicitor-General of Canada, and Hon. F. D. Monk, leader of the Conservative party in Quebec, were powerful, patriotic and soul-stirring in the highest degree; from all these aspects was the banquet a banner affair as well as from the thoroughly optimistic tone that pervaded the large assembly of merchants, salesmen and travelers, and burst forth in vigorous applause at every reference to this great and growing country of Canada, and her undoubted future great position among the nations of the earth.

The commercial traveler is optimistic under almost every circumstance, and it is this very feeling that makes for prosperity for himself, his house and his country. It is this confidence so deeply rooted in his being that makes his work of such vast importance to the country; his hand is continuously on the pulse of trade and every beat of that pulse is watched and studied with a care as great and thorough as that of the physician watching his patient. Sir Knight of the Grip-sack is the living barometer of the storms and calms of commercial life. At Thursday's banquet the travelers threw off the cares of their strenuous life and enjoyed themselves as only they can—music, jollity and mirth were in the air and the beautiful banqueting hall of the Windsor it is safe to say never resounded with a heartier ring of merriment and good fellowship. French and English-speaking travelers were about equally represented and as the speakers alternately addressed the gathering in French and English, the rounds of applause rose and fell appreciatively and indiscriminately—it was "Canada mon pays," and "The Maple Leaf," and "The King, God Bless him," from start to finish. Certainly in its entirety no more patriotic assemblage could be brought together.

Letters of regret at inability to be present were read from the following: His Excellency Earl Gray, the Governor-General, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Wm. Paterson, Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick, Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Hon. Clifford Sifton, the American Consul, G. T. Bell, General Passsenger Manager, G.T.R.; C. E. E. Ussher, General Passenger Manager C.P.R., and others.

President J. S. N. Dougall, was the chairman and on either side of him at the table of honor sat Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Mayor H. Laporte, Hon. F. D. Monk, Hon. J. W. Rolland, Senator Cloran, Ald. H. B. Ames, M. P., R. W. Ballantyne, A. Hudon, W. Pouliot, R. C. Wilkins, C. Mann, H. Demers, A. Lefleur and W. Murphy.

At 10.20 President Dougall called the meeting to order and in a brief speech expressed the pleasure it gave him to welcome so many guests on this, the thirtieth anniversary of the association, which had grown from 251 members in 1875 to 4,815 at the present time. the largest increase being made in the last year. The benefit association, he said, had also greatly increased, both in membership and financial position, with a handsome surplus and a capital of over $242,000. In a further speech, Mr. Dougall set out the benefits of membership in the association, and read letters from various railways promising better ticket arrangements.

"Our King" was then drunk, with the National Anthem and cheers, while Mr. Duquette sang "Rule Britannia," amidst great applause.

The toast of "The Government of Canada," was proposed by W. J. Egan, vice-president, who coupled with it the names of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux and Hon. F. D. Monk, the former replying on behalf of the Government and the latter for the loyal Opposition. Mr. Eagan's genial countenance shone with thoroughly happy Irish humor and his tongue, true to the oratorical instincts of his race, was eloquent and witty. His allusion to the commercial travelers as "being practically only traveling freight agents for the railways" was a hit and the soft satire of the bon-mot was received with appreciative laughter and applause.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemeiux in his response by his patriotic words and the vigorous sincerity of his delivery aroused the greatest enthusiasm. He said in opening that before coming up that afternoon he had at Ottawa met Sir Wilfrid Laurier, hale and hearty as ever, and Sir Wilfrid had desired him to wish the association, on his behalf, all success and a merry Christmas. The members of the Government, as well as of the Opposition were also commercial travelers, for they were all working for the good of Canada, and had to do a great deal of traveling. It gave him great pleasure to appear for this toast with that great Canadian who was at the head of the Conservative party in Quebec, the Hon. F. D. Monk.

As to the Government, whichever party was in power, it was always a Canadian Government, loyal to their country and its institutions. Canada's history during the last fifty years showed a development equalled by no nation under the sun. Under the British flag, it had developed from a Crown colony to one of the nations of the earth, and its trade had grown proportionately, the Dominion being at the head of all nations in its expansion of trade during the last ten years, and he felt sure the commercial travelers had taken no mean share in this development.

Steady Forward Policy.

"We intend to pursue the policy started twenty years ago by Sir John Macdonald and continued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. We intend to be Canadians first and Canadians always. We intend to remain loyal to the institutions of our country, loyal to Canada and loyal to our King. Let us hope that English and French will always work united hand in hand for the future of our country."

Referring to his recent trip to England, Mr. Lemieux spoke with pride of the passing of the Anglo-French treaty bill in the Imperial Parliament, which event he witnessed, when he had also heard that great Canadian, Hon. Edward Blake, speak in support of the measure.

Elements of National Greatness.

"Canada has every element of national greatness," proceeded Mr. Lemieux. "We have a good constiution given us from the early days of British rule in Canada—a constitution for which I would be willing to live and willing to die. As a student of history I say that we French-Canadians enjoy more liberty under the British flag than we could under any flag on earth. We must remember what the British Parliament has done for us since 1774, when by the Quebec Act they gave us our civil and religious rights, and it would be ignorance not to let our French-Canadian fellow-citizens know that we owe our present extended liberties to this wise policy of Great Britain. Let me say to our British friends that they need never be afraid of the loyalty of their French-Canadian people—loyalty as strong to-day as when they refused to join hands with Lafayette and Rochambault in support of the American revolutionists. They then stuck to the British flag with a loyalty which has not been known enough in Canada during the last twenty years.

"Let me say to you all at this end of the prosperous year 1904; let me repeat to everyone of us, that we are bound to live together in peace and harmony in the great country, which I am confident is bound to become the greatest country on the American continent; or as Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed it that "if the nineteenth century was the century of the United States, the twentieth century is Canada's century."

Mr. Lemieux repeated the greater part of his speech in French out of compliment to the many French-Canadians present.

Mr. Duquette then led in the singing of the Maple Leaf, after which "Canada, mon pays" was rendered by E. P. Labelle of St. James' Cathedral choir.

F. Cains, of Brophy, Cains & Co., Montreal, treasurer of the association, then proposed the "Parliament of Canada" with a neat speech.

Senator Cloran was the first respondent to the toast, speaking of course from the legislative point of view of the red chamber. He humorously blamed Mr. Monk and Mr. Borden for adding so much to the strenuous life of Parliament.

The Hon. F. D. Monk, M.P., on rising to respond was received with such continuous applause as leaves his popularity among the knights of the grip no longer open to doubt. In a patriotic strain Mr. Monk pointed out that Great Britain had done what no other nation in history had attempted—set up many nations with independent governments and free constitutions under the folds of its banner, of which all Canadians were so proud. And here we had our Parliament endowed with all the freedom and libreties which had taken seven centuries of struggle to rise in England. It was a heritage of which we are justly proud. But it entailed a great responsibility to properly hold that which we had won, and to maintain at all risks the character of our national feeling and our national Parliament, so that it might be worthy of our lofty records, and the composite people who make up our growing nation.

Ald H. B. Ames, the newly elected member for St. Antoine division, Montreal, followed Mr. Monk in a short and able speech. Although he had not yet had the distinguished privilege of hanging up his coat in the House of Commons he hoped to find as high a standard at Ottawa as he had always found amongst the commercial men, who knew that they must do honest business, and do it equally, fairly with men of all classes and religions.

The Provincial Parliament was proposed by Past President Max Murdoch and replied to by Hon. J. B. Rolland. The City of Montreal was proposed by A. Terroux and replied to by Mayor Laporte. Trade and Commerce was proposed by R. C. Wilkins, and responded to by C. C. Ballantyne, vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Transportation was proposed by T. L. Paton and replied to by Mr. Morrow, of the C.P.R.

Messrs. A. Woods, E. R. Dufresne, Mr. Brunnlan and the St. Louis Quartette contributed excellent songs between the speeches.

The Dinner Committee certainly deserve the thanks of the members for the splendid arrangement and management of the entire affair as well as do the various vice-chairmen of whom there were eight, namely Messrs. Wadsworth, Paterson, Terroux, Rosseau, Egan, Dubreuil, Guilbault, Hayes, who did their duty nobly and well. The members of the dinner committee were as follows: T. L. Paton, convenor; R. Booth, F. L. Cains, F. S. Cote, L. O. Demers, Jas. S. N. Dougall E. Fred Dugan, J. F. L. Dubreuil, John T. Dwyer, W. J. Egan, W. C. Finley, A. D. Gall, E. E. Guilbault, J. B. Kerr, D. M. Lefebvre, W. B. Special Bargains.

The Tuckett Cigar Co., Hamilton, Ont., W. R. Webster & Co., Sherbrooke, and the S. Davis & Sons Co., distributed their excellent makes of cigars freely among the guests and participants. "Marguerites," "El Presidentes" and "Clear Havanas" were thoroughly enjoyed.

The American Tobacco Co., of Canada, had a souvenir package of Sweet Caporal and Mogul cigarettes and a supply of patent lucifers at each plate.

T. Theo. Valiquette, supplied a neat package of smoking tobacco.

The press table, thanks to T. L. Paton, W. J. Egan and Fred Gains, were graciously remembered when the arduous work of taking down the proceedings momentarily lifted.

The popularity of "I Crow Overall" goods was evident judging by the enthusiastic reception accorded R. C. Wilkins. That gentleman certainly received an advertisement whose clarion notes will sound throughout the Dominion when "the boys" get their new certificate in use.

The travelers' certificate cases presented by the J. B. Rolland Paper Co., was a much appreciated souvenir.

H. H. Brittain representing Black Bros. & Co., Halifax, was in his element. He was at home with "the boys" that are always "fishing" for orders and many a "cod" was tied to the "stake" (steak).

A certain "vermilion" hue that hung over one of the tables was not due to the presence of the Canada Paint Co.'s representatives, though there were present from that company Harry Stubbs, Alan J. Munro, W. B. Hamilton, W. H. Newton, W. H. Evans and Geo. Pyke.

ON TO THE "57 VARIETIES."

Mr. S. D. Stewart, Sr., Montreal and Quebec, province representative, and Mr. W. R. Caron, junior representative of H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburg, Pa., left on Saturday for the smoky burg at the junction of the Allegheny and the Monongahela river, to attend the annual reunion and "pow-wow" of the great tribe of Heinz. Pow-wows, war dances, the "green corn" fance, the "chili sauce" and the "dance of the classic bean," will all be gone through with in true and loyal order, and finally the "pipe of peace" will be passed as the braves depart for their respective hunting grounds.

The "Lady of the Snows" in the northeastern part of her great domain sends two of the warriors from whose belts dangle the scalps of many buyers, and Messrs. Stewart and Caron, the one an artist in the tongue of Shakespeare, the other a finished orator in "la langue francaise," will join Brother Muat and his Ontario confreres in holding up the great "White Lady's" reputation. A prosperous New Year to all.

A WORK OF ART.

What is unquestionably one of the most artistic calendars ever issued to the trade is Swift & Co.'s Premium Calendar with four heads on separate panels by McEntee, the famous watercolorist. FRESH AND CURED FISH

Cleanliness in Prepared Codfish.

EXTRA care should be taken by dealers handling prepared boneless codfish products to offer the same in a form which will make it appear appetizing. If these details are carefully looked after there is no justifiable reason why the retail grocery trade should not secure a large trade in this line, which is now put up in very attractive form, namely, shredded, wooden nonporous boxes, and cardboard cartoons. It is also sold in absolutely boneless form, which is a step in the right direction. Mixed boneless codfish still continues to have a good sale, packed in the usual form of one and two pound blocks, largely sold to the country trade.

It may no doubt seem strange, but it is nevertheless a fact, that there is a great difference in the flavor of codfish, as well as anything else. Pure Nova Scotia cod, when properly prepared, will make some very appetizing dishes. In fact with care prepared boneless George's Bank cod, carefully soaked to remove salt, has been placed on the table as fresh cod. This, combined with the fact that this fish can be kept for some time with ordinary care, ought to help the sale of these goods.

The Grocer has for some years been advocating the handling of fish by the grocery trade, and urging upon grocers the same consideration and attention to this profitable branch of trade as is devoted to staple lines. Properly conducted, there is no more profitable line for him to handle.

Newfoundland Catch.

The catch of codfish in Newfoundland the past season is 150,000 quintals short of the million taken during the previous year. The bank fishing would have been good but for the scarcity of bait, as fish were taken in abundance whenever bait could be secured. The Newfoundland banking fleet the past season consisted of 120 schooners carrying 18,000 men, and the catch was about 110,000 quintals. The Labrador voyage was a good average one, and the fish were medium in size, very few small ones being taken. In the Newfoundland shore fishing the traps did very poorly, the Summer being so fine that the fish for the most part remained in deep waters. It requires thick and foggy weather to bring the fish in to the shallow waters where the traps are located. Hook and line men and trawlers did well. Some of the fish were badly sunburnt owing to the dry, hot weather which prevailed during the season. In the Spring it took 336 lbs. of green fish to make a quintal of dried fish, while in the Fall it took only 310 lbs. The fish taken by hook and line in the Fall were large in size, 30 or 40 going to the quintal, while the ordinary run of fish would take from 60 to 70 to make the quintal.

Herring Fisheries in B.C.

Some idea of the growing importance of the herring fisheries at Nanaimo, B.C., may be obtained from the fact that the industry now employs nearly 100 persons. A market for fresh herring has been worked up on the sound at Vancouver and Victoria, which is supplied almost entirely from Nanaimo. Several steamers are constantly engaged in the herring trade at this season of the year.

Japan Gets B. C. Salmon.

The shortage of the salmon catch on the Pacific Coast this year has been finally estimated at 1,750,000 cases. The Japanese are rapidly buying up the British Columbia catch, this season's shipments from Vancouver alone amounting to $750,000. It looks as if Canadian buyers from now on would have to pay considerably higher prices.

A Rejoinder.

The proposition to establish sardine canneries on Canadian soil is ridiculed by the American packers, says the Fishing Gazette, on the ground of the futility of marketing the product in the Dominion. It may be, however, that future reciprocal trade arrangements will open to Canada the markets of the southern states, in which case the proposition would assume a very different aspect.

Fish Notes.

It is officially announced that the Dominion Government has issued directions for the establishment of two large hatcheries on the northern coast of British Columbia.

The report of J. J. Cowie, the Scottish herring expert, on British Columbia herring just to hand states that while the fish as found on the Pacific coast is considerably smaller than the Atlantic fish it is of decidedly superior flavor.

Scarcity of High Grade Cod.

In the course of an interview with The Canadian Grocer Mr. A. H. Brittain, Montreal, sales agent for Black Bros & Co., Halifax and La Have, N.S., says: "The conditions of the prepared boneless codfish markets are at the present time most peculiar. Our greatest difficulty is to get sufficient codfish of the required quality to supply the demand in our 'Halifax' and 'Acadia' brands of package codfish. We have set a very high standard for these brands which it is our intention to maintain. There is little difficulty getting sufficient stock for cheaper grades."

Norwegian Whaling Industry.

The Norwegian Government has prohibited whale fishing for a period of ten years beginning February 1, 1905, and the sum of $110,000 has been appropriated to indemnify the proprietors of whaling establishments for the loss sustained by the prohibition. This is in deference to the opinion of the fishermen that the extermination of the whales is the cause of the decline in the codfisheries. Scientists gave an opinion opposite the popular superstition, but the fishermen wrecked a couple of whaling establishments and made so much turmoil that the Government passed the Act in deference to their views.

Dog Salmon for the Orient.

Large shipments of salted dog salmon are arriving in Victoria, B.C., from Fraser River salteries for storage until a consignment is completed for the Orient.

A Nanaimo correspondent reports the discovery of a valuable food fish in the Nanaimo harbor known as the pilchard. This species of fish is caught chiefly on the Cornish coast of England where it is preserved by canning or salting.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Improving the Dairying Industry.

THE little kingdom of Denmark occupies an almost unrivalled position as a producer of first-class bacon and butter, as Canadian exporters of these products fully realize. This pre-eminence has been brought about chiefly by the general diffusion of agricultural information and the hearty co-operation of the farmers along every line that will be to their mutual advantage. There are many directions in which Canadians might profitably imitate these energetic rivals of ours, not the least important being in the improvement of dairy herds. The aim of intelligent dairymen, in Canada as well as in Denmark, is to produce the largest amount of first-class milk, butter or cheese at the least cost. Let us see, then, what co-operative testing has done for the Danish dairy herds in the way of cheapening the cost of production.

The first of these co-operative testing associations was formed in 1895. Each society is composed of a limited number of farmers, about twelve or fifteen, who agree to have careful tests of their cows made at frequent intervals during the whole milking period by a competent man hired for the purpose. Fairly accurate records are thus obtained, not only of the yield of milk and butter fat, but of the amount, kind and cost of the feed consumed. The information thus secured has proved remarkably effective in inducing the Danes to adopt better methods of breeding, feeding and culling dairy cows.

In 1895, when the first testing association was formed, the value of the butter exported from Denmark was $19,000,000. In 1901, when over three hundred of these associations were scattered over that country, the value of the butter exports amounted to $29,000,000, an increase of over 50 per cent. in six years. It is generally agreed that the greater part of this enormous increase was due to the work of the testing associations in weeding out the poor cows. Not only was the average production of the milking cows largely increased, but so much additional skill in feeding was acquired that the cost of feed necessary to produce a pound of butter is now estimated to be less than two-thirds of what it was when the first co-operative association started operations in 1895.

Canadian dairymen who are looking for dividends on their investments should consider these figures. The reports of the testing societies showed that the cost of keeping these yearly records was from forty to sixty cents per cow, while the increased returns per cow, as a result of five years' testing, were from six to fifteen dollars per annum. Surely this is an eminently satisfactory rate of interest. The extraordinary increase in the number of these societies in Denmark shows how highly their work is appreciated. The tests made by the original associations were sufficient to convince the Danish farmers that they were not dairying on business principles—that they were allowing a lot of robber cows to eat up the profits produced by their good cows—and they were quick to adopt better better and more profitable methods.

The hundreds of co-operative cheese factories and creameries doing business throughout Canada prove conclusively that successful work can be accomplished along co-operative lines.

It is only a short step from the co-operative factory to the co-operative testing association, and it would seem that methods which have proved of such marked benefit in Denmark could not much longer remain unheeded in this country. In every dairy community there is at least one particularly intelligent and progressive man, who would have little trouble in inducing 20 or 30 of his neighbors to join him in an enterprise that has proved so profitable elsewhere.

It has been demonstrated by the Canadian census returns and other official statistics, by the work of experimental farms and agricultural colleges, and by numerous private investigations of dairy herds, that a large proportion of our cows are kept at an actual loss. An educational campaign that will bring dairy farmers face to face with facts as they exist on their own farms is urgently needed in this country. The problem of weeding out the cows that cannot be made to yield milk at a profit is by far the most important one that confronts our dairymen to-day. The possibilities in this connection were well illustrated by Prof. Grisdale at the recent Winter Fair at Guelph. He told of a friend of his who had increased the average production of his herd from $35 in one year to $45 the next, although the price of wheese remained the same. In the third year, with cheese considerably higher, the average of his herd came up to $60, and in the year following to $70. This was accomplished by more skilful feeding, by weeding out unprofitable cows, and by buying from neighbors better producing cows, of whose value the owners were ignorant.

Toronto Provision Merchant Dead.

MR. R. THOMPSON, of R. Thompson & Co., wholesale provision merchants, Toronto, died on Dec. 20, after an illness extending over a fortnight.

Mr. Thompson was born in the Town of Goole, Yorkshire, England, and came to this country when about twenty years of age. He almost immediately settled in Toronto, where he has resided ever since. He was a pioneer pork packer of Toronto, having started in a small way in St. Lawrence market. He afterwards went into partnership with J. L. Morrison, in the old Manning block, Front street east, under the firm name of Thompson & Morrison. A year later Mr. Thompson withdrew and again started in business on his own account at 35 Church street, where he had carried on a successful business for the last forty years, and with the perseverance and indefatiguable energy of the young Englishman accumulated a considerable fortune. At the time of his death he was one of the largest property owners in this city, besides being largely interested financially in the Imperial Bank, Western and British American Assurance Companies, Northwest Land Co., Toronto Railway Co., Bell Telephone Co. and Electric Light Co. His wife, a daughter of tne late John Walker, died about twenty years ago.

Deceased leaves two sons, Robt. W. and Albert A., who were connected with him in business; a brother, Wm. Thompson, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. R. Banfield of Chester, West Virginia, and Mrs. Thompson of Hull, England.

The World's Cheese Store House.

MONTREAL is recognized as one of the largest, if not the largest cheese shipping ports on the continent. It is not generally known however, that Montreal is the world's cheese storehouse, vast quantities being held there by British firms.

In the course of a recent interview Mr. A. A. Ayer, Montreal, expressed the following opinion on the cheese situation:

"There is a general public impression that the Montreal produce dealers are making a lot of money out of the rise in cheese. But it is a great mistake. I venture to state that fully eighty-five per cent. of the cheese in store in Montreal to-day does not belong to Montrealers, but to English firms.

"Montreal has come to be one of the great cheese storehouses of the world, An immense quantity of cheese has been sold here during the last month, but very little has been shipped. There is no reason why it should be. This is the best possible place to keep it.

"The local exporter cannot afford to speculate in heavy holdings of cheese. One house did it last year, and the result was disastrous. The great English firms, with interests widely distributed, are doing the holding.

"There may be one or two firms in town holding as much cheese as they would handle in two weeks' business, but the great majority have not a pound more than a week's supply. And yet the public think we are making fortunes."

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—The attention of the public is still centred on holiday goods and as a result cured and fresh meats have been quiet. Lard in tierces, tubs and pails has declined 1-4c per lb. Large consignments of light hogs are arriving for curing purposes. Dealers are curing large quantities of meats and anticipate a large supply when the trade opens up next Spring. Our quotations are:

Cheese—A smaller inquiry is noted for cheese on the foreign market this week. As cheese was made on a very extensive scale last Summer the outlook at present is for a decline in price. All orders are being filled from storage stock. Prices continue unchanged. We quote the following:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 10½	0 11
" twins	0 11	0 11½

Butter—On every hand is to be noted a scarcity of creamery butter. Dealers are receiving numerous letters from the manufacturers stating that supplies will be very small in comparison with former years. It is learned that a number of factories have closed and this may result in a larger supply of dairy butter, as farmers will be inclined to make their own butter rather than ship their milk to a srtange concern. Dairy prints have advanced 1c per lb. Our quotations are:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 23	0 24
" solids, fresh	0 21	0 22
Dairy prints	0 18	0 20
" in tubs	0 14	0 17
" large rolls	0 17	0 18

Poultry—Frequent shipments of chickens are noted on the market this week. Owing to the fact that a large share of the fowls received are scalded when plucked, which lessesen the value of the bird, commission merchants have had to arrange their market value according to appearances. The price as quoted below is only paid for first-class birds, other qualities being 8c per lb., while some birds bring no higher than 6c per lb. Ducks and geese are scarce and prices have advanced from 1-2c to 1c on geese and from 1c to 2c per lb. on ducks. Much to the surprise of many of the dealers turkeys began to arrive in large quantities some days before Christmas instead of at the last moment and the result was that better prices were realized by all concerned, and that the market was free from the glutting which has characterized the local market in former years. We quote the following:

Chickens, spring, dry plucked	0 10	0 11
Hens	0 06	0 08
Geese	0 10½	0 11
Turkeys	0 14	0 15
Ducks	0 11	0 12

Montreal.

Provisions—Prices for all kinds have ruled steady during the week and fair amount of business done. For the Christmas and holiday trade, smoked meats obtained good trade. Receipts fairly satisfactory. Dressed hogs have shown an easier feeling owing to heavy receipts of live hogs and lower prices ruling in latter. Good demand for small lots, fresh killed abattoir sold at $6.75 to $7.25 and country dresed at $6 to $6.75. A good business is doing in lard.

Butter—A very strong feeling obtains in the butter market and since last issue an advance of another 1-4c is noted. The market has a strong undertone. The supply of very choice creamery continues poor and is bound to be maintained for some weeks yet. Export shipments are somewhat under similar period last year.

There seems to be a very brisk business doing and holders are expecting very high prices inasmuch as there is no butter to speak of being made at all. We quote:

Finest creamery	0 21½ 0 22½
Fair to good creamery	0 20½ 0 21
Medium	0 19½ 0 20½
Western dairy	0 16 0 17

Cheese—The situation remains unchanged from last week's position, a firm undertone prevailing, and augurs well for good future business. Many holders are lying on their oars awaiting developments and looking for better prices. We quote 10 1-4 to 10 1-2c for finest, with undergrades at 10c.

The market at present is very quiet, but last week there was some activity, many orders coming from London and Bristol. Prices were made up as high as 10 3-4c, one holder reported having made 11c over the cable. It was also reported that some London buyers operated quite freely on the Liverpool market. This market is now quoted 48s to 51s for held goods, and 53s for Septembers. It is the holiday season now in England and nothing much is expected until after the close of the year.

Eggs—Business has been considerably more active and a lot of western cold storage stock was turned to local jobbers from 18 to 18 1-2c for No. 1 and 16 1-2 to 17 1-2c. Montreal limed are getting into small compass and not much anxiety shown by holders to force sales. Selects quoted at 24c; new laid 26 to 28c.

St. John.

Provisions—There is very little business in either barrelled pork or beef. Prices are unchanged. Ham and rolls hold quite firm. Pure lard is rather easier. This has been an active week in fresh meats, but business is now quiet. Sales of poultry were large; while just before Christmas prices dropped a little, high prices were the rule. Real good chickens at reasonable figures were almost impossible to get.

Jamaica: A Market for Dairy Produce.

In the weekly report of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, dated Dec. 27, the attention of the trade is directed to the fact that Canadian cheese is excelling in public favor in Jamaica as against the same article manufactured in the United States. There is room for considerable improvement, however, in regard to strength and size of package used. The demand is altogether for mellow cheese, provided it is not oily. Complaints are frequently made that the same quality does not usually follow up first shipments, an error which cannot help but be damaging to the development of Canadian trade.

There is also an active and steady demand for smoked hams, sizing 7 to 12 pounds, also for shoulders and picnic hams, bacon in breakfast slips, rolls and lean Wiltshire cuts. American and English firms practically monopolize the market at the present time, although there is no reason why Canadian curers should not have a fair share of this trade.

A Growing Salt Industry.

The Wingham Salt Works, which recently installed new apparatus, is now turning out about a carload per day.

Dairy and Provision Notes.

Elsewhere in this issue is reproduced a photograph of the St. Charles Condensing Co.'s plant at Ingersoll, Ont., which within the past five years has grown to very large proportions. This factory supplies export markets as well as the domestic trade with "St. Charles Evaporated Cream," "Silver Cow," "Purity" and "Good Luck" brands of sweetened milk.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. T. Madden, of the Wm. Ryan Co., Toronto, is spending the week in Syracuse, N.Y.

Mr. Harry Dawson, of the Dawson Bros. Commission Co., Toronto, was in Montreal for a few days this week.

Mr. D. G. Wilson, bookkeeper with the J. A. McLean Produce Co., Toronto, is spending a week's holidays in Hastings.

Mr. W. B. Stringer, of the W. B. Stringer Co., Toronto, is visiting New York, Boston and Philadelphia this week.

Mr. C. C. Dalton, of Dalton Bros., spice manufacturers, Toronto, has been elected a director of the Bank of Hamilton.

Mr. Walter M. Lowney, of Walter M. Lowney & Co., Boston, was a visitor to Montreal last week. Mrs. Lowney accompanied Mr. Lowney.

In the report of the death of the late Mr. Geo. Lightbound in last week's issue of The Grocer it was stated that Mr. Jos Huxley of the Tamiekande Tea Co., was one of his partners in the firm of Lightbound, Ralston & Co. This should have read "Mr. Silas Huxley, of the Tamiekande Tea Co."

Mr. J. R. Masecar, manager of the Comfort Soap Works at Toronto Junction, was the recipient of a Christmas presentation from the employes of the company on December 23.

Mr. J. P. Caie, a well-known citizen of St. John, N.B., is dead. Mr. Caie was formerly senior partner in the firm of Caie & Wilson, wholesale grocers and commission merchants, which business was later carried on under the name of Caie & Co. For a number of years previous to his death Mr. Caie represented a number of leading Quebec wholesale firms.

Feb. 9—Brokers at Canada Grocers.

Feb. 11—H. P. Eckardt & Co. at T. Kinnear & Co.

WE DESIRE TO EXPRESS THANKS TO OUR NUMEROUS CUSTOMERS FOR THE GENEROUS PATRONAGE AFFORDED DURING THE LAST YEAR, AND WISH THEM ALL A . . .

Happy : and : Prosperous

NEW YEAR

The Canadian Salt Co., Limited

Windsor, Ont.

We thank our many friends—extending all the way westward from the Atlantic, and all the way eastward from the Pacific—for this BUMPER YEAR now fast disappearing into history.

The enormous increase in our business this year has proved that our motto means all that we think it does, and that the trade will inevitably recognize, and insist on getting, GOODNESS in their goods.

This is just what our White Swan brand stands for. In Flaked Cereals, Coffees, Spices, Flavors, Cocoanut and the many other White Swan lines QUALITY is pre-eminently the factor that can always be counted on.

Again we thank you.

THE

NEW YEAR

Business Review and Changes for 1905.

The New Year is with us—you will now doubtless review your year's business.

The results on the whole will probably be satisfactory, but most of us will likely discover that certain lines have not moved just enough—their sales have been below the mark.

A good reason for this condition will likely be found in the goods and now is the time to switch over to a popular line.

We have improved a good many lines for next year—have studied all our goods—and those which are not up to the Gorman & Eckert standard will be replaced by better lines. New lines will also be handled to meet new conditions.

It won't cost you anything to consult us on your slow-moving lines—you don't have to handle our lines because you do, but we may be able to help you out.

We hope your 1905 trade will show an increase over 1904, and we think we can help you to do it.

NEW METHODS FOR THE YEAR 1905.

WITH the beginning of this new year, another round in the ladder of mercantile life has been reached, but as there is no standing still, retailers must prepare for the work of the new year. Great preparations must be made to reach the higher possibilities which another year may bring forth. Gains and losses must be discovered and an inventory made that will perhaus disclose mistakes that might have been avoided by pursuing a different course. It isn't a pleasant task but by knowing errors, profit should inevitably accrue. A lesson must sometimes be learned at great expense.

There must be a balancing of methods involving plans for future work and whether these plans are of small or large proportions, the principle is the same in passing from old to new conditions. Primitive business methods must give way to highly organized and developed systems. One must study old methods to see what can be dispensed with and what can be improved, if the machinery of mercantile methods is to be advanced.

Perhaps, many have fallen into a rut and do not know how to get out. Such ones must come out of their shell and study what others have done to achieve success. After all, methods of business are but the outward manifestations of the business man and all must probe into the new ways of business and adapt theselves to new methods of procuring success. The business field is wide, with plenty of room for all, and a luxuriant field looms up for the ensuing year, for all who will understand.

TINNED GOODS MARKET GOES ABEGGING.

IT seems strange that there should still be "new fields and pastures green" for Canadian manufacturers to explore, yet such is the case. According to the latest report of G. E. Burke, Canadian commercial agent to Jamaica, tinned commodities such as fish, meats, fruits, etc., are becoming more popular daily in that island, although so far Canada has been fairly out of it. There is also a brisk and increasing demand for ham and bacon which up to the present time has been supplied almost exclusively by English and United States firms.

A study of the Jamaica trade returns for the last three years shows the following general distribution of the imports of the island. In 1900-01 the United Kingdom supplied 45.2 per cent. the United States 43.4 per cent., Canada 8.6 per cent. and other countries 2.8 per cent. of the total imports. In 1901-02 the distribution was 46.8, 43.3 and 2.9 per cent., and in 1902-03, 50.1, 40.3, 6.9 and 2.7 per cent., showing a gain in 1903 of 3.3 per cent. for the United Kingdom, a loss of 3 per cent. for the United States, and of 1 per cent. for Canada.

In the matter of bacon and tinned goods, however, Canada's contribution is not worth mentioning, while the United States enjoys a large and established trade with Jamaica. Why this should be so is a proper subject for speculation on the part of every man interested in the development of Canadian trade. The reputation for Canadian bacon is already established in the leading markets of the world, and Canadian canned goods can justly be said to be second to none. True, the United States enjoys the advantage of contiguity of market, on the other hand the prevailing sentiment in the British West Indies is British, and it is not improbable that in view of the preference recently accorded British West Indian goods in the Canadian market, a reciprocal arrangement will soon be arived at which will give Canada a direct commercial advantage over the United States with Jamaica. Be this as it may, however, it is high time Canadian exporters made an effort to redeem their present reputation in the West Indies for lack of enterprise, which has cost them many thousands of dollars in trade.

PROBLEM OF PURE WATER SOLVED.

CLEARNESS and sparkle are no more ultimate proof of purity in drinking water than a gilded glitter is evidence of pure gold. Water may be as clear as crystal and sparkling as brilliants, and yet be as laden with plague as the waters of the City of Jericho, when the city fathers besought the prophet to purify the supply. Fortunately for mankind, however, water that is unfit for human consumption generally possesses physical properties that appeal to the sense of taste or smell in a manner sufficient to make it undesirable. Human beings cannot live without a liberal supply, so that the purity of the water in any place is one of the most potent factors in the health of that community. The problem of obtaining a plentiful amount for domestic purposes has been before the nations through all time, and we find the Carthaginians at the time of Hannibal bringing the drinking water from reservoirs through closed viaducts in much the same manner as we do to-day. Waterworks engineering has advanced apace since those days, and the old gravity systems given way to pressure mains, but the old question still arises: Where can we get the best water at not too great a distance?

The matter is too serious a one to be lightly treated, as most municipalities know, and as others find out when an epidemic has swept the place. The deadly bacilli may be found in teeming millions, and their presence known only when many are taken with fever with fatal results. If it was suspected that the water was not as it should be people were told to boil it, but this precaution was more honored in the breach than otherwise.

If a recent report issued by the Bureau of Plant Industry in the U. S. be true, (and there is every reason to believe it such) the problem of pure water is forever solved. A method as effective as it is simple appears to have been discovered which as yet has had no general application, but from what has been accomplished thereby leaves little doubt as to what may be accomplished. The purifying agent is copper sulphate, and it is claimed that a quantity indistinguishable to the human organism will effectively cleanse any reservoir or source of drinking water supply, leaving it pure and clean and wholesome. The disinfecting properties of copper sulphate are well known, and for many years a concentrated solution has been used for that purpose. Housecleaning time generally saw a generous treatment of it in damp cellars and foul places with almost magical results.

It remained for Dr. George T. Moore, of the United States Department of Agriculture, to find out beyond question that a quantity of copper so small as to have no injurious effect on man, would effectively kill all typhoid and cholera and other germs in drinking water. Like many another important discovery for the benefit of mankind, it was found out while experimenting with another object in view.

Appeals had been sent to the department from different municipalities for advice and assistance in connection with their drinking water. In many places where natural reservoirs were used a small vegetable organism called algae developed, that rendered the water foul and unfit for use in the Summertime particularly, so that animals, however thirsty, refused to touch it. It developed so rapidly, and formed a scum on the surface, that the only remedy seemed to be to empty the reservoir and sweep it, an undertaking by no means practicable. It was recognized that some definite steps must be taken to remedy the evil, and Dr. Moore was delegated to conduct experiments.

Specimens of algae were obtained from all parts of the country and work begun, the results of which are described in a bulletin issued by the Bureau of Plant Industry. His aim was to discover a substance that would poison the algae and yet not harm the water, and that would be cheap. Many substances such as chlorine, sulphur deoxide, silver, mercury and lead, were found effective but prohibitive on account of their cost or injurious effects on animal life. He found, however, in copper sulphate, popularly known as blue stone, a substance that answered his requirements exactly. Solutions as weak as one part in 50,000,000 were found to be effective, and at the same time this small amount of copper was practically indistinguishable. Practical tests were then made on infected reservoirs with really amazing results. By dissolving a small quantity of sulphate suspended in a canvas sack from a row boat, the copper was well distributed. It was found that within 24 hours all the algae has disappeared and the water left clear and sweet. This, however, was only one of the troubles overcome in connection with drinking water, and one that was felt only in certain districts. A greater evil attends the drinking of water in the form of the deadly typhoid and cholera germ. Without experimenting with that in view it was found that the same substance that had wrought such a change on the algae was equally disastrous to germ life. Tests of the water treated showed that all germ life had been destroyed. Thus in dealing with one problem a greater and more serious one was solved.

Municipalities, corporations and waterworks companies should not be slow to act in adopting this effective and very cheap method in any case where the water is even suspected. Where there is an epidemic of fever from the drinking water it should appeal to the community as one of the greatest blessings to mankind. It seems strange that such a simple remedy had not been discovered sooner, but now that the fact is known and given to the world at large there seems no excuse that preventive measures should not be taken by its application.

CANADIAN SUGAR FOR JAPAN.

CANADIAN sugar refiners who are not fully occupied with the domestic market will do well to turn their attention to Japan, judging from the inducements held out by Dominion Government commercial agents residing in that country. Among such a vast population fond of sweetmeats of infinite variety there is hardly any limit to what might be done in the way of exciting a demand for good sugar, provided that article were placed on the market by intelligent and energetic salesmen. The general consumer in Japan pays approximately six cents per pound for "soft white" and "granulated American." a price higher by ten to fifteen per cent. than the Canadian consumer pays for nominally the same grades, but certainly thirty per cent. more saccharine strength.

People accustomed to using Canadian sugar complain that a third more of the sugar in use in Japan is necessary to produce equal results, and remark on the poor quality of the sugar ordinarily procurable there.

An excellent opportunity is afforded Canadian sugar refiners of placing their products on the Japanese market as a staple article if only the requirements of the market are systematically and persistently followed up.

THE ENGLISH POSTAL C.O.D. SYSTTM.

THE Canadian country storekeeper has undoubtedly a hard time to compete with the large departmental mail order stores, but when compared with the merchant in the smaller towns of Great Britain, he is literally in clover. Rural free delivery is supplemented by a parcel post by which boxes of dry goods may be forwarded by mail. The latest move is the further extension of this parcel post system by the Government considering the establishment of a postal c.o.d. system, by which the letter carrier will collect the money for the mail order concern.

Naturally, the storekeepers are up in arms, and ably seconded by the trade journal press have made a united "holler" which has temporarily checked this obnoxious project. A great deputation of imposing proportions armed to the teeth with facts, arguments and figures, waited upon the public department in Aldersgate street. Combative speeches were made in the retailers' interests insisting upon their important status and claim to consideration. His lordship, the postmaster-general, was asked to enter into the feelings of a small storekeeper who saw an official in His Majesty's uniform pass his door laden with parcels for customers whose accounts with the merchant were perhaps overdue.

Lord Stanley replied to the deputation in a fair and thorough manner, clearly showing that the cash-on-delivery system was nothing more than the consolidation of the parcel post and postal orders. He thought it a simplification of the present method and would in no manner extend the parcel post. However, in the face of such bitter opposition it was not his intention to put the cash-on-delivery system in operation in England, but he would do what he could in regard to the colonies and dependencies in establishing some method which would help in the exchanging of commodities.

The old adage "unity is strength" has thus been once again vindicated and the plans of the Government against the prosperity of the small trades have been overthrown by the energy of the commercial community. That this problem will have to be faced again by our British friends is certain and it is only by united effort on the part of all concerned that it can be squelched.

PRESENTATION.

A GRATIFYING expression of the Christmas spirit was given on Saturday last, in the offices of Douglas & Ratcliff, Limited, paper merchants, Toronto. The staff presented each of their principals with a very handsome bill case, with the wish that next year's business would fill these wallets to overflowing. Coupled with the presentation were addresses in which the employes expressed their pleasure in working for men who thought so much of the welfare of their staff. Mr. Douglas in replying emphasized the principles of justice and integrity which they sought to incorporate into every detail of their business. Mr. Ratcliff in his acknowledgement assured his hearers that they were esteemed to be more than mere employes, that they were an integral part of the business, that they were real contributors to any success the firm might have attained.

It may be remarked that this expression of good will was not alone on the side of the employes. It is the practice of Douglas & Ratcliff to present each member of their staff with a gold piece each Christmas, and this year was no exception.

Business Men in Parliament

Daniel Gallery, M.P., St. Anne's, Montreal.

FOR the second time Ald. Daniel Gallery of Montreal has successfully contested St. Anne's electoral district, winning by a majority of 794. The member comes of good Irish stock and can trace his family history back into the dim and remote past. But he does not parade this fact before the public, preferring rather to base his claims on his record as a business man and citizen of Canada's metropolis

Ald. Daniel Gallery, M.P.

Ald. Gallery owns a large tailoring business and was also at one time closely identified with a bakery business conducted under the firm name of Gallery Bros. He has been entirely successful in his career as a business man, just as he has been in politics.

Politics have always interested him as well as politics of the proper sort. He has not gone in for being an alderman and an M.P. for what he can get out of it, but he has been prompted by the best motives. Consider some of his work as one of Montreal's city fathers. The Gallery baths in St. Anne's ward have been in inestimable boon to the poor people of that district and were provided through his persistent efforts. The paving of Mill street, the mud hole on which so many of the city's biggest factories opened, was the work of Ald. Gallery and a work much appreciated by the wealthy. So that Mr. Gallery's municipal politics have been of great advantage to both rich and poor.

In the wider sphere of Dominion politics, Mr. Gallery has shown the same breadth of view that distinguishes him as an alderman. He has served his constituency and his country well at Ottawa, a fact attested to by the defeat he inflicted on so strong an opponent as J. F. Quinn, one of Montreal's ablest Irish lawyers and politicians.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Armand Chaput, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, has been confined to the house for some days through indisposition and a severe cold, but is expected out shortly.

Mr. W. L. Hunter and Mr. Newton A. Hill, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie.'s traveling staff, were noted among the traveling salesmen in Montreal during the holidays.

Mr. John Christie, representing Carter, Galbraith & Co., Montreal, in Ottawa district, was met by The Grocer this week, spending his Christmas holidays in Montreal.

Mr. W. K. Milne, of Aberdeen, Scotland, is a guest of Mr. Christie, Montreal, during the vacation period.

Mr. W. C. Condron, commission merchant, Quebec City, and representing Chaser Soap in that district, was a visitor to Montreal during the past few days.

Mr. Archie Snowdon, of Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, is visiting the trade in Ottawa during the present week.

COMMERCIAL AGENT FOR MEXICO.

Mr. A. W. Donly has been appointed Canadian Commercial Agent for the Republic of Mexico by the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Mr. Donly is a Canadian, 38 years of age, and a native of Simcoe, Ontario. His father is registrar of deeds for the County of Norfolk, and his brother was the Liberal candidate for that county in the recent general elections. Mr. Donly is an undergraduate of three years' standing of Victoria University, being a member of the class of 1890. He has lived in Mexico for the past fifteen years, and has had large business connections throughout the republic. Mr. Donly reads, speaks and writes the Spanish language with the same fluency as his native tongue.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 29, 1904.

Groceries.

THE grocery trade is quiet and without special feature as usual the week after Christmas, the bulk of business consisting of sorting-up orders and stray orders for staple groceries. Reports to hand from retail grocers throughout the country express satisfaction with this year's holiday trade, which on the whole is up to the average of former years, and in some departments has never been surpassed.

Stocks of nuts and fancy dried fruits are practically cleaned up, walnuts and filberts being particularly scarce, while supplies of fancy blue fruit are exhausted with the exception of some of the cheaper grades. Fancy prices in large size prunes may be expected shortly on account of shortage at the coast. Peels are short and Toronto wholesalers will in all probability have to rely upon outside markets for supplies during the next few months. Valencia raisins are down from ¼ to ¾c as predicted some weeks ago in The Canadian Grocer. Jamaica dates via London are expected to arrive on this market about Jan. 10.

Canned goods are quiet and featureless as well as syrups and molasses. Teas continue dull but will probably brighten up by the middle of January. Coffees are firm and advancing. Quotations on Rios and Santos are ½c higher all round than last week. Dried fish are quiet and without special feature with the exception of a scarcity of lake whitefish and herring.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods have been quiet during the week, as usual at holiday time. On account of the scarcity of tomatoes some houses are holding them as high as $1.30.

The report current that Pacific Coast salmon will be high and scarce as a result of spot stocks being rapidly picked up by the Japanese need hardly be viewed with alarm by the eastern Canadian trade. A firming tendency has been characteristic of the salmon market since the beginning of the season, but what is more important the requirements of the trade were pretty well met months ago at the opening prices. The fish trade continues quiet generally, no active movement in salmon being expected before the late Spring or early Summer, when the demand proper begins. Our quotations are as follows:

COFFEES.

A firm and advancing coffee market has ruled during the week under review. Rios are scarce on the local market, some grades not being procurable. Stocks in wholesalers' hands are light, which has necessitated rather freer buying than usual, although future buying is far from their minds at present.

Prices in New York have fluctuated during the week, although at the close there is no quotable change. Locally Rios are up ½c on all grades.

Certain trade interests are inclined to doubt the soundness of the present upward movement in prices, their argument being that the statistical position does not warrant higher values, pointing out that the world's visible supply of coffee on December 1 was at the exceptionally large total of 14,086,000 bags, or 250,000 bags larger than on the same date last year. Those who are friendly to the market state that in a speculative movement in any commodity it is well to remember that a movement in prices, be it up or down, is barely based upon existing known facts, but is usually discounting future probabilities. Particularly, it is claimed, is this true of the present movement in coffee prices. No attempt is made to explain away present record-breaking stocks, but it is argued that taking into consideration the outlook for the production of coffee the indications are that coffee at prices now ruling is cheap; consequently strong financial interests are being attracted by the possibilities of good profits and during the past two weeks have been free buyers of coffee contracts.

As has been previously pointed out, the indications, according to the information of some of the best informed of the trade, point to a material reduction in the world's stock of coffee before the opening of the new crop year, which occurs on July 1, 1905. The generally accepted idea in the trade is that the yield of the present Rio and Santos coffee crops is about 9,500,000 bags, and that the crops of other countries will yield 4,500,000 bags, making a total production of 14,000,000 bags. The takings for consumption in the United States and Europe up ta December 1 were 7,022,000 bags, compared with 7,138,000 bags same time last year. The total deliveries or takings for consumption in the United States and Europe last season amounted to 16,134,000 bags, and it is expected that the deliveries this year will amount to fully 16,100,000 bags; therefore with a production of only 14,000,000 bags an apparent deficiency of 2,100,000 bags presents itself, and will have to be supplied from reserve stocks. The world's stock of coffee, on the opening of the present crop year was 12,361,000 bags; consequently if consumption during the current crop year exceeds production by 2,100,000 bags the world's stocks of coffee on July 1 will have been reduced to about 10,250,000 bags. Enthusiasts on the bull side of the market are inclined to go still farther. They take the stand that as the season progresses and it becomes more evident that the consumption of coffee at prices now ruling has overtaken and passed production it is by no means an improbability that trade interests generally will show a desire to acquire larger stocks of coffee and obtain the benefit of advancing prices. This would result naturally in large deliveries, some of the more sanguine considering that it is well within possibilities for the deliveries of coffee in the United States and Europe for the current year to reach 17,000,000 bags, which with the production for the year at the figures estimated will place the world's visible supply at the opening of the new crop year at about 9,400,000 bags.

The leaders of the present upward movement of prices, it is understood, are not only considering the decrease in reserve stocks for the present crop year but they also are of the opinion that the production of coffee for the season of 1905-1906 will fall short of consumptive requirements, and that reserve stocks will therefore again have to be drawn upon. Latest reports from Brazil, particularly the State of Sao Paulo, are understood to be discouraging. The flowering of the Santos crop has been reported poor and irregular; the condition of the coffee trees is generally understood to be weak and the crop generally has a patchy appearance, the indications pointing, it is stated, to a small yield.

SUGAR.

The strength of the raw and refined sugar market continues unabated, and even the most conservative authorities now see no reason why the present high level of prices should not continue for many months. Locally prices of Paris lumps in boxes and barrels and granulated have each been advanced 5c; while Phoenix and soft sugars are quoted 10c higher than a week ago.

The price of raw beet is now 14s 4½d, the advance for the week being 6s 3d.

Receipts at 3 Atlantic ports for week ending Dec. 21 were 6,749 tons, with meltings 27,000 tons, leaving total stock in all hands 97,265 tons, a decrease of 20,251 tons from last week. Combined stocks of U. S. and Cuba on Dec. 21 were 109,765 tons, against 213,326 tons last year, a decrease of 103,561 tons. Total stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,531,765 tons, as compared with 3,251,500 tons last year at the same uneven dates, the deficiency being 722,735 tons.

Weather conditions in Cuba have been sufficiently favorable to permit an increase of the number of centrals grinding from 45 last week to 76 this week. Our quotations are as follows :

TEAS.

The tea trade has been exceptionally quiet during the last few weeks, but wholesalers are looking for a decided improvement in January and February, and will make a strong feature of this department.

For the week the London market is closed, which undoubtedly contributes something to the situation in this country. The trade generally are anxiously awaiting the ultimate outcome of the present situation in black and green teas. The big question is : Which is to win out ? It is thought that the oversupply of green tea in Canada has been pretty well worked off, at the same time many of the tea gardens have discontinued the making of green tea and gone exclusively into black.

Foreign Dried Fruits.

The wholesale trade is now in a position to estimate the holiday trade and reports a satisfactory volume of business, although in several lines the aggregate is not as large as in previous years, for instance, Valencia raisins, for which the market was spoiled by the extraordinarily low quotations arriving shortly before Christmas from Spain.

Fancy Malaga fruit has been pretty well cleaned up with the exception of trade conditions continue unchanged. Dealers are looking forward to a quiet season which will last till Spring.

During the week we have added to our list. Hothouse cucumbers selling at $1.30 per dozen; mushrooms at from 80 to 90c; butter squash is scarce and has advanced from 25c to 75c per dozen. Our quotations are:

Fish and Oysters.

Fishermen in the Maritime Provinces report a scarcity of smelts. Trade in fish which has been quiet during the holiday season but is expected to brighten up after the first of the year, when country retail merchants who handle frozen stock begin to order their supplies. Oysters have been meeting with good inquiry throughout the holidays. Prices at shipping points have advanced. No change is expected on the local market owing to the keen competition. Grain, Flour and Breakfast Foods.

GRAIN.

During the week Manitoba Northern wheat has advanced, No. 1 from 2 to 2 1-2c; No. 2, 3 to 3 1-2c, and No. 3, 3c per bushel. This advance is in sympathy with the sharp advance which took place on the American market this week. Another reason is that the supply of Manitoba wheat is held by a few concerns which are inclined to bull the market. The absence of Manitoba wheat in some quarters has caused a greater demand for red and white wheat, resulting in an advance of 2 1-2c per bushel. The scarcity of rye has caused an advance of 1c per bushel. Other prices continue unchanged. Our quotations are:

FLOUR.

Trade in flour is brisk. The exports have increased and large quantities are being shipped, via New York to England, South Africa and the West Indies. This brisk export trade is caused by the poor wheat crop in the United States which prevents the American miller from shipping. The demand for home consumption is also strong, large supplies being consumed in New Ontario. Prices are firm and continue unchanged. Our quotations are:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Groceries.

Montreal, Dec. 29, 1904.

TRADE among the jobbers is naturally quiet; the majority of the houses have called their salesmen off the road between the two holidays, and the approach of stocktaking time has also quieted, not only the jobbing, but the brokers and commission trades. Sugars are firm and steady. Advices from abroad report an advance for this month and next month of 3d, consequently the position is a strong one. There is practically nothing doing in the tea trade and the feeling is general that nothing much will be done until after the new year. Molasses has shown a very strong position, and, as reported last week, Barbadoes in puncheons was advanced to thirty cents. Spot stocks are pretty well cleaned up and it is estimated that there are not more than from 500 to 600 puncheons among the trade. Mail advices from Barbadoes are not encouraging for large yield next year; in fact it is estimated that a probable shortage of from 15 to 25 per cent. may occur. Corn syrups are in much better demand and are receiving more attention from the trade. Canned goods show no interest except an advance of 5c in tomatoes, making prices $1.30 for Ontario pack and $1.27 1-2 for Quebec. In other lines merely a sorting up trade is being done. In green fruits the holiday trade is in fair condition—orders from the country received by the wholesale fruit dealers would indicate a good demand outside. No changes to report in foreign dried fruits. Mail advices to hand from Sicily report markets for filberts as improved, owing to recent better demand and covering of the shorts. Coffee maintains its strong position, and it would not surprise us to have to report an advance in the near future. Spices are strong with business fairly good. As usual during the holiday season, the demand for fish has dropped off and not much business is looked for until after the new year. Bulk oysters are scarce, and particularly for shell Malpecques and there is a good demand for standards. Frozen fish are coming in freely and in large quantities. Vegetables are moderately active, the strongest feature being the high prices ruling on red onions, which are very scarce. Potatoes hold a fine position, 65c on track in carload lots being the standard price. Maple products are unchanged, though there is a tendency towards more life in this business after the turn of the year. Poultry has received good attention during the week and all lines quoted at firm prices with active demand. Flour prices are unchanged, though a leading miller has reduced the price 20c per barrel for Spring wheat grades. An advance of 25c to 50c per ton is noted in No. 1 Timothy hay, this is no doubt due to the heavy demand from Nova Scotia buyers, who are anxious to get in all the stock hay they can before January 1st, when the rebate of freight which has been allowed to Nova Scotia shippers on their imports of Quebec hay, ceases. It is not unlikely that after December 31st prices will ease off. The prices of all kinds of provisions have ruled steady. Smoked meats had a good trade during the holidays. Butter shows a very strong front, an advance of 1-4c is noted with a strong undertone to the market. There is practically no butter being made at present. The cheese situation is a quiet one, there has been some activity on inquiries from London and Bristol, and as high as 10 3-4c was realized by holders, and even 11c was mentioned as being obtained by one party. Eggs have been considerably more active, and western cold storage stock was in good demand, Montreal limed getting into small compass.

SUGAR.

The situation during the week has been very quiet, market firm and advices received from abroad advise an advance of 1 1-2d for the present month and 1 1-2d for next month. The position, consequently is a strong one and no change towards lower prices is in prospect. The volume of business locally has been about up to the average. It is not expected that much buying will be done till after the turn of the new year.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The strong feeling developed in molasses last week is maintained and several large purchases have been made by the trade, one jobber taking a lot of 250 puncheons at 28 1-2c, this is the highest figure realized thus far. Spot stocks are cleaned up and 500 to 600 puncheons will about cover what there is. Mail advices from Barbadoes report the major portion of the crop suffering from drought, and it is anticipated that the yield next year will fall considerably short of the past season. It is difficult to estimate the probable shortage but 15 to 25 per cent. is mentioned. Corn Syrups are selling well and after the turn of the year and the strong position of molasses these will attract more attention.

TEA.

The condition of the tea trade is best described as being in a comatose condition; there is practically no trading being done, brokers complain that offers are few and the jobbing trade merely shrug their shoulders and say, "Nothing doing in teas." There have been one or two sales of low grade Japans made. Prices are generally in favor of buyers and it would seem a good time for the trade to purchase.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation in the canned goods line this week is a very quiet one, the only exception has been the recent advance of five cents per dozen in the price of tomatoes, which are now quoted at $1.30 for Ontario pack and $1.27 1-2 for Quebec. A fair business has been done in a jobbing way in all grades, though the volume of same was not large. Some inquiries for salmon were received from Toronto and western points during the week.

Fish.

As usual during the holidays the demand for fish is small and dealers do not anticipate any heavy business. The demand for bulk oysters is brisk and will be so until after the new year. There are no material changes to note in prices. Frozen fish of all kinds are now arriving freely in large quantities so that there will be no risk of shortage during the next month. LAST MINUTE PROVISION MARKET.

Montreal, Thursday, Dec. 29, 12.30 p.m.

BUTTER—No change. Export business quiet, more money in local business as demand and prices are better here. Fancy Octobers, 22c. for small lots; fresh made creamery, 21½c.; fine, 21½c.; good, 21c.; medium, 20½c. Receipts fairly good.

CHEESE—Some cable enquiries this morning. As high as 10⅝c. is mentioned as being paid though 10½c. is about best going. Market firm and prospects good. Liverpool cables 51 to 53s.

EGGS—Market eased off since holiday. Selects, 25c.; No. 2, 17 to 18c.; cold storage selects 21 to 22c.; straights, 18 to 20c.; Montreal limed, 19 to 20c.

PROVISIONS—Demand somewhat limited, free buying last week shows effect now. Dressed hogs slow and prices unchanged, $6.75 to $7.25 for fresh abattoir and $6 to $6.75 for country dressed.

POULTRY.

A good demand prevailed during the week, turkeys especially being called for and good prices ruled. A lull prevailed yesterday but taken all around a fair trade is being done. Chickens quoted at 10 to 12c, ducks 11 to 12 1-2c, geese 9c to 10c, and fowl 7c to 9c, turkeys 15 1-2 to 16 1-2c.

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

The reduction of 20c per barrel in price of Spring wheat grades by a leading milling company was the only interesting feature of the week's business. Generally it was understood that this price had been ruling among the trade and the reduction in question did not cause any stir. Business for export was fair, South Africa and the United Kingdom being principal destinations. We quote:

HAY.

An advance of 25c to 50c per ton is noted in No. 1 timothy which is scarce. Ordinary unchanged with good supply and fair demand. The demand is strong from Nova Scotia buyers who are anxious to get in all the stock they can before January 1st, as on that date the rebates of freight which the Intercolonial Railway has been allowing the different municipalities in Nova Scotia on their imports of Quebec hay, cease. Prices are expected to drop here after December 31st, in consequence of the closing of this outlet.

TALES OF THE ROAD

By Charles N. Crewdson in Saturday Evening Post.

THE man who believes that on every traveling man's head should rest a dunce-cap will some fine day get badly fooled if he continues to rub up against the drummer. The road is the biggest college in the world. Its classrooms are not confined within a few graystone buildings with red slate roofs; they are the nooks and corners of the earth. When a man gets a sheepskin from this school he doesn't need to go scuffling around for work: he already has a job. Its museum contains, not a few small specimens of ore, but the mine itself.

If you have a son let him take an antegraduate course of a few years on the road and he will know to what use to put his book learning when he gets it. I do not decry book lore; the midnight incandescent burned over the classic page is a good thing. I am merely saying that a lot of good copper wire goes to waste because too many college "grads" start their education wrong end first. They don't know what they are working for. If I were running a school my way, and the object was to teach a boy method, I'd hand him a sample grip before I'd give him a book of Euclid. Last night a few ideas struck me when I thought my day's work was done. I jumped out of bed seven times in twenty minutes and lit seven matches so I could see to jot down the points. The man on the road learns to "do it now."

Too many traveling men waste their leisure. Like the youth of Thomas Moore, in their older days they will wail:

Thus many, like me, who in youth should have tasted
The fountain that runs by philosophy's shrine,
Their time with the flowers on the margin have wasted,
And left their light urns all as empty as mine.

Yet many improve their hours of leisure from business; if they don't it is their own fault. I met an old acquaintance on the street yesterday. "My season is too short," said he. "I wish I could something to do between trips." I asked him why he did not write for newspapers or do any of a dozen other things. "I'm incapable," he replied. "Well, that isn't my fault," said I. "No," he answered, "it's mine."

I know one man on the road who found time to learn the German language. And, by the way, he told me how it once served him a good turn.

"When I was up in Minnesota," said he, "a few years ago, I got a big merchant to come over to look at my goods. That, you know, was half of the battle."

The Merchants Field of Lian-Yang.

And so it was; for when a merchant goes into a drummer's sample-room he is on the field af Liau-Yang, and if he doesn't look out the drummer will prove himself the Jap.

"It was my first trip to the town," continued my friend. "The first thing my prospective customer picked up after he came into my room was a sample of a 'Yucatan' hat. You know how it goes—when a merchant comes into your sample-room for the first time he picks up the things he knows the price of. If the prices on these are high he soon leaves you; if they seem right to him he has confidence in the rest of your line and usually buys if the styles suit him. The way to sell goods is either to have lower prices or else make your line show up better than your competitor's. Even though your prices be the same as his, you can often win out by displaying your goods better than your competitor does. Many a time he is too lazy to spread his goods and show what he really has; and his customer thinks the line is 'on the bum,' when, in truth, it is not.

"This merchant—Alex Strouss was his name—couldn't have picked up a luckier thing for me than that Yucatan hat. The year previous my house had imported them finished, but that year we had trimmed them in our own shop. The duty was much less on the unfinished body than on the trimmed hat; therefore the price had dropped considerably.

" 'How much do you vant for dis?' said strouss, picking up the Yukatan.

" 'Nine dollars a dozen,' said I, without explaining why the price was so low. It would have been as foolish for me to do this, you know, as to play poker with may cards on the table face up.

"Strouss turned to his clerk, Morris, who was with him. They both examined the hat, and Alex said, in German, to Morris: 'Den selben Hut haben wir gehabt. Letzes Jahr haben wir sechzehn und ein halb den Dutzen bezahlt. Das ist sehr billing.' The same hat we had. Last year we paid sixteen and a half a dozen. This is very cheap).

"Then Alex turned to me—he was a noted bluffer—and said in English: 'Hefens alife! Nine tollars! Vy, I pought 'em last year for sefen and a half!'

"I never saw such a bold stand in my life. The expression on his face would have won a jackpot on a bobtail flush. But I was in position to call his bluff. His cards were on the table face up.

"I merely repeated his own words in his own tongue: 'Den selben Hut haben gehabt. Letzes Jahr haben wir sechzen und ein halb den bezahlt. Das ist sehr billing.'

" 'Hier, dake a seecar on me,' said Alex, offering me a smoke. He bought a nice bill from me, and has been a good customer ever since.

"Just to let you know what a hard proposition Strouss was, I'll tell you another incident in connection with him:

"After I had known Alex for two years I went into his store one morning when I was on my Fall trip. He came from behind the counter to meet me, wearing upon his face a smile of triumph. He had never approached me before; I always had to hunt him down.

"I said: 'Hello, Alex! How goes it?'

" 'Dis ist how choes id,' said he, nanding me a card. 'Dot's der vay id chose mit ef'rypody dis season.'

"On the card which he handed to me—and to every traveling man who came in—were these words:

"Don't waste your time on me; I will not buy any goods until I go to market — — — — — — — — —Alex.

"Reading the card quickly, I said to him: 'Thank you, Alex. May I have another one of these cards?'

"He handed me another one, saying, 'Vot do you want mit anudder vun?'

" 'I want one to hold as a keepsake of the man, of all men, who is gladdest to see me when I get around; the other I shall pin to the order I shall take from you to-day and send to my firm.'

"With a sweeping bow I said: 'Adieu, Alex, auf wiedersehen,' and left the store.

The Trap With a Tag to it.

"I knew Alex's habits. He always went to dinner when the town clock struck twelve. A deaf shoemaker in the next block regulated his watch, they say, by Alex's movements. A few minutes past twelve I went back to the store and left on the front showcase a bunch of samples done up in a red cloth. On some of them were large green tags showing the quantity I had of each, and the price. I also wrote on the green tags the words 'Job lot.'

"I knew that Alex would see the bundle; and I knew that he would open it—a merchant will always look at samples if you take them to his store. I also knew that Alex, when he saw the mystic words, 'Job lot,' would be excited. Adam and Eve were not more tempted by the forbidden fruit than is the Yehuda (Hebrew) merchant by a metziah (bargain).

"I went back to the hotel. After luncheon I sent out my advance cards and took up a book. My mind was easy, because I knew just exactly what was going to happen.

"At a quarter of six, Abie, Alex's boy, disturbed me while I was in the middle of a chapter, and said: 'Papa wants to see you right away. The store closes at six.'

"I knew that meant business, but I said to Abie: 'Tell your papa, if he will excuse me, I'll not come over. Won't you please say good-bye to him for me? And won't you, Abie—like a good boy—bring me a bundle I left on the showcase? I has a red cloth around it.'

"Finishing my chapter, I started, slowly, toward Alex's store. I met Abie. But he didn't have the red bundle—I knew he wouldn't.

" 'Papa says, come over. He wants to see you,' said Abie.

"As I went into the store, about a minute before six, Alex was pacing up and down the floor. My samples were spread upon the showcase.

" 'Eef you vant your zamples dake

'em away yourself. Do you subbose I raice poys to vait on draveling men ?' said Alex. He was keeping up his bluff well.

"With this I began to stack together my samples.

" 'Vait! vait!' said Alex. 'Aind you choing to gif a man a jance to puy some ghoots ?'

" 'Sure,' said I, 'if you want to; but I thought you were going to wait until you went into market.'

" 'Vell, you vas a taisy,' said Alex, and in three minutes—he was the quickest buyer I ever saw—I booked an order for $600.

" 'Now I see,' said Alex, as he shook hands and started home, 'vat you vanted mit der udder cart.' "

In Ohio there was a merchant notoriously hard to approach. He was one of the kind who, when you told him your business, would whistle and walk away, and who would always have something to do in another part of the store when you drew near to him the second time. What an amount of trouble a man of that kind makes for himself ! The traveling man is always ready to "make it short." When he goes into a store the thing he wishes to know, and know quickly, is : "Can I do any business here ?" The merchant will have no trouble getting rid of the drummer if he will only be frank. All he must do is to give a fair reason why he does not wish to do business. He may say, "I have bought"—that is the best one, if it is true; it is the index finger pointing out a short route for the salesman straight to the front door; he may say, "I have all in that line I can use for some time;" or, "I have an old personal friend to whom I give my trade for these goods—he treats me squarely;" or, "I have an established trade on this brand, my customers ask for it, and it gives them entire satisfaction—what the use of changing ?" Any one of these reasons will either rid the merchant of the traveling man or else raise an issue soon settled.

I will let my friend himself tell how he got the ear of the whistling merchant :

"The boys had told me old Jenkins was hard to get next to, but I made up my mind to reach him. It's lots more fun, anyway, to land a trout in swift water than to pull a carp out of a muddy pond; besides, the game fish is better to eat. When I went into his store Jenkins fled into his private office and slammed the door behind him. I made for the office. I had not come within ten feet of the window before the old man said gruffly : 'I don't want to buy any goods; I don't even want to listen to a traveling man this morning.'

"This did not stop me. I walked to the window, took a pad of paper out of my pocket, and wrote on a slip: 'I have some samples I should like to show you; I'll bring them over.' I handed the slip to old Jenkins and left him. The salesman who can do the odd, unexpected thing is the one who gets the merchant's ear."

The Mute Who Talked Business.

"When I brought my samples in—I sell a specialty line of baby shoes—I spread them on the counter. The old man was curious to see what a 'deaf and dumb man' was selling, I suppose, for up he marched and looked at my line. He picked up a shoe and wrote on a piece of paper, 'How much ?' I wrote the price and passed the slip back to him. 'What are your terms ?' he wrote back. 'Bill dated November 1, five per cent. off, ten days,' I replied on paper. 'Price your line right through,' he scribbled.

"With this I wrote the price of each shoe on a slip and put it under the sample. Old Jenkins called his shoe man. They both agreed that the line was exceptional—just what they wanted—and that the prices were low. But the old man wrote : 'Can't use any of your goods; the line I am buying is cheaper.'

"I made no answer to this, but began packing my grip. The old man tried to write me so fast that he broke the points off of his pencils and the clerk's. While he sharpened another pencil I kept on packing. He took hold of my hand and made a curious sign, saying, 'Wait.' But I went right on until the old man had written : 'Don't pack up. I will buy some goods from you because I feel sorry for you.'

" 'Thank you, sir,' I wrote, 'but I am no charity bird; I want to sell goods only to those who appreciate my values. Charity orders are always small ones, and a small one will not be sufficient for me to give you the exclusive sale.' That was a clincher, for when a merchant sees a good thing he will overbuy, you know, just to keep his competitor from having a chance at it. I started again to packing.

" 'I really like your goods and will buy a good bill if you will sell no one else in town,' wrote the old man nervously. 'I was only joking with you.'

"Just as I had finished writing down my order, never having spoken a word to old Jenkins, a traveling man friend came in and said, in his presence: 'How are you, Billy !'

" 'Pretty well, thank you,' said I.

" 'What, can you hear and talk !' half yelled the old man.

" 'To be sure,' I wrote back, 'but it would have been impolite to talk to you, because you said, as I drew near your window, you didn't want to listen to a traveling man this morning. Thank you for your order. Good-by.'

"The old man never forgot that day. The last time I was around he said : 'Confound you, Billy, what makes you ask me if I want any baby shoes ? You know I do and that I want yours.' "

FRUIT GROWERS COMPLAIN.

The members of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association have registered an official protest against the proposed amalgamation of the Dominion Fruit Division, the latter to control. They contend that the fruit interests of the country are of sufficient importance to have a separate division, with a chief directly responsible to the Minister of Agriculture.

MONTREAL.

Wholesale Grocers and Wine and Liquor Merchants.

THE MOST LIBERALLY MANAGED FIRM IN CANADA.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Dec. 27, 1904.

CHRISTMAS trade has been satisfactory though the lack of snow was quite a drawback and somewhat lessened the sales. Poultry, which are so much in demand at this season, were high. This is getting to be a yearly matter. Eggs are also higher of late years than formerly.

In Winter port shipments a large business is being done. In live stock very large shipments are being made.

Oil.

In burning oil this is the season of largest consumption. There is no change from the lower prices quoted. In lubricating oils prices are firmly held. In this line it is a question of value rather than price, the range of quality being very wide. Linseed oil, while somewhat unsettled, is very low, lower than for many years, particularly in regard to forward business. Turpentine remains unchanged and price is held quite firm; there is less competition in this line. Cod oil is rather higher and supply is not large.

Salt.

The Manchester steamer landed about five thousand bags Liverpool coarse salt last week. There is a fair demand. Price is held very firm. Dealers are not importing freely owing to extreme freight charged.

Canned Goods.

There is rather a light business. While corn is held at full figures, receipts of American corn prevent any further advance at present. Tomatoes are quite a full stock, with prices firm. All fruits, except gallon apples, are firm. Salmon is unchanged; dealers feel it wise to clean up stock at present prices. Domestic fish, sardines, haddies and kippered herring are firm. While there is a fair stock of sardines, kippers and haddies are in light supply.

Green Fruits.

We get a great deal of poor fruit from Nova Scotia, among the apples shipped here early, but by this time it is quite well cleaned up and so the better stock held brings improved price. Market is firm. Western apples are higher than

vs.
Investments.

Some lines are in the way of a continual expense. You probably have in your store at the present time a dozen or more lines that have never been a success; to be short, they are "stickers." You have from time to time pushed sales of these goods. The customer takes the purchase home; sometimes keeps it; often returns it, asking for some other brand of the line that is well known to them. It stays on the shelves, decreasing in value steadily and taking up valuable room, a continual expense ; while were it an article that was a product of a firm whose goods are generally known and liked, a "repeater," selling readily at a good profit, it would be a gilt-edge investment giving a big interest.

We show two lines that are satisfactory investments, they move easily and show a good margin of profit.

The York Malt Vinegar is a genuine malted grain Vinegar, of extra strength and perfect color. Comes (tissue-wrapped) 2 doz. to case, $1.60 per doz.

The White Wine is a super-distilled Vinegar, crystal clear and of extra strength. (Tissue-wrapped) 2 doz. to case, $1.30 per doz.

DON'T BE DECEIVED

Some irresponsible parties are offering MAPLE SYRUP under a similar brand to ours at ridiculously low figures. Pure goods cannot be produced at their price. The Pure Food laws of Canada prohibit the sale of Compound Maple Syrup unless branded as such.

the stock received here cost. In oranges Valencias have a large sale, Jamaicas are about done, Floridas have a good sale at this time and full prices are asked, some few Californias are sold. Lemons keep quite low. Malaga grapes are rather higher the season being late. Cape Cod cranberries are held firm.

Dried Fruit.

Active business is about over. Many lines have very light sale after Christmas as peels, figs and Malaga raisins. Valencia raisins are also a light sale after the holidays. This year very few were imported and sale is dropping off and beside this year prices were high as compared with Californias and though much lower prices are now quoted it is too late. California raisins are rather higher. Currants are unchanged. Prunes are low, apricots and peaches show a small business. Dates are rather lower owing to London shipments on the market. Goods could not be replaced at present prices. Evaporated apples are low. Onions are rather higher.

Sugar.

The market is very firm; there has not, however, been any further advance here during the past week. The sale of yellow sugar is very light. The sharp advance and the fact that those in the guild had to take their full profit has meant large sales for those outside.

Molasses.

There is little of interest. Prices are held firm. There is but a fair sale. Porto Rico is the grade chiefly sold. There is quite a full stock held.

Fish.

Fresh fish have a large sale at this season. The frozen herring so far received are small. The report from the north shore is that smelt are scarce. Dry cod are scarce and continue very high. In pickled herring, while full prices are asked, there is rather less inquiry; smoked are quite low. Finnan haddies are high.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

There has been fair inquiry for flour, the market holding firm. Feed is high and but a limited sale. Oats and oatmeal remain unchanged. Cornmeal, while still high, is rather lower than a few weeks ago. Beans have a fair sale. In yellow eyes a fair stock is held. Barley is quite scarce.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Special Report from the Winnipeg Office of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Quotations corrected by telegraph up to 12 a.m. Thursday, December 29th, 1904.

CHRISTMAS week is always the quietest of the whole year in the wholesale grocery trade, as travelers are off the road and the holiday sorting trade has ceased. The year has been a prosperous one for the Winnipeg trade, although at times collections have been slow, and in some parts of the country are not yet all that could be desired. Price changes are very few this week. As before, interest centres in the sugar market; a review of the situation will be found below. Prices west of Portage La Prairie have now advanced to a level with prices in Winnipeg, and local jobbers have made an arrangement whereby the price of icing and powdered sugar has been advanced. In sympathy with the steady advance in sugar the price of all grades of candies has been materially advanced. A local commission house is in receipt of an interesting report from a reliable source in California, relating to the situation in Californian dried fruits. A summary of this report will be found below. It will be noted that the statistical position of dried fruits is very strong and in view of this an advance in most lines seems not unlikely.

Sugar.

An anomolous condition of affairs has existed in the sugar market of the west for some time. It is in the neighborhood of Portage La Prairie that the disputed territory between the B. C. refinery and the Montreal refineries begins. Competition here has been very keen, particularly since the Canada Sugar Refinery has commenced carrying a stock in Brandon from which to supply the trade in that district. Consequently advances in that district have not kept pace with the advances in the east and in Winnipeg. But between the 12th and 22nd of the month three advances, amounting to 35c per cwt., have been made to apply to all points between Portage La Prairie and Moosejaw, and these advances have brought western prices to something like a level with those prevailing in the east. Since Nov. 2nd there has been an advance in Winnipeg of 75c per cwt. on Montreal and Wallaceburg sugars. In the same period there has been a similar advance of 75c on sugars for all points between Portage La Prairie and Moosejaw, but for points between Moosejaw and Dunmore the advance has been only 50c. The condition of affairs is, therefore, still somewhat anomalous, but the inequality is not so striking as it was a fortnight ago. The local jobbers have agreed upon an advance in icing and powdered sugar, and new quotations will be found below. We quote:

Canned Goods.

The canned goods market is very quiet this week, and there are no new features to note. Indications point to an early advance in tomatoes, but old prices still apply, although stocks are low. We quote:

Spices.

Little activity prevails this week. Indications point to an increasing strength in the pepper market, but local prices throughout are unchanged. We quote:

Pepper, black, per lb	0 18
" white, "	0 25
Cayenne, "	0 21

Syrups and Molasses.

As noted last week, the corn syrup market is expected to weaken because of the enormous western crop, but of course all cane syrups are in a strong position. There has been a seasonable trade during the month, but in common with other lines business is very quiet during the holiday week. We quote:

Syrup "Crown Brand," 2-lb tins, per 2 doz. case	2 40
" " 5-lb tins, per 1 "	2 70

Trade is of satisfactory proportions at locally unchanged prices. Rios are said to be developing increased strength. We quote:

Foreign Dried Fruits.

As noted above, a local commission house is in receipt of an interesting report from a reliable source in California relating to the outlook in dried fruits, and The Grocer presents this week a summary of same. Until a week or two ago California packers were so busy getting out orders that it was impossible to estimate the extent of surplus lines. It is now possible to do so, and it is found that the statistical position of California dried fruits is very strong, as the stock is the lightest in many seasons.

Peaches.—There are now remaining in California not more than 75 cars of dried peaches, and these are controlled by two or three packers. This is the lightest surplus stock known in years, as usually there are at least 300 cars left over the Christmas season. Prices are now on a fairly high plane, but in view of these facts the same steady advance which has been experienced since the beginning of the season may be expected to continue. Not only is the stock in California reduced to a minimum, but this is true also of the large eastern markets. Hence it will require only a slight demand to force prices up another cent or two per pound. The stock of standards is almost exhausted.

Apricots.—There is not more than 40 cars surplus stock in the state, and hence present values may be expected to be maintained.

Pears.—There are about 10 cars remaining in California.

Nectarines.—The market is almost entirely bare.

Prunes.—An anomalous condition prevails in the prune market. The stock on hand is the lightest in years, and at the same time the prices are the lowest on record for certain sizes. The dullness which has prevailed so long in the prune market has shaken the confidence of eastern buyers, but the statistical position of prunes would seem to indicate that they are a good speculation. The unsold stock in the Santa Clara Valley does not exceed 500 cars, as compared with 1,200 to 1,500 cars at this time last year. Very few outside prunes remain, except in the northern part of the state, and the greater part of these are so badly damaged by rain that it is doubtful if they can be put on the market.

The remaining stock is confined altogether to two sizes, viz., 50-60 and 60-70. It is almost impossible to obtain any 30-40 stock, and while there is still a small stock of 40-50, its scarcity demands a premium. The 70-80 stock is in light supply, and 80-90 and 90-100 are almost out of the market and command a heavy premium.

Raisins.—In view of the enormous demand of the last four months it is not surprising that orders are not numerous. Since the first of August nearly 55,000 tons of old and new raisins have been sold, and this is the heaviest demand in the history of the trade. It is 12,000 to 15,000 tons more than the 1904 production of raisins. Not to exceed 7,000 tons of raisins remain in California unsold. There is room for a marked advance in values before the 1905 crop is ready for the market.

Locally prices are unchanged, and we again quote as follows :

MR. G. R. SMALL.

THE GROCER has pleasure in presenting to its readers this week a photo of a gentleman whose work in the interests of one of Canada's principal products is worthy of recognition, Mr. G. R. Small, proprietor of the Canada Maple Exchange, Montreal. Though comparatively a young man he is undoubtedly a pioneer of the modern maple sugar industry of Canada, with which he has been closely identified from his youth. Mr. Small has personally operated one of the largest maple sugar orchards in the Eastern Townships, under the old method. He has been instrumental in establishing the firm of Small Bros., Dunham, Que., manufacturers of sugar boilers and utensils. During his connection with that industry he has made many patented inventions that have since made his name a familiar word over the entire maple sugar belt, and placed Canada far in the lead of manufacture of sugar utensils.

Of recent years he has given his entire attention and energies to the marketing of maple products, and after visiting and studying the principal markets of the world he concluded that this most wholesome and delicate flavored saccacherine was not handled in a proper manner. The outcome of his conclusions was the formation of the Canada Maple Exchange, where the raw material is taken and refined, and converted into more marketable form in the way of syrups and confections. One line in particular, that of maple sugar creams, have received the highest awards in nearly every country in the world, including the Orient. Every package leaving the Exchange bears the familiar words, "Made in Canada," which patriotic advertisement deserves recognition. The fact that the maple sugar industry in Canada has taken on immense proportions, is undoubtedly, in a large measure, due to the enterprise and quality of the goods turned out by the Canadian Maple Exchange. Mr. Small stated that owing to the maple product being a limited one the recent greatly increased demand for all kinds of maple products and confections had advanced the price of raw maple nearly one hundred per cent. Mr. Small, it may be stated, has been a close student of all the conditions prevailing in the maple sugar trade, and the numerous awards and medals he has received at the foremost exhibitions of this country and abroad, testify clearly to the merits of his company's products.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 22, 1904.

THE advance in sugar is the feature of the grocery market just now. The figure at the refinery here is 5 3-4, being a further raise of 1-4c per pound in all grades. This is the second jump in the last couple of weeks, and the price is firm at the increased figure. As noted last week, all prices tend to advances, and the condition still maintains. Dried fruits are very firm, black pepper has gone up slightly and a higher price is looked for in coffee. There is a half cent decline in Ontario cheese, but butter and eggs are unchanged. Eggs retail at from 50 to 60c for the guaranteed freshly laid article, though the cheapest kinds are obtaining a good sale. At present they are of better quality than a few months ago, when eggs were scarce and grades were mixed. Butter is not quite up to the usual mark of excellence because of the season of the year, but the price does not alter.

Japanese oranges are still the feature in the fruit market. They are now getting very scarce, and this week are wholesaling at 60c, an increase of 20c. The high price may lessen the demand, but there promises to be few for Christmas. The next steamer from the Orient, due next week, should have consignments on board. Californian oranges are lower, with good demand. Malaga grapes are getting cheaper. Potatoes are very firm, and higher prices are looked for.

Cornmeal is down a shade, as are also Okanagan flours, though the Manitoba article remains steady.

Business generally is considered to be up to expectations, though the weather has been unfavorable, and ahead of the trade for this season last year.

Dawson markets are undisturbed, with slow and steady demand. Mr. Scearce, one of the big egg dealers of the north, has come outside to buy eggs. He announces that he will buy 6,000 empty cases in Chicago and ship them to Canada to be filled with eggs for Dawson. He will also acquire a cold storage plant in Toronto for packing and storing his eggs prior to having them forwarded to Dawson in the Summer. He will buy the eggs on the Canadian side to avoid the duty. "I find that Canadians have eggs second to none in the land," Mr. Scearce said, "but they they are behind in the packing. The chief difficulty with Canadian packers seems to be in failing to get absolutely dry lumber for their egg boxes. The lumber, when the slightest damp, will convey a foreign flavor to the eggs. In the States the egg packers have learned the wisdom of using absolutely dry wood, thus retaining the utmost sweetness of the eggs. Merchants in Toronto have a great market in the Yukon, and can well afford to be-

Oscar Brown, of Oscar Brown & Co., fruit commission merchants of this city, has gone into partnership with the Earl of Aberdeen, the firm name to be the Oscar Brown Company. A commission and distributing house will be established at Edmonton especially to supply the market in the Territories, and special attention will be paid to Okanagan fruit. There will be no change in the personnel of the company in Vancouver. Oscar Brown & Co. has handled most of the fruit shipped to Vancouver from the Coldstream ranch, Earl of Aberdeen's property. W. Crawley Ricrado, the manager, was in the city last Saturday when arrangements for the new partnership were completed.

It is very probable that the Pendray Soap Works, of Victoria, will be moved to Vancouver, where facilities for shipping and manufacturing are much better. Pendray, who are now in the east viewing the latest plants in order to have the new works thoroughly up-to-date in every respect. The company manufactures paints, and Mr. H. Pendray is in Montreal and Toronto, absorbing the latest ideas in this connection. He will be home about the end of January.

Before the end of the year it is expected that the sales of land in the Chilliwack district will amount to $300,000, the purchases being made by new settlers. Hop growing is one of the important industries there. The Horst Hop Co., of California, which for some time has operated large yards at Chilliwack and Agassiz, has increased the area under cultivation at both places. At Chilliwack, the company has rented an additional 200 acres at a rental of $12 per acre, and purchased 40 acres at $350 per acre.

CROCKERY DEPARTMENT

Is your Crockery Department a Success?

IN July of this year The Canadian Grocer introduced an innovation in the way of a crockery department, and as far as can be learned at this early stage it has met with the approval of the retail grocery and general mercantile trades throughout Canada. There can be little doubt that the advice offered from time to time after a thorough and systematic study of the possibilities of the crockery trade in the grocery or general store has been taken to heart by a large number of tradesmen all over the country. The wholesale crockery, glassware and china houses report that their business from this quarter has shown a healthy increase within the last six months and say they have little difficulty in tracing good-sized orders to readers of The Canadian Grocer, and what is more important, repeat orders which is after all the final criterion.

The Canadian Grocer is encouraged to believe that it may serve the wholesale and retail trade still further by redoubling its efforts to awaken a live interest in crockery among every retail grocer and general merchant in the country, and will accordingly make its weekly crockery department of such a nature that it will be of unquestionable value to the merchant in buying as well as a reliable and helpful guide to him in following up the possibilities of the crockery trade to their fullest extent.

Mourning China.

THERE are certain people in France, America and Britain, who pride themselves on their originality in relation to their costumes, their homes, and their surroundings. It is nothing new for a society lady to have costumes to harmonize with the drapings of particular rooms in which they are to be worn. We have heard of a lady whose affections were set upon a dainty gown she saw, but as she could not wear it in her own drawing room because of its strong antipathy to the color scheme of that apartment, she had the drawing room re-decorated to accord with the dress. How closely "the proprieties" are observed may be gathered from the comment of a lady upon her friend's want of taste in wearing a blue dress with a brown dog. Now a rich American family have carried originality in harmony to what we imagine is its extreme limit. A recent death having placed the family "in mourning," they reached the height of exaggerated sentiment by the use of "mourning china" at breakfast and afternoon tea. The beautiful whiteware, with its ebony black edge, looked as if it were trimmed with crape. China manufacturers might approve the innovation if it was extensively adopted.

Troubles of English Potters.

The manufacturers of china and earthenware in England are being subjected to another great trial at a time when they need relief rather than extra pressure to meet the increasing competition which they have to encounter in every direction. Cornish china stone is a commodity which is utilized in every branch of the potting industry, and it is found in a comparatively small area in the neighborhood of St. Austel. Nine firms have formed an association, and have decided on increasing the price of stone about 3s or 3s 6d per ton to the millers, who of course will have to recoup themselves at the expense of the manufacturers.

The associated firms of china stone producers have issued circulars to their customers. The prices are fixed and are to come into operation on January 1 next. "All invoices will be sent through the secretary of the association, and all remittances must be made through the secretary." It is unfortunate that the change should have come at a time when trade is in many branches slack, but even if trade were flourishing it would cause a great disturbance. Some manufacturers profess to regard the change as of little consequence; but the bulk of the potteryware in England is made inland, and the manufacturers have to pay much heavier carriage of the stone than many of the Continental potters, who have it conveyed from Cornwall entirely by water.—British Trade Journal.

NOTE RE CALENDAR.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, has forwarded to The Grocer staff. Montreal. several of his calendars for 1905. The calendar is a fine piece of lithographic work displaying the various brands of goods put up and controlled by him. The famous "Condor" is promiently displayed over all. By addressing a post card and mentioning The Canadian Grocer, applicants may secure one of these ornamental and useful calendars from Mr. Marceau.

U. S. CANNERS MAY COME TO TORONTO.

An effort is being made to bring the International Convention of Canners of Canada and the United States to Toronto in 1906. This convention will last a week and be an event which may well be looked forward to with keen interest by the Canadian trad eand general public. A building as large as the armories will be required for the accommodation of the convention proper and for practical demonstrations in the various branches of fruit, vegetables and meat canning which will be one of the features of this year's convention.

CORRECTION.

In last week's Grocer mention was made of the sending out of a set of engravings of the King and Queen by Hudon, Hebert & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal. It should have been stated that Hudon, Hebert & Co. have several thousand of these splendid engravings which they will be pleased, on inquiry. to send out to grocers and liquor dealers in Canada. A letter or post card addressed to Hudon, Hebert & Co. with reference to this notice will bring the pictures, which are, it may be stated. fine specimens and worthy of adorning any home or office.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

White & Co., Toronto, are making preparations for a large fish business and have arriving this week a car British Columbia sea salmon, also a car Georgian Bay frozen trout.

McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruit merchants, Toronto, have received two cars of navel oranges.

White & Co., Toronto, have received a car yellow Danver onions in bags.

W. B. Stringer & Co., Toronto, have issued a novelty in the way of a telephone card. The card is circular in shape and is so arranged that the firms who are in constant communication with the owner of the card may be indexed in such a way that their names and numbers may be found at a moment's notice. This card will be given away to readers of The Canadian Grocer.

JERSEY CREAM YEAST CAKES.

We have received the following very interesting letter from Japan and thought it might interest you :

No. 117 Gokentei, Himeji, Japan, Oct. 31st, 1904.

Messrs. Lumsden Brothers, Manufacturers and Importers,

SIRS,—My attention was called to your "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes by an advertisement in English and French on a card enclosed, I think, in a sack of flour. The card was handed to me by a Japanese, baking bread for the Russians, Poles, Jews, and others now captives in Himeji ; it told how to make excellent bread, rolls, and buns, using "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes. The Japanese could read English but not understand it well, and he wished my explanation. I was delighted to see your advertisement as I wish some Yeast Cakes for the captives and sent to America 40 days ago for some. I have a two-cent Canada postage stamp a man sent me some years ago ; I suppose it is good. I will send it to you and ask you to donate me a sample of your Yeast Cakes and also your directions for making good bread, rolls, buns, and buckwheat cakes. I am happy to say the Russian captives are now baking fairly good bread and have improved very much. In September it was impossible, apparently, to make good bread ; I attribute the failure to mildew spores floating in the air entering the Yeast and the Sponge. Several persons spoke of their attempts and failure to make either good Yeast or good bread ; but now, some are having better success. The bread would sour and not rise properly. I suppose the remedy is to use "Jersey Cream" Yeast Cakes. But, as over a ton of bread is eaten daily by the captives, they must learn to make good Yeast also, and only depend on "Jersey Cream" for aid in making good bread and good Yeast. So, will you kindly give them instructions as to the best manner of baking a large amount of bread daily with a minimum of "Jersey Cream?" "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon," said our Saviour. And it is far pleasanter to have the approval of God than to have money. We often feel the need of money to carry out our plans ; often pray for money ; and sometimes receive money ; but we have to learn to trust God rather than money.

Among the captives, 539, over one-half are farmers ; but they are unable to farm now ; one is a watchmaker, but I think he has no tools here, else I would like to ask him to clean and repair my watch and clock. A large number of trades and professions are represented ; it seems a pity to have so many able, active young men kept in idleness. But school is taught from 8 to 10 ; some are learning English, Japanese, Russian, and I presume other branches. The daily intercourse of so many races, professions, and religious beliefs may be a valuable school ; a power for good here and hereafter. Some books, papers, and magazines in various languages have been given and more are desired.

May God bless these captives and captors.

Kind regards, EDWIN BAKER.

A SUNSHINE DINNER.

LAST week reference was made in The Canadian Grocer to the departure of Chase & Sanborn's Montreal branch staff to Boston to attend the annual reunion of the traveling staff of that coffee firm.

The following account of the dinner tendered the visiting employes by the firm is taken from the Boston Herald. These reunions are of the greatest benefit to every member and employe as the interchange of ideas, experiences, etc., are productive of increased loyalty and activity and make for good to all concerned:

At the Hotel Lenox, Wednesday evening, there was uncorked what was termed "a bottle of double-distilled extract of mercantile sunshine" of the vintage of 1904 produced year after year by a company of men who, for the nonce, were boys together.

The gathering consisted of the entire body of traveling salesmen of Chase & Sanborn, some 65 in all, from all parts of the United States and Canada, with the members of the firm and the department heads. The occasion was a dinner tendered by Chase & Sanborn, in compliment to their selling organization.

A novel feature of the occasion was a miniature train, consisting of an engine and three cars, propelled by electricity, which ran on a track around the entire length of the table, turned on loops at either end and returned in an opposite direction. This train could be stopped at any desired place, and started at will, by pressing a concealed button.

On one side the cars bore the inscription, "Chase & Sanborn, Limited," and on the other side "Chicago and Montreal Special."

The "piece de resistance" took the form of a beautiful loving cup presented to each guest, with the compliments of the firm. The bowl was of richly colored dark wood, lined and mounted with silver.

On one side of the cup, in raised letters of silver, was the monogram "C. & S."

There were "heart to heart" talks and retrospects which brought out comparisons of the past year's business with that of the previous year.

Another Market for Canadian Apples.

IN his latest report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, C. E. Sontum, Canadian Commercial Agent to Norway, Sweden and Denmark, says that these countries offer a profitable market for Canadian apples, both fresh and evaporated, the requirements, however, being exclusively for finest grade fruit.

Of fresh apples only xxx red Baldwins are wanted. They must absolutely have the red color, as no matter how good the fruit may otherwise be, an off-color will be ruinous for the price they will bring, as the fruit is used not only for eating but largely for decorating, and for this purpose it can of course only be bought by the most well-to-do families, who do not care about the price (about $10 per bbl. retail after nearly $2 in duty has been paid). By way of comparison, very good domestic apples may be bought for from one-third to one-half of this price in retail.

Canadian exporters are warned against sending apples that are not strictly first-class red Baldwins to these countries, as inferior goods in every instance will cause loss for the shippers besides ruining the reputation of Canadian apples, which again will make it difficult to obtain a good price for such apples in the future.

The fresh apples intended for Norway, Sweden and Denmark, may be packed in barrels of the regular size or in boxes of 40 pounds net each. A firm intending to build up a constant demand for their apples should have all barrels and boxes marked with their name. The apples in boxes should be wrapped in tissue paper.

What is said about the quality of the fresh apples also refers to the evaporated. Only strictly choice, sliced apples will find a sale. Common dried apples are unsaleable. The usual packing in 50 pound boxes net is satisfactory. The import of canned fruit is of no account, the duty being too high.

Important Legal Decision.

An important legal decision was given last week at Moncton, N.B., in the case of the Delhi Fruit and Vegetable Co., of Ontario, vs. J. H. Harris & Co., of Moncton. In 1902 the defendant ordered 250 cases of canned tomatoes from the plaintiff at 92 1-2 cents a case. The crop proved poor that year and the plaintiffs did not deliver the goods and the defendant was obliged to buy elsewhere at $1.80 per case to fill orders and in settling with the Delhi Fruit Co. kept back $232 for damages sustained. The judge found the plaintiffs were entitled to $232.50 for goods bargained and sold, but that the defendant sustained damages to the amount of $262.50, thus leaving the judgment in favor of the defendant for $30.50.

Raisin Seeding Industry.

SIXTY per cent. of the California grape crop is turned into seeded raisins, the output of one company alone for the year 1903 being 5,500 carloads. In Fresno alone, where most of the seeding is done, there are seven large plants for the handling of the product, employing 1,500 persons. And yet the seeded-raisin industry is only twelve years old.

The seeding is done entirely by machinery. The original raisin-seeding machine was a New York invention; but it has been improved upon by California inventors, until now it does its work with almost absolute thoroughness. And it is an interesting fact that in the process of seeding now in vogue, the raisin is not touched by human hands from the time that it arrives from the packing-house until it is confined in its one-pound carton ready for shipment to the market.

The entire process of converting the grape into a raisin, however, is not performed at the seeding plants. The preliminary work is done at the packing-houses, situated here and there through the vineyards. * * * At the packing-houses the raisins are dried, stemmed, as far as the larger stems are concerned, graded and packed in rough boxes for shipment to the seeding-plants. From outside points these boxed raisins are shipped to the seeding-plants by the carload.

At the seeding plants the raisins are dumped from these rough boxes and are then "processed," to use a technical term, preparatory to seeding. First the raisins are subjected to a dry temperature of 140 degrees F., after which they are chilled; and after being subjected to the latter process, they become as hard and dry as a bean. Then they are in shape to go through the final process of stemming, which takes off the short steam remaining on the raisin when it comes from the packing-house. The raisins are then put through a rubbing machine, which has the effect to remove the short stem mentioned and leave the raisin in its simple form.

Then the raisin is subjected to a moist heat of 130 degrees F., which has the effect of making them soft and pliable. Then it is sent on to the seeding machine, where it passes between a pair of pure rubber rolls, and is then impaled upon a roll of small saws, which presses the seed out through the surface of the raisin. The saw roll, with the raisin thus impaled, revolves and passes over a flicking device, which whisks off the seed, leaving the raisin still impaled on the saw roll. The saw roll, still revolving, passes around until the seeded raisin strikes a series of figures, which frees the raisin from the roll. The raisins then pass through a system of chutes, and are packed by girls in one-pound cartons.—Exchange.

No Country Like Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's interview with the press agents at Chicago, December 20, should be read with pride by every patriotic Canadian. Brief though it was, the interview breathed the true spirit of the North land, and his repeatedly expressed statement that "The Canadian West is the greatest West there is," will be endorsed by all conversant with this country and its great future.

His pride in the superiority of Canadian fruit to that of California is a just one, which judges cannot fail to endorse. California peaches undoubtedly present a very fine appearance; at the same time they are inferior in flavor to first-class Canadian fruit.

Fruit Notes.

The Sussex Packing Co., proprietors of cold storage plant, packers, etc., Sussex, N.B., have amalgamated with the D. W. Hoegg Co., fruit and vegetable canners, Sussex, Sheffield and Woodstock, N.B., under the name of the first mentioned concern. The capitalization is $100,000.

Reports from London, Eng., state that the abundant home crop of apples somewhat seriously affected the Christmas trade in Canadian apples this year. Canadian fruit, however, has never shown up better.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

FLOUR MILLING IN CANADA, 1904-05.

THE close of the year seems an appropriate time for a short review of the conditions which have affected the milling industry in Canada during the four months since harvest. Notwithstanding the abundant wheat crop both Manitoba and Ontario harvested in 1903, it was plainly evident as the end of the cereal year drew near, that it had practically all been exported or gone into consumption. During the months of July and August a positive scarcity existed, even the high prices prevailing failing to bring any large supplies on the market, and many of the mills being shut down or running only on short time to supply local demand, because no wheat was available to manufacture flour for shipment.

This resulted in Canada entering on a new crop year bare of supplies. Neither country dealers, nor elevators at the lake ports, nor even the big elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur held any old Manitoba wheat on Sept. 15.

As stated in a recent article on the Ontario crops situation, the wheat crop in Ontario this year was probably less than one-third of that of 1903, and one-quarter of the crop of 1902, owing to its being attacked by rust shortly before harvest. The United States also suffered from unfavorable weather during the Winter wheat harvest. At the same time reports came that the Spring wheat crop, both of the northwestern states and Manitoba, was badly affected by rust; that there was to be a big reduction in the yield and a small total crop instead of the bountiful one which crop conditions promised a short time before.

These reports, combined with the short supplies mentioned above, had an immediate effect on the price of wheat, which advanced to the highest figures known since the Leiter boom. While threshing returns showed that the damage was overestimated in some cases, especially in Manitoba, yet the returns proved such that it was evident, taking into consideration the poor quality of a large portion of the crop harvested, that the United States would have very little for export, either in the shape of wheat or flour, and that a much larger portion than usual of the Manitoba crop would be required by the Ontario mills to replace the short crop of Winter wheat in Ontario, and that a higher range of prices would be justified than had prevailed for several years.

It would naturally be supposed that under these circumstances the prospects of a profitable year for Ontario mills would not be good. On the contrary, inquiry proves that in spite of the high prices prevailing Ontario mills have emjoyed the largest trade and a more profitable one than they have experienced for many years.

Two causes have largely contributed to this. First, on account of the price of United States wheat being away above an export basis, many of the orders for flour which were formerly filled by the mills in the United States have come to Canada, with the result that for the past three months many of the Ontario mills have been obliged to refuse orders, showing a profit because they were booked in many instances weeks ahead.

The domestic business has also proven very satisfactory, notwithstanding the high price of Ontario wheat, as there has not been the same competition in the eastern markets from the large Manitoba mills, who have steadily maintained their prices at a profitable figure because their export business would take more than they could manufacture. There has also been less competition among the Ontario mills themselves for both local and export business on account of the short crop of Ontario wheat. Many of the small mills without regular eastern connections who, when wheat is plentiful, send a car or two a month on consignment or sell it for what it will bring through brokers, often getting ridiculously low prices, are this year unable to do this business, as they find it difficult to get even enough local wheat to supply their local trade. Thus the larger mills have additional trade as well as better prices, owing to the above mentioned competition being removed. These conditions have not operated altogether to the disadvantage of the smaller mills, because they have in reality made no profit in the great majority of cases on business of this kind, and not unfrequently have done it at a loss. This year they have been able to get high prices for their mill offal as well as better prices for flour sold locally, owing to the fact that the large mills have had such a big shipping demand that they have been paying little attention to the local markets and to pushing sales of their flour locally, as they are compelled to do when business is dull.

If the other eight months of this year prove as satisfactory as the past four, the outlook is that the mills of Ontario will have one of the most profitable year's businesses that they have enjoyed for a long time.

Wheat Situation.

The wheat situation is quiet as usual at the holiday season, with prices firm and export business experiencing a temporary lull. Flour is also quiet on account of wheat being above an export basis, and there is little of interest except local milling for domestic consumption.

The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association has issued the following statistics on the wheat situation for Manitoba and the Northwest Territories to the close of navigation: Estimated yield on October 15, 59,857,000 bushels; inspected to date, 22,200,000 bushels; in store at country points, 8,500,000 bushels; in transit, not inspected, 490,000 bushels; total marketed, 31,190,000 bushels; allowance for seed, 8,000,000 bushels; allowance for country mills, 7,000,000 bushels; balance to market, 13,667,190 bushels. From this year's crop of wheat, oats, barley and flax alone the farmers of the Canadian west will realize the snug sum of $70,000,000.

At the head office of the Canadian Pacific Railway the result of the season's operations is said to have been most satisfactory. The total wheat marketed at the stations along the line throughout the season in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories was 20,259,000 bushels, as compared with 18,250,000 bushels last year, an increase of 11 per cent. Receipts at Fort William during the same period were 12,500,000 bushels, as compared with 10,600,000 bushels last vear, an increase of 17 per cent.

By the way—we wish you all a right prosperous New Year.

The Frontenac Cereal Co.
Limited.
KINGSTON, CANADA.

The shipments from Fort William were 11,723,000 bushels, as compared with 1,000,000 bushels, and as these elevators of 16 per cent. Most of the increase in shipments is directly traceable to the more protracted season enjoyed this year. The balance of wheat left in the C.P.R. elevators at Fort William is 1,000,000 bushels, and as these elevators have a total capacity of between eight and nine million bushels, there will be plenty of accommodation for storage during the Winter.

Jamaica and Canadian Cereals.

THE prejudice as to the keeping qualities of the Canadian article is now a thing of the past, writes G. E. Burke, Canadian commercial agent to Jamaica. All Canadian millers now have to do is to be prepared to take the average business risk of all producers and manufacturers desirous of operating a new and promising outlet, by consigning at first.

As an augury of the increasing consumption of the commodity it may be interesting to note the following imports into Jamaica for the last four years:

1901	148,818 barrels
1902	157,921 barrels
1903	167,991 barrels
1904	216,834 barrels

In previous years the trade would accept nothing but barrels, within recent date, however, owing doubtless to the growing scarcity of barrel material in the United States, as also the present ruling high price of flour, in the interest of economy, bakers, and distributors too, are now not nearly so prejudiced against bags or sacks.

SPLIT PEAS.

All the split peas imported into the island up to very recently came through New York commission houses. But in the case of oats, Canadian manufacturers are now getting alive to their own interests, and shipments are coming direct to local consignees.

ROLLED OATS.

Some Canadian brands of breakfast foods in one and two pound packets are on the market, but the bulk of the rolled oats comes from United States sources. There is surely no good reason for this.

PEARL BARLEY AND OATMEAL.

Both of the above commodities are imported from the United Kingdom in 100 lb. kegs, and a very large consumption exists. Canada might share the supply.

Future of Wheat.

Universal attention is being drawn to the fact that the quantity of wheat exported from the United States this year is less than for any corresponding period since 1891. This is not altogether accounted for by any deficiency in the crop, because last year's yield was more than an average one. Up to last June—the end of the fiscal year—wheat exports were some 80 million bushels below the previous corresponding year, a much greater reduction than can be accounted for in the crop difference. It is becoming more evident that the home consumption has greatly increased, whilst the production has remained practically stationary. We are also of the opinion that the existing state of things is not a transitory one, but is more or less an index of future prevailing conditions. It is not improbable that American wheat will practically fail us altogether in the not very distant future. In that case we shall have to rely upon Russia, Argentina and our colonies for the staff of life. Another probability is the prospective permanent rise in all the cereals, and with it, we hope, some return of prosperity to British agriculture. It is characteristic of our nation that as soon as a fact becomes patent we do not waste time in adapting ourselves and our methods in accordance with it, and the present aspect of the flour milling trade is an apt illustration, for during recent and prevailing circumstances there has been not the slightest outside indication that anything out of the normal was taking place, and yet, as a matter of fact, our millers have calmly dropped the acknowledged strongest and best wheat in the world out of their blends, without in any way interfering with any constituent for which that wheat was world famous.—The Miller.

New Milling Industry.

The directors of the Keewatin Flour Mills Co. state that plans and specifications are being prepared for the construction of a first-class flour mill with elevators, barrel factory, etc., and all the accessories to a mill of 5,000 barrels capacity.

To Abandon Premium Plan.

The American Cereal Co., better known in Canada as the manufacturers of "Quaker Oats," have announced that in deference to the wishes of the retail grocery trade in the United States they have abandoned the Cereta cash and coupon premium plan. They will also abandon all word-spelling schemes on Feb. 1, 1905, provided the Great Western Cereal Co. will do likewise. The existence of the premium system promises to be more meteoric than even the Canadian Grocer has predicted.

A Generous Christmas Gift.

Mr. Robert Meighen, president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., Montreal, has remembered the Winnipeg general hospital in a generous and liberal manner, and that institution is richer by $1,000. Mr. Meighen, on Dec. 23, placed that sum in the Bank of Montreal, Winnipeg, to the credit of the hospital.

Cereal Notes.

The big Ogilvie elevator at Fort William began operations on Dec. 20. It has a capacity of nearly 600,000 bushels.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

How to Keep Cigars.

THE up-to-date grocer knows how to keep cigars and by this knowledge he is enabled to please a lot of particular and good paying customers. The big cigar manufacturer who is apt to make light of the grocery trade in cigars and who deliberatley says that to sell the grocer in any town means to kill the cigar store man's businsss, would do well to look into the grocery's chance of custom. For instance, instead of giving a show case that would suit a drug store why not offer to the grocer a fine zinc-lined case having proper space for moisture in the lids and backs and which look well, wear well and promote all the interests involved. Take a manufacturer like Bruce Payne, of Granby, or any other who has done a good trade with the grocer. He offers to take back what are not sold of a thousand cigars, and he gives three months to sell that number. It is a very fair proposition. Yet in conversation with a large number of makers of good selling cigars it was learned that the average maker would prefer not to sell on such conditions. Why? Simply because he feels that the average grocer does not know how to keep cigars. He has nothing but an ordinary show case, and then he does not find time to bother in caring for a stock the way that he should in order to preserve the quality in the cigars.

The potent fact in all this argument remains untold, namely that no matter what is the matter with the grocer's facilities for keeping cigars, the grocer everywhere is selling cigars and the man who caters for that trade is going to get it. Do you want it Mr. Manufacturer? Then it's up to you to devise a scheme by means of which you can get the grocer to sell your goods or to get the grocer to ask the jobber for your lines exclusively. Think out some plan to make your brands sought. Then make the announcement in THE CANADIAN GROCER tobacco department. Afterwards if the results do not arrive abundantly the stock may be considered what the boys call "off."

Any hustling manufacturer with ideas (and they are usually the ones who win out) can make his grocery trade a leader. Bruce Payne is doing it; J. M. Fortier is doing it with his Chamberlain cigar and the Royal cigarettes, and there are dozens of others who should be in the field if they could get away from the beaten path of the hundreds of small factories all over the Dominion.

Any grocers who have suggestions to offer to THE GROCER as to how the grocery cigar trade may be developed along harmonious lines will be heard from with pleasure, and, no doubt, the pros and cons of the situation may prove interesting to the trade.

War Against the Trust.

ORGANIZED warfare against the tobacco trust is to be carried on in earnest if the plans of the National Convention of Independent Tobacco Manufacturers and Dealers held in Philadelphia last week are carried out. This convention was the result of a call sent out some time ago by the independent dealers of Philadelphia, who have been more successful than their brethren in other cities in holding the trust at bay. The call was responded to by the independents of many of the largest cities in the States and by growers and manufacturers in Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kentucky, Virginia and other States. The result was the largest gathering of the kind ever held on the North American continent, there being in attendance more than 7,000 persons interested in the tobacco trade.

The plan of the promoters of the movement is to organize for concerted action all of the independent associations now in existence. These include the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association of the United States and the Independent Tobacco League of America, together with some twenty State associations.

Dark Tobacco Requirements.

An estimate of the dark tobacco needed by foreign manufacturers to fill their 1904 orders is as follows:

	Hhds.
Spain	4,000
Italy	20,000
France	6,000
England	4 000
Germany	12,000
Belgium	5,000

A Practical Wish for the New Year

We wish you a prosperous new year,—cheerily. But we cannot refain from saying to you that you will realize our wish for you by working with us—by adding a sufficient stock of our Pebble and Pharaoh cigars. They are sure sellers, and you can never be "stuck" with them. Here's our offer once more.

We shall send express paid, 1,000 cigars, assorted as desired, on usual terms. We agree to take back at invoice price at the end of three months any unsold stock.

Now, let's get together for 1905.

We have known some grocers to have to list some Tobaccos at a big cut from invoice price, just because they weren't worth more—they had to be cleaned out at a cut figure. Bad tobaccos those to buy—and sell.

GEO. E. TUCKETT & SON CO., LIMITED, HAMILTON.

Trade in Manila.

Owing to the present disturbed condition of the Eastern countries, says the Australian Tobacco Journal, the trade in cigars in Manila has fallen off, and most of the factories have been compelled to reduce the number of their employes. The high duty of 250 per cent. instead of 150 per cent. which the Japanese Government enacted October 1st, will practically kill the Japanese trade of the Philippine Islands. There is an increased trade, however, with Australia. The last year's crop seems far superior to those of the previous years. Cigars with spiral wrappers are becoming to be preferred to those with straight wrappers.

Boom in Turkish Tobacco.

The cultivation of tobacco in the districts of Sivas and Samsoow, Turkey, has taken on quite a boom within the last two years owing to purchases from the United States which gave extraordinary expectations, and also to the purchase by the Regie of about all the tobacco in sight, whether suitable for manufacture or not, with the purpose of preventing contraband and controlling the market.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS

DURING the past week the freight business has improved slightly owing to the immense shipments of various lines of goods for the holidays. However from St. John it is learned that cargoes are wanting and the C. P. R. Co. having their own steamship service as well as railway line have an exclusive pull on cargoes. The talk regarding Canadian grain going to Boston has been repeated, and the truth is plain that grain is being shipped by Boston. The shipping rates were made, however, at a time when the steamers sailing the Canadian companies to compete with the New York railways.

The I. C. R. are making arrangements for improved shunting arrangements at the terminals, and the C. P. R. will also be in the same movement for development.

The Minister of Railways has taken an unusually strong interest in the terminals lately, and it is believed that both St. John and Halifax may be made thoroughly up-to-date from the standpoint of big ports, thus attracting and accommodating more shipping, and at the same time accomplishing more for the commerce of the country. It is expected that at the January session of Parliament some funds may be granted for these purposes.

BERTH QUOTATIONS--St. John, Halifax and Portland

The undernoted rates from West St. John are subjected to 5 per cent. primage additional.

The above is for general information only. These rates liable to change without notice and are therefore Subject to Confirmation.

When ocean charges are collectable at port of destination, rates exchange on basis of $4.80 to £1 sterling. When ocean charges are prepaid, rates exchanged on basis of $4.86 to £1 sterling.

If freight is offered other than specified above, on which steamship connections are accustomed to quote a weight or measurement rate at their option prompt advice will be facilitated by informing us of the relative weight and measurement of the mdse. when applying for rate. It is also necessary to know shipping point and on whose account engagement is to be made. All contracts subject to confirmation.

from Montreal were all filled so that in reality there is no objection to be made justly. What is rather surprising is that a charter of a new boat for St. John is quite a novelty, and the regular scheduled liners are the only ones at all occupying the port of St. John.

The grain bookings for January are better than they were last year at the same time and some encouragement is offered in this respect.

An answer regarding the proposed reduced freight rates from Ontario to Halifax means the Canadian Freight Association wish to make it possible for A QUILL FROM A CANADIAN WILD GOOSE.

The Canadian Grocer is in receipt of a quarto holiday booklet from the Manitoba Free Press, Winnipeg, entitled "A Quill From a Canada Wild Goose," which is accompanied by a souvenir pen in the shape of a real goose quill. The Manitoba Free Press is in the habit of remembering its many friends at Christmas time with a token suggestive of the west, and has succeeded this year in producing something which will meet with the approval of the most fastidious artist. As a supplement to the Cree legend of the wild goose is given some interesting data regarding the growth of this leading western journal.

RACE TO THE ANTIPODES.

The Frontenac Cereal Co., Kingston, manufacturers of Orange Meat, started two carloads of their products on a race to Australia last week. This firm does a considerable business with Australia and, wishing to test the relative superiority of the two great trade routes, instituted the present contest. One car was sent over the C. P. R. via Vancouver; the other was consigned to G. T. R. freight handlers, who will deliver it at Portland, Me., for shipment to Melbourne, Australia, via Cape Town. The finish of this freight race to the Antipodes will be awaited with interest by manufacturers and shippers in Canada.

COFFEE IMPORTERS

How is your Coffee Trade?

BRAID'S BEST COFFEE is increasing in popularity every day because consumers appreciate its merit.

ARE YOU SWIMMING WITH THE TIDE?

If not, now is the time to change.
Don't let your neighbor outstrip you, as he surely will unless you carry a good stock of Braid's Best Coffees.
Bucking the current has carried down many a strong swimmer.

BRAID'S BLENDED COFFEES are the best for grocers to buy—

FIRST—Because they yield him a satisfactory profit.
SECOND—Because the quality never varies.
THIRD—Because they give the public better satisfaction than any other coffee sold.

These Coffees are a triumph of the expert coffee man's art. An order will make you a permanent customer of ours, and every sale a steady patron for you.
